The crop of Canadian apples this year is better than ever, and what could be a more delightful remembrance from this side to our friends across the seas than a box of hand-picked and hand-packed Canadian apples.

Your grocer can fill such an order and the Canadian National Express will transport and deliver, by quick service, to any station in Great Britain or Ireland, from Montreal or Quebec, up to November 15th, and from St. John, N.B., and Halifax thereafter, at the rate of $3.00 per standard box of apples not exceeding one cubic foot eight inches in measurement or fifty pounds in weight. Prominent Liberals Are Supporting Protection

Party ties are not so binding in the present election as usual. Alarmed at the exodus to the United States, depressed at business and industrial conditions and worried over the fear that Western free trade sentiment will cause still further tariff tinkering and harm industry, many life long Liberals are supporting the Conservative party in this campaign.

Here is a list of a few prominent Ontario Liberals who are doing so with a statement of their reasons for supporting the only party which promises adequate protection.

"We, the undersigned Liberals, desire to publicly state our emphatic disagreement with the tariff policies enunciated by the Premier, William Lyon Mackenzie King, in the House of Commons and on the platform, and our firm conviction that they are not in the best interests of the Liberal Party; and we declare our steadfast belief in a policy of reasonable protection for the products of Canadian farms and factories:

PROTECTION FOR THE FARMER AS WELL AS FOR INDUSTRY

MR. MEIGHEN'S DEFINITE PROMISE HERE ON SATURDAY WILL BRING JOY TO RURAL RESIDENTS.

Right Honourable Arthur Meighen's clean-cut binding promise made here on Saturday night that if the Conservative Party is returned to power HE WILL IMMEDIATELY RAISE the tariff on United States vegetables to the level as the UNITED STATES TARIFF gives the market gardener, truck farmers and farmer generally in Ontario a chance to get something they have been seeking for years.

A thorn in the flesh of Ontario vegetable growers has been that the Canadian Market is flooded with American vegetables before the Canadian product can be marketed, and as a result the appetite of the consumer is sated by the imported article and the sale of home-grown products when they eventually reach the market suffers.

A vote for Mr. Peck therefore means a vote for two things, viewed from the standpoint of a Peterborough County Farmer:

It is a vote for:

(1) A BIGGER AND BETTER HOME MARKET because with industries adequately protected and working steadily at capacity there are more buyers for the products of Peterborough County farms and they have more money with which to buy those products.

(2) A PROTECTED HOME MARKET, saved for our own market gardeners and farmers by a high tariff against the imported article promised definitely by Mr. Meighen.

If these two things are of any value to you—and eveny farmer knows they are — vote for E. A. Peck.

There is no use voting for Mr. Gordon. He and his party are not promising protection for either industry or Ontario farmers. They are not only not saving the home market for the Ontario farmer by barring out the United States products but they are tearing down the home market by their tariff tinkering.

437 People have left Peterboro since last year — and that means 437 FEWER CUSTOMERS for Peterborough County farmers.

Do you want that condition to go on, you farmers of the County?

If you do you have only to vote for Mr. Gordon.

But if you want a bigger home market from which United States competition will be barred, there is only one way in which you can get it, and that is by doing your stage towards placing a Conservative Government in power.

Can you afford in your own interests to vote for anybody but Mr. Peck?

Think it over between now and Thursday.

Still Trying to Fool the Workers, But Mr. Gordon Cannot Succeed

Is there anyone in West Peterboro, including Mr. Gordon himself, who knows where Mr. Gordon stands on the question of the tariff? His advertising during the last few days has been featured by an attack on the whole principle of protection, narrowing down last night to an assault of the character usually expected from soap box orators on the manufacturers of Canada. Mr. Gordon is a member of the Cabinet in a government which is from every platform thundering platitudes about Canadian unity.

Yet for the purpose of trying to hold his fast slipping support, Mr. Gordon in his advertising seeks to poison the minds of workers against the manufacturers, tries to stir up the warfare of capital and labor, talks with the irresponsibility of a Hyde Park Red about the big interests. A fine contribution to Canadian Unity is being made by Mr. Gordon in his desperate efforts to save his political scalp.

He Can't Fool the Workers!

The Workers in Peterboro's factories are not as gullible as Mr. Gordon seems to imagine them to be.

They know that the pay envelope about which he speaks so feelingly in exactly the same words he used four years ago: "The man who comes home on Saturday night with his pay envelope, etc.," you all know the stuff, is menaced by the low tariff tendencies of the King Government.

They know that in the four years that have elapsed since Mr. Gordon first made that speech, many who heard him then have been opening their pay envelopes across the border, and many others have not had one to open for weeks at a time.

They know that when labor journals, such as the Labor Leader and the Canadian Labor Journal, and when Labor men like Harry G. Foster, advocate the election of Conservative candidates pledged to protect Canada's industries, that these Labor journals and Labor leaders are not out to work for the manufacturers but for the workers.

They know that they were gold-bricked four years ago by the same Mr. Gordon with the same brand of clap-trap, and this time they are going to vote for themselves and not for Mr. Gordon, who comes back with a string of broken promises behind him and tries to work the old game again.

This time it will fail, for the people of West Peterboro have had their eyes opened during the last four years and have decided that what Canada needs and what Peterboro needs is an end put to group government and the election of a party pledged to stand by the principle of protection for Canadian workers and Canadian farmers.

THAT IS WHY THE SWING TO MR. PECK IS TAKING ON THE APPEARANCE OF A LANDSLIDE.

RICKARD CALLS OFF GREB-WALKER BOUT

NEW YORK, Oct. 27.—(Canadian Press).—Because of what he characterized as excessive financial demands on the part of Harry Greb, middleweight champion, Tex Rickard yesterday announced that he had called off negotiations for a return match between Greb and Mickey Walker, welterweight title-holder.

The promoter had planned this bout as one of the features of his indoor programme at the new Madison Square Garden on December 18. In place of the Walker-Greb match, Rickard's new matchmaker, Jess McMahon, plans to seek a return featherweight title go on that date between Kid Kaplan, the champion, and Babe Herman. This will be contingent, however, upon Herman winning a bout scheduled in Boston November 4, with "Honeyboy" Finnegan.

QUEEN ALEX WON SCHOOL SOCCER CUP

Queen Mary Lost When Dorrington Scored the Only Goal.

In the first half, no scoring took place but near the finish, in fact, with only seven minutes to go, one of the Queen Mary full-backs mis-kicked the ball which let the Queen Alex forwards buzz around the west end boys citadel where their goal-keeper made some clever saves but finally they had to admit defeat when Dorrington made no mistake in his parting shot. After this disaster, Queen Mary boys hammered away at Queen Alex's goal but success was not with them.

The tussel was one of the best games ever witnessed in school soccer and was even more scientific than the previous one.

This is the first season Queen Alexandra won the soccer cup. Central were last years' winners. Queen Mary boys have made a creditable debut in soccer when they went into the final.

Dorrington was the goal-scorer.

HOCKEY LEAGUE HAS APPOINTED CHIEF REFEREE

Re-organized Amateur Body Chose Former University Star For Position.

COMMITTEE NAMED.

Pennant Winners to Play Eastern Champions For National Honor.

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., Oct. 27.—(Canadian Press).—Hockey in the North-West this season will have its Commissioner Landis. This was decided when followers of the sport from seven cities organized the Central Group of the United States Amateur Hockey League, and chose Johnny McGovern, former star football player with the University of Minnesota, as supreme referee. Winnipeg, Man., Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., and Hibbing, Minn., were included in the new line-up of clubs whose representatives reorganized what was known last year as the Western group of the league. Other cities are Evelth, Minn., which will share its place with Hibbing under the name of Hibbing-Evelth, Pittsburgh, and St. Paul; Minneapolis and Duluth, Minn. Cleveland dropped out because of inadequate facilities for handling paying crowds.

A committee was named to draw up a schedule, opening the first week in December and providing for 18 home contests for each city. The pennant winner will play the champions of the Eastern Group for national honors.

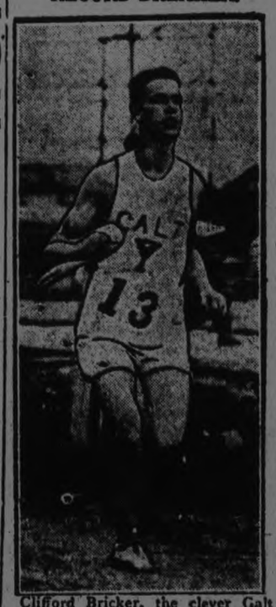
RECORD BREAKER.



Clifford Bricker, the clever Galt long-distance runner, who at Toronto in the 12-mile modified Marathon established a new record for the distance, is to receive civic recognition for the honor he has brought to his city. The reception committee of the City Council is now making plans for a presentation of a suitable souvenir to him. Bricker is only 21, is a self-made runner, and is considered by experts as almost sure of making a place on the next Olympic team.

WON 250 MILE RACE.

Two Mile Lap Lead Reduced at Close to 250 Yards.

LAUREL, Md., Oct. 27.—(Canadian Press).—Bob McDonogh, youthful protege of Tommy Milton, yesterday won his first major motor classic, the 250-mile race at the Baltimore-Laurel speedway, and in doing so took sweet revenge on Peter de Paolo for the hairline decision the latter scored over him in July.

Nursing a limping motor through the last twenty-five miles of the grind, McDonogh was forced to see his two-lap lead, fade into a bare two hundred yards at the finish line.

This thrilling climax of a spectacular race probably cost McDonogh a new world record for 250 miles on a wooden track. As it was, his time for the distance, 1 hour 59 minutes 2.71 seconds, in which he averaged 126.30 miles an hour, was but a fraction behind the record of 126.85 miles an hour set by Tommy Milton.

The winner yesterday collected $9,000 as his share of the prize money. De Paolo received $3,500; Milton, $3,000.

QUEEN'S SHARE PLACE OF HONOR WITH SENATORS

Interesting Stage Reached in Inter-collegiate and Inter-provincial Unions.

POSSIBILITIES.

Win For Tri-Color on Saturday Will Give Fourth Consecutive Championship.

MONTREAL, Que., Oct. 27. Canadian Press. — Montreal's Rugby players spent to-day getting rid of the taste of defeat suffered in Saturday's contests in the Intercollegiate and Interprovincial Unions.

At the N.A.A.A. grounds Coach Nicholson held a conference with the Montreal big four squad anent plans for the coming week's training, and the game with Argos at the winged wheelers' grounds on Saturday.

At McGill the Stadium was silent, Coach Shaughnessy having declared training off until Wednesday when the red and white players will return to the field house and commence drilling for the exhibition game they have arranged against the leading Ottawa squad of the big four, the contest to be played at the capital Saturday.

The turning point has been reached in both the Intercollegiate and Interprovincial Unions, with Queen's holding tightly to a commanding position in the College campaign and Ottawa sitting well entrenched in the forward position of the big four.

Ottawa and Tigers do not play in the Interprovincial this week-end, the only game scheduled being that in which Mike Rodden's Argonauts of Toronto, tackle the Montreal team here. The game will have more than local interest for local fans, as a win for Montreal will not only give them a chance of ending out of the cellar, but it will also spoil any hope the Argos have of finishing at the top. Argos and Tigers are one game behind the Senators. Ottawa has to play at Hamilton and later at home against the Tigers. Should these two teams win their home games, Argos could tie the Senators for the lead by taking their two remaining fixtures with Montreal.

Ottawa entered the big four race this season as a more or less unknown quantity, though with the reputation of a young fighting machine which might upset the calculations of the stronger "paper" clubs. This they have done so far this season in no unmistakable manner.

While the big four has reached a deciding stage the Intercollegiate race is at a mile stone, also. Queens' face Varsity at Toronto on Saturday in a game which may decide the title in Queen's favor for the fourth consecutive year. A win for Queen's will give them their fourth straight championship regardless of the outcome of the two remaining contests between McGill and Varsity.

Victory for Varsity will keep the Blue and White in the running for a chance to tie Queen's and force a play-off, for if the "T" can beat Queen's and McGill twice they will end the schedule on an even footing with the tri-color.

THE MARKETS

The exports of butter from Montreal last week amounted to only 202 packages, which show a decrease of 3,597 packages as compared with the previous week, and a decrease of 19,549 packages with the same week last year, but the total shipments from May 1 to date have been 29,487 packages in excess of the same period of 1924.

The receipts of butter yesterday were 575 packages, as compared with 1,076 for the same day last week, and 1,777 for the corresponding day a year ago. A feature of the trade was the weaker feeling that developed in the market and prices were reduced 1c per lb.

The exports of cheese from Montreal last week were 65,800 boxes, which show an increase of 27,758 boxes, as compared with the previous week, and an increase of 16,391 boxes with the same week last year, while the total shipments for the season to date have been 111,186 boxs larger than a year ago.

The receipts of cheese yesterday were 8,498 boxes, as against 6,631 for the same day last week, and 4,171 for the corresponding day a year ago. The tone of the market was firmer and spot prices show an advance of 1-8c per lb.

The exports of eggs from Montreal last week were 9,515 cases, which show an increase of 2,765 cases, as compared with the previous week, and an increase of 1,765 cases with the same week last year, but the total shipments for the season to date have been 5,326 cases smaller than the same period for 1924.

The feature of the local egg trade yesterday was the stronger feeling that prevailed in the market for strictly fresh stock, and prices for some grades were higher, which was attributed to continued small supplies coming forward and the good demand for the same.

There was also a firmer feeling in the market for storage eggs and dealers in some cases marked up prices for the lower grades 1 cent per dozen.

The receipts yesterday were 186 cases, as compared with 263 for the same day last week, and 185 for the corresponding day a year ago.

There were no further developments in the market for potatoes, the feeling being steady at the recent change in prices noted.

MANY SPEAKERS IN SUPPORT OF

TARIFF UPHELD.

Mr. Brethen's Policies Described By Speakers as Being Wobbly.

HAVELOCK, Oct. 26.—The policy of the Liberal-Conservative Party was well explained at a meeting in the Orange Hall at Blairton on Friday evening. The speakers were Mr. Packenham of Norwood, Mr. John A. Sexsmith, ex-M.P. of Belmont, Mrs. Wm. Vance, Mr. J. Kinnaird and Mr. S. S. Joyce of Havelock. Mr. David Little occupied the chair.

Mr. Packenham was the first speaker and dealt principally with the tariff question which he said was the foremost question before the electors because it not only affected the manufacturers, farmers and laborers, but also everyone who tried to do honest work and exist as honest citizens. He then referred to the change in conditions in Canada when the National Policy was introduced in 1878, stating that he had been a manufacturer all his life and knew quite well the condition of the country in those days. He advocated the return of the Meighen Government which would mean that the old National Policy would again be adopted and Canada would once more have prosperity. In conclusion, he said he could not utter a word unfavorable to Mr. Brethen but his politics were wobbly and a man with wobbly policies had no platform.

John A. Sexsmith ex-M.P.

Mr. John A. Sexsmith was next called. "I am here," he said, "to ask you to vote for a man whom we as the supporters of the old Conservative Party think best for the country with reference to the Redistribution question," he said. "Mr. Brethen tried to make it appear that the Hon. Arthur Meighen and the Conservative Party are to blame for joining East Peterboro to West Hastings, but Mr. Meighen and the Conservative Party are not to blame. Mr. Sexsmith then explained committee work in the house and said the party in power has the majority on any committee. "I think, he continued, "that my information is correct that Mr. Brethen's friends voted solidly with the Liberals down to a few ridings in Ontario. The Conservative party wanted to leave the two Peterborough ridings together. When it came to the last few hours and the committee had to bring in a report the Conservatives just accepted the best they could get and allowed Peterboro-Hastings to go. Mr. Brethen's friends never made an effort to keep the Peterboro ridings together.

In speaking of the tariff, the speaker said he would advocate free trade if the world was free trade, but did not think it a good thing if our neighbors refuse to deal with us unless they have the advantage. Last Spring the Canadian farmers had large quantities of potatoes in which they could not dispose of in April and May, yet American potatoes were selling at a high price in Canada. Four hundred and fifty carloads of eggs came in the same way.

In conclusion he said, "I am asking you to vote for the Rt. Hon. A. Meighen who has preached the same doctrine, the National policy, from New Brunswick to British Columbia, while Mackenzie King has a different policy for each province. Mark your ballot for Dr. Embury and Canada.

Mr. J. Kinnaird.

In opening his address, Mr. Kinnaird said: "You have listened to a manufacturer, a farmer, an ex-M.P., and now you are going to hear from an industrial worker.

"The King Government, he said, "has fulfilled to a certainly extent its promises, namely: It has reduced the cost of living a little bit but it has also reduced the population. It has reduced the industries by two thousand. It has reduced the workingman's wages also. Lumbermen a few years ago received from $70 to $80 per month; now they receive from $30 to $35. Before the King policy was introduced, I was earning a salary of $42 per week. The same firm is now working two days a week. Four years ago when I was in Guelph, the working men all wanted free trade. The wages were high then and the bait that the cost of living would be reduced was dangled before them by Mr. King and they snapped at it. The Old Country looked after its unemployed but what did Mr. King do? Left them to look after themselves and any who could not cross the line for employment could enter the poor house.

"There was a King in olden times," he continued, "who led his country to ruin and who was warned by the hand writing on the wall. Weighed in the balance and found wanting, the hand writing is on the wall for Mackenzie King but he has not found an interpreter. Great is the mighty King of Canada but he will get a drop on October 29. The greatest curse and greatest plague that ever invested a country is free trade. Only two countries in the world have free trade—Canada and Great Britain. Sixty-seven countries have built up a strong barrier against Canadian goods. Never in all my life have I seen a government that has wrought such havoc as the King government has to this country."

Mrs. Wm. Vance.

Mrs. Vance, in addressing the women, said that they would be called upon to cast a vote on the 29th to decide the most serious question since the time of the Union Government, and made an appeal to them not to neglect the casting of their votes, as many women were careless in this respect. She hoped the Rt. Hon. A. Meighen would be returned because Canada has had enough of the present government.

Mr. S. S. Joyce.

Mr. S. S. Joyce said he was glad to have an opportunity to say a word in behalf of his old friend, Dr. Embury, whom he had known since boyhood.

He also dealt with the tariff question and the exodus of Canadians to the U.S.A., claiming that Mr. King's policy of lowering the tariff has helped the American citizens to the detriment of Canadians.

In closing he wanted to say a few words with reference to the Progressives, the party with no policy. He hadn't a word to say against Mr. Brethen personally, but his policy put him in mind of the story of the farmer who bought a few turkey and on his way home he met three boys who greatly admired it and would have liked very much to possess it. The farmer said he would ask each one a question and the one making the most favorable reply would be given the turkey. The question he asked was, "What is your aim in life." The first replied that his aim was to be a doctor and to be able to relieve the sufferings of humanity; the second replied his ideal was to be a politician, who would be instrumental in making good laws for the people to live under. When the third was asked his ideal he said, 'Any darn old argument to get the turkey." Application: Mr. Brethen does not agree with Mackenzie King's policy and he cannot accept Arthur Meighen's policy and it is any darn old policy that will get the electors to send him to Ottawa on Oct. 29th.

CANDIDATE AND OTHERS EXPLAIN PARTY POLICIES

Messrs. Peck, Bradburn and McElderry Speak to Electors of Centre Smith.

ASK PROTECTION.

Tariff to Aid Farmer and City Worker is Subject of Addresses.

A good representation of the residents of Centre Smith turned out last night at the Temperance Hall on the first line to hear the policies of the Conservative party explained by the candidate, E. A. Peck, and by Messrs. W. H. Bradburn and V. J. McElderry. Johnston Proudlove was chosen by those present to act as chairman.

W. H. Bradburn, M.P.P.

Mr. Bradburn was the first speaker. He referred to the fact that Mr. Peck had been for years a member of the County Council, and had served as Warden. The interest Mr. Peck had shown in the affairs of the county during that term and during his term in the Provincial Legislature would continue to be shown by Mr. Peck if he were returned to the Dominion House. Mr. Bradburn expressed the opinion that there would be a Conservative Government after the election and that it would be to the interest of the riding to return a member of the party in power.

The speaker said that Mr. King had had four subjects on which he had made his appeal to the electors. The first of these, senate reform, was of no concern, said the speaker, as the whole senate could be thrown into the middle of the Atlantic with out making any difference in conditions. On the question of immigration, Mr. Gordon had been appointed to that portfolio, and had held it for a couple of weeks, and made announcements of his policy, and then Mr. King had announced that a western man was to have it after the election. The third was the railway question and the fourth was tariff, which Mr. Bradburn proceeded to discuss.

A tariff to protect the farmer and the city man, and which would warrant the citizens of Canada staying at home, was asked for by Mr. Bradburn. With more work and more money in the cities, the inhabitants would buy more from the farmers. He reminded those present of Mr. Meighen's promise that the farmer should be protected from the early vegetables from the United States, which glutted the market before the Canadian grower could market his. "Mr. Gordon says that business is looking up," said Mr. Bradburn. "It couldn't look any other way," he concluded, "It has been on its back for a long time."

E. A. Peck

Before speaking on political subjects, Mr. Peck expressed his regret at the death of Mrs. Gordon's father, coming as it did in the midst of a busy political campaign.

Mr. Peck said that it was unfortunate that conditions were such that people were unable to obtain employment. Mr. Gordon and his friends, he said, were inclined to dispute the condition of the country, but he submitted the report of the General Manager of the Bank of Montreal, who was concerned with finance and business, and not with politics. He read an extract as follows: "My view, in brief, of the situation, is that business generally in Canada is unsatisfactory, but with some bright spots. This expression of opinion may not be popular, but it seems to me much better to look the matter squarely in the face than to allow ourselves to be led astray by popular delusions. Many of our industries are running on half time with diminished profits or no profits at all. Taxation is heavy to an extent which discourages new enterprizes. The cost of living is high and our population, in point of numbers, is at a standstill or worse.

"These are the conditions as I see them, but I hope and believe we will emerge from our difficulties generally."

There is depression, not because Canada is unable to revive, said Mr. Peck, but ther emedy suggested by Mr. Meighen will help to restore prosperity. The Liberals are not offering any remedy for the depression or for the exodus, which they are inclined to dispute, and Mr. King has no policy. Under a Liberal Government there might be a temporary return of prosperity but it would be doubtful if it would remain. Canada has been in a new position since the war because of the depreciation in the currency of many countries. There should be, said Mr. Peck, a revision of the tariff so that it might be adequate. With good payrolls there would be more money and the merchant and the farmer would also benefit. He then quoted from the report of the Royal Bank as follows: I regard the tariff question as one of great national importance. Over a long period of years a great manufacturing industry has been built up in Canada. Our home market is not large and our standard of living is high. Canadian factories cannot in most cases compete with the cheap labor products of Europe, or the mass produced articles of the United States, unless they are granted a reasonable measure of protection. What is more, they cannot operate satisfactorily or with confidence under the menace of tariff reductions. Increases in tariff is in many cases unnecessary. Stability is the thing to be desired. Great numbers of men and women have been induced to enter our factories and on the prosperity of the factories they now depend for a livelihood. We have a responsibility to these Canadians which must not lightly be overlooked. Moreover it must be remembered that unless this country enjoys a balanced prosperity the Government will find itself in very serious straits for revenue with which to defray interest charges and other essential expenditures."

"What effect would the tariff have upon you?" asked Mr. Peck. "It would protect the urban people and offer a better market for the majority of the products of Ontario farms. To protect the western farmer, whom it is feared will have to pay a trifle more for the few things which he has to buy, the Liberal party is willing to let the rest of Canada suffer."

Mr. King had surrounded himself with associates who were freer traders than he was himself, said the speaker, who said that there could be no hope of protection from the King Government. Under those circumstances he said that there could be no harm in trying Mr. Meighen's policies, and he urged his hearers to give him their votes.

V. J. McElderry

Mr. McElderry was the last speaker of the evening. He told of the business like way in which the American Government had listened to the representations, first of the wheat growers and then of the millers, in fixing the laws so that the business of the country should not suffer. "Do we get anything of that kind from our government?" he asked. When things were prosperous, prices were high nd everybody was contented, said Mr. McElderry. When people in the cities were not prosperous the farmer lost the market and suffered too. The King Government offered no relief, while the Conservative party promised a definite protection to farmers and labor alike. In the west Mr. King talked free tarde and in Ontario he talked protection.

If the asbestos which is shipped out of Canada were manufactured in Canada it would keep several thousand workers busy and provide that many more for the farmers to feed, while Mr. Gordon's policy of bringing in farmers to introduce intensive farming on some of the lands not now in much use, would make more competition for the farmers without increasing the market.

He quoted a report of a speech by Boyd Caldwell, in which he said that Hon. Mr. Gordon had written him asking him to keep quiet bulletins on the state of the woollen industry, and asked if that were a proper course for a minister of the crown to follow.

That $65,000,000 worth of the $81,000,000 worth of American agricultural products entering Canada at a duty of some $8,000,000, could have been grown in Canada, and that those who wanted such luxuries as early potatoes and fruits should be made to contribute to the Government to get them, was the statement of Mr. McElderry. He also pointed out that the man who leaves Canada increases the tax burden on those left behind and decreases the taxes of the United States citizens by helping pay part of them. The Conservative party, he said, was trying to fight the battle of all the people, and not to pull down the capitalists, as it was essential for the development of the country that there should be capital. He asserted that the fact that the Dominion's bonds were selling at a high price was not to the credit of the Government but was because the people with money were buying the bonds rather than invest in productive industry and that it would be better for the country if the price were low because everybody who had money to invest was putting it into industrial enterprises.

He said in conclusion that they had come with what they believed to be a sane policy and asked for support for a Government that could do something.

The meeting closed with cheers for the King and for Mr. Peck.

FARM IMPLEMENTS DOWN

Some people are not interested in figures. They tell you so. Even apparently well-educated men will say, "Don't quote figures to me. They don't mean anything."

BUT EVERYONE IS INTERESTED IN THE FIGURES ON THE CORNERS OF GREEN-BACKS AND YELLOW-BACKS.

And when Mr. Peck's platform orators tell you there is no decrease in the cost of farm implements, they are arguing against the "V's" and "X's" in the corners of bills. Here is the record:

(how would this suit?)

Buy everything in the cheapest market. Make nothing we can buy cheaper than we can make it ourselves. Don't even try by low wages to make it cheap. Then we would have little work, poor pay for those who worked, and small population to use what was made, even if made at home. Low tariffs make all this possible. Don't encourage low tariffs.

SUDDEN ENDING TO HEAVY SCRAP

FIGHTERS SURPRISED.

NEWARK, Oct. 27 (Canadian Press).—Harry Wills, negro heavyweight, scored a technical knockout over Floyd Johnson, of Iowa, in the first round of a 12-round match here last night—the sudden ending leaving 9,000 spectators stunned.

Johnson received Wills' mighty left to the body and head just as the bout started and he appeared worried.

Then a right to the head drove him to the ropes, but he withstood the attack and ventured to the centre of the ring as a white towel flowed in from his corner. Referee Harry Lewis, Wills, and Johnson all gazed at the towel in seeming astonishment and the throng rose to its feet in clamor. Lewis took Johnson by the arm and led him to his corner, and then informed the press representatives that he could do nothing other than award the fight to Wills after that towel had dropped nito the arena. As the fighters departed, loud protests came from the crowd.

"TIDES OF PASSION" PLEASES—ESPECIALLY THE LADIES

If you were a woman, and your missing husband died, leaving another widow besides yourself, what would be your attitude towards her? This is one of the unusual situations in Basil King's novel, now in its screen form at the Royal.

The tang of the sea pervades "Tides of Passion," Most of the scenes are laid on the rock-bound coast, and the camera-men are said to have taken full advantage of an extraordinary opportunity, with the result that a picture which is a rare work or art has been produced.

DOUBLE PROGRAMME AT THE ROYAL ON THURS., FRI., SATURDAY

Jack London's "Adventure" and "Dark Stairways" With Herb Rawlinson. — Victor Fleming Achieves Directorial Triumph With New Paramount Melodrama.

Film directors, like other folks, have their specialties. Some prefer to produce comedies, others dramas, and still others, melodrama. A director with a flair for melodrama is more apt to produce a successful picture if the story has a lot of blood-and-thunder action in it than if it is one of the pure comedy type, and vice versa.

All of which is merely an introduction to the statement that Paramount's dynamic version of Jack London's South Sea story, 'Adventure," is a directorial triumph for Victor Fleming, the producer, who proves once again that his forte is melodrama.

The picture, which opens at the Royal Theatre on Thursday for a three days' run, is crammed full of hair-trigger action drama and suspense, which skilfully balanced with romance and some genuine laughs insures a solid hour of worth-while entertainment.

Although Jack London provided an excellent story to begin with, and the scenarists, A. P. Younger and L. G. Rigby, have done a workmanlike job of the adaptation, and the acting of the notable cast leaves nothing to be desired, it is Fleming, nevertheless, who deserves the lion's share of the credit.

He is a shrewd, intelligent and resourceful director, who knows how to create and maintain interest and suspense and who manages to extract the maximum amount of thrills out of the gripping plot. The entire production shows every evidence of having been staged with a scrupulous attention to detail. The film was photographer against gorgeous tropical backgrounds on one of the islands of the Pacific and reproduces with amazing fidelity the life and atmosphere of the South Seas.

AT THE CAPITOL

LUMBERJACKS ACT IN FILM THRILLER

Giant Canadian Woodsmen Support Milton Sills in "The Knockout." Earl Hudson stopped at nothing to get realism and genuine thrills into his first National picture, "The Knockout," which comes next Thursday to the Capitol Theatre, starring Milton Sills.

In order to obtain the correct atmosphere for the outdoor scenes of this picture of the Canadian woods he sent his company into the wilds of Northern Ontario and Quebec. The location of the picture was in the vicinity of the Ottawa River, the centre of the largest lumbering activities in the Eastern section of the country.

That the scenes might be true to life and depict the perilous task of the river drivers who bring millions of logs each year from the forests to the sawmills, Hudson, through the co-operation of the Canadian Government, engaged the whole crew of one of the largest woods' operators as actors in the picture.

"The Knockout" is a film filled with stirring action of the sort for which Sills has become famous. He is a prize fighter who goes to the logging camps of the north woods when he finds his right arm has gone back on him. There he meets opposition and action that makes his ring efforts seem soft.

Sills battles his way against men of a type rarely seen in such numbers on the screen. He is surrounded by a band of physical giants. His principal fight is with John Philip Kolb, who stands six feet seven inches and weighs two hundred and fifty pounds. A dozen real lumberjecks, picked for their huge stature, were taken along for other action scenes, and at every turn the big, hairy, rough Canadians are in the background.

"The Knockout" is a screen version of M. D. C. Crawford's stirring novel, "Thee Comeback." The supporting cast includes Lorna Duveen, Jed Prouty, John Philip Kolb, Claude King, Harlan Knight and others. Lambert Hillyer directed.

"QUO VADIS"

Another of the stupendous efforts of the screen to bring back to life the times and manner of forgotten days, is the epic movie drama of "Quo Vadis," the feature at the Capitol Theatre for the first three days of this week. The gigantic production from the famous novel by Henryk Sienkiewicz is one of the massive pictures that keeps the attention riveted from first to last. It portrays, with all the art of the silver sheet, the days when the world was young and Christianity was but a name, a furtive religion whose devotees hid in the entrails of the Imperial city, hiding in the catacombs and giving their lives in the arena for the savage multitude to gloat over.

But rather is it the story of Nero, and Emil Jennings, who delineates the monster of history, has one of the most memorable roles of the silver sheet, when he portrays the tyrant, obese, thick-lipped, cunning-eyed, rolling with fat mirth over the torments of slave and friend alike, cowering in fear before the menace of a superstitious dread, reaching out for the youth and loveliness of the Christian maiden, and swelling in bloated conceit to the plaudits of the sycophants who surround him, and feed him with flattery and false praise. Nero's vanity, his cruelty, his vile passions, his cowardice and his effeminate demeanor, are well portrayed in this superb characteristic of one of the monsters of history.

It is a picture that must be seen to be fully appreciated. The luxury and vice of Imperial Rome are shown on the screen, there are scenes in which the wide amphitheatre is shown, with hungry lions tearing to pieces the unfortunate Christians, or the cruel torture of the chariot wheel to which the victim was bound, to be dashed to pieces behind the hoofs of maddened horses, and there are the gardens of the Emperor, with gay crowds thronging about the living torches, the posts to which the Christians are bound, and then set afire, to burn for the enjoymen of the cruel watchers.

There is a romance in the picture, the love story of the pagan Vinicius for the beautiful Christian girl, Lygis, and the faith of the steadfast Christians burns steadfastly through the scenes of torture and death. Dominating the scene always is the foppish, slovenly figure of the tyrant, and his chief satellite, Petronius, who falls out of favor with his imperial master and gives a farewell banquet to his friends, closing it with an order to his physician to open his own veins and those of his mistress.

It is really a very extraordinary portrayal of the lives and ways of long-dead times, and illustrates to lackadaisical modern Christians the valor of those who suffered torture and death that the faith of their Master might live for future generations.—Jeanette.

AT THE GRAND.

ABIE'S IRISH ROSE

The sale of seats for the engagement of Ann Nichols' famous laughing success, the theatrical history-making comedy, "Abie's Irish Rose", which comes to the Grand Opera House for three nights, beginning Thursday, October 29th, with matinee Saturday, October 31st, bids fair to add this city to the already long list of record-breaking theatre attendance, achieved by this "riot of laughter" with its beautiful love story. At least, this is the growing impression of the box office ticket officers.

Time and again since its premiere, which occurred on May 23, 1923, in New York City, where it is still running to capacity business at the Republic Theatre, has this perennial wonder startled communities like Baltimore, Washington, Pittsburgh, Cincinnati, Cleveland, Toronto, Montreal, Buffalo, Atlantic City, Columbus, San Francisco, Los Angeles, and other places by dropping in for an engagement of one week, and staying for from ten to forty-two weeks in each city, to say nothing of the company which opened before the holidays in Chicago in 1923, at the Studebaker Theatre, where it played to capacity business with seats selling sixteen weeks in advance.

"Abie's Irish Rose" is one continual roar of laughter and applause from the rise of the curtain until its final fall. It is in three sets and is built around the experience of a young Jew of the modern school, who marries a pretty Irish girl. Although the wedding ceremony was first performed by a Methodist Minister, later by a Jewish Rabbi, and then, to make sure, by a Catholic Priest, the wealthy Irish father of the bride, and the equally wealthy Orthodox Hebrew father of the groom, hating each other's race and faith, storm and rage in an endeavor to annul the series of mariages, and finally cast the children off. In the last act, at the humble home of the young couple, now parents themselves, on Christmas Eve, the various characters assemble, and while for a time the possibilities of peace look remote, the Rabbi and Priest calm the troubled waters, and everything ends happily with all re-united. Such a simple story, on which is hung a series of hilarious complications impossible to adequately describe, but one which turns the audience out of the theatre happily exhausted through an evening of laughter.

The company to be seen here is Miss Nichols' Rochester Company, which recently played an engagement of eight consecutive weeks at the Gayety Theatre in Rochester and six weeks at Whiting Opera House at Syracuse.

TRUTH VERSUS ERROR.

It is in order for all lovers of truth and righteousness to proclaim the Gospel of the Kingdom of God. Jesus taught His disciples to pray for the coming of that kingdom, when God's will shall be done on earth as it is done in heaven. Jesus and the apostles preached it. Many to-day ignore "the gospel of the kingdom," and falsely say that man is on probation for life in this age. This saying is not only false, but absurd; for the Scriptures state plainly that the penalty for sin is "death." It is useless to put forth efforts to save men from this penalty, for no man can redeem his brother. The mighty Christ, the "life giver," has redeemed all of Adam's race. Each and every one shall be saved from "death," the penalty for sin, not on account of efforts put forth by themselves or others in their behalf, but wholly on account of the full ransom price being paid by Jesus. "As through Adam all die, so through Christ shall all be made alive." Those who preach a spurious gospel, do not need to preach the "resurrection truth," for they consign all (except a little flock) to a place of endless torments, fixing their destiny unalterably. The "gospel of the kingdom" shall be a glorious success. "Jesus shall see of the travail of His soul, and be satisfied." — W. T. Butcher. 1d-100-3501

IN MEMORIAM.

BRIOUX.—In loving memory of our dear aunt, Katie Graham (Dot), and dearly beloved wife of Alphonse Brioux, who died October 27th, 1924.

Often she rocked us when a baby,
Often she sang us off to sleep,
But Jesus called her to a higher home,
And some day we all will meet,

IN MEMORIAM.

HAMLIN.—In loving memory of dear wife and mother, Mrs. J. E. Hamlin, who passed away Oct. 25, 1923.

And stil her silent ministry,
Within our hearts hath place
As when on earth she walked with us
And met us face to face.

Her life is for ever ours
What she to us has been
Hath left henceforth its seal and sign
Engraven deep within.

—Husband and Family.

IN MEMORIAM.

BRIOUX.—In loving memory of our dear daughter and sister, Katie ('Dot') Graham, beloved wife of Alphonse Brioux, who died October 27, 1924.

We often think of days gone by,
When we were all together;
No shadows o'er our lives were cast,
For we had one, another.

One year may wipe out many things,
But this they wipe out never,
The memory of those happy days
When we were all together.

—Mother, Father and Family.

IN MEMORIAM.

BRIOUX.—In loving memory of my dear twin sister, Katie Graham (Dot), and dearly beloved wife of Alphonse Brioux, who fell asleep October 27th, 1924, deeply mourned.

The month of October again is here,
The saddest month of the year;
It was just one year ago to-day
Since my twin sister passed away.

In life I loved her dearly,
In death I do the same;
I often sit and think of her,
And wish her here again.

I think of her in silence,
No eyes can see me weep,
But many silent tears I shed
When others are asleep.

Happy were the hours we spent together,
Lonely is my heart to-day,
For the one I loved so dearly
Has for ever passed away.

Dear is the spot where my dear sister was laid,
Sweet is the memory that can never fade.

—Brother and Sister, Jennie and Charlie Leahy, Toronto.

KEENE CONTESTS TORY STORY AND HOLDS LONG POST MORTEM

Hecklers Played Heavy Role in Conservative Rally Speches.

HUMOROUS SALLIES.

Speakers Accept Matter and Make Speedy Returns to Quips.

Keene ran true to form last night and subjected the Conservative speakers to a flow of badinage which not only added considerably to the interest of the meeting but, as one hearer put it afterward, 'gave us a lot to think about." For the replies to the hecklers, while not always of an explanatory nature sufficed to spike the individual guns although re-inforcements were not lacking. Not content with the explanations presented officially from the platform, the candidate and Mr. Soden were importuned to elucidate still further after the regular session. However, that added discussion did not appear to have any decided result, as neither Mr. Peck nor Mr. Gordon were elected on the spot. Even the hottest contenders agreed that the great awakening could not come earlier than tomorrow.

V. J. McElderry.

Canada without protection was throwing wide its doors to goods from the United States. Not only that, but recently a treaty had been formulated which gave Australia certain trade preferences in Canada by which products of the farm could be introduced duty free. It was all very well for Massey with a magnanimous gesture to wave that aside as a negligible quantity, but he had apparently forgotten that this was the age of rapid transit and cold storage facilities and the much discussed Australian egg could arrive to its position on the Canadian market as fresh and vigorous as its competitor in this country. After all, said Mr. McElderry, charity begins at home, and the farms of Canada should get the chance to

KING CONFIDENT OF GOVERNMENT BEING RETURNED

Criticized Letter Published By Conservative Opponent in North York.

SOLDIER'S PENSIONS.

Says Opposition Charges Are Unfair and Misleading Statements.

MAPLE, Ont., Oct. 28.—(Canadian Press).—"There is no question at all about the Government being returned. The question for North York is whether a representative is wanted on the Government or on the Opposition benches," said Premier King here yesterday afternoon.

The Prime Minister again dealt with the letter published by the Conservative opposition in North York, repeating that the sheet as published was a violation of the Elections Act and might, if so used, serve to disqualify the candidate because it did not bear the name of the printer as required by the law. Mr. King said that the charge made that the Government was not paying as much in pensions as the former Government, was unfair and is misleading. It was natural that the amount paid in pensions would decline slightly as time went on.

"Who ever issued these misleading statements is liable to go to jail," said Mr. King, in referring for the second time yesterday to the charge that money, requisitioned from Germany, was to be paid back to 'the murderous Hun' instead of the returned soldiers. "This statement is absolutely false," repeated Mr. King.

Mr. Meighen was going to tax people and pay the money to the railway companies as subsidies to bring products from the east and the west to central Canada, at less freight rates than those fixed by the railway commission. But he would do more, he would raise the tariff on all the transported products and insist upon Canadians buying Canadian coal at any cost. Such methods would serve only to send up the cost of living everywhere.

The Government had cut the tariffs on farm implements. Mr. Meighen is pledged to put back those duties and to vote for a Conservative candidate is to vote for the restoration of these duties which would work to the disadvantage of the farmers.

Would Not Let Franchise Interfere With Honeymoon

QUEBEC, Oct. 28 (Canadian Press)—A honeymoon is not a business trip but a pleasure trip according to a definition given last evening in Quebec East at the advanced polling booth when a pretty young lady asked permission to vote in advance stating that she had to leave on Wednesday and would not be here on Thursday.

Finally she confessed blushingly that she was getting married this morning and was leaving on her honeymoon. The returning officer gave a ruling that a honeymoon was a pleasure trip and not one connected with business.

TROOPS ON WAY.

PARIS, October 28. — Canadian Press. — The French authorities have ordered all women and children to evacuate Damascus. One cavalry brigade has left Morocco for Syria.

Many Killed.

LONDON, October 28. — Canadian Press. — French representatives who have arrived at Jerusalem from Damascus, a despatch to the Daily Express says, are inclined to believe that at least 8,000 were killed in Damascus, but were unable to give a definite estimate.

The semi-official French newspaper La Syrie, published at Beirut, quotes, without comment, an Arab contemporary, which estimated 8,000 casualties.

LEAGUE HEARS REPORTS THAT BALKAN TROOPS ARE FIRING YET

Both Nations Have Promised to Evacuate Territory Seized.

BOTH COMPLAIN.

Each Reports That Forces of the Other Have Made Attacks.

PARIS, Oct. 28 (Canadian Press)—The plans of the Council of the League of Nations to despatch a special commission to the Balkans to investigate and report on the responsibility for the Greco-Bulgarian conflict embody no temporizing by the league or any weakening in its determination to force a settlement on the parties to the dispute.

The Bulgarians and Greeks have started making arrangements for the evacuation of the territory they have occupied, in obedience to the command of the Council of the league. But nevertheless advices from Sofia and Vienna are to the effect that the Greeks at noon on Tuesday had not ceased firing into Bulgarian territory.

Greeks Attacked

ATHENS, Oct. 28 (Canadian Press) — Greeks were attacked by Bulgarian forces this morning near Ramna it is officially stated.

Ramna is ten miles west of Demirhissar, near which the present Greco-Bulgarian trouble broke out, and about five miles south of the border on Greek territory.

Greeks Withdrawing

PARIS, Oct. 28 (Canadian Press)—Greece announced at today's meeting of the League of Nations Council that she had given orders for her troops in Bulgarian territory to retire behind her own frontier.

She assured the council that complete evacuation of Bulgaria would be carried out within the sixty hour limit laid down by council.

Bulgars Fired On

SOFIA, Bulgaria, Oct. 28 (Canadian Press)—It is officially announced that the Greeks opened fire on Bulgarian frontier number 5 at about one o'clock this morning.

Bulgars Attack

LONDON, Oct. 28 (Canadian Press)—An exchange telegraph despatch from Salonika, Greece, declared that while Greek troops were with drawing from Bulgarian territory this morning they were attacked by Bulgarians. It is believed that the evacuation must have ceased," dispatch adds.

MEN ADDED TO POLICE FORCE

500 ASKED FOR.

LONDON, Oct. 28 (Canadian Press)—On instructions from the Home Office, with a view to "preserving order under untoward circumstances," the Chief Constable of Hull recently made an appeal for 500 special constables for the Hull police force. The appeal, however, was disappointing in the number of suitable men offering for positions, although there were plenty of applicants. The outcome is that 100 men have been placed on roll as police reserves with pay.

EIGHTEEN KILLED.

Fifty-four are Still in Hospital From Train Wreck.

MEMPHIS, Tenn., October 28. — The death list, as a result of the derailment near Victoria, Miss., early yesterday of the Sunnyland, fast St. Louis and San Francisco Railway passenger train last night, stood at 18. A total of 54 persons were still in the hospital; 18 were reported in a critical condition.

PAUL PAINLEVE
Premier of France, whose government, formed on April 16 of this year, was dissolved yesterday.

2 MEN BURNED IN EXPLOSION

Battled Way Through the Flames on Yacht to Lifeboat.

SHIP SANK.

SALEM, New Jersey, Oct. 28 (Associated Press). — Four men, asleep in their bunks when an explosion shook the 80-foot steam yacht Corinthia, in the Delaware River off Elsinboro Point, three miles from Salem, N.J., at 3 a.m. yesterday, battled their way through flames that followed the blast. Two were burned before they reached a life-boat and escaped.

The Corinthia sank in twenty feet of water a short time after the crew lowered a small boat into the water and made their way to shore.

The burned men are Robert Gowell, 28, Brooklyn, the engineer, and Thomas Swarbuck, 27, Brooklyn, a deckhand. Both were burned on the face and hands and Swarbuck was cut in making his escape from the blazing yacht.

PAINLEVE'S MINISTRY WRECKED ON SHOALS OF THE CAPITAL LEVY

Caillaux's Determined Resistance to Measure Led to Downfall—Serious Crisis.

PRESIDENT'S TASK.

Next Premier May Have to Carry on Without a Majority.

PARIS, Oct. 28. — (Canadian Press).—M. Painleve's ministry, which was constituted April 16 last, and took up the administration of France's complicated affairs to succeed the Herriot Cabinet, ended its career yesterday, when the Premier submitted his resignation and that of his colleagues to President Doumergue. The fall of the Ministry was due to M. Caillaux's financial policy, his resistance to a capital levy, to which M. Painleve rallied after the radical convention at Nice had adopted a resolution favoring it, and one of the most difficult political crisis in its history now faces the third Republic.

President Doumergue has the task of picking a man to form a new government without a reliable majority to support it. The President hurried formalities incidental to the formation of the new Cabinet, conferring yesterday afternoon with most of the persons usually consulted in a Cabinet crisis, and dwelling chiefly on the financial situation in his talks.

M. Caillaux was the first to be received by M. Doumergue after the Cabinet resigned—a most unusual procedure. The Minister of Finance, however, was not summoned for the purpose of consulting with him regarding the new Ministry; he was received at his own request, taking with him a voluminous file of documents.

BANK ROBBERS RUN TO EARTH

$6,500 STOLEN.

CRESTON, B.C., Oct. 28 (Canadian Press).—With John Ward of Frank, Alberta, committed for trial on a charge of holding up the Imperial Bank of Canada here on October 20, and the second of the two bandits who perpetrated the $6,500 robbery reported being brought here for identification, the two suspects are in the hands of the law within a week after the crime was committed.

Aided by fog, the bandits escaped into the hills surrounding Creston after the holdup last Tuesday, Ward being captured a few hours later, while the second man escaped. According to word received here by the provincial police, a man answering his description was taken into custody yesterday at Yahk, B.C., with a revolver and $400 cash in his possession.

Ward, who was committed for trial by magistrate Mallandaine here on Saturday, had $3,500 on his person when captured.

Urge Daughters of Israel to Clothe Themselves Modestly.

NEW YORK, Oct. 28.—(United Press).—Orthodox Jews, in convention here, went on record as praising the attitude of the Roman Catholic churches attitude toward immodesty in women's dress.

"These cannot be considered decent and modest clothes", said a resolution adopted on the closing day of the convention of the Union of Orthodox congregations, referring to certain prevailing styles.

"We urge the daughter of Israel to clothe themselves with proper modesty and in particular the ladies attending services, so as not to conflict with the holiness of places."

WEATHER

The first heavy fall of snow came last night and to-day—a heavy, wet snow, like the so-called "sugar snow" that sometimes comes in March. Temperature this morning, the freezing point; highest yesterday 45 degrees. While winter has not set in yet any place, the stage is set. The general "freeze-up" does not usually come till November 15th. To-morrow will be election day. Both candidates have on different occasions handed me verbal and written bouquets of appreciation and interest in these squibs. Perhaps the reader may be of a suspicious nature (especially where politicians are concerned.) I may say, however, that these bouquets were gracefully tendered before either had any intention of embarking on the troubled sea of politics. If such a thing were possible I would like to see both elected.—W.P.

COMMISSION TO INVESTIGATE CAUSE OF TROUBLES IN BALKANS

Britain and France United to Maintain Dignity of League of Nations.

BLOCKADE THREAT.

Greeks Have Withdrawn Invading Troops From Bulgarian Territory.

PARIS, Oct. 28. — (Canadian Press).—The Council of the League of Nations will send a commission to the Balkans to investigate the causes of the Greco-Bulgar conflict. This decision was reached at a secret session of the Council last night, but the programme as outlined is contingent upon compliance by Greece and Bulgaria with the conditions of evacuation and cessation of hostilities laid down by the Council.

The duty of the commission will be, first, to determine the facts: second, determine the responsibility; third, decide the question of indemnity, and, fourth, study means to prevent a recurrence of similar outbreaks in the future. A report of the findings will be submitted at the next session of the Council at Geneva in December.

The time limit of twenty-four hours within which the Greek and Bulgarian Governments must order the cessation of all fighting and return all troops to their respective frontiers expired at eight o'clock last night, and the Council will reconvene to-day to deliberate on the replies, which are confidently expected to embody compliance with the demand.

Nevertheless, the League's executive body will not be satisfied until its military agents have duly reported that all troops have been in fact evacuated and all war-like measures abandoned. M. Briand, President of the Council, again warned the representatives of the combatants yesterday that reliable information

'Send Up Your Biggest Or Nosiest Man,' Says Speaker 'And We'll See What He's Made Of'—The Heckling Quit

OTTAWA, Oct. 28 (Canadian Press)—The challenge of Stewart McClenaghan, one of the local Conservative candidates, to "Send up your biggest or nosiest man" to match his athletic ability with the candidate, had the effect of silencing the hecklers at the Conservative meeting here last night.

"Look here, you young fellows at the back of the hall," Mr. McClenaghan commenced, "I'm known in athletic circles in this city. Now, if you want something more exciting than politics send your biggest or nosiest man up here on this platform and we'll see what he's made of." There was no more hecking.

A number of false clues were investigated yesterday, but nothing worth while was uncovered. All the physicians in the district were interviewed with a view to ascertaining if any one had applied for medical aid on the night of the crime, it being generally believed that the murderer must have suffered some wounds in his violent death struggle with the Bernards. No suspicious character, however, had been seen or heard of. Inquiries at railway stations and at nearby villages also failed to bring to light any fresh clues.

After a closer examination of the bodies, the authorities think the wounds must have been inflicted with a flattened bar of iron and not

The Exodus From Peterboro

Mr. Peck's publicity bureau last night made the prize blunder of all its blunders in this campaign.

Here it is:

"437 People have left Peterborough since last year—and that means 437 FEWER CUSTOMERS for Peterborough County farmers."

ASK THE CITY CLERK WHERE THEY WENT

He will tell you that the majority moved just over the border, not of United States, but of North Monaghan. The City Clerk KNOWS, and Mr. Peck could have found out by inquiry. But political ends must be met.

Why did these people move out of the city? TO ESCAPE THE HIGH COST OF LIVING MR. PECK WANTS TO MAKE STILL HIGHER. THAT'S WHY. Taxes are lower just across the county border, making the cost of living cheaper.

Mr. Peck and his fellow aspirants to office have no control of the city taxes, but they have undertaken to raise the price of everything they can lay their hands on—food, clothing, coal. And under a Meighen and a Peck the people could not escape by merely crossing a county boundary.

THINK THAT OVER!

RECITAL GIVEN BY LOCAL MUSICIANS

Pupils of Mrs. Hoyland and Mr. Mann Put on a Programme.

The pupils of Mrs. M. B. Hoyland (violin) and F. G. Mann (vocalv pianoforte and theory) gave a very bright recital in St. John's Parish House on Tuesday evening, October 27.

This is the second recital given under the direction of Mr. Mann, as local secretary of the McGill University Faculty of Music, and the high standards set by that institution were again very forcibly demonstrated by the many pupils who took part in the evening's entertainment.

Great credit reflects on these two teachers, who have again shown their ability by the large number of their pupils who were successful in the recent McGill examinations.

Dr. R. O. Blagrave, in presenting the diplomas, again reminded the audience of the high standing of McGill amongst the universities of this country and of the splendid work which it was accomplishing. He congratulated the successful pupils and urged them all to endeavor to reach forward still higher. Particular mention was made of one family, which had gained no less than five certificates.

The various pieces and songs rendered were given with marked results of careful tuition in both Senior and Junior grades and several showed themselves to be capable of good things in the not distant future.

LADY ORATOR URGES WOMEN

dal. We women want to help where we are needed, and we are not needed in a campaign of scandal. The men can attend to that themselves. After some political meeting that I have attended, I have felt that I would like to sterilize my mind.

Players in the Game.

"About eighty per cent. of the women, if they were asked, would tell you that they never asked for the vote, but we have it, and we must try to use it intelligently. We are no longer on the grandstand looking on at the game of politics. You and I are players. If we don't know the rules we will have to learn them." Mrs. Thorburn quoted Viscount Astor who recommends that women become interested in politics to the exclusion of interest in clothes and gossip.

"We smile when we are reminded that it was not until 1920 that we had any voice in the affairs of the nation, when the privilege was given us by the Dominion Elections Act. Home, health and social conditions have always been women's chief interests and always will be. What is needed is to bring home to every woman the direct and close relationship of politics to the comfort and education of her family."

Mrs. Thorburn quoted from the London Times in saying that a good, efficient ditch-digger would make a better member of parliament than an inefficient doctor or merchant. 'By that standard women would be better in politics than men, for there are five men failures in business to every woman who fails in her job of home-making and child-raising. There are more good housekeepers in the land than there are good doctors or merchants, and more good mothers than there are good builders or architects."

Women will Co-Operate.

The one wish of every woman, said the speaker, in refutation of the ancient claim that women will not co-operate, is to co-operate in this "splendid task of national housekeeping." She went on then to give a "woman's point of view, with a commonsense slant, for I am very strong on commonsense."

"Mr. Meighen says that the one paramount issue in this election is the tariff. That is a subject that women have always avoided, but I can't imagine how any woman can support a high protection wall. How can we convince ourselves that it is what we woman want most, the greatest good for the greatest number when we realize that it makes money for one class alone, the manufacturer, and that just you and I are paying for that increase in his receipts. When a merchant buys an article that costs one dollar originally and has a thirty three and one-third per cent. duty on it, do you think he reckons his profit on the original cost of a dollar? No; he figures it on the basis of the dollar thirty-three, and we are paying for his profit on the added charges. It has been said that women have ninety per cent of the spending power of the money earned in Canada, and it certainly is to our interest to see that we get the most out of it. The home is the heart of the nation, and what is bad for the home is bad for the nation." (Applause.)

Tea and Sugar.

"I was in England when the McKenna duties were lifted, and the day after the announcement came out in the papers to that effect, I saw long queues of people standing at the grocery doors, waiting to take advantage of lower prices. In the windows were signs reading: "McKenna duties lifted. Fourpence off your tea, and tuppence off your sugar."

That shows how quickly it acted in England. And I tell you, when it comes to charges on tea and sugar, the tariff is no longer a stranger to me. It is an enemy."

When the Liberals first came into power, said Mrs. Thorburn, the cry of blue ruin was raised. Then in the second session, they were taunted with doing nothing, and started something by taking off duties on the basic industries of agriculture and mining. "Then what a howl went up!" But Mr. King was not to be stampeded into drastic measures, and the Advisory Board was formed, with Hon. Vincent Massey as a member, and "the Honorable Mary Ellen Smith to look after the tea and sugar."

"The King administration should be properly judged by the light of the handicaps with which it came into power, the majority of only one in its total, the horrible burden of debt caused by the war, and the big railway debt, which has since been reduced by twenty millions in operating expenses alone."

Mrs. Thorburn said that the two presidents of the railways before amalgamation into the C.N.R., D. B. Hanna and Mr. Kelly, received yearly salaries of $50,000 and $35,000 respectively, making a total of $85,000. Sir Henry Thornton at $50,000 saved the country the sum of $35,000 yearly while his increased salary of '65,000 still left a favorable balance of $20,000 a year.

Work of Murphy.

The speaker referred to the wonderful work done by the Postmaster-General, Hon. Chas. Murphy, went on to speak of the hive of industrial activity encountered on a recent visit to Kitchener and Waterloo, and retailed several evidences refuting the cry of blue ruin, speaking of the erection of a two million dollar building by the Metropolitan Insurance Company on Sparks street, Ottawa; of the new six-million dollar factory of the Singer Sewing Machine Company near Ottawa, of the Gatineau establishment of the International Paper Company, erected at a cost of between six and seven millions, and spoke of the advertisement, "inserted for record purposes only," of a new issue of Dominion government bonds, which were over-subscribed before before they were issued. She also referred to the pronouncement made recently by Sir Frederick Dutton, vice-president of the Royal Colonial Institute of England, who after touring Australia and South Africa, came to Canada, and remarked that the Dominion had recovered more quickly from the effects of the war than any other part of the Empire, saying "My friends in Canada, you are to be envied."

Mrs. Thorbirn also spoke of the excellent augury contained in the announcement that two million dollars in gold had recently been shipped in to Canada from the United States. "In 1921 the Canadian dollar was worth only 80c in New York. Now our dollar is above par in the United States." The reports of a fine crop, the upward trend in railway and bank earnings were inopportune for the Conservative campaign at the present time.

Immigration Policy.

Mrs. Thorburn spoke of the need for a sound immigration policy and of the harm which was admittedy being done by Patenaude's speeches in Quebec, and of the pronouncement on the occasion of the D'Arcy McGee memorial ceremonies, made by E. W. Beatty, president of the C.P.R. when he said that Canada's problem would never find a solution by the government but was one that every individual Canadian must help to solve.

A Dozen "Don'ts"

Mrs. Thorburn finished with a recital of her famous round dozen of "Don'ts" for an election campaign:

(1) Don't believe all you read in the newspapers. (Papers of differing poltical stripe can give different aspects to a speech.)

(2) Don't stand back and say: "There is nohting I can do." ("The Lord would never let you breathe up good air if you had nothing to do in life.")

(3) Don't overlook or despise the one odd vote.

(4) Don't be drawn into discussion of things that you don't understand.

(5) Don't imagine there is anything you can't understand if you choose to try. ("What man has done, woman can do.")

(6) Don't make statements that you know are untrue. ("It will do your politics more harm than good and it will scar your soul. Your soul will be with you all eternity and I have a suspicion that politics will end with this world.")

(7) Don't go around with a chip on your shoulder. ("They are not being worn with this year's models.")

(8) Don't let religion or creed enter into your politics. (Applause) ("The person who brings religion into politics is not usually a churchgoer.")

(9) Don't waste your time running down the Conservatives. ("The Liberals have a good record. Concentrate on that.")

(10) Don't get blue when your opponents prophesy victory. ("Blue isn't a Liberal color.")

(11) Don't forget to make frequent use of your common sense. ("Mark Twain has said that the reason we have so much common sense is because we use so little of it.")

(12) Don't quarrel among yourselves until one minute after the polls close on election day. ("And then I hope you'll be cheering so hard for G. N. Gordon that you won't want to quarrel.")

Dr. Middleton

After the applause that followed Mrs. Thorburn's address had subsided, Dr. J. E. Middleton spoke briefly on several subjects of interest to the ladies. He referred to a unique feature of this election campaign in the fact that no breath of scandal had been raised by the Conservatives as to the record of the King administration. He said that Mr. Meighen's criticisms had been many, but they were of the negative kind. His had been a campaign of mis-representation, of half-truths and padded statements.

Dr. Middleton spoke of the assistance afforded the Canadian General Electric Company here, by the bonus given to the smeltering industry, and of the fact that income tax was now evaded by many wealthy men who had bought tax-free bonds brought in in the time of the Meighen administration.

A Geographical Problem

Canada's problem, he declared, was geographical, and the solution which might satisfy the needs of Ontario would not do for Quebec or the North West. "Give a high tariff policy to the West and Confederation will go. Mr. Meighen is doing his best to disunite Canada and undo the good work of Sir John A. MacDonald and Sir Wilfred Laurier. We can't allow the milionaires of Montreal and Toronto to formulate a policy for the rest of Canada."

Dr. Middleton spoke of the absence of a tariff wall on the United States side against Canadian-made shoes, and the fact that, although our shoes might lack style sufficient to make them a desirable product to the majority of American citizens, still we had a sensible type of shoe that would appeal to a certain trade. But our manufacturers were not making any effort to go after this business, and keep their factories going.

"Now, Mr. Peck is a man whom we can admire as a man who stands four-square, but Mr. Peck went out of politics about ten years ago, because he realized that he was not particularly adapted to that type of work. His policy is peace at any price, but political life is not a five o'clock tea, by any means, and what we need is a red-blooded man who will fight if there are things he wants to get. I am sorry to see Mr. Peck in this contest, because if he is elected, the only contribution he will make is the one he made before. He will sit on the back benches, and when anything comes up that might be of use to Peterboro, he will not have thought about it. In Mr. Gordon, we have a man who has done many things for the city and will give you action every time. There is no man in Canada who is his equal as a go-getter.'

Meighen Rejected

Mr. Meighen, said the speaker, went to Canada four years ago, and by four million votes Canada said to him, "You are not my lover." Now, he was back again, hat in hand, saying "I have been talking blue ruin and am still talking it, but if you will have me for your husband, I will be a better man. I will make you promises, not anything very definite. I can't do that."

"But as Mr. Meighen sits in the cool grey shades for another four years, he will say, as the negro said, when being led out to be hanged, "This will certainly be a lesson to me."

The Brand of the Maple Leaf

Colonel O'Flynn of Belleville was the final speaker. He spoke of the way in which the Union Jack had been dragged into the conflict, because an idea to incorporate the Maple Leaf with its design had been put forward. "But the Maple Leaf was indelibly stamped on the Union Jack over there by the blood of the men who fought for it. In those days, we did not say, "Are you a Grit or a Tory? Are you a Methodist, or a Presbyterian, or an Anglican, or a Roman Catholic?" We said, "Are you a man?"

Colonel O'Flynn spoke of "this loyal chap, Mr. Meighen. Is he going to keep the old flag flying over such men as Armand Lavergne, who said, 'Down with the Union Jack,' or his friend Foster, in New Brunswick, a man who was drummed out of the party by Sir Robert Borden because he bought horses at $15 and sold them to the Government for $125 and $150. He was chased over into the United States. Perhaps he is one of those Canadian boys that left the country that Mr. Meighen talks so much about. Mr. Meighen blows hot in Ontario and cold in Quebec, but you won't find even a picture of Arthur Meighen allowed in Quebec Province. Patenaude is the man down there, and if Meighen is elected, he will be controlled in Quebec by Patenaude, and Patenaude will be controlled by the big interests in Montreal who are trying to wipe out the Canadian National Railways.

Mr. Meighen wants to make Canada failure. Mr. Meighen is a perfect success at failing. Why, he was never even elected as premier of this country. He stepped in when Borden retired, and when he went to the country after that, the people wouldn't have him. He cannot even carry his own riding, and yet he says he wants to be Prime Minister of Canada. He hasn't been bright and cheerful in years. It seems a pity in that darkened condition of his to load him up with the burdens of this country. It is not fair.

Mr. Meighen's contention as to 2,000 failures was alluded to, and Colonel O'Flynn remarked that he had not said anything about the factories that had started up, nor the fact that a decrease of 21.9 in figures of failures had been recorded in 1924 from 1923 figures, nor a decrease of 28.8 from 1922 figures, showing that the King administraton had got down to business immediately in this way. He also said that figures proved that less than three per cent. of the failures were causd by competition, the only fair way to adjudge such conditions.

The speaker referred to the freedom from scandal enjoyed by the King administration, and to the necessity of returning a man like Hon. Mr. Gordon, to represent Peterboro in what was certain to be a Liberal administration. He alluded to the assertion made in West Hastings riding at the time of the eection of Charles Hanna, the Liberal candidate, that the Frankford mill would now close down, and to the fact that the mill had recently enlarged its plant at a cost of $250,000.

Tariff Benefits Questioned

Mr. Meighen, he said, was making the contradictory assertion that he would increase the tariff, which was really only a tax, and yet reduce taxation. The experience in the United States with a high tariff had been that the wages of workers were cut by ten per cent. That meant what it had always meant. There might be some manufacturers who would pass along the benefit of protection to their workmen, but the majority of them would hire labour as cheaply as possible and make their dividends as large as they could. Living conditions of workers in the textile industries in the United States were such as to cause a blush of shame and the Federation of Labour was now going to the Government, asking for a lower tariff that living conditions among the workers might be bettered.

G. N. Gordon has been a credit to you at Ottawa It should not be necessary for him to seek re-election here. If he got what he deserved the people would say, "We want you to go back there, George." And I believe that the vote of the returned men and the ladies will send him back."

During the evening, vocal solos were given by Mrs. Walter Byers and Miss Evelyn Bentley, with accompaniments by Miss Ethel Kennedy and Miss Mathilde Masson, and an instrumental selection was played by Miss Lucille Doris.

COMMISSION TO INVESTIGATE

had been served that the cannon were still thundering.

The indications are strong that France and Great Britain are acting as one in the present effort to increase the prestige and power of the League of Nations, and render it an effective instrument for peace. There are also signs that, without directly blaming Greece, the members of the Council are attaching the greatest importance to the fact that the Greek army invaded Bulgaria to a depth of eight kilometres (about five miles), while the Bulgarians, even on the say so of the Greeks themselves, encroached no more than 500 metres (about a third of a mile) upon Hellenic territory.

As the severance of economic and financial relations, which the covenant authorizes against a warring nation, would require too long a time to put in operation, there was new insistence in League circles last night that the Council might order a naval blockade of Athens, should the Greek Government defy the Council's mandate.

Continuing yesterday to blame the other country for starting the Balkan war, both Greek and Bulgarian representatives told the Council that they wanted reparations. M. Caranapos, for Greece, insisted that the real reason why Bulgaria was having trouble with her neighbors was that she had been unable to comply with the disarmament clauses of the Treaty of Neuilly, which made it possible for roving bands of irregulars to provoke conflicts.

He denied that Greece had committed hostile acts.

Greek Evacuation.

PARIS, Oct. 28. — (Canadian Press). — Orders have been issued by the Greek Government for the evacuation of Bulgarian territory today. This official announcement was made yesterday afternoon.

The Greek Government, in reply to the Council of the League of Nations, undertakes to conform to the Council's requirements "so as to give renewed proof of Greece's desire for peace."

A military commission proceeded yesterday to Demirkapu, and was met there by a Bulgarian officer to arrange for the evacuation of the territory.

ADVERTISE IN THE EXAMINER

A CORRECTION.

Mistakes Were Made in List of Bacon Hog Prize Winners.

In the list of prize winners at the Hastings Bacon Hog fair there were some mistakes. The correct placing in class one was as follows: 1, R. J. Garbutt; 2 and 4, C. V. Health; 3, J. Frederick.

J. S. Wilson was awarded the Junior and Grand Championship and R. J. Garbutt the Senior Championship.

SLEUTH HOUSE

with an axe, as was at first supposed. Detectives have discovered that the cellar window, through which the assassin entered the house, was fastened by an iron rod from a carriage wheel, and as this is now missing, they feel reasonably certain that the nature of the weapon has been established, while it is possible the crime was committed by two men, most of the evidence points to only one.

Another point that is baffling investigators is the motive for the deed. The murdered couple apparently had no enemies, and as no attempt was made to steal anything in the house or in the bank on the ground floor, the suggestion of robbery would appear to be eliminated. At present the consensus of opinion is that the murderer, whatever his motive, fled in terror upon realizing what he had done.

"This double murder is too brutal to remain in the domain of crimes whose perpetrators are undiscovered," said Dan Lorrain, Chief of Provincial Detectives. "We have good hopes of laying our hands on the culprit, although we have as yet no definite clue to work on. We have followed thoroughly every channel of investigation, but we are handicapped by the fact that the murderer had over two clear days to make his getaway."

PAINLEVE'S MINISTRY

and M. Herriot, and the chairmen of the financial committee of the Senate and Chamber were later called before the President and questioned by him regarding the financial situation, and all expressed hope that the situation would be quickly cleared.

The President will see M. Cazals, president of the Radical Group, this morning, after which it is expected he will summon the man chosen to form the new government. The general impression last night was that it will be M. Painleve.

The Premier in the new combination will likely have the collaboration or active support of M. Herriot, and M. Briand will probably be asked to remain as Minister.

When inquiries were made last night about his health, M. Briand responded: "There is nothing the matter with me but a nose bleed, which was insignificant. But it might be regarded as an invitation to rest."

Divergent Views.

The meetings held by the different political groups of the Chamber yesterday developed a wide divergency of views as to the solution of the crisis and showing that the new Cabinet, however constituted, will have to manoeuvre delicately to find a majority. There was much talk of a political stalemate, which would require dissolution of the Chamber and new elections in order to bring out a majority to support a stable government.

The Socialists are charged by other groups with manoeuvring to force new elections under the present proportionate representation system, in the hope of gaining enough seats in the Chamber to make them the predominant group and enable them to take power. They are now numerically the second party in the Lower House, with 105 seats, as compared with 145 for the Radicals and 104 for the National bloc. They count upon electing 180 members if new elections occur under the present system.

LONDON, Oct. 28. — (Canadian Press). — The fall of the French Government and the disappearance of M. Caillaux, from whom so much had been expected in the re-habilitation of French finances, has an interesting side for the British people. It was Caillaux who negotiated the tentative agreement with Winston Churchill, Chancellor of the Exchequer, for the payment of £12,500,000 yearly for a period of years in settlement of the French war debt to Great Britain, and the question arises whether with the advent of a new French Ministry, this tentative agreement will lapse, and new debt negotiations be required with the new French Finance Minister, or whether the new Cabinet will be content to adhere to the agreement.

WHAT DOES GORDON KNOW ABOUT EGGS?

Mr. Peck wants to know, in the interests of the farmers of West Peterborough, whether Mr. Gordon knows anything about the importations of eggs to Canada.

Probably Mr. Peck thinks that after coming a seven-week journey from Australia the eggs would mostly be populated and therefore a fit subject for the notice of the Minister of Immigration.

Be that so or not, Mr. Gordon knows that under Mr. Meighen's Government many more millions of eggs came here to compete with the product of Canadian hens than have been imported during Mr. King's regime. Here is the record:

EGGS IMPORTED INTO CANADA

	1922	1923	1924	1925
Dozens	9,637,303	8,319,622	6,512,812	2,695,047
Value	$3,239,480	$2,508,504	$1,975,707	$945,819

Fewer eggs were imported during the fiscal year ended March 31 this year than in any year since the war.

SAVINGS BANK DEPOSITS

What more convincing proof can be had that Canadian people have prospered under King than the fact that Canadians had in Savings Banks Deposits $104,722,795.00 more in July, 1925, than in the same month in 1924.

A comparative statement of savings deposits in the various chartered banks of Canada for July, 1925, and July, 1924, cannot help but be accepted as fair proof of the prosperity of Canadian people

Comparisons of Bank Records	Saving Deposits July, 1924	July, 1925
Union Bank	$ 48,836,693	$ 50,972,678
Dominion Bank	52,601,051	57,466,051

INCREASE	$104,722,795.00

No one, not even Mr. Meighen, nor his ally Mr. Peck, can possibly be so foolish as to deny that these facts denote a marked improvement in the general industrial and business conditions of this country. The Canadian people will hardly be misled by statements of calamity and ruin, in the face of such a substantial increase in their Savings deposits.

That it has been possible for the Canadian people to increase their savings to such an extent proves beyond a doubt that general business and industrial conditions must have undergone a most marked improvement for which the Liberal Government must be given full credit.

Much more remains to be done, and Gordon, on his past record, has proven that he can be relied on to accomplish it. In your own interests, and to ensure a continuance of prosperity, give him your support on October 29th.

A Vote for Gordon is a Vote for Economy, Unity and Prosperity

MODERN CAMPAIGNING.

The election campaign has been completely revolutionized by the triumphs of invention—which have enabled more electors to hear the words of the leaders of the various parties than was ever before possible.

Thus on Friday night when Premier King spoke in Toronto and on Monday night when Right Honourable Arthur Meighen addressed a mass meeting in the same city the radio carried their words to thousands of electors sitting comfortably at home.

At the same time microphones carried the voice of the speakers to thousands unable to get into Massey Hall, who wailed into the streets outside and heard the message as clearly as those inside.

Tomorrow night many Ontario people will receive the results by radio, getting full information as to the election without leaving home.

The radio, greatly increasing the audience to which the remarks of the leaders are addressed and the motor car which has speeded up transportation, have put campaigning on a new and better standard, and a more enlightened expression of public opinion should be the consequence.

LIGHTER PENALTIES NEEDED.

In Belleville on Monday Chief Justice Meredith declared that wherever he goes sixty per cent. of the people who are in jail are persons who have been convicted of breaches of the Ontario Temperance Act.

Justice Meredith declared that it was not a satisfactory state of affairs to have healthy men in jail, who should be earning a livelihood, and many people will be entirely in accord with him in that statement.

One of the chief causes of complaint in regard to the Ontario Temperance Act is the severity of the penalties prescribed for offences under the Act, the fines being so high that many of those convicted are unable to pay and must take the alternative, a term in jail, while wives and children suffer.

The Ontario Government would do well to deal with this phase of the situation before it becomes intolerable.

A reduction of the penalties for minor offenders under the Act would, it is felt by many citizens, serve the cause of temperance equally well, and would prevent the condition Justice Meredith complains of and which undoubtedly calls for the attention of the authorities.

A FINAL WORD.

Tomorrow the electors of West Peterboro are called upon to say by their ballots what policy they want carried out in Canada during the next four years and to name their representative.

The two parties in this constituency have used publicity as probably never before in the history of West Peterboro to deal with the issues of the campaign, and the electors have had an unusual opportunity to become informed as to the policies and platforms of the oppsing factions.

The result of this advertising, coupled with the fact that both parties are well organized, should be a total vote well above the average, especially in the city where the efforts of the two organizations to bring the voters to the polls will be especially energetic.

In view of the importance of the issues at stake, it is well that the expression of the will of the people should be as emphatic as possible.

It is not a healthy sign when electors are indifferent and apathetic in regard to a national contest, and the evidence to hand of a large vote being polled here tomorrow is gratifying to those who have been urging the electors to use their franchise.

Those who can conveniently vote in the morning should regard it as a duty to do so in order to avoid the congestion that may ensue during the afternoon.

The polls are open from 8 a.m. until 6 p.m.

FIRE LOSSES AND PREVENTION.

If the casual reader is told that the losses from fires in the United States in 1923 were $535,372,783, the statement usually goes in at one ears and out at the other, says Barron's. Not many minds think in millions, and fewer still in hundreds of millions. Even when you tell him that the showing of 1924, which is not yet tabulated, will be 15 per cent. worse than this, he is not moved in the direction of seeking a remedy. He regards a fire as very much in the same class with an earthquake or a stroke of lightning. He presumes that there are fire insurance companies and fire brigades, and the matter passes from his mind without the thought that somebody must lose the wealth destroyed.

But perhaps if you tell this casual reader that the per capita fire losses in this country in 1923 were $5.02, while in Great Britain they were 72 cents, in France 49 cents, in Germany 28 cents, in Italy 25 cents, in Switzerland 15 cents and in Holland only 11 cents, he may perhaps begin to sit up and take notice. Official reports indicate carelessness and faulty construction, like defective flues and chimneys, as the most serious causes of fires. The man who throws a supposedly spent match into the wastebasket has much to answer for. The death list from fires in the year under analysis amounted to more than 15,000 persons. But why are these other countries relatively so free from such loss?

There is an answer which ought to convey something to the most thoughtless mind. It is that, according to the Department of Commerce, there are 20,697,204 dwelling houses in the United States of which no less than 83.4 per cent. are of ordinary wood-frame construction. In the countries taken for comparison the wood-frame building is hardly known. Even in the desperate housing demand in Great Britain today, with bricklayers' wages at prohibitive figures, the resort has been to cement and not wood, which is not tolerated, although its practicability for habitation is admitted. The Actuarial Bureau of the National Board of Fire Underwriters says that a frame house has five times as many chances of burning as a brick house and 66 times as many chances as a house classified as fireproof. Even a brick house is 133 times as likely to burn as a fireproof one.

The answer is, of course, fireproof construction. New frame houses should be forbidden, even at the price of some temporary congestion in housing. The figures given are simply madhouse figures, and the richest country in the world cannot afford such a fire waste or the criminal loss of life.

TWENTY-FIVE YEARS.

Some surprise has been manifested that Viscount Grey of Fallodon's British Foreign Secretary during the Great War, should have been moved to publish his memoirs. The great statesman is thought of as a man of extreme reticence, disliking nothing more than publicity; and that conception of him is a correct one. In the two volumes from his hand—Twenty-Five Years, 1892-1916—published by the Ryerson Press, Toronto ($10), the impression of Lord Grey as a retiring English gentleman, in love with nature, and preferring the peaceful quiet of the country to the busy political life of the city, is fully borne out. The autobiography reveals a most engaging personality, as well as a brilliant diplomat. That he has been induced to write the story of the most critical years of British history is a circumstance of supreme importance to future historians, and of engrossing interest to his contemporaries. No British statesman was so close to the heart of things as Lord Grey was when Europe swept helplessly onward to the abyss. He, of all living authorities, is in the best position to tell us just what happened, and in these memoirs he conceals nothing. The result is a work of supreme value and absorbing interest, throwing a searching light on events, their causation and consequences.

It is naturally to the period immediately preceding the outbreak of the European conflict that one turns with special eagerness. Though the record is painstakingly fair to all nations involved—even to enemy nations—no doubt whatever is left in the mind of the reader about the responsibility for the war. Britain did her very best to preserve peace. Lord Grey worked heroically for a conference, at which difficulties could be discussed and in all probability swept away. Speaking of this mode of settling international differences, he says: "It could be set to work at a day's notice. The same personnel was still in London—Cambon, Lichnowsky, Beuckendorff, Mensdorff, Imperiali and myself; we were all loyal colleagues, who not only knew but trusted each other. If our respective Governments would only use us and trust us and give us the chance, we could keep the peace of Europe in any crisis. . . . After the submission of the Serbian reply to Austria, how easy it would be to arrange peace with honor, at any rate to Austria!" But war had been determined upon, and nothing would avail to prevent it.

Apart from the historical significance of Lord Grey's revelations concerning the origin of the war, these volumes are a most important contribution to the solution of the problem of preserving international peace. He shows clearly the inevitability of the Great War, with the enormous armaments maintained by the nations and the suspicions to which military competition gave rise. How can armed camps, with mutual jealousy in their hearts and with an inconquerable ambition to get the best of each other, long continue in amicable relationship? The moves and counter-moves, the plotting and scheming, the alternated bluster and alarm, which go to make up the history of diplomacy in the years covered by these two volumes, could lead only to one disastrous end. The moral is plain—there must be a change of heart and a change of mind; old methods of diplomacy are absolete now that a new era has come to the world. And in this connection one sees, as the future historian will see more plainly, that, after all, the war was not fought in vain. Already practical results have been brought about through the drastic lessons so painfully taught. Supposing Great Britain and the Empire had kept out, what would be the position today? Lord Grey answers the question: "To stand aside would mean the domination of Germany; the subordination of France and Russia; the isolation of Britain, the hatred of her by both those who had feared and those who had wished for her intervention in the war; and ultimately that Germany would wield the whole power of the continent. How would she use it as regards Britain? Could any one feel comfortable about that question? Could any one give to it truthfully in his heart any but a sinister and foreboding answer?" In the light of what might have been the position of the Empire today, with all our burdens and difficulties, is relatively fortunate. Time will remove the deep scars and Britain and the dominions will reap the sure rewards which go to all heroic and unselfish action.—Hamilton Spectator.

FROM W. H. MERRILL.

To the Editor of The Examiner:
Dear Sir,—

I notice in Mr. Gordon's answer to the questionnaire of the Prohibition Union a good deal of quibbling. Mr. Gordon was not asked to commit the Government, he was only asked as a private citizen seeking election, to subscribe to the questionnaire. In fact Mr. Gordon is not really a member of the Government until he is endorsed by his constituents. I think that the people understand pretty well Mr. Gordon's attitude. Thanking you, I remain, yours, etc.,

FROM L. F. HUMBER.

To the Editor of Examiner:

The 29th day of October is not far in the distance, the day having ben set by the Federal Government for the purpose of sounding the sentiment of the people in the selection of a responsible Government for the Dominion of Canada.

Election day has been declared a half holiday, therefore, it becomes the duty of every citizen to exercise his or her franchise in selecting and electing legislators and officers of Government to insure stability in the structure of society.

It is a foregone conclusion that, among men there are great diversities of capacity for Parliamentary honors, etc.

Therefore it becomes a responsibility of the people, to make their choice ever keeping in mind. Good judgment should be exercised on the 29th of October.

It should be dismissed from the mind the election of popular candidates, as popularity does not, necessarily spell ability to function, along the lines most suitable for our Dominion.

Elect at all times, the candidate whom measures up to the closest standard of individuality of capacities, aquistion, and character.

If we possess one of the best up-to-the-minute watches we are satisfied then, why change as inequalities prevail.

Those candidates which refine and elevate our Dominion are to be chosen in preference to those which degrade and weaken Canada in their endeavours of absolute misrepresentation of the actual facts.

We at this particular time have occasion to regard social consequences and so it is for sake of Canada and the British Empire as a whole for the electorate to choose those which improve in preference to those which demoralize in the eyes of the world. "Be sure and elect the snappy boy."

REPLY TO MR. SULLIVAN.

Winnipeg.

Dear Sir,—

Your issue of Oct. 21, containing a letter from Mr. Sullivan, has been following me in my travels, or I should have replied sooner.

I was really generous in allowing that Romanists know the texts of Scripture, because some Irish Romanists could not quote even these two correctly. However, I am glad that Mr. Sullivan knows a third one; and if he knows still more of his Bible, he is only showing that the programme of the Church of Rome in Canada must be very different from what it is in Ireland.

Mr. Sullivan makes assertions, but he gives no evidence in support. Your readers will not mistake assertion for proof. Apart altogether from the question of good taste, Mr. Sullivan is unfortunate in his choice of a quotation from Scripture, "Thou shalt not bear false witness against thy neighbor." This is the 9th Commandment in the Bible. But if Mr. Sullivan had been brought up in Ireland, he would have learned it as the 8th Commandment. The Maynooth Catechism leaves out the 2nd Commandment, because it is not considered convenient, and makes up the number to ten by dividing the tenth into two. This may be clever arithmetic, but it is very doubtful morals.

Mr. Sullivan jibes at the divisions of Protestantism, which he forgets are in many cases only differences on non-essential points. But let Father O'Flanagan answer him on the differences and divisions of Romanism: "I want to know what form of Christianity I will be expected to teach in China. Will it be that taught by the Rev. Dr. Maurice or that taught by the Maynooth that has turned its back on him?" These words were spoken by Father O'Flanagan at the meeting in Dublin three weeks ago when he blessed Jim Larkin, the Bolshevik leader.

The sixty-seven converts who have left the Church of Rome in Dublin during recent months have found in the reformed faith the secret of moral and spiritual freedom, which they evidently failed to discover in the Church of Rome.

Yours truly,
T. P. O'CONNOR.

FROM. MR. ALLEN.

Dear Sir,—

Peterboro is very fortunate to have an independent newspaper that permits both sides to put up their arguments during this contest, giving the electors an opportunity to calculate which side is likely to benefit the country in general, and our own city in particular. The Liberals are to be congratulated in restraining from indulgence in the hurling of epithets against the opposing candidates. The casting of slurs is not fair to either candidate, and should not enter into the question as anyone; even a monkey can throw stones. I cannot say that the Conservative committee is taking the higher ground in their write-ups.

Some statements are not fair, nor good sportsmanship. I am afraid some of the workers are not free of methods that would not stand the light.

Why is so much money being spent in all the newspapers by the Conservative party? Naturally the money comes from those who are specially interested in high tariff. Who pays for that in the end? Does not the elector in the higher cost of goods—you who buy?

We must have tariff for revenue, but we do not wish to create millionaires of a few, while the citizens, in general, pay for it out of their hard earnings.

The King Government are taking the business-like method of sending a representative of the various lines of business to enquire into the needs of that particular business, and promise a fair protection. The King Government has had just enough of experience to get a grip on the various needs of this wonderful country of ours, and it would be the height of folly, I believe, to upset the business of the country when from all directions the story of business improvement is coming to us.

This year's crop will make a big change in business, as is now quite evident. Let King's plans work out. It will take another term to demonstrate it. The country was in bad shape when he came into power. It is now in shape to progress noticeably. Naturally Meighen would like to take advantage of this, but he has not demonstrated

A THOUGHT.

THE BOYS OF NOW.

We may continue to make laws that are local and write treaties that are international, but some day soon the boy of now will be asked to carry them through.

Your position and all other jobs will eventually be taken over by the boy of now.

Towns, cities, states, nations, and the affairs of the whole world will, in the very near future, be in the control of the young lads that are now carrying their books to school.

Courts, churches, universities, stores, steamship and railroad systems—farms, factories, banks and business generally will all be handled very soon by the boys of now.

The boys of now will soon manage everything, everywhere, and what may be expected in enterprise or realized in integrity depends largely on how the boys of now are developed.

Two-thirds of the poverty, crime and cussedness in this country could be very soon checked by beginning with the boys now.

CATTLE, GRAIN AND PRODUCE

Peterboro—Toronto—Montreal
Winnipeg

TORONTO LIVESTOCK.

TORONTO, Oct. 28.—Monday's sale of cattle at the Union Stock Yards totalled 4,117 and of these Rogers and Maybee bought about 700 head for export. Today's first receipts were 41 cars, 592 cattle, 112 calves, 1,167 hogs and 437 sheep and lambs. Export steers cost on he average 10 cents a cwt. less than last week at $7 to $8 a cwt. Heifers were bought from $6 to $7; short keeps $6.75 to $7.50 and bulls $4.50 to $5.50 a cwt. Almost all the good to choice handyweight and heavy steers were taken for export.

There were few good butches on the market again this morning. One load of 1,200-lb. steers was bought to finish up here at $7.25 a cwt. This morning's trade was quite slow—at one scale the weighup was practically all bulls. Export bulls sold at $4.50 to $5.25 and bolgonas $3.25 to $3.75 a cwt. Buyers were present looking for feeders and several loads of these sold at steady prices. Cows were scarce and none weighed up in the first two hours. With this morning's receipts there were about 3,500 cattle for sale. Some good handyweight butchers sold at $6.25 a cwt.

Calves were scarcely steady today and the tendency was towards easier prices with Buffalo buyers not operating.. One choice calf sold at 12 cents, but other good ones were not over 11 cents. The run was not heavy.

Lambs had a firmer market at 25 cents a cwt. advance. Top decks of lambs sold at 12½ cents a pound. Sheep had about a steady market.

The necessity of packers forced purchasers of hogs as high as $11.25 a cwt. f.o.b. on Monday and the market held all day from $11 to $11.25.. A bid of $10.75 a cwt. is being made today, but there is no prospect that this will be accepted.

MONTREAL MARKETS

MONTREAL, Oct. 28.—(Canadian Press).—There was some enquiry from foreign buyers in the local grain market yesterday for Manitoba spring wheat, but as prices bid were unsatisfactory little business was transacted. The export trade in oats was also quiet, while there was no further change in the market for that commodity, prices being firmly maintained.

The market for winter wheat flour was also unchanged. The feature of the millfeed trade was the increased demand from United States buyers, and a fairly large business resulted. The domestic trade was likewise reported good. The trade in standard grades of rolled oats was fair and prices ruled firm.

A good steady business was done in baled hay, both for local and outside account, and the market was fairly active.

Beans were quoted at from $2.40 to $2.50 per bushel.

There was no further change yesterday in the condition of the local market for eggs. A firm feeling prevails for strictly new laid stock on account of the light receipts and the fact that the demand is somewhat in excess of the offerings. The movement of storage eggs into consumption continues fairly good and the market was moderately active. The receipts were 1,186 cases, as against 329 for the same day last week, and 4,022 for the corresponding day a year ago.

A fair amount of business continues to be done in potatoes, but prices show no further change.

Rev. W. R. Courage, speaking of Mr. Gordon in January, 1924:
"THE CITY OF PETERBOROUGH SHOULD BE PROUD TO HAVE SUCH A MAN."

Liberal Publicity Committee 395 George street, Peterborough

OPEN LETTER NO. 32

RT. HON. W. L. MACKENZIE KING,
Prime Minister and President of the Privy Council, Ottawa.

Dear Sir:

Admitting that agriculture is still Canada's greatest industry, does it follow that in our efforts to secure immigration we should concern ourselves only, or mainly, with the question of how to attract immigrants who will specialize in growing wheat? Judged as to relative importance, is wheat growing holding its own, year after year, with other industries such as lumbering, mining and manufacturing?

We pay the farmer the compliment of speaking of him as the "backbone" of the country. When the "backbone" simile first acquired currency—say eighty years ago—the farmer was undoubtedly everything he was represented to be. But in those days he worked only a few acres, using a single-furrow plow drawn by a yoke of oxen, and harvested his crop with a scythe. To-day he works a much larger acreage, using a gang plow drawn by a tractor, and harvests his crop with a flock of binders. What it took several farmers to produce eighty years ago, with the crude appliances then in use, can now, with the aid of modern machinery, be produced by a single farmer!

With a population of about a million on her great wheat-growing farms, Canada is to-day producing about one-eighth of the wheat crop of the entire world. The extensive use of labor-saving machinery is mainly responsible for the tremendous showing she is able to make.

But meanwhile implement manufacturers are doing their utmost to push the sale of modern farm machinery in China with its 400,000,000 population, in Russia with its 150,000,000 population, and in every other country where agriculture is the chief basic industry. If wheat growing in Canada, under present conditions, is not sufficiently profitable to attract and hold immigrants, what must its situation be say twenty-five or fifty years hence, when the teeming millions of China and Russia, whose standard of living is so low that they can subsist on a wage of a few cents a day, are making extensive use of modern farm machinery to produce cheap wheat for export?

Yet that is only one side of the picture. In the days when the farmer truly was the "backbone" of the country, the world knew nothing bicycles, motorcycles, automobiles, pneumatic tires, gasolene engines, telephones, gramophones, player-pianos, typewriters, electric motors, household electrical appliances, moving pictures, radios, and scores of other things that all of us have or use to-day! Thousands upon thousands of workmen are now required for the production of things that we have come to look upon as necessities, that were literally non-existent eighty years ago!

There is a limit to the amount of farm-produced food each of us can comfortably consume, and excepting the unfortunate who are undernourished, we all consume that limit every day of our lives. But there is no limit to the number and variety of manufactured products each of us can use!

So, considered as channels for the profitable employment of labor in Canada, wheat growing at the best must stand still (except in so far, of course, as Canadian wheat can be made to displace the wheat of other countries in world markets by under-selling), while manufacturing may forge steadily ahead! Doesn't it look therefore as though artisan immigration would be the more logical immigration to encourage, particularly if we took precautions, by means of tariff increases, to ensure jobs for more factory workers than we now possess?

Much ado is made by politicians over the decline of rural population, as though that in itself were a thing to be deplored. In the light of these observations, isn't it rather a thing to be accepted as inevitable? And if so, of what avail will it be to shape our immigration policy in an effort to change a decline into an increase?

In business big or small, success usually falls to the man who thinks ahead, who tries to anticipate the conditions that are likely to arise, and who plans intelligently to meet them. In the biggest of all businesses—that of running a country—why should not the same rule hold good? If there is an unlimited future for manufacturing, and only a circumscribed future for wheat growing, why persist in immigration plans that are based upon the latter, to the neglect of alternative plans that might be based upon the former?

Yours respectfully,

President.

LADY ORATOR URGES LOCAL WOMEN TO VOTE FOR LIBERAL CANDIDATE

And Suggested That the Weaker Sex Would Make a Better job of National housekeeping Than Men — Scored Meighen's Tariff Proposals.

SPEECHES DR. MIDDLETON AND COL. O'FLYNN

"I am more than glad to be here to-night to speak for a representative like the Honorable Mr. Gordon, for the Loberal party owes him a great debt of gratitude. He was the first ray of cheer after the Liberal party came into power. It should be a matter of great pride that Peterboro owns the Deputy Speaker of the House. He has been a great credit to you and to this riding. It would be a great mistake not to re-elect him, for he has served you faithfully and well."—Mrs. Chas. H. Thorburn of Ottawa.

"We in Peterboro have been very lax in apreciation of our own people. Where is the monument in Peterboro to Mrs. Nichols? Where is there a monument to our soldiers. And have we appreciated as we should the honors that G. N. Gordon has brought to this town? Have we not handed out to him instead enough abuse and slander to make him say "What is the us?". To my mind it is pathetic that we cannot get rid of our little ideas and jealousies and appreciate a man who has done so much for us and for our city."—Dr. J. E. Middleton.

"There is no man in your city or in Eastern Ontario who has done as much for the returned soldier as George Gordon. We have complained many times that others have forgotten what we did for them in the Great War, but let it not be said of us that we forget those who have helped us,—George is a go-getter. Many's the time in Ottawa I have gone after something that I wanted for Belleville, and found that he had grabbed it off for Peterboro. Now, there is no doubt that Mr. King will be returned to power. Which would you rather have to represent you in Parliament? A Minister of the Crown or a silent man in the Opposition?"—Colonel O'Flynn of Belleville.

A large crowd of women, with a fair sprinkling of the sterner sex, turned out last evening to fill the G.W.V.A. Hall for the meeting at which Mrs. Charles H. Thorburn of Ottawa was the chief speaker. After Mrs. Thorburn's departure for Lakefield, where she was scheduled to speak later in the evening, brief addresses were given by Dr. J. E. Middleton and Colonel O'Flynn of Belleville.

The hall was appropriately decorated for the occasion with some very handsome large flags, and the platform was banked with palms, ferns and flowers. Mrs. Robert Harstone was in the chair, and Miss Luella Jobbitt, president of the local Women's Liberal Association, also occupied a seat on the platform.

Mrs. Thorburn was introduced by Mrs. Harstone, who referred to some of the many honors that have been won by the lady from Ottawa, who was commissioner for the Dominion Government at the Wembley British Empire Exhibition, Government representative at the International Labor Conference of the League of Nations at Geneva, is president of the Women's Canadian Club of Ottawa, president of the Canadian Council of Child Welfare, and an active officer of the National Council of the National Federation of Liberal Women.

Mrs. Thorburn's address was delivered in brisk, capable fashion, with a direct manner and a fluent style, interspersed by bits of dry humor, that appealed immensely to her audience.

Mrs. Thorburn.

"Some of us do not realize the importance of the election of a member of Parliament," she said. KING TUT'S TOMB WAS RE-OPENED

FLOWERS PRESERVED.

LONDON, Oct. 27.—(Canadian Press).—Cairo despatch to the Daily Mail says it is officially announced that Tut Ankh Amen's Tomb was re-opened October 12th in the presence of Egyptian officials. The lid of the sarcophagus was lifted, revealing another sarcophagus on which lay a thin linn cover and several bouquets of flowers in a good state of preservation.

20 WERE KILLED IN TRAIN WRECK

INVISIBLE DEFEAT.

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Oct. 28 (Canadian Press).—An invisible defect in a 96 pound steel rail last night was held responsible for the loss of a score of lives and injury to more than fifty other persons when the Sunnyland, St. Louis and San Francisco passenger train—one of the fastest and best equipped trains operating in the South—was derailed early yesterday near Victoria, Miss., 33 miles South of Memphis, and smashed down a 25-foot embankment.

Four pullman sleepers, a chair car, a combination negro coach and smoker with the baggage, express and mail cars hurtled down the embankment and into a ravine, telescoped and pounded by the impact into a mass of tangled wreckage.

Last night wrecking crews were still clearing away the debris.

his ability yet. Take lumber, pulpwood, etc., Meighen would shut off a market from the poor settler, many of whom depend on sales of their timber for a living chiefly, besides the great number of people engaged in getting out logs, sawing lumber, pulpwood, etc., would be shut out of business. Would not common sense say spend a little more in protecting our forests to keep up the business instead of blocking progress and creating monopolies for the wealthy to hold big areas as long as it suits them? There are so many lines of business that Meighen's policy would hit that the ordinary mind cannot grasp it. For many years I was for high tariff, and when Laurier came into power I was very much afraid the country would be ruined with his free trade policy, but he carried on the protective policy in such a way that the Liberals are justly proud of results, and I am not afraid to trust a student of political economy like King, and those who are troubled with the disease partyism or jealousy or spite must know very well that in Gordon we have an aggressive and clever candidate.

As it is scarcely at all possible for Meighen to gain around eighty seats to have a working majority, it does not take much calculating as to which candidate would be more useful to the city, the Hon. G. N. Gordon in the seats of the mighty or Mr. Peck in cold opposition in a humble back seat.

A. H. ALLEN,

FROM MR. FLORENCE.

The Editor of The Examiner:
Dear Sir,—

The air is full of prosperity. It is coming down claims the Liberals. We will force her down says the Conservatives. A change in Government is like removing one pane of glass from a window and putting in another. What will help one will hurt another.

The general conditions won't chang until the selfish mask of surfaces on the restrictions of a good class of immigrants is removed our country will struggle along as it is.

As a man interested in the welfare of Peterborough, and surrounding district, I wish to remind my friends that:

G N. Gordon is the man who recognizes you after the election as before.

G. N. Gordon is the best natured man you can find.

G. N. Gordon has influence with the Government.

His word means something and has paved the way to get anything needed for the City, and surrounding country.

G. N. Gordon as a Minister is a product of Peterborough and district. The advertisement Peterborough and district will receive we may not duplicate in a century. Dont forget it.

Think before you mark your ballot.

Better times are knocking at our doors.

Don't disturb it as re-arranged Government means a few years loss of time.

It is for your benefit to vote for Gordon.

Yours faithfully,
LOUIS FLORENCE.

FROM W. N. MILLAR

Editor of the Peterboro Examiner:
Dear Sir,—

Kindly allow me a small space in your most valuable paper to express a few thoughts which I feel must be uppermost in the minds of many people in and around Peterboro today. I heard the Conservative speakers at Victoria Hall Saturday night and must confess I was very surprised and disappointed. Instead of putting the great problems that confront Canada today fairly and squarely before the audience all the speakers harped on the tariff from beginning to end.

The tariff was Mr. Meighen's chief topic, but he had no theory to advance to account for our dollar being above par. Why? Now we all know that the problem of unity between all parts of this Dominion, and perfect understanding and co-operation between these parts is more important than the tariff. The possibility of very serious discord between the east, central and western parts of Canada (unless governed wisely and in the interests of all, and not in the interests of any one section, class or creed) is not nearly so remote as many people, especially in this part of Canada would fondly imagine.

Mr. Meighen never mentioned the National Railway, nor the fact that our post office department has a surplus for the first time in twenty-five years. Why?

He did not attempt to explain how it was that Canada's trade balance with the world is millions of dollars in our favour now but was millions against us when he was in power, and again I ask why?

He did mention the exodus of Canadians to the States, but everybody knows that this is not nearly so bad now as it was when he was in power.

The Australian treaty was attacked during the evening but I fail to see where it can harm Canada. But I do see very clearly where it will benefit Canada immensely. The same applies to the West Indies treaty.

There were other important things that he forgot or refused to mention but I hope that these few will convince anyone who is not sure which party he or she should support on the 29th.

Nobody but those in the front seats could hear Mr. Peck very clearly so we do not know just what his opinions are, and this was not the fault of the audience. This convinced me that Mr. Peck is not the man to make much impression on Parliament in Ottawa, especially if he sits in the opposition. Hoping that these few remarks will meet with general approval, I remain,

Yours sincerely,
W. N. MILLAR
35 Lafayette street.

FROM MR. KING.

To the Editor of Examiner:
Dear Sir,—

Allow me to express a few remarks, relative to the present political campaign. Exaggeration, humbug and abuse is the favorite pastime of many politicians. Such methods like the proverbial chickens come home to roost. Propaganda should not be digested without a grain of salt.

Governments cannot perform miracles or cure all evils with a stroke of the pen. Such a delusion seems to exist among a surprising number of people. Most people know business is not flourishing but I firmly believe the showing indications of improving. War invariably creates debt necessitating taxation and, Canada with her huge war debt and scant population is making a brave effort, which is reflected in the exchange value of the dollar.

People should not be blinded by partizanship or misled by distortions of the truth. A man's ability, honesty and integrity should be our guide and I am convinced that Mr. Gordon embodies those characteristics. He has conducted himself like a gentleman throughout the present campaign I could cite instances in which he has assisted returned soldiers in many ways. Mr. Gordon has made a sincere effort to help and foster all elements in the community and I feel sure he will continue to acquit himself creditably in the future as he has in the past.

Yours sincerely,
E. J. KING.

The receipts of putter yesterday were 74 packages, as against 1,863 for the same day last week, and 2,885 for the corresponding day a year ago. There were no further developments in the trade, but the undertone to the market was easy at the recent decline noted.

The receipts of cheese yesterday were 8,036 boxes, as compared with 10,982 for the same day last week, and 8,391 for the corresponding day a year ago. There was some business done over the cable, but the volume was small and the market was quiet.

CHICAGO LIVESTOCK

CHICAGO, Oct. 28 (Canadian Press).—Cattle receipts 14,000 generally steady; extreme top 1,423 lb. steers 16.00; best long yearlings offered at 13.75; most range killing steers 6.50 to 7.75; she stock steady to strong; lightweight bologna bulls weak; vealers strong to 25c higher; largely 12.00 to 12.50 to packers.

Hog receipts 25,000; opened steady to 10c lower; closing mostly 10 to 15c off; bulk good and choice 160 to 300 lb. weight 11.10 to 11.75, major packing sows 9.50 to 9.80; bulk desirable killing pigs 11.75 to 12.25; shippers took 8,000; estimated holdover 8,000.

Sheep receipts 8,000; fat lambs 25c higher, sorting and quality considered; bulk desirable fat lambs 15.00 to 15.25; few butchers 15.35; clipped lambs 13.75 to 14.00; few yearlings wethers 13.75; fat sheep and feeder lambs steady; aged wethers, 9.50; bulk fat ewes 7.00 to 7.50; bulk feeder lambs 15.00 to 15.50; best held late at 15.75.

CHICAGO WHEAT

CHICAGO, Oct. 28 (Canadian Press).—Brisk buying led to a late rapid advance in wheat values yesterday. Evidence that stocks of the contract grades of wheat in Chicago are being seriously depleted had much to do with turning the market upward. Closing quotations on wheat were strong, 1 1-2 to 3 5-8c net higher, new style, nearly the day's top figures, with December 149 5-8 to 149 3-4 and May 146 1-8 to 146 1-2. Corn finished at 1 1-4 to 1 1-2c gain, oats 1-4 to 5-8c up, and provisions varying from 2c decline to a rise of 60c.

Impetus for the jump in wheat prices came chiefly from announcement that a cargo of 230,000 bushels of spring wheat had been ordered to move out of Chicago to an Eastern port. This announcement, coming on the heels of advices showing that receipts of wheat at primary points throughout the United States yesterday were unusually small, brought about a quick display of strength where as beforehand the market had been tending decidedly downgrade, notwithstanding continued drought in Australia and word of rain, snow, sleet and zero weather in Canada.

Prompt delivery of wheat here showed a much more pronounced upward swing than was the case with the distant deliveries, May and July. Offerings of December were notably scarce, and general buying set it, both from commission houses and from previous sellers. Firms with eastern connections appeared especially eager to purchase. Earlier the trade here had been influenced by the fact that the Liverpool market was unresponsive to Monday's advance on this side of the Atlantic. Besides, absence of new export business acted as a weight on the market, and so, too, did profit-taking sales that reached a generous total.

Corn and oats moved up with wheat. New corn was in much better demand. Meanwhile, receipts of corn yesterday were light, and so, too, were country offerings to arrive.

Provisions were affected by month-end buying of October ribs. At one time yesterday this delivery ran up $1.25 on account of competitive bidding.

Claims She Was the Victim Of Malicious Hypnotists

WINNIPEG, Man., Oct. 28.—Canadian Press.—Gertrude Tracey, who was charged in the police court to-day with theft, is obsessed with an idea that the whole world is against her. In her own defence, she claimed she had been made the subject of malicious mind readers and hypnotists who compelled her to drink and had driven her to other evil deeds.

"I want it strictly understood that this business of mind reading and hypnotism has got to cease; I'm a ruined woman," she told the judge.

ENTERTAIN SECRETARY.

Presbyterian W.M.S. Told of Work Done in Northern Ontario.

MILLBROOK, Oct. 28.— Miss Pelton, of Westmount, Quebec, Feild Secretary of the Women's Missionary Society of the Presbyterian church in Eastern Canada, was the guest of Mrs. R. J. Doak on her recent official visit to the local Auxiliary here.

An open meeting of the Auxiliary was held in the church parlors on the occasion of Miss Pelton's visit, and the large gathering received with interest and enthusiasm the report which the Secretary gave of work being done in Northern Ontario, and the outline of the future activities being planned for new mission fields.

Centreville W.M.S. united with the local Auxiliary for the meeting. A solo by Miss Anna Hawthorne was an enjoyable feature of the musical part of the programme.

A thankoffering of $53.00 was received, and a delightful social hour was spent over the teacups at the conclusion of the business session.

The local Auxiliary has for some years past made the occasion of the annual thankoffering a special gathering, taking the form of an "At Home", with the President and other officers as hostesses, and it was generally conceded that this year's meeting has not been surpassed in attendance, interest, financial results, or social goodfellowship, by any previously held.

The president, Mrs. R. J. Doak, was in the chair. The girls of the C.G.I.T. grop assisted with the serving of frefreshments at the tea hour.

VANCOUVER, B. While here she was interviewed before leaving for Revelstoke and the Doukhobor community. She has had thirty novels published and has a number of plays to her credit. Her present tour through the Dominion is to enable her to gather data and information of this country which she will include in her books on her return to Europe. It is also the Countess' intention to deliver a series of lectures. She is most enthusiastic concerning Canada, which appeals to her strongly. She was naive in confessing her former ideas of Canada. To her it was a land of snow and ice, "with polar bears walking down the streets—or, walking everywhere!"

PEACE IN CHICAGO FOREIGN COLONIES

Greeks and Bulgars Are Not Quarrelling Over War at Home.

CHICAGO, Ill., Oct. 28.—(United Press)—Along Adam street, where Chicago's Greek and Bulgarian colonies merge, peace has been declared without intervention by the League of Nations. Previously when the Bulgarians and the Greeks were fighting in Europe, there always were echoes of the conflict in the form of fist fights and small disturbances along Adam street. But this time, police say, the two colonies have reached an understanding. There is a tacit agreement that Bulgarians may discuss the war among themselves and Greeks may discuss it among themselves but mention of the war between Greek and Bulgarian is taboo.

ALONE WITH THE BALLOT

Symbol Of Your Conscience.

Tomorrow is a day of significance. Every Election Day should be a day of thanks-giving, a day when the country's citizenry shows its appreciation of the efforts made by men of the long ago to take into their own hands the reins of government. Despotism was overthrown and the common man came into his own when first the ballots of the people decided their rule.

A weapon that comes down as still
As snowflakes fall upon the sod;
But executes a freeman's will,
As lightning does the will of God;
And from its force nor doors nor locks
Can shield you; 'tis the ballot-box.

CANADA is a country of which every citizen should be proud, a country that has come forward with leaps and bounds of late years until now she stands on the threshold of full development.

CANADA needs wise government. Her boundaries are far apart and her territory is divided by natural barren areas. Her people follow divergent occupations.

CANADA must be united. The natural divisions of land and water must be surmounted by a spirit of co-operation and good-will. The many classes must join together for the good of all.

CANADA must be economical. Her sacrifice in the World War, when she was first to offer her help in combatting forces that threatened the Empire, were tremendous, and must be recouped.

CANADA must expand her trade. Only by expanding markets and increased production can the depression of lean years be made up. Wider markets for her many products will bring Canada to the forefront of the nations.

These are reasons why the present Government commands respect and deserves support. Under its careful guidance the greatest expansion has taken place, new markets have been found, governmental expenses have been cut down, unity of the people has occupied first place in the objectives aimed at, and a general increase in prosperity has resulted.

Without passion, without party prejudice, the people of Peterborough should approach the polls tomorrow with a sense of appreciation of the wonderful power that is theirs—the power to control the destinies of this young giant among nations. The heat of the campaign is over; all has been said on both sides; it is the privilege of the electors tonight to weigh the issue.

No good reason has been shown for a change of government. The country has prospered since 1921. High tariff is only a theory, and Mr. Meighen and Mr. Peck offer only that theory against the proven benefit of moderate protection. Canada cannot afford to abandon solid ground at this stage to embark on a doubtful raft.

Stability and advancement are opposed to disruption and stagnation, and every man and woman who seeks progress and the welfare of Peterborough and Canada will support the people's candidate, G. N. Gordon.

LAKEFIELD CHURCH HAS GOOD SERVICE

Rev. Allen, of St. Paul's Preached to Presbyterian Congregation.

LAKEFIELD, Oct. 28—Rev. William Allen of St. Paul's Presbyterian church, Peterboro was in charge of the Presbyterian service held on Sunday afternoon in the Baptist church. In spite of the very bad weather there was a good attendance.

Mr. Allen took his text from the 29th verse of the 8th chapter of St. Paul's Epistle to the Romans: "For those He did foreknow. He also did predestinate to be conformed to the image of His Son." If asked for a text to build up Presbyterian doctrine, this is probably more appropriate than any other.

There are a great many people to whom life is nothing more than an existence, for all practical purposes the Bible might never have been written or circulated and Christ might never have been born. Many of thse people are successful in business and delightful to meet socially and very much alive intellectually but dead spiritually.

Death is the breaking of relationships, the Bible says "in Adam all die."

To many life leaves the realm of existence and enters the realm of experience and there is a great difference in these two. There is no more delightful task than to read Gods word and in doing so realizing that God has a plan for every life. There was never a building erected with a more complete or definite plan than man. The realization of this changes ones' life and to carry these plans to a successful consummation is God's chief concern. Some lives are like homes which are built first in a small way and gradually as means permit add to until one does not recognize the style of architecture. God's plan builds a Christ like character and we need contact with Christ. Today we have too little of that and the world is the poorer for it. The church should have it and the world needs it. Nothing happens by chance and the object of all God's dealing is to make us more like Christ and make life worth while. In heaven we shall be like Him for we shall see Him as He is for this we should unceasingly strive. If you feel you have reached the best there is and that there is nothing ahead then ambition has ceased to function and that is the end of all things.

During the offertory Dr. J. C. Smith and Mr John Anderson (Peterboro) sang a duet "Saved by Grace" and Mr. Anderson sang a solo "Wonderful Love" immediately after the sermon. Miss Etta Garbutt presided at the organ.

The service next week will be in charge of Rev. O. A. Thompson of Hastings who is well known in Lakefield and vicinity.

ALLOCATING MONEY.

Athletic Commission Will Supervise Distribution of Gate Percentages.

NEW YORK, Oct. 28 (Canadian Press)—Fifty per cent. of the gross receipts of all benefit boxing shows in New York hereafter must be deposited with the State Athletic Commision to insure the money going to the organization or interests to be benefitted, according to a decision reached by the Commission yesterday.

This action was understood to have been prompted by the fact that a number of charitable institutions advertised as beneficiaries of several boxing shows here in the past few months, actually received only a small percentage of the gate receipts.

INTERESTED IN CHILDREN.

Wife of King's Physician Spent Time in Aid Society Home.

TORONTO, Ont., Oct. 28.—(Canadian Press).—While in the city Lady Dawson, wife of the King's physician, spent some time at the Children's Aid Society home. Lady Dawson is one of the Queen's advisers on child welfare work, in which Her Majesty takes an active part. Toronto's visitor was greatly interested in the system of boarding out mentally subnormal and other children which has been successfully adopted in this city.

VOTE TOMORROW TO KEEP PETERBORO'S INDUSTRIES AND TO BRING MORE HERE

Voters of Peterboro, Mr. Gordon has during the last few days materially helped you in making your decision as to how your ballot To-Morrow should be cast.

An industrial City like Peterboro surrounded by a rural population depending upon that City as its market for the largest part of its productions cannot afford to send to Ottawa as its reprsentative a man who declares in his advertising that industries that cannot thrive under the present tariff are not worth keeping.

The Riding of West Peterboro cannot afford to send to Ottawa as its representative a man who believes that protection has driven people out of Canada because it is fleecing them here.

Mr. Gordon might hope to win votes by assailing manufacturers and attacking protection if he were a candidate in Saskatchewan, but an Ontario Riding of the composition of West Peterboro wants no free trade representative at Ottawa.

When you go to the polls To-Morrow remember that Mr. Gordon says that Peterboro's industries which are not thriving under the present tariff are not worth keeping.

Vote to keep them here running to full capacity and to bring other industries to Peterboro by voting for E. A. Peck—Four Square for Protection.

The Victory Committee of West Peterboro.

WANTS IMPROVEMENTS.

Suggested Amendments To Mothers' Allowance Act.

TORONTO, Oct. 28 (By Canadian Press).—Miss Gertrude Lawler, Chairman of the Women's Allowance Board, Ontario, at the annual meeting just held, presented recommendations urging "that the Minister of Health and Labor be reminded that the present office of the board was unsuitable in location and inadequate in equipment; that the Ontario Mother's Allowance Act be amended to include the mother of one child, and that the flat rate be increased by $5 until living budget schedules are in general use in Ontario." British Columbia was held up as an example in the matter of pfoviding for needy mothers and children. There the mother of one child is given $42.50 every month and an additional monthly allowance of $7.50 is granted for each additional child under 16 years of age.

A fourth recommendation urged that in connection with the flat rates and in considering the eligibility of applicants property be estimated on its assessed value, and earnings be based on income tax returns, that no wage-earning child should be required to contribute more than one-half of its wages to its mother's support; that all the part-time earnings of the mother or foster-mother be exempt; that allowance be given to mothers whose husbands have been committed to Ontario penitentiaries for at least three months, and that the present character of the mother be the essential moral qualifications of an applicant whose child has been born out of lawful wedlock.

TOO GENEROUS IN DOMINION DEFENCE

Feeling That Development is Sufficient Deemed Erroneous.

LONDON, Eng., Oct. 28 (Canadian Press Despatch).—Sometimes it is said that the Dominions should not be expected to contribute much to defence, since they are doing enough in paying for the development of these young countries, writes the Hon. A. S. Malcolm, member of the New Zealand Legislative Council in the "Nineteenth Century" review published here. I have never felt that those who resort to these excuses had much faith in them, and I have never heard any responsible person make use of them.

"Why, then, do the Dominions not pay their fair share of the cost of defence? Simply because Britain is too generous. If Britain likes to pay more than her share of the cost, well, let her. I would not like anyone to think the Dominions are out deliberately to take advantage of Britain's generosity.

"What happens is possibly something like this. In making up its budget a Dominion finds that this, that and the other expenditure must be provided for. When it comes to defence the Government must know it is not paying a fair share, but taxation, in the opinion of the taxpayer, is high, no one asks for increased defence expenditure and, anyway, safety is assured by Great Britain, so just now there is no compulsion to spend more. But the Government does not want to sponge on the Old Country, and it stretches a point and increases its defence vote by 50 per cent. Though this amount is far less than the proportional share, the Government winds up by thinking it has done something quite generous. In all the circumstances perhaps it has reason for thinking so."

CAMPBELLFORD TEWS

Harvest Thanksgiving.

St. John's United Church was beautifully decorated with flowers Sunday, when the annual harvest thanksgiving services were held, the sermons being preached by the pastor, Rev. Wesley Elliott. There was special music at both services. In the morning, "The Promise," from "A Song of Thanksgiving" was artiscally rendered by Dr. Lillian Young, Mrs. F. J. Smith and G. W. Lucy. In the evening a quintette consisting of Mrs. J. H. Bell, Mrs. E. Bates, Miss Ruth Taylor, Messrs. J. H. Bell and Walter Lowe, sang "Savior, Again to Thy Dear Name We Raise." Another special number was "Sweet Hour of Prayer," by a male chorus, G. W. Lucy taking the solo part.

Presbyterian Church.

At St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church Sunday morning, Mrs. Robert Drummond, whose husband is Comptroller-General of the Province of Manitoba, sang a solo, her presence recalling to memory the days when, as Blanche Wellman, she resided in Campbellford, where for several years she was the soloist in St. Andrew's congregation. Her voice has lost none of the charm which made her one of the most popular singers this town has ever known. Mr. and Mrs. Drummond have just returned from a trip overseas, and on their way home stopped over to spend a few days with Mrs. Drummond's mother, Mrs. R. Hurst.

Consider Well

The most important act of your life this year will be the marking of your ballot on Thursday, October 29.

Your decision is more vital than you think. The consequence will affect in some way, not only yourself, but every human being in the country. If you are a wage-earner, a property owner, a man with investments, you are now standing at the cross-roads. A turn in the wrong direction means a continuation of the policy of inaction, of compromise, which has marked the administration of the King government and has been so fatal to the welfare of Canada and her citizens. July 1 was our 58th Birthday and—we are still struggling along with 8 1-4 million people in a country as big as the United States.

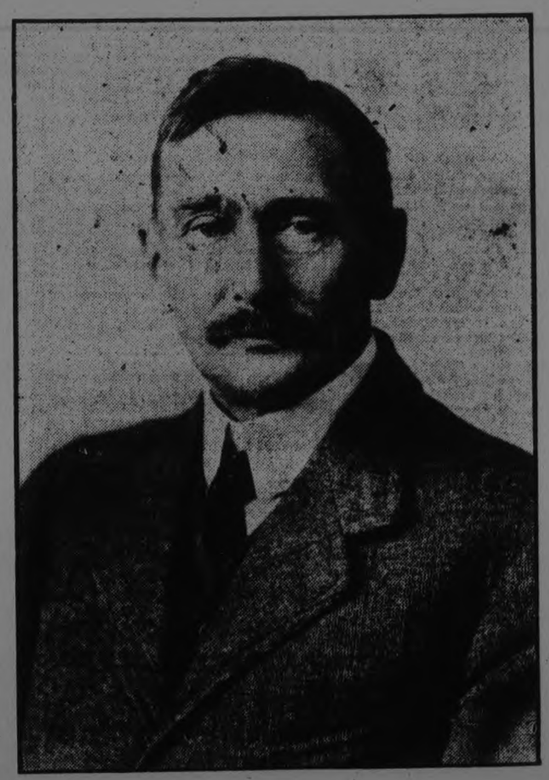
We have a smaller population than we had in 1921.

Since the King government came into power and lowered the tariff nearly half a million Canadians were forced to go to the United States to find employment.

Are we to continue to permit the best of our manhood to seek employment in the United States, or are we going to build up home industry, give our cities a chance to grow, provide work for all our people and for the millions who would enter this Canada if the future were one of hope and not one of dismal doubt, as at present?

Has Canada been prosperous during the last four years. Have you improved your position since the Liberals began their policy of tariff tinkering, with an eye to the free trade demands of the Progressives?

Do you want your fellow-man to live by honest, well-paid work?



Do you want political leadership of a sane and an honest kind?

Of course you do.

Many will vote for the first time. They can make no mistake by voting for the supporters of the Conservative government, whose policies are clearly defined and planned in the best welfare of the whole country, and for no particular group of interests.

The prosperity of Peterborough and district is interwoven inseparably with the Conservative policies. That is the outstanding and undeniable fact.

Your vote on Thursday may spell ruin or bring renewed prosperity to Peterborough.

Government Nabob arbers the Bobbed

LONDON, Oct. 24 (United Press).—At Limuru, Kenya, Africa, there is an Englishman who regularly shingles his wife's hair once a week, according to a letter just received here.

At first, when his wife made the suggestion he declared himself ready to be hanged first but when he found that the cost of travel to the nearest regular hairshingler plus the cost of the shingle itself would set him back $10.00 a week he meekly submitted and now prides himself on the artistic effect he negotiates.

At Mombassa a high government official let himself in for trouble galore when he confessed to considerable skill at manipulating clippers. Immediately he was beseiged by all the white women in the district to do their shingling for them. To keep peace in the district he did it. Once started they wouldn't let him stop. Now, he hasn't time to do anything else.

ITALIAN CARPENTER PREDICTS WORLD 'QUAKES WITH SUCCESS

Says Impossible to Prevent Them, But Feasible to Forecast the Time.

PITIES PROFESSORS.

Believes That Terrestrial Dynamism is Connected Through Continents.

By RAFFAELE BENDANDI.
(Written for the United Press.)

FAENZA, Italy, Oct. 28 (United Press.—Is it possible to predict the earthquakes?

The question, which until a short time ago was simply absurd, to-day is such no longer, for if it be true that many savants answer it in the negative, it is equally true that a distinguished array of scientists, such as Moreaux, Alfani, Stiattesi, not to mention other famous predecessors, think that there should be a key to this deep and terrifying mystery, and that the mystery must have its laws which the intelligent and tenacious scientist will have to find.

The prevention of earthquakes is certainly unthinkable, as Abbot Berthelot, who lived in the 17th Century, foolishly held as feasible, but it is undoubtedly possible to foresee them and to avoid and mitigate their deadly consequences.

Efforts in the direction of predicting earthquakes date back to a very remote age, as it can be seen in Aristoteles' and Pliny's works. It is in fact related that Anaximander (600 B. C.) by observing a junction of a number of astral bodies, was able to announce to the Lacedemonians beforehand a violent earthquake which set a section of their city in ruins. A further example of prediction is recorded by chronicles as having occurred in 1343, when the bishop of Naples predicted with a mathematical accuracy the deadly shocks which wrecked that city on November 20.

It is a scientifically proven fact that there are periods in which earthquakes are more numerous; there are times in which our planet undergoes a serious and intermittent malady; it wavers and it is shaken as if it were a prey to tremendous convulsions, which are followed by a phase of calm, even though comparative. Briefly, the telluric activity is subject to a perennial oscillation. Long periods of profound lethargy are followed by brusque and sudden outbreaks, which constantly leave a long trail of casualties behind.

All the observers and investigators of these phenomena have not evidently learned from the great book of nature, the very simple truth that nothing happens by chance in nature, because what the un-initiated call "chance," is nothing but effect of unknown forces.

I confess frankly that I pity those illustrious professors who stated that the Japanese earthquake was a result of a sudden underground crack. The explanation for the disaster at Santa Barbara was likewise foolish. It was said that the cause was to be found in a brusque cave-in, due to want of support. A fine discovery. Would it not have been easier to say that the city of the American millionaires crashed because of a brusque and sudden giving in of the earth?

As it may be seen, seismological science cannot tell us anything on this subject in face of the uncertainty over the inner nature or the origin of these phenomena. I do state in the most emphatic manner, and will soon prove it by unmistakable facts, that all these phenomena and all the different and complex forms of terrestrial dynamism, wherever they occur, are closely connected by an intercontinental liuk.

This is the reason why I cannot help but signal every telluric manifestation of some importance, inasmuch as it serves clearly to prove the existence of a close connection between the phenomena, which have a single origin in the great geological melting-pot.

Only by starting from such a conception, it is possible to arrive at a seismological prediction. This is the criterion which led me to making predictions, all of which have come true with astounding accuracy, namely, the Japanese catastrophy, the violent earthquake in Mexico, the telluric paroxysm that shook the Philippines on May last, the big seismical commotion in California on June 29, and the tremendous eruption of Santorin volcano in the Greek archipelago.

JAPAN PLANS TRADE TREATY WITH CHINA

Willing to Discuss Complete Customs Autonomy After Interval.

By MILES W. VAUGHN.
(United Press Staff Correspondent).

TOKYO, Oct. 28 (United Press).—Japan will enter the China Customs Conference which opens in Peking next Monday with a clearly defined policy of friendship toward China and a firm intention of giving sympathetic attention to all reasonable demands.

The Japanese delegation will be headed by Eki Hioki, former minister in Peking and the man who presented the "21 demands" to the Chinese Government. Hioki also signed the Sino-Japanese Treaty of 1903 providing for the Chinese Likin Tax and extra-territoriality. Hioki was at one time counsellor of the Japanese Embassy in Washington and is widely known, having served in Chile as the first Japanese minister to that country, and in many other diplomatic and government posts.

Minister Yoshizawa in Peking will be the second Japanese delegate. There will be a considerable number of financial and technical advisors.

Japan even is willing to discuss complete customs autonomy for China, but believes that "a reasonable interval" should elapse before its realization.

Such a liberal program from the nation which formulated the notorious 21 demands on China and which, in the past, was accused repeatedly of aggression and high-handed tactics in China, may come as a considerable surprise to those who have not followed recent developments in Japanese policy toward her giant sister nation. Hence it should be clearly understood at the outset that the Japan which formulated the 21 demands is no more. Japan found that an aggressive policy in China did not pay.

Japanese commercial relations with China in recent years have developed to a tremendous degree and the series of boycotts against Japanese goods by the infuriated Chinese, culminating in anti-Japanese agitation which followed the recent Shanghai incidents, firmly convinced the Tokyo Gaimusho (foreign office) that a policy of friendship toward China was the only one that would pay.

This policy has been developing for more than two years and is part of the general program of conciliation Japan has exhibited toward all nations, even to recognition of Russia. Japanese felt keenly the censure of the world hurled at them after the "21 demands" became public and realized that only fair actions could remove the suspicion implanted in the world mind.

The Japanese policy was apparent from the first day of the Shanghai trouble last June. Although the whole affair started from a strike in a Japanese mill Japan remained conciliatory. Japanese property was destroyed, Japanese subjects killed and the very name of Japan was one anathema of the Chinese Liberals. But Japan continually avowed friendly sympathy to China and made no retaliatory moves. She feared a new boycott and strove only to placate the Chinese.

The extent to which Japan is ready to go is shown by the fact that the government has already avowed its intention of making the question of payment of Japanese loans to China a secondary consideration. What Japan wants most of all is an orderlyChina, a government in Peking that will stand, and a feeling of friendship among the Chinese people for Japanese and their goods. It is only upon such a basis, she feels, that trade can develop and trade is what Japan needs most.

CASTLETON NEWS

CASTLETON, Oct. 28.—The Anniversary Services in the United Church, Castleton, on Sunday, Oct. 18th were a decided success. The congregation crowded the church to the doors. The choir gave excellent service, exceeding all previous records. The minister for the day, Rev. R. T. Richards of Peterboro', was kindly received and presented two very inspiring messages; in the morning thinking of "What is Christianity," and in the evening, using as his text the words "Loose him and let him go." The people responded most nobly to the appeal of the official board, exceeding the request, placing on the plates $271.00. Everyone was delighted with the results of the anniversary services.

The Young People's League, in spite of the weatherman's gift of bad weather every Friday night, is going again in the good old way. Last week the meeting was in charge of Miss Agnes Apt, missionary vice-president. Besides the usual programme, the girls presented a missionary pantomine. Refreshments were served and an enjoyable time spent. This Friday evening, Oct. 23rd, the meeting is in charge of the boys and girls, no one over sixteen years of age taking part. On Friday, evening, Oct. 30th, the annual hallowe'en social will be held in the Community Hall.

The members of the community were sorry to learn of the death of Mrs. Samuel Dusenburg, who died on Saturday, Oct. 17th. For a number of years she has been in poor health and her passing was not unexpected. The funeral service was held in the Morganston church on Monday, Oct. 19th, Rev. James E. Beckel, of Castleton being in charge of the service. Interment was made in the Christian Church burying ground.

Mr. and Mrs. Hawkins left for Cobourg Sunday morning to attend the funeral of Mrs. Hawkins' sister, who died suddenly. The sympathy of the community is extended to Mrs. Hawkins in this sad loss.

Word was received today of the death of Mrs. Carr, Brighton, Ont. Mrs. Vanblicaron and Mrs. A. Carr, are sisters of Mrs. Carr and to Mr. Wallace Turney, is a brother.

All of the friends of Rev. Fred. Joblin, Stirling, will be sorry to hear of the serious illness of Mrs. Joblin, who was taken to Toronto on Friday, Oct. 16th for treatment. Her condition is very critical.

Service in the United Church, Sunday evening at 7.30. The pastor will preach on the subject, "Love's Longing." S. School as usual at 10.00.

Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Jones nad Mrs. Beckel motored to Peterboro' with Rev. J. E. Beckel on Sunday morning, returning Sunday evening.

What might have been a serious motor accident was narrowly averted the other afternoon when the local garage man, Mr. Spencer nearly came into collision with Mr. V. Pomeroy. Evidence of the might-have-been accident is seen in the railing on the south side of the road.

The next ten days are to be busy ones for leaders in religious education. On Oct. 23, 24 and 25, there is the Boys' Conference in Brighton; for older boys and leaders, and the C. S. Convention in Shiloh is on Monday, Oct. 26th. Both these gatherings are promoted by the Ontario Religious Education Council.

Mr. and Mrs. B. Gaffield have returned to their home here in the village, after spending the summer with their daughters.

Mrs. Elgie Moore is spending a couple of weeks at the Rawdon parsonage, Stirling.

The wind of last Monday did a great deal of damage to the orchards of this section and a great number of apples were blown down.

BERLIN PLUNGED IN MAELSTROM OF MYSTICISM

Patrons of Occult Throng the Halls of Magic in All Departments.

BIG RANGE OF CHOICE.

Police Fail to Share General Enthusiasm, Forcing Strict Secrecy.

By FREDERICK KUH,
(United Press Staff Correspondent).

BERLIN, Oct. 28 (United Press).—Berlin is swiftly acquiring a reputation as "the city of occultism." Nerve-wracked wives, mothers and sweethearts created a boom in spiritualist stock during the war and that boom has continued unabated.

Spiritualism is in the foreground of German occultism. Since the Berlin police refuse to share the popular enthusiasm for these fourth-dimensional sports, they are usually conducted in private. It is extremely difficult to gain access to the most exclusive of these circles, which are frequented by the city's "intellectuals," and whose chief haunt is the home of a distinguished painter. Les esoteric groups, however, are open to the public and are conducted for revenue only. Both circles, and especially the former, are attended by Berlin's social luminaries—bank directors, artists, wealthy merchants, physicians and lawyers, many of whom come to scoff and remain as prey.

Each circle has its pet medium, and Freudians declare that these are almost invariably childless women who seek solace in "other-worldliness."

The repertoire comprises the familiar table-moving, automatic writing, weird knocking and bizarre lighting effects, appearance of ghostly bouquets and fruits and the spectres of dead souls.

But spiritualism is merely one branch of the occulist business. Clairvoyants thrive. The most noted of these demands that each client present his photograph or a bit of handwriting. He then demands $1 or a reply to each question. This often serves to curb the client's curiosity. But long rows of elegant automobiles are daily arrayed before this oracle's doorstep. His chief attraction is the whispering of tips for the stock-exchange, and these are said to bring him fabulous sums from rich speculators. Lately, this same clairvoyant has been writing spiritualist dramas, performed before a select audience, who are granted thirty spinal shivers per act.

Characters are read and fates disclosed from playing cards, bumps on the head, palms and coffee-grounds. One "expert" serves his clients demitasses which, once drained, unburden their coffee-grounds. These fall in the shape, say, of a ship, and so, of course, the client learns that he is soon to embark upon a long sea voyage.

Berlin also boasts of the royal art of astrology, whose exponents are united in a society, trained in higher mathematics. In fact, their mathematics are often so high as to be out of sight of the ordinary mathematician. Others grow rich by the hroscope route, charging $50 per visit. Phrenologists, graphologists and palmists, too, have regular office-hours, during which they relieve their customers of worldly banknotes in return for a glimpse into eternity.

The Esoteric Society, whose membership consists mainly of theosophists, is led by Peryt-Shout, who calls himself a magnetopath and claims great skill in black magic. The Rose-Cross group must be added to this list, although their secrets have not yet been penetrated by outsiders. Our own American Mazdaznan cult, whose leader is Otoman Hanish of Chicago's precincts, completes the roll-call of wizards, witches and their ilk, who haunt the byways of Berlin.

BETHANY NEWS

BETHANY, Oct. 28.—Mr. Lloyd Lang shipped three carloads of stock, on Saturday, two from Bethany and one from Fleetwood station, where stock yards were built several years ago, but as there were no scales they had never been used until this fall, when Mr. Lang had a set of scales erected.

Mrs. Chas. Reynolds Sr., who has been visiting her daughter, Mrs. Clarence Buller, Brantford for several weeks, returned to her home here on Monday.

The high wind of Monday caused several chimney fires. Mr. McMaster, who was threshing for Gilbert Kincade, was forced to quit, as a spark from the engine caused a fire in the straw mow and only the prompt actions of the men and a plentiful supply of water prevented a disastrous fire.

Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Neil, Mr. and Mrs. Wm. L. Rowan, Mrs. S. Arnott and Miss Olive Nelson, attended the fowl dinner at Janetville, on Monday night.

Mrs. Harry Hanna and daughter, Margaret, who have been visiting with friends on the 8th line, Manvers, returned to their home in Gelert on Monday.

An epidemic of colds is prevalent in in the village, and few have escaped.

The Senior Second class of the public school is crying the examination for entrance into the third class this week. On account of the measles among the school children, these examinations were not tried at the regular time in June.

Word reached this village on Saturday of the death at Edmonton, Alberta, of a former resident, in the person of Mrs. Reuben Price. Mrs. Price was Miss Lillian McKinnon before her marriage, and a sister of Mr. James McKinnon just west of the village.

The October meeting of the Women's Missionary Society of the United Church was held at the home of Mrs. T. J. Jackson, on account of the anniversary it was held one week later than usual. The day was unusually stormy so that only six members were present, but a fine spirit of devotion was felt throughout the meeting, which was presided over by Mrs. Jackson. A devotional paper, "The prayer of the Master," based on John, 17, 20-25 verses, was given by Miss Weatheriet. Mrs. Jackson introduced the new study book, "Building in India," a season of prayer was offered for missionaries and for the sick of the village, and for those in attendance on the sick. Four members reported through the watch tower, progress in the mission field.

Mrs. J. Porteous offered her home for the November meeting.

Waxwork Window Women Shocked Shamed Shoppers

LONDON, Eng., Oct. 28.—(Canadian Press).—Members of the Bradford Diocessan Lay Readers' Association, as they passed along the streets of this city during the recent "Shopping Week," found the blushes mounting to their cheeks all of a sudden. It was the sight of scantily clad wax figures on the other side of the great plate-glass in some of the leading stores which caused the countenances of the lay readers to assume the hue of a pickled cabbage. The Lay Readers' Association gathered together and passed a resolution regretting the tendency to indecency which had developed in store-window dressing. They suggested that the Chief Constable or the Police Committee ought first to inspect such window displays.

Acting upon these representations some of the leading stores have modified their display of feminine underwear. Other storekeepers declare there are more pressing matters over which the lay readers could profitably exercise their concern. It is not likely that the civic authorities will take any action, although there may be some who will sympathize with the attitude of the lay readers.

It Is Time For A Change. Help To Make It Tomorrow

Mr. Gordon's campaign speeches have been a disappointment, even tc his friends. Not once has a note of statesmanship been sounded.

Not once has he been convincing in his references to the big issue of the campaign, the tariff.

Where he stands on that issue not even his warmest admirers can state.

In his statements in regard to protection he has boxed the compass.

One minute he talks about protecting legitimate industries, the next he refers to a tariff for revenue, and in the last days of the campaign he has been attacking the whole principle of protection with the fervor of an out-and-out free trader and assaulting the manufacturers of this city and generally with the recklessness of a soap-box orator.

Out of the welter of words in which he has engulfed the electors there has not emerged a single sentence that suggests the utterances of a Cabinet Minister.

Committee Room Speeches

His campaign addresses have been Committee Room speeches, not the speeches that the electors have a right to expect from a member of the Federal Cabinet in a general election.

In short, Mr. Gordon has talked through this campaign as a ward politician, not as a statesman.

His broken promises of the last election he has cynically disregarded, for his failure to protect Peterborough's industries during his term as representative of this riding he has had no defence, for his deception of the people in regard to his portfolio he has had no explanation.

He has offered nothing but generalities, platitudes—in plain English, bunk to an electorate which four years ago he deceived with a similar menu.

The Gordon promises of 1921, compared with the barren Gordon record of performance from 1921 to 1925, and coupled with the Gordon speeches of the campaign, stamp G. N. Gordon as utterly impossible as a representative of this riding at Ottawa.

The electors are tired of "sound and fury"; they want a representative whose record they can rely on, a representative who believes in a Canadian policy of protection for Canadian industries and Canadian farmers, a representative pledged to support the principle of protection in support of a leader pledged to that principle.

THEY WANT E. A. PECK

From Mr. Gordon they have nothing to hope for except the certainty that in tariff matters and any other matters, the order of preference will be Mr. Gordon's interests first, the interests of the Liberal party second, and the interests of West Peteborough a poor third.

Mr. Gordon's record is the proof.

He has been fighting for Gordon in West Peterborough, leaving other Liberal candidates who had the right to expect support from a Cabinet Minister, to do their own fighting. Gordon first.

He fought for the King Government in West Hastings in 1924, but he failed to fight for the industries of Peterborough at Ottawa in 1924.

Mr. Gordon first, the Liberal Government second, Peterborough last. Isn't that clear?

It is time for a change, and West Peterborough is going to make it tomorrow.

THE WEALTHY QUARTET

By MARY C. McLENNAN

PETERBOROUGH

A dismal rain was falling, merging occasionally into sleet, pelting the pedestrians with spiteful and dreary insistence. Few and brief were the greetings exchanged on Main Street, of the busy manufacturing town of Southport, that dismal November day.

Dick Spaulding hurrying up Main Street to the comfort of his room in Mrs. Banks' "boarding and mealing house," turned up his coat collar and, holding his umbrella closely down, growled to himself "beastly weather."

At the same time, Prudence Fortune, freed from her daily task at the "General Electric" made her way rapidly down Main Street, to the 'rooms' in the Maritime Block, where she and her chum, Verna Elliot did light housekeeping—especially LIGHT—and shared their speck of home in amiable content.

Prue had a mental vision of that cosy retreat as she hastened along, keeping to the left, in flagrant disregard of traffic regulations. Passers-by, seeing the forlorn little figure, swerved obligingly out of her way. Not so Dick Spaulding; he was doing mental arithmetic, and going full speed ahead,—so it happened, just as a dapper little old gentleman emerged from Jameson's corner Drug Store, and stood turning up his coat collar, Dick Spaulding's umbrella came into violent collision with a smaller one.

"What in thunder!" he exclaimed, then raising his umbrella above the other, he encountered a pair of stormy hazel eyes, and a small voice said in an aggrieved tone, "Oh, dear, you nearly knocked me down."

"Er—oh, pardon me, I'm sorry," he said.

But Prue was in a combatitive mood, unlike her usual sunny self; a mistake, made by another, had been attributed to her, accompanied by an unmerited rebuke, and she had been fighting back the tears,—now she petulantly added, "its very annoying."

Dick's quizzical brown eyes narrowed, and he suggested lamely, "Well—uh—er—you were on the wrong side you see."

Prue's eyes filled as she faltered: "It was more sheltered." Then, seeing more earnest apologies were forthcoming, she swerved adroitly to the right and proceeded down street, walking very fast, with her head held high, and, as Dick looked back, he saw she was walking at the extreme edge of the side walk.

He laughed, shrugged his shoulders, and considered the incident closed, but as he entered his bachelor quarters, he murmured to himself: "Poor child, she had no raincoat, and she looked worried." Then he laughed at himself, and making himself comfortable, proceeded to read "The Times."

Dick's room contained one luxury, a little old-fashioned fireplace, and by dint of buying a share of the fuel, he was able to have a fire on chilly evenings. The one window looked out on a depressing scene, for a "washboard artist" held sway there, and endless lines of clothes hung there, either in limp and dejected unloveliness, or wildly flapping in the wind, many of them a discouraging color from repeated washings by the none too careful "artist" whose shrill voice and untidy appearance "got on his nerves," until one day Dick had declared to his pal, Phil Stanbury, "when I marry and own a home, no one is going to be hanging distress signals all over my back yard, but neat parcels will come in from the laundry tied with red and green string."

Then he had rattled the coins in his pocket, and said whimsically to himself: "Not this year, my boy."

On this particular evening, after Dick had coaxed his fire to burn brightly, he tried again to fix his attention upon "The Times," but a pair of hazel eyes seemed to look at him from the page, and calling himself an absurd jackdaw, he opened his door and called to his pal, "Phil, come on across, got a fire."

The door opposite opened as if automatically, and with three strides, big Phil Stanbury was in Dick's room, spreading out his hands to the cheerful blaze. "My!" he exclaimed: "What a cinch to be a plute like you Dick, and have all this superluxuriousness."

Later, at the supper table, a new boarder sat among them—the little old gentleman who had witnessed 'the collision' at Jameson's corner. He seemed particularly interested in Dick, then in Phil also, and chuckled in amusement over their good humored railery and nonsense as the meal progressed.

A few days later Dick again met "Hazel Eyes," under different circumstances. As he was about to pass Linden Street corner, a tiny child stood there crying pitifully. He paused helplessly wondering what ought to be done, when a little lady swooped down, and taking the child by both hands, asked in a clear sweet voice: "What's the matter, dear Morsel?"

"I runned away, and Ise losted, I is," quavered the child with a fresh outburst of tears, then added "an' I can't find my Mummie."

Prue, for she it was, swept the mite into her arms and wiped her tears away as she exclaimed in cheery tones, "Well, well! We'll just find Mummie, so don't cry any more, and if we don't find her right away I'll take you home with me. I'm going to make puffy little biscuits and a scallop for supper."

"Pardon me," said Dick, lifting his hat, "but if you'll take her into Barrington's store, I'll scout around and see if I can find a lost mother who might belong——"

Prue looked up hastily and both started in surprised recognition, and Dick flushed with pleasure at again meeting "Hazel Eyes."

As Prue turned into the store with the child, Dick suggested—"Pardon me, but do you suppose the er——baby could tell you her name?"

"Oh, yes, surely," answered Prue hastily. "Tell me your name dear, what do they call you at home?"

"Mummie calls me Honey Bunch, Dadda calls me his little Sugar Plum, Buddie calls me Nu sance, and Denny calls me Pet, glibly, though gravely, answered the little one.

"Which makes it all very clear, grinned Dick, plums and honey—H m! Well, here goes it, and touching his hat, he disappeared.

His 'scouting around was so successful that he shortly returned with a disheveled little woman, who rushed into Barrington s store in a half hysterical condition, and caught the child to her, "Oh, my darling little Honey Bunch, she exclaimed.

The child, her terror past, with the fickleness of babyhood, brimmed with a new interest. "I wants to go to suppie wis her, pointing to Prue, "she s going to have fuffy bixits and ca collap for suppie, and she says I can have some.

After much persuasion the little one was induced to return home to see if her dadda might be wanting his little Sugar Plum, and Dick and Prue set out in opposite directions, but as he walked along, Dick smilingly confessed to himself, he too, like "Honey Bunch, could not have scorned an invitation to partake of the "fuffy bixits and a lawp.

During the following days Dick was haunted by thoughts of "Hazel Eyes," and on stormy days he wished that vague little lady possessed a raincoat.

A week later Dick and Phil entered the "Empress" together to see "Penrod and Sam." Selecting a good seat, they gave themselves up to enjoyment. At this point two young ladies entered, and were seated directly in front of Dick and his pal. As they removed their hats, Dick recognized "Hazel Eyes," and, unable to resist the impulse, he leaned forward and asked in a low tone, "Pardon me, but have you heard any tidings since, of 'Honey Bunch'?"

Prue, in startled surprise, answered: "No, they will probably guard her more closely now." Then she abruptly turned her back and did not even glance behind again.

Phil's curiosity was all agog—"Friend of yours, Dick?" he queried in a subdued tone.

"H'm, well, well! I am almost certain I heard you call her Honey Bunch, and after meeting only twice—well, it simply isn't done!"

"You big lobster, go to a good doctor and have your ears fixed. I was making enquiries regarding a mutual acquaintance of ours, by that delectable name, a lady of very tender years."

On leaving the "Empress," Verna demanded of Prue: "Who was that fine looking young man who spoke to you?" then commented, "you never told me you had any such acquaintance."

Prue laughingly answered: "We met twice, but under such unusual circumstances that we both spoke without an introduction—now looked shocked."

"No, I'll not, for you are as careful of the proprieties as I am," answered Verna, "but tell me the very first word he said to you," wheedled Verna.

Prue's eyes twinkled: "He said 'what in thunder'!" answered Prue, and she regaled her chum with a lively account of the collision, and of the lost baby.

One cool, crisp evening, on his way homeward, Dick suddenly turned aside impulsively, and made his way to a new cafe on Douglas Avenue. "Its hash night at Mrs. Banks', he murmured to himself, "and I loathe hash—everybody's scraps."

Entering the Cafe he found the tables were all taken except one in a far corner, which was set for two. One lone figure sat there intently studying the menu, and Dick instantly recognized "Hazel Eyes."

"Will I intrude if I sit here?" Dick hesitatingly asked. Recognizing his voice even before she had lifted her eyes to his face, she politely answered: "Oh, not at all," and again gave her attention to the menu.

Dick was master of the situation; he smiled engagingly as he leaned on his elbow, and addressed her boyishly. "Oh, say, four encounters equal one orthodox introduction, don't they?"

"Not where I went to school," she answered, but as she met Dick's steady eyes, and noted his refined gentlemanly manner, a smile of amusement flashed across the dainty oval face, and Dick urged—"You see we are going to eat, and it gives me indigestion to eat in silence, and"—fumbling in his pockets, "I don't carry my cards around with me, er—oh bosh! I never have any, what's the use? Look," he added eagerly, "I'll just tell you straight, I'm white, but poor as Job's turkey. My name is Dick Spaulding, bookkeeper at Dunfield and Dixon's, and, although they couldn't get along without me, yet they forget to boost my wages, so you see I'm no near rich guy who might try to ingratiate myself with you and then turn out to be a rascal."

Seeing her look of indecision he said: "Let me tell you my life's history while the waiter is planning what he will do to morrow. My father makes sausages, millions of 'em, and I hated the whole slithery mess, and after Mother died, I ran away; not a romantic or novel running away, where I slept in empty boxes and sold papers, till of a sudden I saved somebody's life from drowning, or snatched a child of wealthy parents from right under a horse's feet, and got rich and famous over night.

"You see," he continued, "they don't fail in the water when I'm around, and the kids don't ever throw themselves under the horses feet when I'm in sight, and no millionaire has taken a shine to my genius; perhaps it don't show," and he passed his hand thoughtfully over his really fine brow. "But," he added, "I got a job as errand boy at Dunfield and Dixon's; I went to night school and waded into bookkeeping, and now I've grown right in there solid, seventeenthly, I honor good women. My mother was GRAND, and, although I'm no prophet, I know you are in my mother's class."

"I only have one desire," she answered, "and that is to do what is right, and—and I do believe you."

A look of pleasure lighted up Dick's handsome face as he extended his slim brown hand across the table—"meet Dick Spaulding, Miss er—er——"

"Prudence Fortune," she prompted.

"What?" he exclaimed delightedly, I have been looking for a fortune all my life, and now to meet one face to face." They shook hands gravely, then laughed like two children.

"Say," he asked cheerily, "what are we going to eat, if we ever eat? Can you afford any of those things?" running his finger down several items on the menu.

"Mercy, no!" she laughed; "Verna, my chum is away today and I hated to get supper all alone, so came in here to see what their eats were like. Um-m," she murmured—"there's hash, that's cheap and nutritious——"

"Er, uh, well—o' say," confided Dick, "I ran away from hash tonight. You're doubtful about it you know."

Prudence wickedly suggested sausages, and Dick brazenly made faces at her, then assured her he wanted "Fuffy bixits, and some collap."

"Too commonplace," she said severely. "And, anyway she said airily, "you needn't think you are the on, one who ran away from home."

"You don't mean you did?" he queried.

"Uh-huh! I just did, only not from sausages, but a step-mother. I knew Verna Elliot, and I came here to her, and I manage to support myself; without luxuries, of course," she said, "and I am content."

"Pardon me, but what is the little badge?" Dick asked.

"Oh, that is a secret society Verna and I belong to, just we two; you see it was this way—we went, two years ago last summer, to see the decoration of the soldiers' graves, and when the people had all gone away, Verna and I stayed. I simply cannot describe to you the restful stillness and peace of that quiet place. There we agreed that Canada needed each one's best, and there in that beautiful hush we resolved to make our lives four square. We had quite a little ceremony over it, and it means as much today as it did then," and she smiled as she fingered the quaint little badge.

"Well," she gravely answered, "it meant first of all to be Christians, no death bed spasms for us, nor trying to squeeze by Saint Peter with an "excuse me please." We joined the church of our choice. We attend the Sunday service and the mid-week service. That is the first side of the square. We read aloud one evening each week, by turns, while we do our medning—that's the intellectual side of the square, although it does not sound half as nice as it is. We go to a good picture or entertainment one evening, preferably to something very funny. That's the social side of the square—we put on our best and make a real occasion of it. Then we go to the gymnasium one evening, so we won't get slump shouldered or lop-sided. That finishes the square."

"Fine," exclaimed Dick—"you might be called the—the——"

"Oh, we have a name, only it's a secret. We call ourselves 'Daughters of the Empire.' You see we haven't time or means to join the real I.O.D.E. but we love our Empire, and have pledged ourselves to do our very best in our little corner."

Your experience reminds me of the night before I left home, said Dick, in husky tones. I stole out the back door and trudged alone to my mother's grave. It seemed all I had to say goodbye to, and, as I stood there in the moonlight, it seemed to me she was near and could hear me. I took off my ragged old cap, and because I wanted so much to take her hand in mine—I caught hold of a branch of a tree that hung over her grave, and I said aloud: "I am going away Mother, and I'll be what you wanted me to be," then I said goodbye to her, and kissed the little branch."

Prue wiped her eyes and questioned: "What did she want you to be?"

"A Christian," answered Dick quietly, "and when I fell in with Phil he showed me how, and afterward we joined the very church of which you girls are members. Of course we are not pillars of the church, but we are not going to be moss on the posts either."

During that winter Prue and Dick became staunch friends, and through them Verna and Phil became acquainted, big Phil declaring privately to Dick, "I like Miss Verna even better than a fortune." "Stck to it old boy. and I'll be satisfied," laughed Dick.

As time passed the four became inseparable and confidential friends, calling themselves "The Wealthy Quartet." The days flowed on, busy days with unremitting tasks; Winter lost its grip and the air held tints of the welcome Spring.

CHAPTER II.

Adolphe Raynor, a retired detective, in near old age found himself rich and lonely, restless and discontented. Then one day he had listened to a powerful address on the subject of 'helpfulness,' and he had gone home muttering to himself: "There's your chance now, 'Dolph, HELP somebody."

Mr. Raynor was an eccentric little old man, and nothing suited him half so well as to study characters and unravel mysteries. Promising himself a new diversion, he set out to find worthy people to help. He had arrived in Southport that miserable November evening on which our story began; he had scuttled into Jameson's to make some enquiries, and on leaving the store, had witnessed the collision of umbrellas, and taking a liking to Dick's clean cut face with the quizzical brown eyes, he had followed him to Mrs. Banks' boarding house where he secured a room and set about studying Dick, noting his square shoulders and vigorous physique with approval. He no sooner became deeply interested in Dick than Phill loomed upon his horizon, nad caught his fancy also.

Using his own methods he soon found where they were employed, and many other items of interest to himself.

One day he made himself up in a brown wig, side whiskers and sundry other touches. He presented himself to the young men in Dick's room, about supper time, in the guise of an agent, and apparently sought to sell them a new and highly improved Encyclopedia, and by dint of his own persistent efforts, succeeded in learning the state of their finances, the amount of their wages, and many other points he wished to know.

From that interview he retired in seeming disappointment, but as soon as he had closed the door, he chuckled in satisfaction "good stuff, both of 'em," he whispered to himself.

The young men also chuckled, behind the closed door: "Jolly old fellow," said Dick, "but say, couldn't he hang on. I really hoped you might get an Encyclopedia and broaden your mind a little."

Phil grinned, and declared: "If my mind broadened any more it would be so flat it would break in the middle."

"And couldn't he draw the family history out of a fellow. I am sure if I had murdered my Aunt's cousin's sister's son, he'd had me telling it. He'd make a good detective," said Dick.

"Say, Dick," suddenly exclaimed Phil, "do you suppose he's hard up, perhaps having a closer squeak than we are. He was pretty well frayed at the edges. Why didn't we stake him to a feed at the new 'Cafe'?"

"Well, we ARE slow," agreed Dick, "but let's race after him and broaden his diet list—actually, he did look gaunt."

In a twinkling the young men were in hot pursuit, and soon overtook him walking placidly down Main Street, apparently in high spirits. In boyish embarrassment Dick profered the invitation, which was promptly accepted, and the little old man seemed to thoroughly enjoy the substantial meal the young men ordered. At the close of the meal he assured them he had never enjoyed a meal more, but they waved his thanks aside and said goodnight, never dreaming they had been sitting daily with him at Mrs. Banks' table.

As Mr. Raynor later removed his wig, his dark glasses and side whiskers, he communed with himself thus: "H'm, first meal I ever had given me out of clear, clean charity, and though I've been feasted in forty different ways, this meal beats 'em all, and——" his voice trailed into quotation—"if a man have not charity, it profiteth him nothing'."

That night Mr. Raynor said goodbye to Mrs. Banks for a few days, and when he arrived in his own home he immediately wrote the detective agency with which he had been associated, asking them to send a nice quiet motherly woman to Southport to find if one Prudence Fortune, and a certain Verna Elliot were deserving girls, and to gather any facts of importance regarding them. Mr. Raynor stated his object was to assist them if they proved worthy.

Thus it came about that one evening Prue answered a knock at the door, and ushered into the room a sweet faced little lady with silvery hair, who assured them she knew not where to look for a room for a few days. She seemed exceedingly weary and the girls promptly took her into their hearts, and insisted she should stay with them, occupying Prue's room, while the two girls would share Verna's room. A cosy living room and a tiny kitchen completed what the girls delighted to call "our suite of rooms."

The kindness quite overcame "Mrs. Smith,' as she gave her name, and she accepted their invitation with gratitude, and settled down to study the girls. She said little of herself, stating she had business in Southport, and would be detained a little until the business was finished.

Mrs. Smith showed a genuine interest in the two girls, making herself acquainted with their various interests, and after a week of intimacy, pronounced judgment in a crisp letter to Mr. Raynor, wherein she stated "The girls are the finest type of womanly girls I have ever met, two rare specimens in these days. I shall now test them in quartet." As she was about to sign the letter, she paused, smiled, then signed the name—"Mrs. John Smith," whispering to herself, "it is surely no harm to call myself that, there's hundreds of them."

That evening she invited the girls t call her Aunt Dulcie, to which they delightedly agreed. Then the little lady said "I have heard you speak of 'Dick' and 'Phil,' bring them in, I would like to see them, and I will chaperone you."

The girls clapped their hands, and said, "Oh, Aunt Dulcie, it's almost like having a mother again."

The young men came, not once only, but often, and showed the utmost deference and admiration for the little old lady who made this pleasure possible.

A second letter to Mr. Raynor stated "My work here is finished, the quartet are grand. If the earth were peopled with the same type, we might look for golden days."

That evening she stated to the girls that her business was finished, and she would be leaving in the morning. The girls heard this with dismay and lovingly urged her to stay. "You have just mothered us, Aunt Dulcie," said Prue, and Verna shyly suggested, "If it would help any Aunt Dulcie, I am sure I could get you some light sewing to do——"

Aunt Dulcie expierenced a perfectly new sensation, and a mist swam before her eyes. She thought of her elegant home, where low voiced servants executed her slightest wish, and she looked yearningly at the two fair sweet faces before her, and brokenly thanked them, assuring them she had some means, and before she realized it herself, she had agreed to stay a little longer.

There came a rainy day, and Aunt Dulcie's anxious eyes followed Prue as she sallied forth. "The child needs a raincoat," she said to herself, "and I must get her one and give it somehow."

Soon after Aunt Dulcie's letter had reached Mr. Raynor, he made his appearance at Mrs. Banks' where, in the privacy of his room, he said to himself: "I'll try 'em out on $35.00 each and see what sense they show in the use of it, and I'll give that Prudence girl one other gift too."

The next day each of the quartet received a letter containing $35.00, with the assurance it was from an old friend; it was clean money, and they were to keep quiet about it.

The young people spent the balance of the morning in dazed wonderment, and each one, with the exception of Phil, carried home a parcel at supper time.

The day had threatened rain and Aunt Dulcie had fared forth and bought Prue a raincoat to present to her at night.

Prue and Verna met, carrying their parcels, and hurried home together, where they found two parcels at their door, both addressed to Miss Prudence Fortune.

Aunt Dulcie said: "You have been shopping, please don't open one parcel till after supper, then I have a parcel to open first—a gift for Prue and if she makes any fuss over receiving it, I'll not be Aunt Dulcie any more."

Prue laughingly agreed to accept anything rather than to lose an Aunt.

After supper, the dishes were soon disposed of, and Aunt Dulcie opened her parcel and held up a heavy raincoat. Prue looked amazed, Verna aghast—"Why, Aunt Dulcie" said Prue, "isn't it funny, I got myself a raincoat today—I got—I had—I mean I received some money I didn't expect and I got one, but," as she unwrapped it, she said, "I like yours so much better, I'll return mine, and thank you, dear Aunt Dulcie." Then, turning to Verna, she said, "your turn now dear, you had a parcel."

Verna seemed suddenly bereft of speech. She leaned against the wall as if for support, and said hysterically, "I got you a raincoat Prue, you've needed one and I—I received some money too, today, right out of a clear sky and I hoped you'd accept this from me." As she spoke she had unwrapped and held up to view a fawn raincoat.

Prue looked wildly at Verna, and, pointing to the two other parcels, weakly asked: "What's in those?" Then, snatching up one on which she reco....

HOLIDAY FROM MARRIAGE AGREED

Capt. Charles Nungesser, famous French ace, and his wife, formerly Consuelo Hatmaker, daughter of the New York millionaire, have agreed on a "holiday from marriage." Though married two years, they soon found they had wide differences in tastes. He refuses to live on her millions, preferring to work in the shop, testing plane motors, wings, wind resistance, etc. She was wrapped up in social life. They claim it is to be a trial separation with no thought of a divorce.

To The Electors of Peterboro West Riding

PREMIER KING has attracted to the public life of the country many Canadians of ability, character and ideals. Prominent among these is the Liberal candidate in our own riding.

We are paying this unsolicited tribute to Mr. Gordon because in him we have a standard-bearer of whom we are proud—one who at Ottawa has been a credit to West Peterborough, who has represented and expressed what is best in the city, and has understood and promoted its highest interests.

Mr. Gordon has brought to his public duties the qualities which have won him success and esteem in private life. His business experience tended to his parliamentary success. He has gone on from height to height, winning by his ability.

He has clear, definite views on the tariff. He is not a free trader, as his opponents say. He knows Canada must have a tariff that imposes sufficient duties. But he is dead set against profiteers. He believes the high tariff now advocated by Mr. Meighen, against his own judgment when he was in office, would be disastrous both to Canadian industry and Canadian unity. He is convinced that moderation is necessary in this matter, but he does not regard the present tariff as a scientific one—for that reason he approves the Premier's proposal for an Advisory Board which would consider the relation of each tariff item to other items with a view to safeguarding every producing interest worthy of protection without injustice to other producing interests or to the body of consumers.

Of Mr. Gordon's advancement as Peterborough's representative there is no need to tell, since it is well known. He has represented Peterborough so well that cognizance of this riding has been taken in Cabinet appointments for the first time in history, and Mr. Gordon is a Minister in the Government. As such he has a direct voice in the Government, and is in a position to do still more effective work for the riding he represents, and for Canada as a whole

It will be in your best interests, we believe, to

RE-ELECT GORDON

(Signed) West Peterborough Liberal Association,

J. J. Hartley, President.

Think This Over

Mr. Peck has not offered one constructive thought throughout his campaign.

His publicity bureau has pecked here and pecked there at trivial things, such as when Mr. Gordon referred to Premier Dunning as "My Colleague in the Cabinet," instead of as "My future colleague."

The publicity writer seized on that slip of the tongue as worthy of attack, but did not attempt to explain:

The fact that there are 121,841 more people employed in industries in Canada than under Mr. Meighen.

The change of heart in Mr. Meighen from when he said Canada can never have a high tariff, to his demand for a high tariff wall as high as United States.

The attack by Mr. Peck on the Australian Treaty, symbolic of Canada's extending markets and increasing trade within the Empire.

The prosperity indicated by reports in the Financial Post Survey in view of the blue ruin talk indulged by Mr. Peck.

IN FACT

Mr. Peck's publicity bureau answers nothing, explains nothing, apologizes for nothing. It has presented no facts, no great ideals, no new ideas. It has harped on the one string until the people are tired. It gives the electors no credit for having common sense, but expects them to believe, without proof, all that it serves up in its daily menu.

CONTRAST WITH THIS the frank, open, statements of the Liberal publicity. For two weeks there have appeared daily facts showing that the Liberal party has been successful in bringing prosperity to Canada. THE FACTS WERE GIVEN AND WERE NOT CHALLENGED. MR. PECK COULD NOT MEET THEM. HIS PUBLICITY BUREAU COULD FIND NOTHING TO COMBAT THEM.

It is enough. Mr. Peck and all his helpers cannot find ONE SINGLE CONCRETE FACT TO BOLSTER UP THEIR WILD CLAIMS. Either they are very dull or THEY HAVE NO CASE.

In either event Mr. Peck has no good reason for getting your support.

VOTE FOR G. N. GORDON — HE HAS THE GOODS.

THE HALL STORE

October 28th, 1925.

Dear People of Peterborough:

I am not a politician in any sense of the word, nor do I wish to enter the political arena, but our name having been brought to your attention in the press and on the platform, I simply wish to put before you a statement of facts.

Our store opens at 8.30; it closes its doors at 5.30. Our girls and men have one hour for lunch, except those who have to go such a distance that this is impossible.

The hours and conditions of employment in the Hall Store will stand comparison with those in force in stores of a similar character throughout Canada.

I note with some pride that we are called "One of Peterborough's Finest Departmental Stores," and hope that some day we may make ourselves worthy the title.

At present we are busy bringing life into a dead organization, and the slight change in the store hours was made because I thought it a wise move in the interest of efficiency and economy whilst working with our somewhat short selling staff.

Not in any instance has a salary been reduced; in several cases increases have been granted.

You who know the history of the decline of the Hall Store do not need to be told that we have a difficult task to perform in bringing the business back to a paying basis, and I feel that our late member's unjust statements were—well, to say the least—a bit unkind.

However, in spite of all our troubles, we're going to take heart from that bit of praise—that we're "One of Peterborough's Finest Department Stores"—and in less that twelve months, with your help, we are really going to deserve the title.

I thank you for the attention many of you have already paid us, and I hope, in spite of this little unpleasantness, we may still have the pleasure of your visits from time to time, and remain,

Your truly,

CHARLIE SAUNDERS.
Manager of the Hall Store.

MANY COMPETITORS IN PLOWING MATCH

Annual Hastings County Meet Was Held Near Stirling.

STIRLING, Oct. 27.—The third annual ploughing match of the Hasting's Ploughman's Association was held on the farm of Mr. Earl Morrow, about 1½ miles south of the village on the Frankford road, on Friday, Oct. 23. The weather being favorable, there were a great many farmers and others present to observe the work of the 22 competitors in the different classes, and Mr. Fisher of Agincourt was the judge. There were 19 teams and three tractors engaged in the competition, coming from Deseronto, Shannonville and Latta on the east; Frankford and Belleville to the south; Tweed, Bonar Law and Harold to the north; also from Stirling, Holloway and Anson.

The work was done in a superior manner, showing that those engaged at it were not beginners.

Class 2.—In sod, walking plough, single furrow, open to sod plows).—1st, C. Ketcheson, Holloway, $10; 2nd, H. Claus, Deseronto, $8; 3rd, R. Bunnet Holloway, $6.

Class 3—(In sod, walking ploughs, single furrow, sod plows barred).—1st, J. Francis, Desoronto, $10; 2nd, Jas. Anderson, Frankford, $8; 3rd, N. Maracle, Shannonville, $6; 4th, Chas. McCaw, Stirling, $4.

Class 6—(In sod, single furrow sulky pdoughs, open).—1st, Arthur Scott, Stirling, $10; 2nd, C. Ketcheson, Holloway, $8.

Class7—(Open to tractors and ploughs, any make).—1st, A. V. Irish, Belleville, pulley or governors by Belleville Motors, Ltd., for Fordson tractor, value $35; 2nd, A. Weaver, Stirling, $10 worth of oil, by British American Oil Co., Belleville.

The award of the other specials were: C. Hodgins of Latta won the Thurlow Township prize of $5 for the best ploughman under 21 years of age.

Best turnout — Jas. Anderson, Frankford.

Best crown—W. A. Johns.

Best finish—Sam. Wallace.

Best ploughed land—W. A. Johns.

The Hannah Cup—R. Coombs.

The Cooke Cup—C. Ketcheson.

The John Elliott Cup—M. Mallory.

Those who did not win prizes this year are determined to do better next year, and it would behoove the winners of 1925 to look well to their laurels, as the boys having put their hands to the plough are not going to look back until they have secured some of the valuable cups and other prizes which will be offered in 1926.

Many of the representative men of the county were present, and the opinion was that events like this are worth while, and that all those interested in agriculture should take a part in making them a success.

Speaking of Mr. Meighen and his government, Mr. Burnham said at Chemong on July 16, 1920:

"THE GOVERNMENT AT OTTAWA IS AS BAD AS YOUR ROADS."

The Chemong road has been patched up since, and so have Mr. Meighen's policies.

W. H. Bradburn, M.P.P., said in July, "The Chemong road was worse than ever."

SO ARE MR. MEIGHEN AND HIS POLICIES.

GORDON'S ANSWER:

He throws back challenge in the teeth of his false accusers and denies their right to question his good faith. Manufacturers of Peterborough tell of good work done in their behalf by West Peterborough member---Criticism of Big Interests' Publicity Bureau Riddled by Facts

Profiteers were thrown out with the Meighen government--"Resolution" from the City Council was circular from Big Interests--"Are the people to be fleeced with impunity?" he asks.

¶Gordon has no apology to offer for his service in Parliament. He gave Peterborough good representation and worked for the advancement of the Riding and of Canada. No specific charge is made to the contrary in the blasts that have issued from Mr. Peck's publicity bureau. The propagandists assert that he failed to accomplish all he essayed to do, which is true, and that he neglected the fulfilment of certain promises, which is untrue. G. N. Gordon kept faith with the people of West Peterborough.

¶Up until last night there was not one thing asserted openly by his opponents to which Mr. Gordon could reply. As in everything else, Mr. Peck adhered in his attacks to generalities. He refused to be specific in facts, reasons, or allegations. He has a bad case, and he knows it. He has poor witnesses on his side, so he attempts to discredit the opposing witnesses. He is adopting the character of the brow-beating counsel for whom he expresses so much contempt in legal practice.

¶But yesterday, practically on the eve of the election, he allowed his Bureau to name several charges. Mr. Gordon pleads guilty to the allegation that he failed to do everything he attempted—the man has not yet been born who carried all his plans to fruition. But he brands as false the charge that he did not try — that he broke faith with the people he represented.

¶And he denounces as unpatriotic and unfair the attack made by Mr. Peck upon Canada, holding her up to ridicule before the nations.

¶The letters that flank this article are sufficient answer to the statement that Mr. Gordon injured the manufacturers of Peterborough, and that he failed in his mission at Ottawa. They are an all-powerful recommendation of Peterborough's member and a commendation of his worth and ability and willingness to serve his constituency. Was Mr. Peck as energetic during his term in the Provincial House ten years ago? Or was he a back-bencher whose voice was never heard in debate, whose hand was never raised in behalf of Peterborough, whose work was so meagre and colorless that his own party convention refused his candidature after four years of inactivity?

¶The statement that Mr. Gordon failed to root out the profiteers is ill-advised, since it recalls the drastic rooting out by the enlightened Canadian people in 1921, when Meighen and his Big Interest profiteering backers were ousted by a Government of the people. Mr. Gordon and the Government he represents threw out the profiteers, and to-day they are determined to keep the profiteers from getting back in.

¶The charge that Mr. Gordon ignored a resolution from the City Council is also unfortunate. That resolution was a hand-out from the Big Interests, sent to Peterborough City Council and others for signatures. It was not framed here nor conceived here, nor was it prepared to preserve Peterborough industries. It was a preliminary blast from the Big Interests, and the City Council in its wisdom saw fit to ratify it and send it to Mr. Gordon. That's all.

¶Mr. Gordon did not tell the people of West Peterborough he had been permanently appointed to the Ministry of Immigration. He administered the portfolio —and is to-day administering the portfolio — to the best of his ability pending the election. His plan to make use of the waste places in this riding and throughout Ontario was no electioneering roustabout, but one case is to-day actually in process of settlement. The scheme was proposed and arranged under a Tory administration; Mr. Gordon's energy merely started to put it into effect. If it is a wildcat scheme—consult Mr. Meighen, whose Government brought it in.

¶As to the declaration that he is a free trader, Mr. Gordon is surprised that Mr. Peck should resurrect so hoary an election dodge, as inaccurate as it is fruitless. Free trade is not an issue in this election any more than the culture of bananas at the North Pole. Mr. Gordon and Mr. King do not believe in Free Trade, as has been often repeated and proved. But they are dead set against the Interests for which Mr. Peck is fighting, and their grasping, greedy ways that would tax the people of Peterborough for all they eat and wear and for the very warmth they must have. The chimney corner is no more safe in the hands of Meighen than the baby's crust—he has pledged his word to tax them all.

¶That is where Gordon stands, four-square for the people. Champions of the people's rights have always been attacked by the Big Interests and the more they tramp the toes of the profiteers the more bitter are the onslaughts upon them. Gordon must have wrought havoc in the ranks of the men who would increase their profits from the working man's earnings, for they are leading the attack in Toronto and Ottawa and Montreal as well as here in Peterborough.

WEDDING BELLS.

MOORE—WASSON

(Contributed.)

An interesting event took place when Mr. John S. Moore, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Moore, Warsaw, Ont., and Miss Alice Margaret Wasson, R.N., daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Wasson, Peterborough, Ont., were quietly married at Orilla, Ont., Wednesday, Oct. 21, 1925, at 5 p.m. Rev. J. G. Robeson, uncle of the bride, read the wedding ceremony in a happy and impressive manner. To the strains of Lohengrin's Bridal Chorus, sweetly rendered as a piano solo by Miss Margaret Robeson, cousin of the bride, the bridal party entered the room, the groom preceding a brief space to await his bride, who was presented by her father. After the ceremony and required registrations, a wedding dinner was served by the hostess, Mrs. J. G. Robeson. The bride's wedding gown was of dainty poudre blue georgette, with gold lace trimming, while for travelling she wore an ensemble suit of rust shade, and a pretty black velvet hat, and shoes to match. The following day Mr. and Mrs. Moore returned to Peterboro by motor, where a reception was tendered at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Wasson, 533 Rogers Street.

Mr. and Mrs. Moore will reside for the present at 194 Reid Street, Peterboro. A host of friends wish them much happiness and prosperity.

Hexteton, said to have all the properties of camphor with two or three times its strength, is a new German synthetic product. It is described as a clear, stable and sterile liquid, of a characteristic odor and bitter taste, and is expected to prove medicinally valuable. The claim is made that it can be manufactured at a mere fraction of the cost of the natural camphor.

THE CHAMELON

Style! The very breath of life to her, particularly when she knows the chosen of her heart and Dan Cupid are her admirers. And she makes of herself a human chameleon. A dress to match every mood. Even her hair must conform. One time she is serious, then a plain, straight dress, with her hair brushed smoothly around her daintily poised head. Then a sudden change to Miss Fluffy Ruffles, with every last blonde tress curled and fluffed around her adorable little face. And her disposition matches, too. Serious, then gay; April, then June; Winter, then Summer. And it's hard to say just when she's most adorable. But always, ever, she's wonderful to her audience, for Love prompts the moods, and whatever Love does is always right.

A FASHION MODEL'S DIARY

By Grace Thorncliffe

SHE CHATS ABOUT A YOUTHFUL DAYTIME FROCK.

Madame has so many clients among the very youthful debutantes that she has designed a number of special frocks for them this season.

In fact, the frocks are so crisp and young, that many clients who are past the debutante stage show a decided interest in the models. But Madame is very particular about letting the right person get the right frock, and unless the youthful air suits them, she advises something else, in such a subtle way that the client thinks the choice is her own.

"How do you handle your clients so deftly?" I once asked Madame. "It truly is a gift to be able to do that."

"My dear, it's simply years of experience," Madame assured me.

Then she said:

"Won't you please put on the new black kasha, the one with the bolero?"

I was delighted to comply with the request, for I have developed a strong liking for black this season, and I wanted to see how I'd look in a smart black frock.

The model in question was kasha, which I think is the loveliest, softest material one can possibly have for a frock.

The dress was in three pieces. First there was the cream net and lace vestee, with a line of black kasha up the front, dotted with cream pearl buttons. The trim skirt fastens to this about the hips, but gives the effect of being in one with the blouse.

"I believe in making frocks so they can be easily cleaned," Madame remarked. "That is, especially, if the making them in a practical manner does not interfere at all with the effectiveness of the garment."

The blouse section was cream net, the back plain and the front marked by rows and rows of lace ruffles. The same finished the lower parts of the puff sleeves.

Madame held the bolero jacket for me to slip into. It was such a smart one, with shorter sloping sleeves which allowed the net puffs to show beneath.

"The youngest debutante could wear a black frock any time, if it had cream net to make it youthful," Madame remarked, as she regarded the smart frock in a well-pleased manner.

ADVICE TO GIRLS

By Annie Laurie

DEAR ANNIE LAURIE:

I have been going with a young man for several months. Some time ago he kissed me. He seemed very sorry afterward and promised not to do it again unless I gave him permission.

The other evening he kissed me again. I like him very much and would not like to discontinue our friendship, but I want to do what is right. Please give me your advice. IN DOUBT.

IN DOUBT: Perhaps there was something you did which encouraged the young man, my dear. If there was not, he owes you an apology. If it is forthcoming, make him promise to respect your views in this direction—and hold to them rigidly. In all probability he will not repeat the offense if he wants to continue your friendship.

DEAR ANNIE LAURIE:

I am a girl in my teens. I like a young man about my age, but he won't pay any attention to me. How can I attract him? BROWN EYES.

BROWN EYES: If you feel that you have tastes and interests in common with this young man, then your friendship with him is almost assured. I suggest that you invite him to call on you some evening. Spend the evening discussing the things which interest both of you and wait for developments."

IN THE KITCHEN

NEW RECIPES BETWEEN TWO CRUSTS

There are many substantial pies that make one-dish dinners a pleasing possibility and an economy in home catering. A good short crust is better for the substantial pies than puff paste, and bread flour is better than pastry flour.

Beefsteak Pie.

Take the left-over steak and cut into small pieces enough to make two or more cupfuls. Make a cupful and half of brown gravy from stock in the usual way, or open a small can of tomato soup and use it for the foundation of a sauce, adding the seasoning liked and the thickening needed. When the sauce is made, put the meat into it with a grated onion, a tablespoonful of chopped celery and a teaspoonful of chopped parsley. Cool slightly, then fill the deep crust-lined dish and cover the top with white potatoes cut in eighth of an inch thick slices. Then add a dusting of pepper, salt, a teaspoonful of sugar, and cover with the top crust. Leave vents in the crust for the steam to pass off. Bake until the crust is brown, from a half to three-quarters of an hour. Serve hot with one vegetable, bread and butter and a relish.

Fish Pie.

Take the cold fish left from boiling and flake it fine, removing all of the skin and bones. To two cupfuls and a half add a cupful and a half of good drawn butter, well seasoned, and to which has been added a tablespoonful of well-washed capers. Open a small can of shrimp, drain and pick them over carefully, then break them in pieces with a silver fork and add them to the sauce. Fill a deep crust-lined pie dish with the fish mixture, cover the top with little potato balls cut with a cutter and dusted with pepper and salt. Then add the top crust, leaving the usual vents in it. Bake until the crust is thoroughly done and a delicate brown. Serve peas or string beans and a good relish with the pie.

Vegetable Pie.

Cook several different kinds of fresh vegetables until tender. When done and cold dice the large vegetables. Make two cupfuls of rich and well seasoned cream sauce and add the vegetables to it. Cool, then turn into a crust-lined deep dish. Sprinkle with a little grated cheese, cover with the top crust and bake until the crust is done.

Lobster Newburg Pie.

Prepare one large or two smaller freshly boiled lobsters by cutting the meat up in small pieces. Make a good Newburg sauce. The simplest way to make the sauce is to melt a heaping tablespoonful of butter in a small saucepan, and when melted stir in a level tablespoonful of flour and cook a couple of minutes. Then add a cupful of cream, stirring until all is smooth. When it comes to boiling point, remove and add the beaten yolks of two eggs, pepper, salt, a teaspoonful of lemon juice and a tablespoonful of cooking wine or cordial. Add the lobster and let stand to cool. Turn into a crust-lined deep dish, sprinkle with a little chopped parsley, cover with the top crust, having vents in it, and bake until the crust is done. Serve hot or cold, as the case may be.

VERY HIGH PRICES REALIZED AT SALE

DOURO, Oct. 27.—Quite a large crowd was present on Wednesday at the sale of farm stock and implements on the farm of the late Stewart Armstrong. Very high prices prevailed in most cases. Horses sold from $105 to $155; cows about $50; year-old cattle $25 to $36; two-year-olds $41 and $42; sheep $18; a brood sow with her young pigs sold for $80. The machinery, which was only a couple of years in use, sold quite high. It was decided not to sell the house furniture but to divide it among the sisters of deceased.

Improving the Village

In September four splendid gas lights were installed in the village—two immediate in front of the church and one at either end of the church sheds. Whenever evening services are held at the church, these lights supply splendid illumination, filling a long-felt want.

With the profits made during the reunion, new cement sidewalks are being built on Main Street, from the store eastward to the church sheds. If there is sufficient money a walk will also be built on the other side from the front of the church to the corner. In muddy weather pedestrians have had to wade through mud. The new walks will be a boon.

Messrs. P. G. Towns and son, Charles, have had their houses plastered and are now busy finishing them. Mr. Ted. Desautel has been assisting.

Resident's Funeral

The funeral of Mrs. Mary Doherty was held Monday from the residence of her daughter, Mrs. Thos. Ryan, to St. Joseph's Church and cemetery. Requiem mass was sung by Rev. M. J. McGuire. The pall-bearers were: Messrs. Timothy O'Grady, John Doherty (Sr.), Michael Torpey, John Doherty (Jr.), Lawrence Doherty and John O'Brien.

Those from a distance who attended were: Mr. and Mrs. Doherty, Mrs. Timothy O'Grady and son, all of Hastings; Mrs. Patrick Doherty and son, Lawrence, of Percy; Mr. and Mrs. John O'Grady, of Baltimore; John Doherty, of Toronto; Mr. and Mrs. John Sullivan, of Peterboro', and Mrs. Crawford and Mrs. Killeen, of Cincinnati, Ohio.

Woman in Police Court Denies Knowing Man Who Bought Liquor.

WINNIPEG, Man., Oct. 28. — (Canadian Press).—In the city police court recently a woman accused of selling liquor was faced by a witness who said he was the purchaser. "Do you want to ask him any question?" said the prosecutor. The accused replied in a shocked voice: "But I don't know the gentleman!" and because of the glaring breach of etiquette in a court-room, not a word would she address to him.

EDMONTON, Alta., Oct. 28. — (Canadian Press).—Alberta's "Pantry" at the Toronto Exhibition was so successful that, according to the report to the institutes given by Mrs. Arthur Rogers on her return, this Province's booth will be used by one of the railways for immigration purposes. She suggested that next year it should be larger, the background to be of Alberta spruce, in which different species of wild fowl could be shown.

Your Coal Will Cost $5 a Ton MORE If Meighen Wins!

Do you understand that, Women of West Peterborough? Do you know that Mr. Meighen has never denied it; that Mr. Peck has ignored it; that the publicity bureau of the Conservative party here has no denial?

If Mr. Meighen should succeed in winning this election your coal bill will be increased by at least $5 a ton.

Here is the pledge Mr. Meighen made at Nanaimo: "This I say, coal will get protection, and real protection, on October 29th when the Conservative government is returned to power."

At Edmonton Mr. Meighen promised that protection would be given that would make Ontario people use western coal.

When Alberta coal cost $15 a ton it was hauled for $7 on a special trial plan. The railroads say the cost of hauling will be $12, an increase of $5 a ton. To make the coal saleable here at that price the tariff must raise the price of other coal to the same figure. AND YOU WILL PAY THE DIFFERENCE.

Remember, too, that you will be taxed not only through the coal you burn, but through your gas bill and in other ways.

Do you consider that a reasonable attitude for a government of the people to take?

The prospect is not very pleasant, is it?

Register your protest to-morrow by voting for Gordon.

YOUR HEALTH

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M.D.,
Former Commissioner of Health, New York City.

GIVING COD LIVER OIL IN TABLET FORM.

In the olden days our ancestors had medicines to suit the seasons. In the Spring, molasses and sulphur made the tonic, and in the fall and Winter, cod liver oil had to be taken. Which tasted worse, no one ever decided. The bottle on the kitchen shelf was as sure a sign of the season as were the bursting buds and the falling leaves.

DR ROYAL S. COPELAND

Modern transportation and marketing facilities have made available throughout the year the fresh fruits and vegetables so essential to the human system. Their consumption has done away with "spring fever" and its associated tonics. But cod liver oil is still with us.

The more we know about cod liver oil, the more virtues we discover in it. Its curative effects have always been considered important enough to offset its taste and odor—at least in the minds of doctors and parents. Even these arbiters of our destinies had to admit, however, that it was too much to demand our taking this evil-smelling, vile-tasting, fishy oil in Summer. That is why the use of cod liver oil was restricted to cold weather. The need for it has never been seasonal.

During the last century, many efforts have been made to explain why the oil is valuable. The original idea was that it had a nutritive value as a fat, to supplement the diet. A later theory assumed that the oil was a body-builder because of its mineral content. Then came the vitamin theory, and the discovery that cod liver oil contains two of the highly important vitamins.

You may quarrel with the vitamin theory, but it really doesn't matter what names you attach to these active elements of cod liver oil. The something that cures rickets and all the things it has always been doing to benefit the human race, are contained in the oil.

Prominent chemists have succeeded in separating from the disagreeable elements of the oil, the really essential thing it contains. It is now available as a tablet. Do not make the mistake of thinking this a substitute for cod liver oil. It is not. It is essentially cod liver oil, the purest, highest test oil to be found in the world, stripped of its fat, and its other inactive constituents, and concentrated into small tablets. These have been found to be of equal curative value with cod liver oil, minus its disagreeable qualities.

This means that children whose stomachs cannot tolerate ordinary cod liver oil, can take it in agreeable tablet form. It means a fat-free form. And it means these youngsters can have the benefit of cod liver oil all year round. The tablets are easy to take in Summer and Winter.

Any mother who has struggled through a season of forcible cod liver oil feeding or racked her brains to think of a sufficient reward to induce her child to take a bottle of that odious stuff, will appreciate the boon of being able to give a tablet or two of an agreeable remedy. They may be administered in a glass of water or in orange juice. We are assured these tablets contain all the virtues of the old-fashioned oil.

Science is doing much for us these days, but no one thing means more to the happiness of child life than the privilege of warding off scurvy and rickets by a simple, tasteless remedy.

GOOD NIGHT STORIES

By Blanche Silvar

BETTY FINDS A PRIZE.

Betty ran from one end of the garden to the other, chasing a great big winged creature. Finally it lighted on a bush and Betty was just about to toss her hat over its wings when a tiny laugh startled her.

"Now, who in the world was that?" she mused, looking in all directions.

"Why me, of course," chuckled the winged creature. "We had some chase, didn't we? What did you want to cover me up with your hat for?"

"Just so I could see what kind of a butterfly you were," replied Betty. "I adore butterflies, you know, and I've never seen one just like you."

"Good reason," chuckled the winged creature. "I'm not a butterfly at all. I don't believe anyone ever thought of saying I even looked like one."

Betty came up close, then she laughed merrily.

"I'm Not a Butterfly."

"You certainly don't look like a butterfly when I get a good look at you. Really and truly, you resemble a wasp or a hornet more than a butterfly. What are you, anyway? I love your pretty, slender body with its black and yellow bands, and your lovely gauzy wings. What are you anyway?"

"Mrs. Wasp-moth at your service," laughed the pretty creature. "Haven't you ever seen a Wasp-moth before?"

Betty shook her head. When one spoke of moths, Betty always thought they rested by day and only flew around at night.

"I never think of looking for moths in the day-time," she laughed.

"Well, I'm an exception," chuckled Mrs. Wasp-moth. "The day is never too warm or too bright for me to be out. Fact is, I love the very noon time when the sun is at its warmest. I was just laying my eggs under the bark of that tree near your porch."

"And will your babies all hatch out there so I can watch them grow?" asked Betty.

"Well, not for a long time," replied Mrs. Wasp-moth. "You see, when the caterpillars hatch out they eat their way into the wood of the tree. There they must stay for a long time, until they are good and strong. When they have eaten all they need, they spin a lovely silken blanket, line the little hole in the tree, then curl up and go to sleep."

"Do they have a hard pupa case like most changing caterpillars?"

"Yes, they do," smiled Mrs. Wasp-moth, "but they drag it through the hole in the tree until they get to the entrance. Here they stick their little heads out into the sunlight, give several hard pulls, and out they come from their pupa cases, into the world of flowers and sunshine, full fledged Wasp-moths."

"What do they do with their pupa cases?" Betty asked. "Come back for them, later?"

"Goodness, no," laughed Mrs. Wasp-moth, "they just leave them there to fill up the holes in the tree. Well, if you'll just excuse me, I'll be on my way now," and spreading her gauzy wings, Mrs. Wasp-moth sailed away into the sunlight.

Betty spent part of the day trying to find some pupa cases sticking in the trees but she couldn't find any.

LADY MISSIONARY DESCRIBES LABORS

Miss Paul Told of Work Among Indians and Foreign Immigrants.

WELCOME, Oct. 27.—The Women's Missionary Society held an open meeting in the church basement on Friday evening. An invitation had been extended to the other auxiliaries of the circuit and both were represented.

Rev. D. R. Clare was chairman of the evening, and in his remarks, spoke of the value of the Women's Missionary Society. He said he considered a Women's Missionary Auxiliary the best spiritual asset in the church life.

Miss Marion Martyn recited "Those Little Girls of India." Mr. and Mrs. Clare Symons rendered a very pleasing duet.

Rev. Mr. Bunner, a former pastor, spoke a few words, expressing his pleasure at being able to be present. He spoke of the value of the W. M. S., and the task before the United Church this year to meet the obligations placed upon it.

Mrs. Martyn, president of the auxiliary, then introduced the speaker of the evening, Miss Paul, a returned missionary from Western Canada.

Miss Paul has been a missionary for 30 years. Sixteen years were spent among the Indians and for the past fourteen years Miss Paul has been a social worker among the foreigners in the mining camps of British Columbia.

She spoke of the Indians and the results of past missionary work, which is now being seen in the homes and lives of the children of past converts.

Turning to her last field of labor, Miss Paul spoke of the great needs of the foreign population of our land and told of the various activities, especially among the women and children, that she had been engaged in.

At the close of her much-enjoyed address, Mrs. W. Symons and Mrs. Sculthorp sang a duet; "Sisters, Keep on Working."

The evening closed with a social hour, in which all enjoyed the dainties prepared, and also the opportunity of meeting Miss Paul informally.

Presentation

On Friday evening the young people of the neighborhood motored near Newcastle to the home of Mr. Geo. Stapleton to do honor to his bride.

Mrs. Stapleton (nee, Miss Gertrude Martin), was a very successful teacher at Welcome until the past year.

During the evening, an address was read by Miss Hazel Bamsay, and a very handsome parlor clock was presented by Mr. Cecil Williams on behalf of Welcome young people.

Mr. and Mrs. Stapleton both responded, thanking them for their gift and the kind thought which prompted it, and extended an invitation to all to visit them again.

After a pleasant evening of games, a dainty lunch was served.

Anniversary Services

Unpropitious weather interfered somewhat with the afternoon attendance at Zion anniversary services on Sunday, whereas in the evening, as a result of clearer skies, a splendid congregation assembled to exhibit gratitude to God for His blessing of the work in this part of His vineyard. The pastor, Rev. D. R. Clare, officiated at both services, discoursing in the afternoon from John 15:8, and in the evening delivering a most impressive sermon from Luke 10:2. The latter service was of an exceedingly bright character. The choir rendered as an anthem: "Am I a Soldier of the Cross?" Mr. Hayden of Wesleyville sang "Jesus, Saviour, Pilot Me" very impressively.

Personals

Rev. and Mrs. Clare and Master Earl visited friends in Belleville, Tweed and Marmora this week.

Rev. and Mrs. Bunner, of Bowmanville, spent part of the week with their daughter, Mrs. Clare Symons.

Miss Paul was the guest of Mrs. Ed. Martyn and Miss Thyra Martyn while she was at Welcome.

Miss Ruth Fanning and Mrs. Graham and children, of Peterboro', are visiting their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Fanning.

Mr. W. J. Cottrell, of Marmora, spent the week-end at the parsonage, the guest of Rev. and Mrs. Clare.

Mr. and Mrs. George Staples motored to Campbellford on Tuesday.

ANTI-CAT CRY CALLS COUNCIL TO CUNSEL

Suggested Tax of One Shilling Per Head Proposed in Scotland.

LONDON, Eng., Oct. 26 (Canadian Press Despatch).—People who are not fond of cats repeatedly declare they ought to be taxed even as dogs, or rather their owners, are taxed. Edinburgh City Council has a strong anti-feline spirit, and there is a proposal afoot for a system of cat-licenses. Perhaps it would be more just to the Town Council to suggest they are moved by humanitarian than anti-feline considerations, for apparently their proposed action is prompted by the fact that the Scottish Society, for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals dealt last year with nearly five thousand unwanted, friendless, homeless pussies, most of them moreover being diseased.

One shilling is the proposed license fee. It is also proposed that the police shall be empowered to seize stray cats. How a corpulent member of the Force is to secure a lean and hungry and presumably agile cat has not so far been disclosed. However, the Chief Sanitary Inspector is to draw up a general scheme. Meanwhile the Prevention of Cruelty Society employs two hundred women to collect stray cats in the streets and backyards.

Any such proposal for demanding a license to be held by cat-keepers would presumably have to receive the sanction of the secretary for Scotland.

Three Minute Journeys

WHERE THE TOWNSFOLK GO JOY-RIDING ON SKIS

Helsingfors, the city of light and shadow, where the sun only appears for three or four hours a day for the greater part of the year, presents many an unusual spectacle to the visitor from more southern lands.

The Popular Outdoor Sport.

This city is the most northern capital in the world, and yet, surprisingly, its Winter is comparatively mild. There is plenty of snow, of course, during the first three months of the year, but the weather is milder than it is in many other parts of the world.

Because of the large snowfall, Helsingfors has had to demonstrate its inventive genius in finding methods of clearing its streets. And it has proved equal to the task. Each property owner is responsible for the clearing of the street before his property, as well as of his own pavement. He may employ the services of some company for this purpose or he may pay the Government an annual sum to take care of the matter for him. But the system shows results.

A most interesting machine has been devised in Finland and is used in Helsingfors for the purpose of clearing away the snowfall. It is a contraption which literally burns up the snow. It contains a log fire, and as the snow is shoveled into its maw it melts and runs off into the gutters and is carried away into the drain.

On Sundays all of Helsingfors travels on skis. This is the great outdoor sport of Helsingfors. Men and women, girls and boys, in gay colors and knickers and sweaters, push their way out to the islands that border on the city.

On almost any of the large hills of the city you can see the most astounding stunts being performed by the more expert of the skiers. Tremendous jumps, frequently ending in thrilling tumbles, make you gasp for breath. The strange part of these tumbles is that the acrobat usually lands upright, finally, on his two skis. If he is not successful the first time, he will try again and again until he does succeed. For skiing is a serious business with the people of Helsingfors and one not to be taken lightly.

Advocates Recreation For Uncheered Old Folk

HALIFAX, N. S., Oct. 28. —(Canadian Press).—A prominent Halifax lady is quoted in the "Mail" as saying: "I wish there was some way to develop the 'tired women' side of playgrounds life. There is not much danger of forgetting the claims of the children. They make an appeal to almost everybody. But we all have a way of thinking the other folks have their day and anything is good enough for them. I don't see things that way. Some of the best people in every community, some of the people who have the largest amount of patient courage, are elderly women in the homes of poverty. Let us devote a little more attention to them."

The "Mail" is strongly in sympathy with this, adding: "The wonder is that uncheered and forgotten 'old folk'—forgotten by their selfish and unloving kinsfolk, even (dread fact) by their own children—do not more often give up in complete despair."

Women Can Retain Their Good Looks

Mrs. Wm. Fletcher of 28 Cherry St., Stratford, Ont. says, "Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is a tonic and nervine that I would recommend to every woman nearing middle life. I found it not only quieted my nerves but it also relieved me of hot flashes dizziness and backaches. Before I took the 'Prescription' I had the strangest sort of pain, like a knife cutting thru my back. I took four bottles of the 'Prescription' and can truthfully say every particle of pain has disappeared and I am feeling as well as any person could."

Go to your neighborhood drug store at once and obtain this Prescription in tablets or liquid, or send 10 cents to Dr. Pierce's Laboratory in Bridgeburg, Ont., for trial package.

TO-DAY'S HOROSCOPE

WEDNESDAY OCTOBER 28.

An active but not a propitious day is forecast from the predominant lunar and mutual aspects. These signs are read as troublesome and irritating, in business as well as in personal affairs. There may be an inclination to make changes or undertake journeys, but these should be deferred until a more auspicious planetary rule. Those in the employment of others are urged to be cautious.

Those whose birthday it is may encounter an unsettled and annoying year, although one of activity in business, especially in all that may relate to writings or publications. Change and travel should be postponed and domestic affairs and employment should be safeguarded. A child born on this day is likely to be clever and versatile but may be disposed to be restless and unsettled. It may also have a tendency to overindulgence in pleasure and society.

MORE MEN WENT TO UNITED STATES IN FIVE YEARS THAN SERVED IN WHOLE EXPEDITIONARY FORCE.

(but they went during Conservative Government.)

The Prosperity League of Canada informs the electors that seven times as many Canadians entered the United States since January, 1922, as were killed in the Great War, and the electors are invited to vote Conservative as protection will bring back the exiles. The Prosperity League of Canada has neglected to inform the electors, however, that the same authority (United States Bureau of Immigration), which reports an exodus of 448,434 persons from Canada in the four-year period since 1922, reports an exodus to the United States in the five-year period, 1913-1917, of 670,104—a total of one and a half times the entire number of men who went overseas in the Canadian Expeditionary Forces. If the Liberal tariff drove 448,134 persons to the United States in the four-year period, the Tory tariff drove to the United States 670,104 persons during the other five-year period when the country had Mr. Meighen governing it.

nized Dick's writing, she hastily tore it open and held up a handsome gray raincoat, with a note pinned to the collar which read—

"Dear Prue:

I know it's abominable taste and contrary to all ideas of propriety, but if you knew how much more comfortable I'd feel if you'd accept this gift, you'd pardon my seeming lack of judgment. I know flowers, books, candy or music are the proper things, but suppose we had forty days rain, with pneumonia just around the corner!

Faithfully,
Dick."

Prue laughed helplessly and seized upon the other parcel addressed in a queer slanting backhand, and on opening it, disclosed a beautiful silk lined raincoat, by far the nicest of them all. Another note appeared, written in the same quaint slant, which ran as follows:

"Dear Miss Prudence:

This is a little gift from the $35.00 old party. Don't think me in love, I don't care two hoots for anyone, but you are too fine a girl for the "flu" to grab off."

Aunt Dulcie and the two girls laughed in a perfect abandonment of mirth, when, with the customary knock, Dick and Phil walked in. They stood in bewilderment at the array, then laughed in uproarious hilarity.

There followed explanations with much laughter and the next day, various raincoats were returned from whence they came, and Mr. Raynor received another letter from the mysterious 'Mrs. Smith,' which read:

"Dear Mr. Raynor:

Your idea of helping these young people is a brilliant success so far. Yesterday Prudence received four raincoats beside buying herself one. Keep it up.

Mrs. Smith."

Mr. Raynor was seized with what appeared to be a violent fit of coughing when he had read his brief letter and Mrs. Bangs declared he was "having a fit."

That afternoon Mr. Raynor obtained a private interview with the employers of the "Quartet." His first visit was to Messrs Dunfield and Dixon, where he abruptly asked: "I want to ask you about Dick Spaulding—is he a good book-keeper?"

Best ever," heartily answered Mr. Dixon.

Well, I guess he'll suit me then," said Mr. Raynor, and be worth—— to me," naming a sum that made these gentlemen gasp.

Well, I like your nerve," snapped Mr. Dunfield, a florid gentleman, with flashing eyes. Do you come here to spy out our best man and then run off with him."

Oh, he can suit himself, cheerfully answered the dapper little old man, as he bowed himself out.

Thunder! exclaimed Mr. Dixon, as the door closed, the little old duffer will do it too, and we haven't a man in our employ with a head and an all-round ability to compare with Dick. Hang it all, we'll have to give him a substantial raise to off-set this little old fire cracker.

Come to think of it,' said portly Mr. Dixon, we really should have given him a raise before."

Mr. Raynor paid similar visits to the other three employers of the Quartet." Then he chuckled to himself, Tomorrow is pay day. All I have to do is to keep still and see what happens."

He was seated at the table the next evening when Dick came striding in with glowing face, closely followed by Phil, who was apparently in high spirits.

Hey, Phil," said Dick, "you look as if your rich Uncle had given you a block of shares in the Panama Canal."

"Rich Uncle nothing," quoth Phil, "I got a raise, and got it without asking. See what it is to be EFFICIENT."

"Well, wouldn't that jar you?" exclaimed Dick, "but you're not the only bird on the bush, I got a raise too."

Mr. Raynor looked up with a child-like expression and asked Dick, "How did they happen to do that trick?"

"Oh, they said they had been thinking it over, and thought I deserved a raise," answered Dick, "and I thought so too, so it was fixed,' he modestly added.

"H'm," said Mr. Raynor, "and how did you get your raise, you big pill of a Phil?"

"Well," replied Phil, "my boss said it had occurred to him I should have a raise, and I raised no objection——"

"H'm, yes! Well, often people get to thinking, something's bound to occur to 'em," chuckled Mr. Raynor.

As the two left the room together, the old man caught fragments of their conversation that seemed to please him. " . . . do something to celebrate . . . flowers . . . a dinner for once. . . ."

"Yes," the little old man whispered to himself—"carnations likely, and it's all right too, do 'em lots more good than to heap 'em up after they die."

When the young men had presented themselves and their flowers at the Maritime Block, they explained they were celebrating the novel experience of being raised.

"You mean," questioned Prue, "that you each received a raise?"

"Precisely" and, "even so," they answered in unison.

Prue stood in bewilderment, alternately opening and shutting her mouth in a vain attempt to speak.

"Well, there is a lump there ——"

"Verna interrupted by exclaiming: the fairies have come again, that's all. I used to believe in them, hunted for them lots of times on the quiet. Maybe you partly grown boys think you are raised, but this very day Prue and I each received a raise."

"Don't it beat all?" said Prue, "Thursday it rained raincoats, and today we've been made rich and prosperous."

A lengthy discussion followed, sometimes grave, sometimes gay, in which they showed such a desire to unravel the mystery, that at length Aunt Dulcie said "I can tell you a part of it, in confidence. You boys gave a shabby book agent a good square meal, and the bread you cast upon the waters has returned to you. He could have bought a dozen such "cafes," but he wrote me with apparent sincerity—he had never in his life enjoyed a meal as he did that one, and his hand made the wheels go round, that move the minds, that gave the raises, so there can be a house that Jack will build."

"But WHO was he?" they asked.

"I am not to tell, absolutely not, or Dol-er-er—the book agent would give me fits if I should tell."

As the young men walked home together, Dick asked: "Did you notice the slip of Aunt Dulcie's tongue—" she said "Dol—" and Mr. Raynor has taken such an interest in us, and his name is Adolphe."

"That's just it," agreed Phil. "Say, let's take him with us on our next call."

"Sure," assented Dick.

Accordingly the young men persuaded Mr. Raynor to call with them at the Maritime Block a few evenings later, the old gentleman tucking two papers in his pocket with elaborate unconcern.

"I really should be going home," said Aunt Dulcie that Spring evening, "it will be lonely and——"

Here Dick and Phil arrived ,accompanied by Mr. Raynor, who, coming face to face with Aunt Dulcie, exclaimed in amazement, "Dulcie Brooks, as I'm alive!"

But Aunt Dulcie is Mrs. Smith" gently corrected Prue.

"Girls," said Aunt Dulcie, "I confess I borrowed the Smith, I thought one more Smith would never be noticed."

The young people, looking on, saw a possible solution of Aunt Dulcie's loneliness, and a robin perched on a branch outside the open window, sang "Cheer Up—Cheer-r-r!"

Mr. Raynor, having recovered his equanimity, spread out before the young people the two official looking papers he had taken from his pocket. They were two deeds, deeding to Richard Spaulding, and to Philip Stanbury each a furnished bungalow, both situated on beautiful Linden Street, within a stone's throw of each other.

As the four stood in dumb wonder, the old man concluded—"They are yours, if you can think of any use for 'em."

By the smiles and blushes of the girls, it was evident they had thought of a use for them. It was equally certain the young men were held in the spell of an embarrassed reluctance.

"If you'd let us pay for them—" began Dick.

"Yes," heartily endorsed Phil—"instalment plan you know."

"Well, you began it," pleaded the old gentleman—you gave me something I appreciated and I didn't offer to pay for the feed."

"Oh, but that was a mere nothing," they protested.

"It was the best you could do for me, and I accepted gratefully; this is not half as good as I could do for you and ——"

Seeing a hurt look on his kindly face, the young men grasped his hands in grateful acceptance, while Aunt Dulci quoted reverently—

"Seek ye first the kingdom of God and His righteousness, and all these things shall be added unto you."

BRIDGEBURG, Ont., Oct. 28 (Canadian Press). — The United States customs yesterday delivered to the Canadian customs at Bridgeburg the rum runner, Nayla, which was seized by a Buffalo coastguard in Canadian waters on the night of October 1st.

The Nayla had 221 cases of Canadian [illegible] and champagne when she cleared from Port Colborne for Cleveland, Ohio, on the afternoon of October 1.

Yesterday Collector Pattison of Bridgeburg was asked to sign a release for the boat and 185 cases of whiskey and wine. There was no word spoken as to what had become of the odd 36 cases.

A. Vanderver of Port Colborne, owner of the craft, says that the cargo was intact when he left the craft tied up at the Fox Beach dock near Fort Erie to telephone to the Canadian customs.

King Government Only Menace to Your Job

There is no limit to what Mr. Gordon's publicity bureau will say in the hope of gulling the electors.

"Mr. Peck plans to bring thousands of men to Peterboro to fight for your jobs," was one of last night's gems.

Undoubtedly the policy of Protection may bring thousands of men to Peterboro by reason of the industrial expansion it will create but the jobs will be here for the men when they come. Make no mistake about that.

Protection will build up Peterboro bringing with it increased population—whereas the tariff bungling of the King Government has left us smaller in population than in 1921.

Don't worry, workers of Peterboro. The only menace to your job is the King government and its allies, the Western Progressive free traders.

Vote protection and you protect your own job and help make jobs for others.

Vote for drift and tariff wobbling and you may drive yourself or somebody else out of employment.

There is not a city in Canada today where you could take 100 men and find employment for them.

If you want that condition to continue, vote for Mr. Gordon.

If you want better days for industry, for agriculture and for Canada, VOTE FOR MR. PECK.

START MOVE TO LIMIT OPERATING

American College of Surgeons Will Investigate Germicidal Surgery.

LESS USE OF KNIFE.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 28 Canadian Press).—A movement that may result in the abolition of the use of the knife in all minor and some major operations was started at yesterday's session of the fifteenth annual congress of the American College of Surgeons. The board of regents of the college decided to inaugurate at the centennial of the birth of Lord Lister, originator of antiseptic and germicidal surgery next April, a campaign of research and propaganda for the development and more universal use of those germicides, which attacked the disease cells in the body without destroying healthy tissues. The board resolved that the use of such germicides instead of the knife had already been amply justified, and also that the profession should know more about the new technique.

ST. PAUL'S CHOIR IS ENTERTAINED

Mr. and Mrs. F. C. Webber Threw Open Home to Choristers.

MASQUERADE HELD.

On Monday evening, some fifty-odd members of St. Paul's Presbyterian Church Choir with their friends, enjoyed the hospitality of Mr. and Mrs. F. C. Webber in their beautiful home, in the form of a Hallowe'en Masquerade. The entertainment was quite unusual in its variety and scope.

The house was artistically and seasonably decorated. The stair-rail posts and mantle being draped in suitable bunting, the electric bulbs shaded with pumpkins and the walls were decorated with crescents, cats, bats, witches, etc.

There were competitions for the best costumes, contests which tested the knowledge of music, literature and other subjects, and music, also refreshments; but the word banquet would better describe the character of these refreshments.

In short, there was not an idle moment from the first sound of the gong until the lateness of the hour forced the guests to reluctantly withdraw.

Space will not permit to give full details, so we will just give a couple of samples.

At the door you were received by the proverbial ghost and the witch warning you to "be careful." After which you were inspected and, if not clothed in proper form, you were taken to the basement, from which you emerged so altered that you could not recognize yourself.

Then came the grand march in order to award the prizes, which resulted as follows:

Mrs. F. Clayton was awarded the prize for the most original costume and the decision was well merited.

Miss Isabel Davidson was awarded the prize for the prettiest costume and Mr. A. Allan was given the prize for the most comical costume.

Rastus, who was a recent importation from the South, was simply ubiquitous and was very apt and amusing in his negroisms—he must have spent a large part of his time on the stage or among his countrymen.

There was an election held to ascertain who was the most popular man in the choir. In this election each voter had to provide his or her own ballots in the form of apple pippins. This was very interesting and amusing. Mr. Chenhall won by such a large majority that the "also rans" lost their deposit.

This election carried with it a splendid prize in the form of a large fish, and as fish must swim, no doubt Mr. Chenhall is very dry today.

But time flew altogether too rapidly, so a most pleasant and enjoyable evening was brought to a close, after a hearty vote of thanks had been tendered to the host and hostess, and the singing of "Auld Lang Syne."

MEIGHEN SAYS KING'S SPEECHES DIFFER IN EAST

Never Talked of Tariff To Suit Needs of Industry While in West.

"RESERVED FOR EAST."

Speaker Says He Objected Only to Lavish Railway Expenditures.

KITCHENER, Oct. 28 (Canadian Press) — Declaring that Premier King had never in his western speeches talked of adjusting tariffs to the needs of industry as he had in the east, Right Hon. Arthur Meighen, last night attacked Liberal policy of offering the west promises to induce it to return Liberals."

"Such speeches as these on tariff adjustments are reserved for the east," declared the Conservative leader. "In the west the Liberals label tariff protection as infamous, as a doctrine that has no place in the onward march of progress."

Touching upon Mr. King's pledges relative to resuming construction of the Hudson Bay railway, Mr. Meighen said the Prime Minister had in effect told the people of the prairies and the west that while there were eastern Liberals opposed to the Hudson Bay railway, the west could enforce its demand for construction simply by giving him Liberal members in sufficient numerical strength to throttle eastern opposition to the scheme.

Mr. King does not use the words "throttle opposition," said Mr. Meighen, "but that is what he means."

Declaring his position with regard to railway expenditures, Mr. Meighen said he objected to some of the lavish expenditures that had been made on the Canadian National, first because it forced others to make like expenditures and further, because all surplus moneys should be devoted to necessary extension of service.

MILLBROOK NEWS

MILLBROOK, Oct. 28.—A pleasant social gathering was held recently at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Norman Lamb, in honor of Miss Geraldine Morton whose marriage to Mr. Leonard Henderson takes place in the early part of November.

In the course of the evening, two young girls, Eloise Lamb and Vanita Ingram, brought in a beautifully decorated basket, overflowing with many-shaped parcels, and placed it before the bride-to-be, the latter being completely surprised at this unexpected feature of the gathering.

*pening the parcels, and reading the messages of affection and goodwill which accompanied the gifts was a pleasing duty which the guest of honor carried out gracefully after expressing, in a few well chosen words, her gratitude and appreciation for the kindly thoughtfulness involved.

Music and social converse, with an enjoyable supper hour, brought the evening to a close.

Mrs. W. W. Kennedy entertained the members of her Sunday school class at her home south of the village on Friday evening, the girls motoring out and having a delightful tea hour with their teacher.

Games, music, and stories told in the glow of the open fireplace, made the time pass all too rapidly. A picnic at Cobourg was the outing which Mrs. Kennedy gave her class in the holidays this summer, to the great enjoyment of all, and the pleasant social evening for which she was hostess on Friday, won for her, in still greater measure, the regard of the scholars.

Those who enjoyed Mrs. Kennedy's hospitality included: Jean Stinson, Sadie Rowland, Hazel Morton, Annie McMahon, Marguerite Hawken, and Marion Earle.

Mr. Kennedy drove the girls home when the hour arrived at which final good-byes were said.

A FINAL WORD TO THE ELECTORS

Policy of Protection Offered To Electors by Conservatives

THINK IN TIME

As a last message to the men and women of West Peterborough, the Conservative Victory Committee urges every voter to mark his or her ballot tomorrow with a due appreciation of what hinges upon the result of this election.

The Conservative Victory Committee has, in its advertising, endeavoured to present the cause of Protection as fairly and accurately as possible, believing that it is the only policy that promises to bring prosperity to Canada.

It has been necessary to criticize Mr. Gordon's political career, but this should be remembered, that it is Mr. Gordon the politician, and not Mr. Gordon, citizen of Peterborough, we have been condemning. Our quarrel with Mr. Gordon is political, not personal.

As a politician, the Conservative Victory Committee believe the Liberal Candidate has shown himself as undeserving of another term as the representative of this riding because of his unredeemed pledges, his failure to protect Peterborough's industries against tariff tinkering, his Free Trade condemnation of Protection, his declaration that industries that cannot carry on under the present tariff are not worth keeping, and his gross deception of the electorate in the matter of his portfolio.

IT'S TIME FOR A CHANGE

Three factors should enter into your final decision as to how your vote will be cast—the Candidate, the Leader, and the Policy.

We present to you in E. A. PECK a Candidate whose professional and political career is without a blemish a candidate well known to the electorate of City and Riding; a clean, reliable trustworthy candidate whose promises can be depended upon.

We offer in Right Honorable Arthur Meighen, a leader truly Canadian in his outlook and vision, a statesman who believes that Canada should be developed by and for Canadian, rather than looted of her natural resources and used as a market for the surplus products of the world under conditions under which Canadian farmers and Canadian industry alike are handicapped.

We commend to you the policy of Protection, as a sound and truly Canadian policy that will set the wheels of industry humming again, give work to the people of this land, build up and preserve the home market for the Canadian farmers and bring an ever-increasing measure of prosperity to Canadians everywhere.

Vote tomorrow for yourself, for Peterborough, and for Canada by voting for E. A. PECK.

What Does Reputation of a Peterboro Store Matter to Mr. Gordon?

HE NEEDS VOTES AND NEEDS THEM BADLY

The last shreds of the veneered statesmanship with which some of his admirers have tried to disguise Hon. G. N. Gordon, have dropped off, exposing a politician of the Tammany Hall variety.

That a Cabinet Minister in the desperate hope of winning a few very much-needed votes should give as almost his final message to the electorate such an irresponsible soap box tirade, as his attack on the new management of the Hall Store, is a revelation that will disgust some of Mr. Gordon's best friends.

The Hall Store was one of the many commercial institutions that found it almost impossible to carry on under the blight of the King Government' rule, but its new management has been endeavoring to put it on its feet again, and one of the changes being to increase the working hours by 45 minutes a day.

Because Sir James Woods, whose views on the tariff differ with some of Mr. Gordon's views on the same subect—he has so many that the two must agree somewhere—is connected with the new management, Mr. Gordon argues that Protection is a policy for the "big interests," and he weeps mock tears for the employees.

If he were sincere, and not merely vote hunting, Mr. Gordon would have hesitated a long time before trying to injure the reputation of one of the city's largest stores by calling it a "sweat shop." But if the attack and its appeal to class consciousness can delude anybody into voting for Mr. Gordon, that desperately-worried politician wouldn't care if the Hall Store closed tomorrow, throwing all the employees out of a job.

What a sorry exhibition Mr. Gordon is making of himself in the closing days of the campaign, assailing manufacturers, attacking the reputation of a store that provides employment for many citizens, seeking to arouse class hatred, saying anything, doing anything to save his political hide.

In all seriousness, isn't it time for a change?

MANY CHANGES IN WEST RIDING

Long List of Candidates Who Have Contested Federal Seat.

FIFTEEN ELECTIONS.

There have been 15 contests in this riding since Confederation, the first Parliament opening in November, 1867, with the Conservatives in power. It was dissolved in July, 1872. It may be of interest to recall the several contests, with any incident that marked the occasion, and being not so far removed from the days of open voting, there were many. The early contests were the days of personal patronage, and offers of positions and rewards silenced endeavor. Party feeling ran high and candidates and their friends were reckless as to their statements and influences. The press teemed with assertions, some of which were absolutely libellous. Fly bills and hand bills spread information that was a corker to read, and no doubt had some effect in the line indicated, to belittle the other fellow and beat him out at the poll.

The complexion of the political field has altered mightily. The registered vote is an uncertain element, the vote of the women now clouds all prophecy. Those who wish to keep a record of all political contests in this riding should clip this article from the paper and preserve it.

1867 — Nominations August 26. Polling two days, September 2nd and 3rd. Candidates: Charles Perry, Con., John Gordon, Ref.; majority for Perry, 30. The poll: Perry, 682; Gordon, 652. It will be seen that the whole voting strength of the riding, as brought to the polls, was only 1334. As the contests came on in later years, the development of the vote is illustrated by the figures.

1872 — Nomination, August 10. Polling, August 29. Candidates: William Cluxton, Cons., John Bertram, Ref.; result, majority of 40 for Bertram, but Mr. Bertram having failed to comply with the demand made on him at the time of his nomination for his qualification paper was declared defeated by the returning officer, acting on legal advice, declared Mr. Cluxton elected.

1874—Nomination, December 3rd. Polling, January 5th. Candidates: W. H. Scott, Cons., and John Bertram, Ref. Bertram was elected by a majority of 92. This campaign was short, active and ferocious.

1878—Nominations, Sentember 10. Polling Sentember 17. Candidates: George Hilliard, Cons., and John Bertram, Ref.; majority for Hilliard 197. The poll: Hilliard 1071, Bertram 874. This election returned to power Sir John A. McDonald and the Protection policy.

1882—Nominations, June 13. Polling, June 20. Candidates: George Hilliard, Cons., John J. Lundy, Ref. Sheriff Hall, returning officer. Majority for Hilliard 158. The poll: Hilliard 1,035, Lundy 877.

1887—Nomination, February 15. Polling, February 22. Candidates: James Stevenson, Cons., George A. Cox, Ref.; majority for Stevenson, 22. The poll: Stevenson's majority 196; Cox's majority, 174. This election was probably the most acrimonious and virile of any of the contests. Every effort and subterfuge was tried out to win, and it is generally admitted that the contest cost each of the candidates over $25,000. All that organization could accomplish was done. Help was lavishly rewarded, and no stone was left out to beat the other fellow, and it was many years before the riding recovered its equanimity. The Reformers were not quite satisfied with the result, and claimed a recount. This was held on March 31, before the County Judge. Seven votes were lost to Stevenson as the result. The recount gives the votes as cast and summed up as follows: Stevenson, 1,360; Cox, 1,264; majority for Stevenson 16.

1891—Nominations, February 26. Polling, March 5. Sheriff Hall, returning officer. Candidates: James Stevenson, Cons., Richard Hall, Ref.; Stevenson's majority 235. The poll: Stevenson 1,447, Hall 1,215.

1900—Nominations, October 31. Polling, November 7. Sheriff Hall, returning officer. Candidates: James Kendry, Lib.-Con., I. H. McClellan, Ref.; Kendry's majority, 351. The poll: Kendry 1,750, McClellan 1,399.

1904—Nominations, October 28. Polling, November 3. Sheriff Hall, returning officer. Candidates: James Kendry, Lib.-Con., R. R. Hall, Ref.; Hall's majority 147. The poll: Hall 2,467, Kendry 2,320.

1908—Nominations, October 18. Polling, October 26. Sheriff Hall, returning officer. Candidates: J. R. Stratton, Ref., J. H. Burnham, Lib.-Con.; Stratton's majority, 233. The poll: Stratton 2,851, Burnham 2,518.

1911—Nominations, September 14. Polling, September 21. Sheriff Hall, returning officer. Candidates: J. H. Burnham, Lib.-Con. (Union), R. R. Hall, Ref.; Burnham's majority 2,320. The poll: Burnham 5,221, Hall 2,971.

1921—Nominations, January 24. Polling, February 8. Candidates: G. N. Gordon, Lib., R. Denne, Lib.-Cons., J. H. Burnham, Ind. Con., J. C. Campbell, U.F.O., T. J. McMurray, Lab.; Gordon's majority, 1,982. The poll: Gordon 4,693, Denne 2,811, Burnham 2,595 Campbell 2,319, McMurray 1,103. This campaign was the most unique in the history of Peterborough, and one of the most interesting ever staged in Canadian politics. Not only was it remarkable in the extraordinary fecundity of the nominations which resulted in 5 candidates entering the field, but in that it was occasioned by a resignation on the ground that the Government held no mandate from the people. As a result the Government and the Opposition parties threw every ounce of energy into the battle, and the electorate witnessed a strenuous political tilt, while it basked in the resultant publicity.

1921—Nominations, November 22. Polling, December 6. Candidates: G. N. Gordon, Lib., J. H. Burnham, Cons. The poll: Gordon 6,890, Burnham 4,732. Gordon's majority 2,158.

WOOLER LISTENS TO LIBERAL LEADERS

Women Implored to Make Use of Franchise For Benefit of Country.

WOOLER, Oct. 28.—On Saturday evening at 8 p.m. Mr. Slade held his meeting in the Town Hall. Owing to the inclemency of the weather, the hall was not filled. However, the speakers of the evening were all present—Mrs. Dudley of Colborne, Mr. Sam Clarke of Cobourg, Mr. Fraser, Mayor of Trenton—and Mr. Allore of Trenton favored the audience with vocal solos, accompanied by Mrs. L. H. Rowe.

Mr. W. A. Smith was the chairman of the evening, and called on Mr. Slade, the Liberal candidate. He emphasized the modified tariff, giving every part of the Dominion of Canada fair play. He did not want to take up any of the time of the other speakers, and Mrs. Dudley was called, it being her first appearance on a political platform. In her opening remarks she urged that women should study tariff and know what it means and act accordingly. Women know better the needs of the homes and families. The keynote of Mackenzie King's policy is national unity, based on national justice. The women would not have had the franchise had it not been for the Liberals. She closed by saying Mackenzie King was a true Canadian leader, and only through co-operation could the Liberals win.

Mr. Sam Clarke was the next speaker, and his stirring address held the audience spell-bound, emphasizing the needs of the farmer, the need of lower tariff.

The next number was a solo by Mr. Allan of Trenton.

Mr. Fraser of Trenton was the next speaker, and his address was very pointed to the affairs of home towns, speaking of the increase in populations and in new industries. Mackenzie King has more manufacture leaders than Arthur Meighen.

Mr. Allore sang a solo and the meeting closed by singing God Save breaking of Confederation. Mr the King.

An Open Letter from Sir James Woods

Toronto, October 27th, 1925.

Dear Sir:—

I read your statement this evening in the Toronto "Daily Star" concerning the Canadian Woollen Mills Co., of Peterborough, and the lack of protection on dry spun yarn.

It is quite clear from your misstatements that you know absolutely nothing about the woollen industry.

1. You say that when I asked for 12½% protection on dry spun yarn, the Penman Company protested to you "AS MANUFACTURERS OF UNDERCLOTHES" that the tariff asked for would mean an increase in cost to the consumers.

You are mistaken in this because all imported wool yarn used IN THE MANUFACTURE OF UNDERWEAR now pays, and has for years paid, 12½% duty.

2. You say that business men knew perfectly well that the Canadian Woollen Mills, at Peterborough, were making a great mistake in installing a plant for the spinning of dry spun yarn.

There was no mistake on the part of the manufacturer. Three such plants were established in three different cities by three different manufacturers in the belief that the producers of dry spun yarn would get the protection of 12½% provided for other yarns. Your Government did not provide this protection, consequently the spinning of dry spun yarns is not commercially successful in this country. The mistake was a mistake made by your Government in their tariff policies.

3. You say that no protection was asked for in 1920 when the Conservative Government was in power.

This is not true. Our request for tariff protection was publicly laid before the tariff commission appointed by the Conservative Government in 1920, and you know right well that if the Conservative Government had been returned in 1921 this new industry would have been given reasonable protection.

The yarns which at present are protected by duties are those in common use; the dry spun yarns which are not protected by duties are used for making the garments of the rich. Why does your Government discriminate between the garments worn by the working man or farmer and those worn by the rich?

Again, it is quite clear from your misstatements that you know absolutely nothing about the woollen industry.

Wool is a natural product of the farms of Canada, but whereas there were 3,675,860 sheep and lambs in Canada in 1921, there are only 2,500,000 now, and it must be with the thought of their ultimate extinction that your Government has reduced the duty on Australian mutton coming into Canada from three cents a pound to one-half cent a pound.

Yours truly,

J. W. WOODS

I AM TOLD you said from the Platform in Peterborough on Monday, October 26th, that one of my first official acts after acquiring an interest in a Peterborough retail business was to increase the working hours of the sales girls without any increase in remuneration.

I telephoned the Manager of this business and learn that the business day now begins at 8.30 a.m., as with other stores, instead of 9 a.m., as formerly. In the course of putting the business on its feet he made salary adjustments, increasing some, but reducing none. Obviously I had nothing to do with this, though I approve of it.

I quite understand your taking notice of this matter. You are a Minister of the Crown, a member of the Mackenzie King Cabinet, and accustomed to dealing with matters of grave national concern!

J. W. WOODS.

Sir Jas. Woods Comes to Peck's Help

Profiteers and Mr. Peck are linked arm in arm. Big Interests realize their Peterborough Candidate needs assistance as campaign closes and rush reinforcements.

ANSWER TO SIR. JAMES

The mistake made by Sir James Woods in establishing his Dry Spun Yarn Industry was that he did not go to Sir Henry Drayton before it was established and ascertain whether a duty would be given in order to make its operation profitable. Because he failed to do that and safeguard the interests of his friends, who invested their money, and the Conservative Party refused to put a duty on such as Sir James Woods wants, he complains that the Liberal Party did not go further than the Conservatives.

DIDN'T ASK PROTECTION

The Machinery was ordered in 1916 for this plant, according to a letter I have from an officer of the Canadian Woollens, and Sir James Woods could in 1916, 1917, 1918, 1920 and 1921 have obtained the protection he sought if the Conservative Government was willing to give it to him.

We are importing twice as much wool as we did under Mr. Meighen in 1921.

The Raw Wool producers are not complaining any, because they are represented generally by the Progressives of the West.

THE REAL REASON

The Financial Post Survey says the real reason is, that in 1920, when Mr. Meighen was in power, the price of wool was so low it drove the sheep raisers nearly out of business, so Sir James Wood' camouflaged story falls to the ground.

My reply to Sir James Woods was not an attack upon the Hall store, as Mr. Woods seems to think, but an effort to show up the gentleman in his true colors, which I did.

All the men who are fighting Gordon and the Government in which he is a member are in the Big Interests class, and they all want something for nothing—something that would have to be paid out of the public funds.

Vote against the pernicious ring that is spending money like water to force on Canadian people a policy that would benefit none but themselves.

And vote for Gordon, who has got their backs up by his merciless denunciation of their tactics and plans.

Gordon will give the worker a square deal.

King Isn't Weeping

Splash in Globe and from Peterborou gh Conservatives about defaulting "Liberals" was one laugh too soon—the joker uncovered.

Capital was made by Mr. Peck's Pub licity Bureau yesterday of an advertisement in The Globe telling of the repudiation of Premi er King by "Liberal Business Men."

Their expressed opinion of the Liberal Party is heartily reciprocated by Liberals, for these men do not belong to the Liberal P arty. They are all rich men, whose businesses did not suffer under any Government. In other words, they are the "Big Interests."

TAKE THEM ONE BY ONE

John MacDonald, easily a millionaire, has not drawn a Liberal breath in twenty years.

A. T. Reid is a millionaire, Director of the Dominion Bank. He spends three months in the South in the Winter and the North in Summer. He left the Liberal Party in 1911, and gave due notice of quitting. His son, F. A. Reid, like his father, has two motor cars and he never voted Liberal once in his life.

Boyd Caldwell made a muss of the textile business, but he married the rich daughter of a Hotel proprietor, and is now manager of the Queen's. His successors in Perth, the Tayside Textiles, Ltd., are working full time and have ordered additional machinery to fill their orders

J. B. McCarter and his son hesitate daily which car they will use. They are rich beyond avarice.

TAKE THEM ALTOGETHER

These men explain the depression in certain businesses, if any exists. Instead of working six days a week like their fathers they are neglecting business for golf and motoring, spending money in a most extravagant manner. These men are in the moneyed class; they are the men who are demanding more and still more special privileges; they are the men against whom the Liberal Party and G. N. Gordon are crusading.

Yesterday's splash was just another dodge to befuddle the electors and delude them into supposing Premier King is being deserted by his party.

The laugh to-day is on the gullible folk who swallowed the story and paid to spread the fabrication.

Another example might be made of the mysterious "D. M. Sanson," the man who says under his advertisements, "I do not and never have belonged to any political organization whatsoever." He is President of Dominion Linens, Ltd., and of Chemical Products, Ltd., and he is peeved because the Government refused to grant a bounty out of the people's funds to help finance his factories.

But what's the use.

THEY'RE AFRAID OF GORDON

The fighting member from West Peterborough has tramped the toes of the Big Interests too often for their comfort. They are out to squelch him.

Word comes from Toronto that Sir Jamse Woods has a half page attack on G. N. Gordon in the newspapers there. It may be here to-day in this paper. Why?

Why should this financial magnate—this man who amassed several millions of dollars when Canada was going through war agony—this head of half a dozen big plants—why should this man single out our G. N. Gordon for attack?

HE IS AFRAID OF GORDON

Gordon is out to fight him and all the other profiteers and big interests that seek special privileges at the expense of the common people. He has been fighting them ever since he went into parliament.

Sir James knows Gordon allows no compromise with men who would exploit the Canadian people.

That's why.

Gordon showed up Canadian Woollens and its real cause of difficulty—it wasn't tariff but watered stock and poor planning.Mr. Woods didn't like that. It struck too near home.

Gordon pointed out how Sir James' newly found interest in the Hall store here was immediately followed by an increase in the working time of the girls employed there, without any increase in salaries, WHILE AT THE SAME TIME THE SALARIES OF THE HIGHER-UP OFFICIALS WERE INCREASED. That's the very thing Gordon objects to—taking from the workers to enhance the profits of the principals.

And so Sir James trains his guns on Peterborough and on G. N. Gordon.

IT IS A GREAT TRIBUTE

Nothing more satisfactory could have happened just now, showing as it does that Gordon is doing his work well.

G. N. Gordon has served Peterborough with ability; he is our member, and it is up to the voters of West Peterborough to support him if all the big interests in Canada were shouting for his head.

OLD-TIME ELECTIONS OFTEN MARKED BY MUCH VIOLENCE

EFFIGY BURNT.

Attempts Made By Losing Party to Steal Poll Book.

The present campaign in West Peterboro' has elicited enquiries as to previous elections, how and when held, candidates and other information. For little interest is taken in the men who flourished in the political arena of the days that are gone, and little remembered unless any one of them exerted himself to do that which is the chief end of all representatives from this riding, "get something for Peterboro'."

Party feeling has run much higher than in the present contest. In violence and vituperation, old campaigns have excelled. The press and fly sheets have both teemed with statements of the most vitriolic and libellous character, and were all taken in good part as being part of the game. A particularly exasperating time, to the local voters, was the election of 1867, the first after Confederation, when a Toronto lawyer, named John Gordon came into the riding, and sought the suffrage. The campaign culminated by an effigy of the Toronto man being hung from a tree at the corner of St. John's Church grounds and Hunter Street, where the school boys and sundry men stoned the figure on the morning of the polling day. Still he made a great run and the winner had a close call.

As to elections that we may claim to be our own, those of the earliest day were only partially so. This part of the district participated as being of the Colborne district, then newly erected —as the term is—from the boundaries of the old Newcastle district. The Colborne district included what is now the counties of Peterborough and Victoria, then joined for municipal purposes. Afterwards the counties were separated. The first election and one in which versatility and resourcefulness of the men of Peterborough was shown came on in 1841, the first of the new district elections for members of the Upper Canada House of Assembly. For years this election was famed, as an impartial eye witness describes the momentous occasion as "a scene of violence rarely exceeded among these exciting contests in the past, and which under amended election laws, it may be presumed, will be impossible in the future."

The election for the new district was held in Peterborough, and had its Headquarters in White's Hotel, situated just east of George Street, on the south side of Sherbrooke street. It is noticed that this hotel was situated contiguous to Day's Brewery, and the hotel was at time, a leading public house of call, and indeed a fashionable resort. In after years (1856 the brewery was burned, and the hotel caught fire from the brewery and ended in smoke and ashes, being at the time unused. The candidates were Col. Alex. McDonnel, Frederick Ferguson and Dr. John Gilchrist. All these men were exceedingly prominent in the district and were known to everyone. Col. McDonnel had been the guide, philosopher and friend to the Robinson immigrants, and Dr. Gilchrist was one of the men, who for sharing in the rebellion of 1837, had spent some time in jail, but that was no dishonor. Mr. Ferguson was of the town and was very well known, in fact afterwards a member of the first town council. The first named appeared as the Conservative, and the second in the Reform interest. As the election progressed it became evident that Dr. Gilchrist would be elected, for the voting was by the open vote method, where each voter came to the booth, and declared his intentions. As the polling lasted for at least three days, and only closed up when no more votes appeared, a plot was at once formed to break up the election and prevent his legal return. Peterborough numbered amongst its citizens a number of choice spirits ready for any mischief, in fact the place seemed to breed characters generously capable and willing to do any unpublic service, such as proposed. The conspirators including several respectable citizens, but heated partisans, met in a tavern that stood in a flat space, just west of the Otonabee bridge, in fact on the ground now covered by the Quaker Oats Company. There would be a choice of taverns, for three were so located. The plan was arranged that a well known man who at that time was acting as constable and door keeper of the room in which the poll was going on should be aware of the design. They were to approach in a body, the doorkeeper was to make a show of resistance, and be knocked down with his own consent. In the melee which would follow the poll book was to be seized and destroyed and thus the opposing party would be deprived of the only legal evidence of the election of their candidate.

The room was full of people among which were the candidates, and their agents, when the conspirators stealthily approached. On reaching the room a fierce show of fight was made, and the guardian of the poll book rolled over as if smitten by a thunderbolt. The books of the check clerks and other papers were speedily seized, but the presence of mind of the returning officer defeated their designs. On the first alarm he quietly slipped the poll book beneath and up under the back of his coat, and stood against the wall, well in safety, that the book might not drop down, and remained until the row had subsided. Whether from accident or otherwise, Dr. Gilchrist received a severe blow on the head from a stick from which he speedily recovered. But, balked of their design some of the more daring and reckless pursued the game still further. The returning officer occupied a room at White's hotel and on going out for the evening to dine with a friend, his room was entered and his valise cut open in the hopes of finding the coveted poll book within. But Captain Fraser, the returning officer had taken the book with him, anticipating some such action, and kept it in his possession, continually until the end of the election. The Chronicle deplored the act of the parties, and notes that the leader of the crew passed away in the year 1866, not in expiation of his crime, but in the natural course of events. Dr. Gilchrist was elected and remained the member for four years. Previous to this election there had been two memorable elections for members of the Newcastle district which embraced Peterborough and the territory adjoining, and to the east and west. The first was in 1834, for the Legislative Assembly of Upper Canada. The candidates were Col. McDonnel, James Gray Bethune and W. S. Conger, the latter at the time living in Cobourg, and in business, but afterwards removing to Peterborough, where he proved to be a citizen of real worth to the town. Col. McDonnel was elected. But the political hatchet was not to remain long buried. Things went wrong and two years afterwards, in 1836, the whole thing had to be fought over again, and from the Chronicle they must have had a whale of a time. The election was held at the hamlet of Sully, on the south shore of Rice Lake, and was the scene of much excitement. Two fresh candidates were enveigled to try a hand at the popular diversion and the field of four was as follows: Henry Ruttan (inventor of the then famous ruttan heater), Col. McDonnel, George M. Boswell and Dr. Gilchrist, who seemed, Irishman that he was, ready to throw his hat into the ring at any time. So strong was the feeling in Peterborough in favor of the candidates from Peterborough, that a number of leading Conservatives, clubbed together and raised a sunken steamer lying on the bed of the Otonabee river, near what is now known as Wedlocks, and had her fitted out to ply up and down the river for the conveyance of Voters. Temporary booths were erected in the vivinity of the polling place, where refreshments were served, while here and there at convenient distances the Free and Independent electors found whole barrels of whiskey standing on end, with the heads knocked out, and from which they drank at pleasure. These were evidently "droughty" days, but it must be remembered that the exigency of the occasion was great, the opportunity lavish, the hospitality unbounded, and the bibulous wants of the entire district had to be supplied. Of course scenes of violence, accompanied the copious libations, but happily no lives were lost. It may be remarked that, aided by the steamboat, the refreshments, and a host of versatile friends, Col. McDonnel was elected. Those were the days of open voting. Excesses grew notorious and 35 years afterwards the ballot was adopted. Stringent election laws regulated the proceedings, and brought in a new era, and new schemes for thought and action in the refinements of stuffing the ballot boxes. Boxes with false bottoms were devised and used by strategy. Legal battles have been held and much diversion made over the contentions of fraud and perversion until finally men gave it up and ceased to try and win by chicanery and fraud. Besides with the stringent laws, it grew too risky.

CROWD OF FANS REFLECTS PRIDE IN TEAM'S WORK

Game With Tigers in Hamilton November 7 Will Decide Issue.

OTTAWA, Ont., October 28.—(Canadian Press.)—The city is agog with Rugby chatter. When Ottawas resumed practice at Lansdowne Park yesterday afternoon an unusually big crowd of fans were on hand to see the local team step through their paces and unprecedented interest is being shown in the team's activities.

Not for many years has Ottawa had such a rosy chance to climb into the Rugby limelight of the Dominion. True, their good junior team stepped along to the finals last year, when the Toronto Canoe Club knocked them off for the Canadian title, but it is the big tour that carried interest in the capital. No predictions are being made. No assurances are being given out, and only hopes are being entertained. To get into a play off for the inter-provincial honors the Senators must conquer the Tigers once, while a double triumph over the Hamiltonians will mean a certain title. The Bengals are not being under-rated. There is no thought other than that a mighty argument must be expected in Hamilton on November 7th whether Ottawas win or lost.

McGill is here for an exhibition game on Saturday. McCann may decide to use his second string men against the Collegians for experience saving the regulars for the other games, and thus guarding against possible injuries at this stage of the race. On the other hand (and this the popular opinion), he will shoot his first team against the Shagmen, gaining interference experience and at the same time experimenting with new plays. This idea will be strength ened especially if the day is fine and the field fast. In heavy going precautions will be taken towards conserving strength for the crucial fixtures with the Hamilton team.

The local men, with the exception of Turman and Pritchard came out of the triumphal contest with M.A.A.A. in first class shape.

FINISH SECOND?

Withdrawal of Famous Players From Queen's in Spring Gives Encouragement.

MONTREAL, Que., Oct. 28 (Canadian Press)—McGill is definitely out of the running for the Inter-Collegiate Rugby championship and, with the squad resting till today, Rugby gossip around the campus has centred on the possibilty of the red and white finishing ahead of Varsity to take second place and also on the championship prospects for next year.

Regarding the two coming clashes with their traditional rivals of the University of Toronto, McGill footballers are saying little pending the outcome of the Queen's-Varsity struggle on Saturday.

Concerning next season when Queen's championship squad will be riddled by the graduation of ten stars, including their famous backfield pair, Batstone and Leadley, and the perennial Jack McKelvey, who has been cavorting in Intercollegiate rugby since before the war, McGill again has hopes.

The red and white will lose four regulars through graduation, Captain Philpott, Art Manson, Hammie Boucher and Cordner Wright, all line men. However, reports are already around of men expected to come up next season.

MONTREAL HAS LOST HOPE OF CHAMPIONSHIP

Nicholson to Make Special Effort to Win Second Place.

AT FULL STRENGTH.

Return Again to Daylight Practises—Start Was Made To-day.

MONTREAL, Que., Oct. 28 (Canadian Press) — Montreal has no chance of annexing the Interprovincial Rugby Union title, though they have an outside opportunity of finishing on the second rung. With this in view Coach Nicholson plans on a final big effort this week to prepare the team for the game here Saturday against Mike Rodden's Argonauts.

Nicholson has decided to re-arrange his backfield somewhat for the game to try and develop more speed in end runs. Jeff Russel is to be shifted back to the halfline on offensive plays and Wally Sheppard will be sent up to fill the quarter back role while Montreal has possession of the ball. Russel, however, will call all signals and generally direct the team, but in offensive movements he will shift paces with Sheppard, the latter taking the ball from the snapback to start the drives on their way.

In preparation for the game with the Toronto team, it has been decided to resort again to daylight practices, so starting today the winged wheelers were up at daylight for an hour or so of drilling.

Montreal will be back to full strength for the Argo game, but it is likely that some new players will be given a chance to show how they can stand up in senior company. With championship hopes gone, the winged wheel coach is looking to the future and has several intermediate players in view whom he would like to test.

JOCKEY MOUNTED A RIVAL'S HORSE

Curious Incident in a Steeplechase in Meet at Paris.

PARIS, Oct. 27 (Canadian Press) Piloting the favorite when the barrier was sprung, but astride an outsider near the finish was the hitherto unheard of turf experience of Jockey Herve at the Enghien track yesterday.

Fourteen horses were bunched at the Liverpool jump in the October steeplechase, the feature of the card, when Meissonier, the 4 to 1 public choice, and three other horses fell. The four riders were thrown chavily and more or less stunned, but Herve, who had the mount of Meissonier, extricated himself, leaped upon the nearest horse and went after the leaders.

The shouts of the crowd eventually brought home to him the fact that he had mounted the wrong horse and was now riding Souvenir, a 15 to 1 chance, while the favorite, riderless, was trailing the field. Herve finally pulled up and rode dejectedly into the paddock.

3 PRIZE FIGHTS ARE POSTPONED

Delaney's Sore Throat.

NEW YORK, Oct. 28 (Canadian Press)—Three championship fights tentatively arranged last week by promoter Tex Rickard for initial shows in the new Madison Square Garden had been temporarily shelved yesterday as a result of unexpected obstacles.

Following close on the breaking off of negotiations for a Harry Greb-Mickey Walker, middleweight title fight, announcement was made today that a proposed featherweight bout between the champion, Louis (Kid) Kaplan, and Babe Herman, California products, as well as a light heavyweight contest between Paul Berlenbach and Jack Delaney of Bridgeport, Conn., were in doubt.

The Kaplan-Herman fight, expected to be staged by Rickard on Dec. 18, in place of the Walker-Greb match, must await the outcome of Herman's fight with Honeyboy Finnegan in Boston, November 4. If the Pacific Coast fighter fails to win this bout Rickard has indicated that he will abandon plans for a return battle between the pair who not long ago fought a draw at Waterbury, Conn.

The Berlenbach-Delaney bout, scheduled for December 11, hinges on the condition of Delaney who recently underwent an operation for infection of the throat.

provide the food which Canadians need. The only possible excuse for throwing down the barriers was to cheapen living conditions and cheapening living conditions will not help the farmer. It would be a fair deal if the markets of other countries were available to the same extent as ours is to them, but the other countries are protected.

Gordon had visited places in the riding and he claimed to have done much for G. N. Gordon. At one time the city council of Peterborough had formulated a letter which was by way of being a petition which it hoped might have obtained some relief to the industries of the city. The letter was sent to G. N. Gordon at Ottawa, but he chose to ignore it utterly.

There was a period in the city's history when there had been a considerable shortage of water. There was not enough water to turn the generator machinery, and officials refused to lower the stop logs at the dams because of the danger to health conditions. It rained shortly afterward, restoring conditions to normal again, but Gordon took upon himself the credit, presumably, of obtaining the rain.

Reading an article which had appeared in a newspaper, Mr. McElderry said that many prominent Liberals were aligning themselves with the Conservative party. In this they had a good example, said the speaker, for Mr. Gordon himself was elected in 1917 on a Labor platform and since that time had shifted to a Liberal vehicle.

E. A. Peck.

Mr. Peck recalled election days of former years, telling of occasions on which he had confronted Keene audiences. The question which now confronted the electors, he thought was, "Are you in favor of the government of Mackenzie King" and that question involved many considerations.

King's proposed methods of dealing with the nation's problems had never been put in words. At Richmond Hill, where one might think that an explanation would be apt, not a word was said. As a matter of fact, he had no distinct plans. He said that he was embarrassed, because he lacked sufficient majority but if he had had any schemes for the improvement of the country, he should have submitted them, and if they had been good plans, in all likelihood they would have been adopted. In reality he had no plans and was again asking for the support of the people.

Trade depression was caused by want of action, and it was painful that men were forced to walk the streets and had no jobs while winter was coming on.

Voice: We'll take some on the farms.

Reply: They are artisans and will not work on the farms.

Voice: Yes, and they'll stay where they are as long as the city will feed them.

Reply: I'm afraid if King is returned to power, we will be obliged to feed a lot of them.

Voice: (———).

In Canada there was a wastage of opportunities for labor, declared Mr. Peck. Canada produced much raw material, but let it slip out of the country to be manufactured. If Canada was enabled to retain this material in the country for manufacture, it's problem to a large degree would be solved.

Great quantities of wheat goes out in its unground form. It goes largely to the States where American millers are paid to grind it into flour and thence it goes to the world's markets where the States can undersell Canada with Canada's own raw product.

The only way to build up the country was to adopt a system of adequate protection. Mr. Peck was confident that King had not acted with the interests of the State at heart and he also felt assured that the Conservative aspirant was providing the needed re-agent to bring about the reaction of Canadian prosperity. Assuring the electorate of his loyal and considerate representation, Mr. Peck concluded his address.

R. J. Soden.

"I don't give a hang how you vote. I don't care whether you vote Liberal or Conservative or Progressive or not at all, and I'm not here to tell you how to vote——

Voice: "Well, why don't you sit down then."

Mr. Soden: "——but I am going to tell you what any sane, right-thinking man would do on election day. I am no hard-shelled Tory and I vote for the man who is going to do my country and my business most good, and right now with me it is a question of whether we will succeed in putting the present government out or whether I shall leave the country." Thus Mr. Soden embarked on stormy voyage, in the course of which he was rewarded by sallies from the audience, brief chuckles of laughter, and the odd scattering of appreciative applause.

Regarding the coal situation, he stated a case which appeared to carry a certain amount of weight with his hearers.

"We have lots of coal in Alberta and we own a railroad which, sad to say, is in the hole at the end of every year. Why can we not induce our railroad to haul our coal to us and keep the money in the country. Thornton says he can't get enough freight to pay expenses, although the rates are more than double than they were a few years ago. Mr. Thornton's ideas differ widely from those of the C.P.R. which is willing to co-operate in national development. The case is something similar to the Peterborough Street Railway situation. You used to get six tickets for a quarter, now you pay seven cents a trip and just look at it!——

Would it not be a good idea to have our railway haul the coal. The haulage will not cost very much for it will have to pay the deficit in any case. A development of the Alberta coal fields would give the Westerners 11,000 extra people to feed and clothe——

Heckler: "The Senate wouldn't let them."

Mr. Soden: "Yes, that's something else the government's never done anything about."

The speaker continued by citing the position occupied by Canadian wheat and pulp. The United States had to have them, so why was there not an export duty placed upon those products which would force the American manufacturers to build their factories in Canada?

Admittedly Canada has the best wheat in the world, but the United States has the leading export flour trade and because work is done on a production basis, they are able to undersell Canada with her own raw product on a foreign market.

Britain was sufficiently astute to deal with the rubber situation in a manner highly unsatisfactory to the States. But curtailing the supply to a mere sufficiency, Britain was able to bring the price of rubber from the depths until the industry paid the concessionaires who held the trees. If we grow the best wheat in the world, said Mr. Soden, and America wants it, then make America pay for it. The same was true of the pulp export business. With a tribute to the character and ability of Mr. Peck, Mr. Soden completed his speech.

Fair Co-Eds Revive Custom Of Wearing Academic Gowns

TORONTO, Ont., Oct. 28.—(Canadian Press).—For several years past, fitful attempts have been made to revive the custom of wearing gowns to lectures in University College. Special days set aside for the reintroduction of the time-honored custom have proved of little avail in setting a permanent fashion, but at last it looks as though the old feminine craving to do whatever is being done is going to triumph where all others failed.

It has always been the custom at St. Hilda's and Trinity Colleges to wear gowns to lectures, and now that these colleges are on the campus, the St. Hilda's co-eds are seen in the halls of University College clad in the flowing academic gown. Already the U. C. co-eds are complaining that hats and coats are too heavy to be worn at lectures despite the fact that they have been wearing them to classes for years past.

To The Farmer and His Family

Just suppose a high tariff fence was built around Canada to stop other nations selling to us, would they want to buy any of the millions of bushels of wheat we now export, the thousands of head of cattle now going to the old country, the eggs, cheese, and butter that are now shipped out of this country? You bet they would not. They would buy these things from those who bought something from them, and the Canadain farmer would have his grain, hogs, cheese, butter, eggs and cattle to sell in Canada.

And as you produce hundreds of millions of dollars worth more than can be consumed in Canada, what would you get for your labor? A very small part of what you get now.

A country can't exist and do all the selling. It has got to buy, and it buys from those it sells its goods to.

Protection won't help you, but markets for your products will. Hem this country in with a high tariff wall and the farmer and artisan will smother.

Vote to-morrow for Gordon, a supporter of the King government, which is getting markets for your products and saving you extra taxes on things you buy.

VETERANS!

When Mr. Meighen was asked in Toronto what he was prepared to do for Returned Soldiers if he was put in power he answered: "We have done all we intend doing, and the question is closed."

This, remember, is the attitude taken by a man who held a cushy job at home while you were fighting for him. He is talking to YOU, every man who wore the Empire's khaki during the World War.

Do you remember that vote that was taken at the front—when you pushed your way through barbed wire and mud and shell holes to cast your war-time ballot? Mr. Meighen was a member of that Government you voted for because it promised a HOME LEAVE to the troops. The word was passed around that Mr. Meighen and his party would let the troops come home to Canada on leave. You remember, don't you?

Did you ever come? Did anyone but the red-hats ever come?

It Was Just an Election Dodge!

But it was a rather mean one, to fool the Canadian troops with the promise of a leave to see their families and escape the war for a time—and then throw them down.

We don't talk much of our patriotism or love for the Empire, we men who were overseas to vote at that election. BUT WE CANNOT OVERLOOK THE FACT THAT MEIGHEN IS THE MAN WHO IS OUT TO KILL EMPIRE TRADE BY REMOVING THE BRITISH PREFERENCE. And killing Empire trade would go a long way toward killing the Empire.

We did not get along very well, sometimes, with the Aussies—members of two proud countries are apt to quarrel about their respective worth. We were always glad to fight alongside them, but when they bragged and we bragged, back in billets, of the countries from which we came—well, we sometimes fell out. But we liked them, just the same. NOW MEIGHEN, WHO WAS HOLDING DOWN A SOFT GOVERNMENT JOB AT HOME, WOULD KILL OUR TRADE WITH AUSTRALIA AND SET OUR ANZAC COMRADES AGAINST US.

This Is The Kind of Man Who Says he is Through with You

And he is the man Mr. Peck asks you to support with your vote.

They throw rocks at Premier Mackenzie King, but we're going to break into their glass houses tomorrow. Premier King stood by the returned men when they needed help, and his Cabinet Minister here, George Gordon, has been the mainstay of Peterborough veterans. Here is what the present Government has done for returned men:

It has ensured that handicapped ex-soldiers may the more readily find employment. The Government has provided from the date of assuming office that employers be reimbursed for premiums payable under the Workmen's Compensation Acts of the various Provinces, thus relieving employers of all responsibilities for accidents compensable under such Acts, and relieving an objection to their employing handicapped ex-soldiers.

On July 22nd, 1922, the Ralston Royal Commission of Pensions and Re-establishment were appointed, and conducted an exhaustive enquiry. Many important recommendations were made, and these recommendations have guided the Liberal Government in determining its policy, and have brought substantial direct benefits to ex-soldiers.

The Federal Appeal Board was created on August 17th, 1923, for the purpose of receiving appeals from decisions of the Board of Pensions Commissioners disallowing claims for pension. The total adjustments made as a result of Federal Appeal Board awards to September 1st, 1925, have brought financial benefit to 221 cases, involving an expenditure of $269,949.59, and an added annual pension liability of $96,847.68.

For the purpose of assisting soldiers who desired to file their claims with the Federal Appeal Board, official soldier advisers were appointed for the various districts, these advisers being selected after consultation with veterans' organizations.

An amendment to the Pensions Act was passed on June 27th, 1925, which provided:

(a) That the extra cost of living bonus be permanently added to the pensions awarded.

The annual liability of the Government for these pensions, as at August, 1925, was $20,769,503.00.

Notwithstanding the very large numbers of pensioners who have commuted their pensions and received final payment, and also the numbers that have died, the annual liability of the Federal Government has increased by more than two and three-quarter million dollars since the present Government assumed office.

(b) Provided a clothing allowance of $54.00 per annum to all leg amputation cases and $22.00 to arm cases.

This provision has affected 3,170 amputation cases, and has increased the Federal Government's annual liability in respect of disability pensioners as at August 31st, 1925, by $142,427.00.

Amputation cases have been re-classified so that those with a shorter stump get an addition to their pensions. This has affected 2,049 amputation cases, and increased the Federal Government's annual liability, as at August 31st, 1925, by $192,524.00.

Pensions have been given to many ex-soldiers that previously had not received them. Four thousand, five hundred and eighty disability pensioners have been awarded pensions from April 1st, 1922, to June 30th.

It has reinstated pensions that have been commuted, making many of them retroactive. Three thousand, two hundred and ninety-six disability pensioners have been reinstated on pension from April 1st, 1922, to June 30th, 1925.

Has replaced many discontinued pensions.

In many cases men have died after being certified as having no disability or one not aggravated by service; on appeal by the widows, pensions have been allowed them and made retroactive. One poor woman's husband's body was exhumed and his death proved as the result of his war service, and she was awarded no less than $7,000.00.

This splendid record effectively answers all criticism of the Government in its treatment of the returned soldier. We always had a courteous and sympathetic hearing from the Liberal Government. No veteran with a record overseas ever appealed to George Gordon in vain.

VOTE FOR GORDON, and against the man who declared he would do nothing more for returned soldiers. You have the last say—show Mr. Meighen the question is NOT closed.

TWO CANDIDATES FAVOR TEMPERANCE

Messrs. Maybee and Slade Answer Prohibition Union Letters.

NORHAM, October 27. — M. E. Maybee and F. J. Slade, the two candidates who are contesting the riding of Northumberland, have both declared themselves in favor of supporting measures to secure Dominion wide prohibition. Although the temperance question does not seem to be an issue of the present contest, Rev. J. S. I. Wilson, of Brighton, who is the president of the Prohibition Union for East Northumberland, addressed a letter of inquiry to each of the candidates, and received the following replies from Mr. Maybee and Mr. Slade respectively.

From Mr. Maybee.

"I fully concur with your expression that the Federal Government has in no way assisted in the enforcement of the O.T.A. but rather the reverse. It should not be necessary to ask my views on the temperance issue, as I have always consistently supported any measure in that regard and I have no reason to change my attitude. It appears to me that my sincerity is being questioned through no fault of mine."

(Signed). M. E. MAYBEE.

From Mr. Slade.

"Your letter of the 7th October was duly received. I have in the past, as you are aware, always voted favorably on all of the plebiscites and also for the abolition of the bar, and I doubtless will maintain the same attitude in the future on any prohibitory legislation."

(Signed) F. J. SLADE.

LOWER FOOD COSTS

G. N. Gordon scored a real victory when the Minister of Finance announced that the tax on oatmeal, rolled oats and cornmeal, whether in packages or in bulk, had been removed. Mr. Gordon registered strong protest against these taxes, declaring at the time that it would ruin the package industry if the tax was maintained. The concession by the Government shows the strength of his argument.—Toronto Globe.

British Must Have Same Facilities as French to Leave Damascus.

LONDON, October 28. — Canadian Press. — While the British authorities, owing to the delicacy of their relations with the French in the Near East, and the existence of Arab agitation in Palestine, deprecate strong comments in the press on the shelling of Damascus, much concern and concealed indignation exists here and diplomatic steps already are being taken.

British Consul Smart in Damascus has been ordered to draw up a list of damage to British property, and present it to the mandatory power — France—for payment, and the French will be asked for assurance that in case of future trouble British subjects will be given the same facilities to escape danger as the French.

Shells were rained on the city of Damascus without warning to the foreign population, according to the British consular reports.

Government Specifies That Pulp Wood Cut Must Be Finished in Canada.

MAY SELL PINE.

TORONTO, Oct. 27 (Canadian Press) —Tenders were awarded at the Parliament Buildings yesterday to the Thunder Bay Pulp and Paper Company, the Provincial Mills Limited and the Nipigon Corporation, for timber cutting rights in the Nipigon Limits, along the lines announced by Hon. James Lyons, Minister of Lands, in his recent speech at Fort William. Each of these three concerns receives the rights on areas comprising from 1,300 to 1,800 square miles.

In all cases prices range from $2 to $2.25 per cord for pulpwood and from $6 to $8 a thousand feet for Jack pine. Two other tenders in connection with the limit have as yet to be awarded, but the details have not been worked out. The three areas let yesterday all surround the district of Lake Nipigon.

For the first time in history the Government reserves the right to sell standing Jack pine to other operators on the areas let. Another feature is that the government leases specify that the product of pulp must be finished into newsprint in Canada.

FRENCH CABINET BRINGS A CLIMAX

HELD MEETING.

PARIS, Oct. 27 (Canadian Press). —The French cabinet resigned to-day, bringing to a climax the critical situation arising from M. Caillaux' financial plans.

Premier Painleve informed the president that the cabinet could not continue its work of restoring French finances without being assured of a favorable majority in parliament. The decision of the ministers to resign was unanimous. It was caused by the attitude taken by the Radical and Socialist parties at their recent congress in Nice, where the principle of a tax levy on capital was adopted.

The Painleve Ministry was formed on April 16 of this year, to succeed that of Edouard Herriot, which also went down through the refusal of parliament to accept its financial policy.

Like its predecessor, the cabinet which steps down to-day, depended for its parliamentary majority largely on the parties of the left, including the Radicals and Radical-Socialists.

Joseph Caillaux, Painleve's Minister of Finance, and one of the outstanding personalities of the Government, has steadfastly resisted the left bloc in its desire to resort to a levy on capital as a means of lifting France out of its financial difficulties.

Premier Painleve told the correspondents upon leaving the presidential palace that he would follow M. Doumergue's instructions, whatever they might be. He would form a new cabinet if so requested, or would collaborate heartily with any other statesman the President might call to power.

M. Painleve added that the decision to resign was taken last Friday but that it was withheld in order to give Foreign Minister Briand as "main negotiator" of the Locarno agreements an opportunity to preside over the League of Nations Council at its sitting here on the Greco-Bulgarian dispute.

AT THE CAPITOL

OLD ROME REBUILT FOR GIGANTIC FILM

Many of the huge "sets" in First National's new and gigantic version of "Quo Vadis," now showing at the Capitol Theatre, were the identical same wherein Nero actually staged his wholesale debaucheries with the beauty and nobility of Rome 1,900 years ago. Wen the plans for the stupendous production were being drawn up, it was found that many of the classic ruins of Rome's ancient pomp and splendor, which still stand as the meccas of tourists, could be utilized with but slight temporary reconstruction. And the Italian government sanctioned this work in the interest of the advancement of the film industry in Italy.

MILTON SILLS PRAISES CANADIAN HOSPITALITY

Canada's woods are strangely quiet these days in the vicinity of Temiskaming, 150 miles north of Ottawa.

The reason—the Earl Hudson unit of First National, which was in Canada for six weeks filming lumber scenes in 'The Knockout," with Milton Sills in the stellar role, has returned to New York. Practically everybody in the section of Canada visited co-operated with the movie-makers, and anything wanted for the picture was provided without delay.

"I have never received such treatment or saw such a spirit of co-operation," declared Sills later.

"The Knockout" will be First National's attraction at the Capitol Theatre tomorrow.

AT THE REGENT

"THE BANDIT'S BABY."

If laughter is healthy as the doctors contend, then "The Bandit's Baby," Fred Thompson's latest starring production for F. B. O. is the most healthy and wholesome picture of recent memory!

It will be shown for the first time locally at the Regent Theatre to-morrow and if ever a movie deserved the appellation "a howling success," this one does.

The audience roared, rocked, howled, bellowed, guffawed and chuckled from start to finish; such time as they were not thrilled with the melodramatic rides, rescues and stunts of the inimitable Thomson. Silver King also has a big part in both the comedy and the thrills.

"The Bandit's Baby" revolves laregly in its unusual plot around the situation of an outaw who is granted an amnesty of one day to ride in a rodeo for the honor of his old home town. A baby show, which is scheduled for the day of the rodeo, needs a judge badly—largely because the proud fathers whose offspring are to compete believe in the rule of the 6-shooter, even where judges are concerned. Each is insistent that his child shall win. "The Bandit" finally has to act as judge, and no sooner is this delightful comedy sequence over than more entanglements are piled upon him in the shape of a baby which is "wished" on him and for which he and "Silver King" are forced to care. This breeds a lot more amusement.

Fred Thompson and "Silver King" are seen at their best—and that is plenty. Del Andrews is responsible for directing the picture, which has been well cast. Marion Jackson wrote the scenario from an original story by Leete Renick Brown and everybody connected with the production deserves lots of credit for a rattling entertainment.

AT THE GRAND.

ABIE'S IRISH ROSE.

Lovers of all that is clean and wholesome in stage productions have a treat in the engagement of Ann Nichols' amazingly successful comedy of laughter, "Abie's Irish Rose," which will be presented at the Grand Opera House for three nights beginning Thursday, October 29th, with matinee Saturday, October 31st.

The play is now in its third year in New York, at the Republic Theatre, and is still playing to capacity audiences; while in Chicago, where it has been running at the Studebaker Theatre for going on two years, seats are still being sold sixteen weeks in advance. Of cities like Baltimore, Washington, Pittsburgh, Cleveland, Cincinnati, Columbus, Toronto, Montreal, Buffalo and Syracuse is a matter of record this wonderful perennial has played from ten to forty-two consecutive weeks in each place, while is has played in some of the smaller places known as one-night stands and stayed from three nights to three weeks to capacity business.

The play is in three acts, based upon the experience of a young Jew of the modern school, who marries a pretty Irish girl. Although the wedding ceremony was first performed by a Methodist Minister, later by a Jewish Rabbi, and then, to make sure, by a Catholic Priest, the wealthy Irish father of the bride, and the equally wealthy Hebrew father of the groom, hating each other's race and faith, storm and rage in an endeavor to annul the series of marriages, and finally cast the children off. In the last act, at the humble home of the young people, now parents themselves, on Christmas eve, the various characters assemble, and while for a time the possibilities of peace look very much like continued war, the Rabbi and Priest calm the troubled waters, and everything ends happily and all reunited. Such a simple story on which is hung a series of hilarious complications impossible adequately to describe, but one which turns the audience out of the theatre happily exhausted through a riot of laughter.

Its psychology has been a matter of much discussion in schools, houses, clubs, and wherever people gather, among the Clergy college faculties, lawyers and doctors who have agreed that its lesson of tolerance is one of the greatest teachings that the stage has yet produced.

Miss Nichols will present to the theatregoers of this city her company and production which recently played eight weeks at the Gayety Theatre in Rochester, thereby giving them the opportunity of seeing her fascinating and appealing comedy at its best.

SOFIA, Oct. 28 — (Canadian Press).—Despite the warnings of the League of Nations Council, Greek troops at daybreak continued to occupy Bulgarian territory and there were no signs that they intended to withdraw. Bulgarian officials in making this announcement said a number of villages were bombarded during the early morning hours. Extracts from articles in the Turkish press are published to show that there is a sentiment in Turkey favoring intervention to protect Bulgaria from Greek aggression.

Steel Stock Rebounds After Early Heaviness

NEW YORK, Oct. 28 (Canadian Press)—Stock prices rallied sharply after an earlier period of heaviness in today's market, early selling which was most effective in motors and steels, was inspired by the continuance of relatively stiff call money rates. The recovery was aided by a series of favorable dividend announcements, including a declaration of an extra dividend of $1 on American Tobacco A and B stocks, the annual rate on which was raised from $7 to $8. Realizing sales carried Steels lower at the start, but they rebounded briskly when a strong demand developed for Gulf States. General Electric extended a gain to 12 points, Federal Mining and Smelting preferred to 9, and Reid Ice Cream, Woolworth, U. S. Realty and Ginter stores sold 4 to 7 points higher; Rails were quiet.

McIntyre Features Weak Toronto Stock Exchange

TORONTO, Oct. 28 (Canadian Press) — With the activity spread over an exceptionally broad list the market turned decidedly weak on the Toronto stock exchange this morning. Smelters and Steamships preferred were leaders and Steamships sold down two and three quarters to 37 1-4. Smelters, after selling at 166 closed unchanged at 165. British Empire Steel second preferred lost one and an eighth at 12 3-4 and first preferred three quarters at 35 1-4. Atlantic Sugar ceased a point, as did Twin city. Strong spots were Duluth, selling up one and an eighth at 33 1-8 and Shredded Wheat a point higher. McIntyre was the feature of the whole, climbing up to 22.25 and closing at 21.90 for a gain of dollar and thirty cents.

Gold and Silver Issues Were Lapped Up Quickly

TORONTO, Oct. 28 (Canadian Press).—Gains far out-numbered the losses in this morning's heavy trading on Standard Stock and Mining Exchange, the advances ranging all the way from fractions up to a dollar. The extreme jump was made by McIntyre at 21.75. More than three thousand shares changed hands and at one time in the session it reached the high mark of 22.30, profit taking bringing about a reaction towards the end of the session, all the leading gold stocks showed advances, Dome moving 32 cents to 16.00, Lake Shore 15 to 8.10 and Hollinger and Vipond 5 to 17.40 and 1.25 respectively. The buying spread to the silvers. Canadian Lorrain jumping 4 1-2 points to 68, and Keeley 5 to 1.55. McKinley-Darraght, the most active stock during the mornings trading dropped 4 points to 21 1-2.

Australian Reports Cause Jump in Chicago Wheat

CHICAGO, October 28. (Canadian Press.—Wheat scored sharp new advance in price to-day despite some show of weakness at the start. The advance was accompanied by active purchasing on the part of a Chicago speculator, who has recently been on the selling side. Meanwhile reports from Australia were current that rain is urgently needed in Victoria and in New South Wales to insure filling of the grain. On the other hand the hesitating action of the market at the outset was apparently due to a relative indifference displayed at Liverpool concerning yesterday's up-turn in values on this side of the Atlantic. Chicago opening prices, which ranged from 7-8c decline to 3-8c advance; new style, Dec. 149 3-8 to 150, and May 145 5-8 to 145 3-4, were followed by slight further setback in some cases and then by a rise to 152 for Dec. and 149¾ for May.

IN MEMORIAM.

In loving memory of Cecil, youngest son of Mr. and Mrs. James Lebar, who departed this life four years ago to-day:
When alone in our sorrows the bitter tears flow,
There stealeth a dream of the dear long ago,
And, unknown to the world, he stands by our side,
And whispers these words: "Death cannot divide."
Peacefully sleeping, resting at last,
The world's weary troubles and sorrows are past;
In silence he suffered, in patience he bore,
Till God called him home to suffer no more.

I APPEAL TO THE MEN AND WOMEN who have the responsibility of safeguarding the home and the circle of children there, to protect that home from the invisible entrenched interests seeking to destroy the national ownership of our railways and to increase the burden of taxation upon the wage earners' shoulders.

MY RECORD OF BATTLING against the taxation of food and of the other necessities of life, prove my pledges were fulfilled.

AND WITH THE HELP AND COUNSEL of those who believe that human rights should be first protected, we will be successful tomorrow in the great crusade.

"We cannot have a high tariff in Canada for the most obvious reasons.

"In the first place a high tariff is unsound in principle in that it tends to eliminate one of the factors of competition, namely, foreign goods.

SMITH FARMERS HEAR SPEAKERS FOR MR. GORDON

Messrs. Wearing, Shield and Holloway Addressed Electors.

DISCUSS TARIFF.

Its Effects on Farmers and Factories Taken Up.

At a well attended gathering at the Temperance Hall on the 4th Line of Smith last evening, Messrs. W. R. Shield, Joseph Wearing and Dr. W. T. Holloway spoke in the interests of Hon. G. N. Gordon. Mr. E. Mahood acted as chairman. The first speaker, Dr. Holloway, said that the different factories in Peterborough were every month becoming busier under the present tariff and he cited the Westclox Co. as an example of an industry which had come to Peterborough because of the British preference and stated that this business would be ruined if the British preference were abolished, as promised by Mr. Meighen. The speaker also gave many illustrations to show that Mr. Gordon had always worked in the best interests of the county of Peterborough, and he declared that after being appointed a Minister he should have been given this election by acclamation.

Mr. W. R. Shield of Smith Township stated that he did not belong to either party, but he said that he admitted that the King Government had taken some steps toward helping the farmer. He also stated that while he had never worked for Mr. Gordon before, he intended to support him at this election.

Mr. Wearing went fully into the different factors which go to make a country prosperous, and said that the lowering of the tariff on instruments of production was already showing its effect in the gradual improvement in all lines of industry. He also said that the high tariff policy promised by Mr. Meighen would inevitably increase the cost of living, increase dissatisfaction on the part of the prairie and maritime provinces without any compensating benefits except to the big corporations of Toronto and Montreal.

In conclusion, the speaker told of the kind of Cabinet Mr. Meighen would have if returned to power, saying that his right hand men would be Mr. Patenaude of Quebec who was the declared enemy of the Canadian National Railways, and Hon. Bob Rogers, of Manitoba, whose record was well known to the people of Canada.

The meeting closed with three cheers for the King.

MR. PECK'S MESSAGE

To the men and women of West Peterborough who will to-morrow decide upon their representative in the next Parliament of Canada, I wish to express my thanks for kindly hearings, courteous receptions and many friendly words of encouragement during the campaign.

I have tried to honestly discuss the issue as I see it and to truthfully outline the best policy for Canada as my judgment prompts me.

I am not promising to do this, that or the other thing for this, that or the other section of West Peterborough, because I do not propose to attempt to bribe the voters with their own money.

I firmly believe that the policy of Protection, upon which the Conservative Party is appealing to the country to-morrow, is the policy that Canada needs to bring better times for industrial workers, business men and farmers alike, and to-night, on the eve of the election, I commend it to you as entirely worthy of support.

I leave the issue in your hands.

Yours Sincerely,

E. A. PECK

BRITISH PREFERENCE DEFENDED, KING CONTRASTS MEIGHEN WITH FORMER CONSERVATIVE LEADERS

Premier Says Tory Chief's Announcement Will Cost Him Thousands of Votes.

ALBERTA COAL.

Might Go Up To $50 Per Ton if Tariff Imposed.

SCHOMBERG, Oct. 29 (Canadian Press).—In the northwest corner of North York constituency, Premier King continued his campaign yesterday afternoon.

Mr. King said he would have liked to spend the entire campaign in North York, but because of his position this had been impossible.

"I was astonished to find what Mr. Meighen said last night," said the Premier. "Mr. Meighen had said that the British preference was wrong in principle. 'I wonder what The Toronto Telegram would have said if I had made a statement of that kind in Kitchener of all places. If I am not mistaken, that statement will cost Mr. Meighen hundreds of thousands of votes, for the people of Canada are British above everything."

The former leaders of the Conservative party had been men who had worked in the interests of the British connection.

Mr. Meighen's policy was one which would divide Canada. Mr. Meighen dare not speak in Quebec province.

"He had to go through Quebec to the Maritimes, but think of having to pull down the blinds of the train when going through Quebec," said the Premier. The Conservative leader referred to the Progressives as though they were not civilized people. How could Mr. Meighen hope to create national stability of unity by taking such an attitude. The Premier predicted the return of the Government with a great majority.

No matter how cold our winter might be, Mr. Meighen would make it impossible for Canadians to get coal from the United States, but insist that Canadians boost the Canadian coal at any cost.

"We want to have Alberta coal here, but if it is going to send up the price we will think twice. I would expect to see it go to $40 or $50 a ton if a tariff was put on."

Factories and railways would have to pay more for fuel and raise costs of production generally.

Mr. King told of the removal of the cattle embargo. The real reason for the lifting of the embargo was that Canada has been able to point to the prefence given to British goods in Canada and asking Great

Both Leaders In Ottawa Awaiting Election Result

OTTAWA, Oct. 29 Canadian Press).—Both Premier King and Rt. Hon. Arthur Meighen, leader of the Conservative Opposition, will receive the election results in Ottawa. Premier King has had a special telegraph wire installed in his offices, in the east block to get the returns promptly.

Pope Pius Approves Stand Of Pilgrims Against Fashion

ROME, Oct. 29. (United Press) —Addressing a pilgrimage from the International Congress of Women's Leagues, Pope Pius congratulated the women on Wednesday, on their world-wide campaign against indecent dress.

"It is not only a question of fighting immoral fashions," said His Holiness, but it is also a question of opposing the inclination toward such fashions.

"Everything tending to weaken young souls through the allurement of fashion must be sternly oppressed."

GOVERNMENT OF FRANCE IS URGED TO RECALL SARRAIL FROM SYRIA

Dissatisfaction in Paris at Failure of Famous Soldier to Report.

MANY LOSSES.

Premier Conferred With President and Discussed Advisability of Taking Step.

PARIS, Oct. 29 (Canadian Press) Premier Painleve, though burdened with a political crisis at home, gave some attention today to the Syrian situation. He conferred with the President of the Republic on the subject, but had little to say for public consumption.

"Annoying events have taken place in Syria, and the government is taking necessary steps to remedy the situation," was all M. Painleve would say concerning reports that Damascus was in a state of open warfare against the French mandatories. He added, however, "dispatches from foreign sources have been exaggerated."

"We hear nothing from General Sarrail (the French High Commissioner in Syria)," remarked an official of the Ministry of War in reproachful tone when asked whether the report was true that the foreign colonies in Damascus had been requested by the French military authorities to leave the city. Gen. Sarrail's silence, while events qualified by the Premier as "annoying," and which, according to the Premier's own admission before the Chamber committee of finance last week resulted in casualties of more than 6,000 is causing open criticism in official circles formerly well disposed toward the High Commissioner.

General Sarrail's request for reinforcements is not denied, and it is understood that steps have been taken to send additional troops. But, owing to the dissatisfaction concerning the manner in which Sarrail had handled the situation, strong pressure is being brought to bear on the government to compel his recall. The Premier's talk with the president this afternoon dealt with the advisabilty of bringing back the commander-n-chief.

The French papers now admit that the destruction was very heavy and the loss of life great in the revolt at Damascus on October 19, and they are clamoring for Sarrail's removal.

Robbers Seize Truck Load Of Laskey's Pre-War Stuff

NEW YORK, Oct. 29. — Canadian Press. — When a car loaded with whiskey and rare liquors owned by Jesse K. Laskey, the film promoter, arrived in New York from Hollywood, robbers held up the truck driver and made off with the cargo. The liquor, which was being transported under government license, was pre-war, and said to be worth $10,000.

PAPERS SEIZED 4 MEN CHARGED

Miniature Mussolinis Appeared in Mansion House Court of Justice.

MONOCLED FACIST.

LONDON, Oct. 29 (Canadian Press).—In connection with a recent seizure in Fleet Street early in the morning of a motor van containing copies of the Labor paper The Daily Herald, four young men were charged in the Mansion House justice room yesterday with stealing and receiving a motor van containing 8,000 copies of The Herald.

Three of the defendants had surrendered themselves to the authorities voluntarily. Two of these described themselves as battalion comcanders and the third accused man said he was a warrant officer in the national Fascisti. They all wore black shirts. One of them was distinguished by wearing a monocle.

The fourth accused was only 17 years of age. Previous to his arrest he had bragged about his exploit to the Fascisti headquarters, and the police told the magistrate that he owed his arrest to his own foolishness. He was discharged from custody.

The trial of the other three was adjourned.

WEATHER

There was a touch of genuine winter weather this morning. At daybreak the thermometer was at 12 degrees, while during the night it had been down to nine. Unseasonably cold weather has been general during the last few weeks, but perhaps it has not been an unmixed blessing in Canada owing to the heated election contests prevalent from one end of the Dominion to the other. Over four inches of wet snow fell yesterday and there would have been sufficient for sleighing if the ground had been frozen.—W. P.

VOTING TO-DAY WILL BE HEAVY ALL OVER RIDING

Voters Started Early For the Polls—Transport Well Organized.

RESULT CLOSE.

General Opinion is That Neither Candidate Will Have Big Lead.

Along the far-flung battle line from the village of Kinmount up at the north-west corner of the county to the hamlet of Villiers down at the south-east corner the political adversaries fought to-day for a decision in the campaign that closes this evening at six o'clock. Reports from the country were meagre, but those that did trickle in conveyed the idea that the rural vote was to be fairly heavy, in spite of the first touch of winter.

It was here in Peterboro, and to a lesser extent in Lakefield, that the opposing forces were concentrated, and from all accounts the plans of action for the last final drive started swiftly and effectively from both camps early this morning. Fleets of cars were being operated from the two headquarters, and the noon reports indicated that an exceptionally heavy vote was being polled in Peterboro and its suburbs and also in Lakefield.

The general opinion of the street was that the result would be close either way. Here and there rumors cropped up telling of a big swing one way or the other, but neutrals piecing together the estimates they heard were inclined to the belief that the winner's majority would not run to four figures, and that it would be in the smaller hundreds. Of course those who were ticking off the work of the scrutineers pro-

MURDERER MAY BE DISCOVERED BY BLOODHOUND

No Trace of Assassin Who Slew Bank Manager and Wife.

FUTILE CLEWS.

Belief That Fiend Was Injured in the Death Struggle.

MONTREAL, Que., Oct. 29.—(Canadian Press).—Having made no apparent headway towards the solution of the double slaying at Rougemont last week-end, when Charles and Sarah Bernard were battered to death with some blunt instrument in their home over the Banque Canadienne Nationale, of which Mr. Bernard was manager, Provincial detectives engaged on the case decided to use bloodhounds to-day in an endeavor to follow the now invisible track left by the murderer, who escaped from the house and made off through the fields. When first discovered the tracks bore unmistakable marks of blood, but after following them for several hundred yards the investigators lost them, owing to the snow and rain that had fallen. However, it is hoped that the dogs, after being given the scent of the victims' garments and the articles handled by the assassin, may be able to lead the detectives to at least the point where he boarded a train or automobile.

Varying Theories.

In some quarters the belief was expressed that the crime was committed by a woman, but few people take this view. The killer, it is pointed out by those familiar with the condition of the house and bodies, must have been an exceptionally strong man or a maniac.

Glucose and Saline Solution Bring Life To Vacated Bodies

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., Oct. 29. — United News. — Restoration of activity to patients in whom no signs of life could be discerned, is not uncommon now, according to reports read to the Eastern Society of Anaethetists in convention.

Such restoration is accomplished through the use of specialized anaesthetic machines provided with highly developed artificial respiratory apparatus, and also by injections of new life-giving glucose and saline solutions, it was explained.

FORKE FIRES LAST MINUTE GUN ANNOUNCES DEMAND OF WEST AND CALLS FOR NATIONAL UNITY

French Warning Ends Sharp Drop In Franc

PARIS, Oct. 29 (AP) — The drop in the franc was brought to a sharp halt today by Government intervention in the market and a grave warning to speculators in the form of criminal proceedings opened by the Minister of Justice against unnamed parties for illicit exportation of capital.

Finance Minister Caillaux allowed the franc to reach twenty-five to the dollar before deciding to make use of the Morgan loan, having, according to information around the Bourse, caught some French bankers largely short of francs on foreign exchanges, principally Amsterdam.

Claims Progressives To Be Only Party That Will Reduce Taxes.

H. B. RAILWAY

Stands Four Square For Public Ownership of National Lines.

BRANDON, Man., Oct. 29 (Canadian Press)—Robert Forke, Progressive leader, campaigning in his own constituency on the eve of the election, issued the following manifesto to the electors.

"The electors are now confronted with political and economical problems of great magnitude. It is desirous that serious consideration be given to the questions now under discussion. Dissatisfaction with existing conditions in relation to public affairs found expression in the Progressive movement four years ago. It was born of sincere desire to effect reforms that were essential to the well being of the primary industries and the people generally.

"The Progressives cannot, at this time afford to abandon their efforts to have these policies adopted and will endeavor, in the future to oppose measures not acceptable to Progressive electors.

"The people of western Canada want the tariff reduced and the burden upon the people lightened—and the only hope of having this done will be the sending of a solid Progressive group to Ottawa, to uphold and support those principles that will benefit the west and best serve the interests of all Canada.

"The Conservative party is definitely pledged to raise the tariff, and it is doubtful if any further reduction of the tariff is likely to be carried into effect by the Liberal party as at present constituted.

"If the people of Western Canada want the Hudson's Bay Railway completed, they must support Progressive candidate. The record of the Progressive group in the last parliament is sufficient evidence of the sincerity of their efforts to have this done in the immediate future. The promises made by the leaders of the old parties are not sufficently definite to justify confidence that the government will complete this important undertaking without further delay.

"The Progressives in the past have stood firmly for public ownership of the Canadian National Railways and for a reduction of the capitalization to an amount in keeping with their actual value, from an economic point of view.

"The whole question of transportation is one of vital importance to

CONFERENCE ON DISARMAMENT MAY FOLLOW BALKAN SETTLEMENT

League Will Endeavour to Make Security Agreement For All Europe.

GREECE CENSURED.

Latest Reports Indicate More Fighting Between Detachments on Border.

PARIS, Oct. 29. — (Canadian Press).—A neutral demilitarized zone between Greece and Bulgaria, with commissions of conciliation for the regulation of all local conflicts in the Balkans, may be one of the fruits of the settlement of the Balkan crisis by the Council of the League of Nations.

Giving a spur to the Balkan states' ambition to elaborate the security pact, the Council will probably undertake to establish principles to guide the Balkan statesmen in handling any future difficulties, and will exert all its influence to have the Locarno security agreement with Germany supplemented not only by a Balkan arrangement, but also by security pacts between other sections of Europe.

Thus will it hasten the convocation of a disarmament conference, which the Locarno protocol hailed as one of the hoped for results of the achievement of security.

The Balkan crisis, which came at the psychological moment in the new peace impulse given to European politics, has taken on international significance which entirely overshadows the conflict between Greece and Bulgaria. Four great powers, France, Great Britain, Italy and Japan, and six lesser powers, representing both the European and American continents, which altogether make up the membership of the Council, solemnly registered yesterday their conviction and determination that henceforth conciliation and arbitration and not thunder of cannon must be resorted to when disputes arise between states.

Dangerous Doctrine.

Greece's plea that she had invaded Bulgaria for reasons of defence clearly grated on the Council, every member of which backed up M. Briand in his declaration that it was indeed a dangerous doctrine to pursue a policy of invasion, even in the case of alleged provocation, when all machinery was at the disposal of nations for the regulation of quarrels by conciliation and arbitration.

What the Council of the League of Nations informed Greece and the entire world yesterday was that defensive warfare in another country's territory is both a dangerous and impossible procedure.

It is apparent that by yesterday's unanimous condemnation of the employment of force the Council wished to lay down a policy which, when applied to both small and big nations, and this remains as the fact of outstanding significance in the developments.

HERRIN RISES A CITY OF HOPE

Dirt and Enmity Vanish and Citizens Turn to Homes and Religion.

RELIGIOUS REVIVAL.

HERRIN, Ill., Oct. 29. — (Associated Press).—A sign in a store window reads: "Former Herrin tailor returned; firm under a new name."

It is a sign of the times in Herrin. Change the name and there would be few visible indications that here is the town which wrote its name in blood. They are returning to Herrin—the people who went away while the "war" raged—and the town is trying to heal its wounds. Ten widows, 28 orphans and 13 dead men are hard to forget.

Among many reasons for the town's come-back these are outstanding: Elimination of the champion gun toters; a religious revival; a return of activity in the coal fields

Bank Deposits Grow.

There are many other signs of regeneration. Bank deposits in two weeks this fall jumped $50,000. Two chain stores have opened branch houses, one a grocery concern, the other a national music house.

At the beginning of this coal season, three banks were handling a monthly payroll of more than $700,000. In 1924 there were 47 mines operating in Williamson County, producing almost 10 million tons of coal a year and employing more than 12,000 miners. In 1925, more than 20 mines closed. The mines are opening rapidly. Stores are starting up. Empty houses are being occupied.

It is estimated 200 families left Herrin during the internecine strife. Property depreciated 50 per cent. There were bankruptcies, stagnation and despair.

This happened while 95 per cent. of the citizens looked on in horror at their own town gone wild, helpless to stop it, yet bearing equally with the fighters the evil reputation.

STINNES EMIGRATES.

Son of Dead German Magnate Tired of Squabbles.

BERLIN, Oct. 29.— (Canadian Press).—Tired of family quarrels and squabbles with bankers and receivers over the remnants of the family fortune, Dr. Edmund Stinnes, eldest son of the late Hugo Stinnes, industrial magnate, has secretly embarked for the United States.

His unexpected departure, friends say, reflects a determination by young Stinnes to seek a new business environment.

CANON WAS PEEVED WHEN MISQUOTED

Denies Saying That America Had Degenerated to a Monkey House.

LONDON, Oct. 29.— (Canadian Press.) — Rev. Wm. Hartley Carnegie, Canon of Westminster, was quoted by the Evening News yesterday as declaring that "The canker in life of America is divorce," and with all seriousness, that "America is degenerating from a human society into a monkey house."

Last evening Canon Carnegie was found at the Canon's residence behind Westminster Abbey in a high dudgeon at what he called the outrageous language" attributed to him by the Evening News, which he had not seen until it was brought to his attention.

"What I did say," he informed the correspondent of the Canadian Press, "was that if in any society, marriage relations are permitted to become increasingly loosened it would ultimately reduce that society to the level of a monkey house."

INTRODUCE CAPITAL LEVY MEASURE PRICE OF SOCIALIST SUPPORT

M. Painleve's New Ministry Will Be Formed to Carry Out Resolution Passed at Radical Convention Held at Nice This Month.

MEMBERS OF HERRIOT CABINET COME BACK.

PARIS, October 29. Canadian Press —M. Painleve, after conferring with M. Herriot and M. Briand, accepted the mission to form a new government tendered him by President Doumergue yesterday afternoon. The new cabinet, according to present indications, will have M. Briand as Minister of Foreign Affairs, and M. Louncheur as Minister of Finance, with the Premier remaining at the War Office.

The new ministry will be composed so as to conform to the resolution adopted by the Radical convention at Nice in favor of a capital levy and to a resolution adopted by the groups of the Left to-day demanding the return to power of several members of former Premier Herriot's cabinet. Camille Chautemps, former Minister of the Interior, and Edouard Daladier, former Minister of Colonies, are regarded as certain to come back.

In view of M. Painleve's concessions to the groups of the Left, his success in forming a combination is regarded as assured, though the life of such a cabinet formed to put through a capital levy is considered precarious. Socialist support of the new government depends upon the early introduction of such a measure.

The Radical party, however, is split on the question. A canvas of the group by parliamentary specialists indicated that at least thirty of its members are opposed absolutely to a levy on capital. Such a defection from a coalition of the Left in the chamber would make the government majority too scanty for certain success.

A similar canvas of the Senate showed an overwhelming majority against the measure which the Socialists and Extreme Radicals insist upon and which is the price of their support of M. Painleve's second government.

President Doumergue was warned to-day by at least three of the men consulted that the necessary measures to lift France out of its present sorry situation can be put through only by national concord and a truce between the parties. The president decided, however, that the tendency of the majority in the Chamber must first be consulted and he asked M. Painleve to constitute a new cabinet on the terms imposed by the groups on which he will rely for a majority.

MEIGHEN FIRES LAST CONSERVATIVE GUN

Expressed Confidence in Result of Ballot Battle to End Tariff Instability.

OTTAWA, Oct. 29 (Canadian Press).—In the final speech of his political campaign, Rt. Hon. Arthur Meighen, speaking in the Capital last night, on the eve of election, appealed for the support of his tariff policy, which "would again bring prosperity to Canada."

Expressing confidence in the result of the battle of ballots to be waged today, Mr. Meighen declared that Canadians should, after four years' experience, put an end to tariff bargaining, tariff by log rolling and by a glance at division rolls" in the House.

ADMIRAL INJURED WHEN PLANE FELL

Was Viewing Manoeuvres of Flying Wing When Engine Failed Him.

MALTA, Oct. 29 (Canadian Press).—Vice-Admiral Sir Roger Keyes, commander-in-chief of the British Mediterranean fleet was slightly injured yesterday, when an airplane in which he was riding crashed into the sea.

Admiral Keyes was inspecting the flying arm of his command from air craft carrier Eagle under sea-going conditions. He was taken up for a flight himself and his machine had to make a forced landing owing to engine failure. The Admiral was shaken and bruised, but expects to return to duty in two or three days.

SOCIALISTS REFUSE TO SUPPORT PAST

Say Nationalists Took Responsibility of Locarno Treaty—Election Issue.

BERLIN, Oct. 29 (Canadian Press).—While Chancellor Luther, in his address in Essen late last night, reiterated his determination to proceed with the Locarno Pact, Socialist leaders in conference in Berlin supplied the necessary ingredient for a further complication of the the internal crisis. "There is nothing new in the Socialist attitude, but the tone of the resolution adopted by the leaders after the meeting gave protagonists of the Pact an unexpected chill. Socialists are determined not to let the Nationists escape the responsibility of the Locarno negotiations. They say Nationalists started the Pact and should finish it. So they publicly recorded their known decision not to vote for the Pact in the Reichstag, although they are known to favor it. They want dissolution of the Reichstag and new elections, with the Pact as the issue.

RIOTING CAUSED BY FRENCH PARADING

Damascine Refugees Tell Story and Say Mohammedan is Leader.

ALEXANDRIA, Egypt, Oct. 29 (Canadian Press).—The report that fatal rioting in Damascus last week was caused by the action of French in parading bodies of rebels killed in the neighborhood of the city, is reiterated by refugee Syrians arriving here from Beirut. Many hundreds of Damascenes have taken refuge in Lebanon villages and Beirut, he said. The steamer Champollion, on which he arrived from Beirut, brought 310 other refugees.

The leader of the revolt, according to refugees, was a Mohammedan chief named Hassan El Kharrat, who entered Damascus at the head of a mixed force of Mohammedans and Druse tribesmen.

BANK MAN KILLED.

Robbers Shot One, Wounded Another, Getting Away With $93,000.

BUFFALO, N.Y., Oct. 29.—(Canadian Press.)—Robbers to-day shot and killed one Bank of Buffalo employee and wounded another, in making away with the money contained in a bank automobile. The loot amounted to $93,000.

The man killed was Charles W. Clifford, the driver of the bank's automobile. The money obtained by gunners was being transported from the Marine Trust Company to the Bank of Buffalo. Both banks are in the heart of the downtown business section.

L. M. Yarrington, bank messenger, was shot in the face and body. He was rushed to hospital, where it was said his condition was critical.

John H. Meyers was also shot and wounded by hold-up men. The bank car contained approximtaely $100,000, but the bandits overlooked abmout $24,000 in their haste to escape.

VOTING TO-DAY

bable had more definite information, but it had not reached the street crowds.

In the earlier excitements of the local engagement it was gossiped about that one man had been arrested for personation, and that some woman had voted three times. The second could not be traced to any fact, but it was stated that a certain man had attempted to vote twice, was challenged and the second ballot destroyed. Particularly noticeable in the living of electors and party workers about many of the polling places was the number of women campaigners and their earnest activity. Apparently they were bearing their full share of the burden for both candidates.

A LITTLE LOG SCHOOL IN THE BUSH

The most interesting lesson I have heard taught in years was by Mr. Pat. J. Scollard, the teacher in the little log school at Michipicotin Mission. There were nineteen pupils, five in the Second Book Class and Three in the Third. The word "extension bothered two of the Third Book Class. Could you spell it yourself if it had not been done for you?

The school was like a new pin. It had new manilla paper on the wall. The sun streamed in from the four large windows; the "Old Favorite" box stove at the back threw out a ruddy heat; a fine large picture of the Prince of Wales beamed from over the teacher's desk, and nineteen little heads turned to look Sam and me over. "Turn around, Billy," the teacher would gently remind, and the same advice to other little fellows who found it hard to keep on being attentive with two strangers at the back listening.

Mr. Scollard took up Shakespeare's matchless tribute to England which begins "The royal throne of kings," and led the Fourth Book Class through this apotheosis of patriotic tribute. Was ever glowing love expressed thus before or since? Then the Third Book Class took up its Reader and analyzed the burning of a sky-scraper ever so many stories high. The little folks, of course, had never seen anything like that and knew nothing of hydrants or fire-engines. Everybody in the Mission could jump handily from his upper story if he had one. Somehow it seemed a little incongruous, but the interested and patient teacher got it across.

Mr. Scollard has many relatives in this district.

Officers of the Nationl Guard have been asked to vote on the possible change from the present high collar of army uniforms to the roll collar.

CONFERENCE ON

the Council for withdrawal of all troops from the respective frontiers expired at 8 o'clock this morning, Paris time, and it is then that the Council's military agents must telegraph to Paris whether in fact evacuation has been carried out.

The Council will meet today, in accordance, as word is flashed whether its edict has been obeyed. After that comes the designation of the special commission which will proceed to the zone of conflict, and later report its findings on "the profound causes of the outbreak."

Both Greece and Bulgaria have accepted this proposed inquiry, which is expected materially to help the League in its furtherance of the creation of a Balkan security pact.

More Fighting.

PARIS, Oct. 29 - (Canadian Press).—The Greek Legation in Paris issued a statement last evening on the new Bulgar attack, which, it said, had caused the present fighting on the Macedonian frontier. The fighting was still in progress to the latest information received by the Legation from the front.

The communique explains that Greece had completely ceased hostilities a few hours after receipt of the League of Nations' note. As the Greeks were preparing to evacuate Bulgarian territory, Bulgar detachments, the commander of the Third Greek Army reported, attacked his troops at post 73 on the line between Petrich and Nevna between 11 and 12 o'clock Tuesday night.

MURDERER MAY BE

for everything pointed to a most terrific struggle having taken place between the Bernards and their antagonist.

Yesterday was largely spent by detectives following futile clues, for the offer of a thousand-dollar reward by the Provincial Government has inspired added interest in the case, and many persons are coming forward with information, most of which proves valueless upon investigation. As it is generally conceded that the murderer must have suffered some injury in the death struggle, the district was combed yesterday for persons with bandages. Among the "suspicious" characters interviewed were two men, one with a boil on his hand and another with a cloth around an aching head.

No Finger Prints.

Although the little house in which the victims were murdered has been closely searched, detectives have as yet been unable to find any finger prints of value. Nor has the faintest trace of the death-dealing instrument come to light, although it is thought to be concealed at no great distance as the assassin would hardly have dared to travel far with it. Whether it was an axe or an iron bar cannot be definitely decided, but that it was one or the other is fairly certain.

Three men who were held at a nearby town under suspicion of complicity in the crime were yesterday released when they conclusively proved that they were in Quebec at the time of the murder.

Doctor's Opinions.

"An axe in the hands of a powerful man was the instrument of death," declared Dr. Fontaine, Provincial medico-legal expert. "The wound across Mr. Bernard's head was made by a blow from a sharp axe and could not have been caused by a piece of iron torn from the cellar window or by an iron tire, as has been suggested in some newspaper reports.

"Mrs. Bernard was killed with the head of the axe and was struck down as she rushed from her own bedroom into an adjoining one. Evidently the battle between the miscreant and her husband was waging in the hallway when she seized an opportunity to rush past them toward a window from which she might summon help. The murderer saw the move and, grasping his significance, killed her with one tremendous blow of his weapon."

Dr. Fontaine expressed amazement that Mr. Bernard could have continued to fight after receiving so many wounds before a final blow "which nearly split his head" knocked him face foremost down the stairs.

BRITISH PREFERENCE

Britain for the lifting of the embargo as a concession.

Hon. Geo. P. Smith, former minister of Education of Alberta, who has been speaking in the Premier's interests in North York, spoke of achievements of the Government, including the improvement in Canadian exchange in foreign markets. Replying to charges that the Government had injured industries, Mr. Smith pointed to five Liberal candidates who were manufacturers and whose varied industrie were flourishing.

"All the evidences point to a golden era in Canada and it's just about to dawn," said Mr. Smith. Tribute was paid to the leaderships of Premier King for his efforts to unify the diverse elements of Canada.

FORKE FIRES

Western Canada and any discrimination in freight rates that places an added burden upon producers, must not be tolerated.

"A vigorous immigration policy may be desirable, but, to be effective economic disabilities suffered by those engaged in the basic industries must be removed. A vigorous effort to stop emigration, would increase the population and make conditions more satisfactory for all concerned.

"The Progressives have stood for National unity, for a united Canada. This will best be accomplished by removing those grievances that cause discontent and dissatisfaction, giving economic prosperity and satisfactory living conditions. Many obstacles that seem difficult to over come will disappear.

"In conclusion I would invite the electors to see in the Progressive movement a salutary influence in the public life of the Dominion, making for justice to all classes of the population, and express a desire that the Progressive cause will maintain its strength in the new Parliament.

HERRIN RISES, ETC.

Besides the signs of commercial resurrection there are others. Gospel quotations are posted in public places. One over the cashier's window in the leading hotel is familiar.

Clean Happy City.

"For what is a man profited if he shall gain the whole world and lose his own soul! Or what shall a man give in exchange for his soul?"

A wild, dirty little mining town is the picture of Herrin that has gone out into the world. A clean, cultured, naturally prosperous city of 12,000 is the fact.

The local Chamber of Commerce says that Herrin has a higher percentage of home owners than any city in the United States.

The disastrous Southern Illinois tornado of several months ago, which did not hit Herrin, but brought forces into contact in a work of mercy, was an ill wind that blew good to Herrin.

Some of the leaders in Herrin's troublous days were strangers. S. Glenn Young, who tried to clean the town with a gun, was a stranger. Howard S. Williams, a revivalist, who tried it last summer with a Bible, was a stranger. Many strangers were among the leaders of the strip mine massacre of June, 1922, which occurred about half way between Herrin and Marian.

Photographer's Flashlight Nearly Caused League Meet

PARIS, Oct. 29.—(United News).—A "shot" of photographers' flashlight powder almost brought the League of Nations Council into session to put down a new war Tuesday.

Following the resignation of the French Cabinet, the retiring Premier, Paul Painleve, and Foreign Minister Aristide Briand emerged from the Elysee Palace, arm in arm, a photographer discharged a blinding charge, accompanied by a muffled report. "I heard a shot" exclaimed Brind who is president of the Council, "I am going to appeal to the League of Nations."

FINAL RALLY OF CONSERVATIVES

Several Speakers Addressed Well Attended Meeting in Victoria Hall.

GOOD ADDRESSES.

"A platform for reformed Liberals" was the title applied by Fred Tuggey to the slate of speakers presented at the election eve rally of the Conservative party for West Peterborough. On the platform were Frank Regan and Harry Fester, both of whom announced that, like Mr. Tuggey, they would cast today their first Conservative votes.

Mr. Regan was the first speaker, and he extolled the Liberal party as it had been under Sir Wilfred Laurier, who, he said, was the greatest political leader that Canada had ever known. It was, he said, because the King Government had deserted the principles of Sir Wilfred that he was on the Conservative platform last night.

Harry G. Fester, editor of the Labor World, was the other visiting speaker. He said that he did not know why it should be necessary for him to preach protection in an industrial centre like Peterboro. He also said that Sir James Woods had been slandered in Mr. Gordon's publicity when he was classed as a war profiteers. Mr. Fester said that Sir James had been a dollar a year man during the war and had lost a son overseas. Mr. Fester also said that as a member of the Ontario Minimum Wage Board, he was in a position to know that there was no fairer employer of labor in the province.

The meeting was presided over by V. J. McElderry, and besides the visiting speakers, it was addressed by the candidate, E. A. Peck, and by F. G. Tuggey, Frank Millard, and Lt.-Col. C. H. Ackerman.

PRESENTATION AND READ ADDRESS

Fallis Line People Surprised By Visitation From Friends.

MILLBROOK, Oct. 29.— Ex-Warden A. J. and Mrs. Henderson were the recipients of a pleasant surprise on Monday evening, when about fifty of their friends and neighbors gathered at their home on Fallis Line to spend a social evening with them before their removal to Millbrook to reside.

No formal programme had been arranged for, but community singing, games, etc., caused the time to pass pleasantly, and during the evening, Deputy-Reeve Stuart Fallis asked Mr. and Mrs. Henderson to come forward when they were presented with a handsome reading lamp, Mr. W.. N. Beach reading the following address, and Mr. Lavergne Fallis, on behalf of those present, offering the gift:

To Ex-Warden A. P. and Mrs. Henderson, Fallis Line.

Dear Mr. and Mrs. Henderson,—

It is with feelings of mingled sadness and regret that we have gathered here this evening to say goodbye to you, and to wish you Godspeed on the occasion of your departure from our neighborhood.

Born in our neighborhood, you have lived nearly all your lives among us, and during that time you have lived the part of friend and neighbor to the fullest degree.

Looking back into the past, we recall the many instances when we have enjoyed your genial and wholehearted hospitality, and the good times and social fellowship that we have enjoyed together. You have not lived to yourselves alone, but rather to the service of your fellowmen. When in trouble or distress you were ever ready to extend a helping hand.

We also acknowledge, and fully appreciate, the spendid service that you, Mr. Henderson, ably assisted by your devoted helpmate, have rendered to your municipality in the past, attaining to the highest office in the gift of the United Counties before retiring from municipal government.

As a token of appreciation of your services in the past, and of the esteem in which we all hold you, we present you with this electric lamp, and as its rays beam forth to your material comfort and enjoyment, may it be ever a symbol directing you to the source of the Greater Light which is the salvation of the world.

We are glad that you are not going far away, and that we shall see you often as the days and years go by.

That your residence in Millbrook may be long and happy, and that the richest blessings of Heaven may rest upon you both is the wish of all.

Signed, on behalf of your friends and neighbors.

Nathaniel Belch,
Lavergne Fallis.

Fallis Line, October 26th, 1925.

The genuine surprise of the occasion was an added feature of the enjoyment for the self-invited "guests," but coupled with the emotion always incident at such a time, made reply somewhat difficult. Mr. Henderson, however, on behalf of his wife and himself, expressed their sincere gratitude for the tangible token of freindship and goodwill, and particularly for the kindly words which had accompanied the gift. Having spent all their lives on the Fallis Line, he and Mrs. Henderson were finding it somewhat of a wrench to break the home ties with that neighborhood, but as their new home was to be established not many miles distant, there would be no reason why many happy meetings and hours of social intercourse should not still be enjoyed.

Mr. J. H. George, and others present, spoke briefly, and all united in singing, "For they are jolly good fellows," after which a beautiful supper was served.

It was about midnight when final good-byes were said, and a memorable occasion was brought to a close.

Mr. and Mrs. Henderson are moving to the house on Main street which they recently purchased from Mr. G. F. Harrington, expecting to be in their new home on Wednesday.

The marriage of their only son, Mr. Leonard Henderson, to Miss Geraldine Morton takes place on Saturday, October 31, in St. Thomas' church, at two o'clock.

Born—In Dr. H. A. Turner's private hospital, on Monday, October 26, 1925, to Mr. and Mrs. Nathaniel Belch, Fallis Line, a daughter.

Died—Suddenly, in Cavan, on Monday, October 26, 1925, Mary Carr, beloved wife of Mr. Jas. Keegan, in her 55th year. The funeral will take place from the family residence, Lot 8, Concession 8, Cavan, on Wednesday, October 28, at 2.30 p.m. Service at the house at 2 p.m.

Interment in the Ninth Line cemetery.

THURSDAY, OCTOBER 29, 1925.

WHY THE EXAMINER WAS LATE.

The Examiner has to apologize to its numerous readers for the late delivery of the issues of the past few days, a condition caused by the unusually large amount of publicity used by the two political organizations in the campaign that closes today.

Both parties recognized the value of newspaper advertising in placing the issues and the merits of their policies and candidates before the electors and the result was an amount of advertising copy that could not possibly be handled within the dead line usually maintained by The Examiner.

Readers who have been inconvenienced by the late arrival of their newspaper wil understand the unusual conditions under which The Examiner has been publish. der during the last few days.

However, from today The Examiner expects to get back to its regular routine and to have the paper off the presses at the usual hour.

General elections usually cause more or less dislocation of business and this particular campaign has occasioned much greater a demand upon The Examiner's advertising space and composing facilities than any previous political contest.

COVERING THE CAMPAIGN.

Throughout the Federal campaign The Examiner has endeavoured to fulfill its mission as an independent newspaper, serving a clientele of readers of all shades of political opinion, by providing as complete, accurate unbiased and uncoloured news service in connection with the campaign as could be possibly arranged

In the West Peterborough contest practically every meeting held by the two parties whether mass meetings or committee room rallies in the city or gatherings in all parts of the riding have been covered by members of The Examiner staff, whose reports have been written from a non-partizan angle and have earned the commendations of both political camps.

Not only has the West Peterborough campaign been fully covered but staff reporters of The Examiner have attended many meetings in the district served by this paper.

In Hastings-Peterborough where Dr. Embury, Conservative, and Arthur Brethen, Progressive, are opposing each other; in Durham where Hon. Vincent Massey, Liberal, is today contesting the seat with Fred Bowen, the late Conservative member; in Northumberland where Milton E. Maybee and Fred Slade are the Conservative and Liberal candidates respectively, many of the important meetings have been reported by members of The Examiner staff while Examiner correspondents have supplemented these reports by covering other meetings in the same constituencies and in South Hastings and Victoria and Haliburton as well.

In no previous campaign have the people of Peterborough been given so much news of the activities of all the parties over such a wide field as have been covered in this election.

To the members of The Examiner staff the campaign has been as strenuous as doubtless the candidates found but they have their reward in the knowledge that never before was a political campaign in this section of the county so thoroughly and impartially covered.

KILLING MADE EASY.

Every once in a while there appears in the press, says the New Outlook, a vigorous protest against the facility with which deadly weapons may be obtained by irresponsible young men and even boys, and the indifference of authorities in permitting the indiscriminate carrying of these weapons concealed about the clothing. The American Friend in calling attention anew to the "continuous debauchery of shooting," reported in the daily press, and actually going on all over the country, says, "We are suffering from a plague of pistols." And the writer goes on to speak of the temptation put in the way of young boys by the display of these weapons in shop windows and the attractive advertisements in magazines and newspapers. Clippings sent to the office of this paper from a magazine with a very wide circulation showed advertisements of various makes of pistols, with suggestive and pernicious invitations to boys to enter upon the ugly business of "gun toting."

The result of this suggestive advertising of deadly weapons is not difficult to imagine. Pistols are made to kill, and the psychological effect of fondling a pistol is to accustom the young mind with the thought of killing and in many cases to create the inclination to kill.

If the carrying of deadly concealed weapons were prohibited, under heavy penalties, many of the robberies of which we read in the daily press, as well as the fatal endings of quarrels springing out of trifling disputes would never occur. The hold-up man without his pistol would be comparatively harmless. In a syndicated article which appeared recently in the United States press on this menace, the writer complained that the police "pinch a thousand people a day back here (New York) for parking five minutes too long or for not putting their hand out when they are going to turn, but I have yet to read where a policeman ever searched a bunch of toughs hanging around a place to see if any of them carried concealed weapons. In one day they would get enough pistols and stilettos to dam up the Hudson River."

Let there be a ban put upon the advertising and sale of concealable weapons, except to responsible persons holding a permit, and let the police be given instructions to search any one whom they may suspect of carrying such; and human life will be safer, especially in the great cities where the votaries of crime congregate.

SEEKING ECONOMIC PEACE.

European statesmen are apparently determined to take full advantage of the prevailing spirit of the nations to co-operate in all measures having for their aim the establishment of new and, if possible, permanently pacific relations. The success of the Conference at Locarno in framing acceptable security pacts has given a decided impulse to the demand for general disarmament. Another proposal directed toward the same end, that of preventing recourse to war in settling disputes, is that the Governments should now sit around a conference table and discuss the international economic situation fully and frankly for the purpose of reaching conclusions which will strengthen recognition of the community of interests among the nations. The struggle for existence between peoples is as keen as it is among individuals. It is also more dangerous. The removal, therefore, of economic disputes from the international arena is a pressing problem in groping after universal peace. It was a realization of this fact which brought the representatives of the Powers together at Genoa, but the time was not then ripe for the favorable consideration of questions demanding from the delegates that fairness and calmness of mind necessary to surmount national prejudices. The passions stirred up by the Great War were still dominant. But with the new spirit which so signally characterized the deliberations at Locarno prevailing, reason exists for the hope that Governments may be disposed to subordinate, to some extent at least, their national selfishness—their exclusive regard for their own interests—in an attempt to develop a general prosperity which might give an assurance of permanent peace.

It is the French statesmen who are so vigorously pressing the proposal for such a round-table conference, and it is likely that at the next meeting of the League Assembly the desirability of calling it may become the central feature of that body's discussion. Adherence to the scheme has already virtually been given by the smaller European Powers—by Rumania, Poland, Ezecho-Slovakia and Jugoslavia—and Great Britain would no doubt welcome the calling of any assembly to seek a more enlightened trade policy in Europe.

With the object of removing, if possible, the most harassing restrictions to the flow of commerce between the nations, a proposal for a conference was definitely submitted to the League Assembly at its meeting last month by the French delegation, and the whole matter was referred to a committee, which is now preparing an agenda for discussion. The French delegation suggested that the problems of interallied indebtedness and migration be excluded from consideration, and Britain may be expected to oppose discussion of such questions as the supply of raw material and the relations between capital and labor.

The problems of migration and the supply of raw material have already come before the League in tentative proposals, but they threatened to develop such serious opposition that their removal from the field of discussion was deemed desirable. Any suggestions for placing the immigration policy of the Dominions and the distribution of their raw materials under the control of an international Board would hardly be acceptable to these young nations, nor would they meet the approval of the United States should Washington decide to participate in an international economic conference.

The overseas Dominions of Great Britain have, indeed, immense spaces of unsettled territory which overpopulated countries like Italy and Japan regard with longing. But the Governments of these Dominions have their own aims for the settlement of such areas, aims with which unrestricted immigration would radically conflict. Canada, Australia and New Zealand are determined to build up within their borders homogeneous nations in which the Anglo-Saxon strain shall decidedly predominate. If they threw down all barriers to entry, not only would these aims have to be abandoned, but the invasion from abroad would in its volume, remind us of the overflow of Europe by the hordes of Vandals and Goths. That the conquest would be pacific would not prevent it being complete and effectual. Nor will the Dominions be willing to part with their absolute control of their own resources. Their raw material is the means by which they will achieve their national aspirations, and they may be credited with a resolve to retain control of it. —The Globe.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

And now for the results.

Its going to be a cold night for a lot of people tonight.

The electors who thought there were not going to be many issues in this campaign have found a lot more than they expected.

And after we get this Federal fight out of the way the municipal campaign is just round the corner. Who will be the first candidate to throw his hat in the ring?

Statistics show that fewer and fewer people are being killed by automobile. Is our pedestrian going the way of the buffalo?—Arkansas Gazette.

A THOUGHT.

COMMERCIALIZE, HAPPYIZE, HEALTHIZE.

What a great tumult is here on earth, and yet a few feet under the earth we shall all be soon and there be in perfect silence.

And if you who are having a great time here on earth will listen, I'll get my thought over.

No! This editorial is not intended to moralize. It is to commercialize, happyize and healthize.

1. If every man would live this day feeling that tomorrow he would be shrunk in size to that of the mighty Caesar in his casket, each and every man would think less of the triumphs, of the glories and of the spoils of life. We would all be trying to do unto others as we would have others do unto us.

Death has no advantage, except when it comes to a man who owes others the obligation of being friendly, fair and square. Proof: Man may pray for hours each day in an effort to save his own soul, but God is as deaf as a stone to a man so selfish.

Death is natural, necessary, universal. No man can escape. Life is uncertain and so often unsuccessful. And now why is life "so often unsuccessful?"

Life is not money. We may make plenty of cash, but what a dismal failure a man may be with millions to his credit.

The success I am referring to is that of health and happiness, plus enough money to put you in a position to help those who cannot help themselves.

And how can a man be healthy in body, or happy in mind when he thinks of nothing but triumphs, trade and profits?

A man must come frequently face to face with death to understand this truth: Death is "natural, necessary, universal."

When a man stops to think that within a week, or perhaps within a day, his feasts, pleasures and profits may all meet the inevitable, how little these things we call "success" seem to be. How they shrink into a shroud without pockets.

2. When this thought of the mighty Meditator, Death comes to our conscious understanding, we treat others differently on all occasions, and this is why I like my years. Age always whispers, when my hand is raised to vindicatively strike—age always seems to open a grave and show me the face of some friend to whom I have dealt a blow.

And here is the advantage of being decent—the profits in being "fair and square," as they have paid me and will pay you: I have been what the world calls "successful" (in a small way) and about the happiest and healthiest old boy this side of the Pacific. When younger I did full of fight, I had less money and fewer friends.—The Silent Partner.

CATTLE, GRAIN AND PRODUCE

Peterboro—Toronto—Montreal

MONTREAL MARKETS

MONTREAL, Oct. 29 (Canadian Press).—The local grain market was very dull yesterday, but the price of Ontario and Quebec oats was advanced 1-2 to 1 cent per bushel. There was no important change in the condition of the market for spring wheat grades of flour, but the undertone was firm with a fair amount of business passing and for local and country account. The tone of the market for winter wheat flour remained very firm on account of the continued light offerings.

The millfeed market was quite active and strong. The demand for standard grades of rolled oats was steady and prices were unchanged. There was no change in the condition of the market for baled hay.

Beans were quoted at from $2.40 to $2.50 per bushel.

A fairly good trade continues to be done in eggs in a wholesale jobbing way, there being a steady demand for small lots to meet immediate wants, but the volume of business passing in car lots is reported small owing to the fact that dealers seem to have ample supplies of all grades of storage stock on hand for the time being and in consequence the demand is limited. The tone of the market remains firm. The receipts yesterday were 3,964 cases, as compared with 5,115 for the same day last week, and 1,511 for the corresponding day a year ago.

The feature of the potato trade was the weaker feeling that developed in the market for Quebec stock, and prices scored another decline of 15 to 20c per bag which was attributed to the fact that receipts here have increased considerable since the advance took place.

The receipts of butter yesterday were 443 packages, as compared with 141 for the same day last week, and 1,738 for the corresponding day a year ago. A better feeling developed in the market under the improved demand from local buyers for supplies and prices for September made pasteurized creamery, advanced 1-2c per lb. The volume of business was larger and the market was rather more active.

The receipts of cheese yesterday were 5,811 boxes, as against 4,697 for the same day last week, and 2,905 for the corresponding day a year ago. There was no important change in the condition of the market, the undertone being steady with a moderate amount of business passing for export account.

CHICAGO LIVESTOCK

CHICAGO, Oct. 29 (Canadian Press).—Cattle receipts 15,000; extreme top 1,432 pounds steers 15.75; yearling upward to 14.75; some well conditioned aged Montanas 10.00; she stock slow; steady; bologna bulls unchanged; vealers uneven; steady to 50c higher; largely 13.50 down to packers; outsiders upward to 13.75.

Hogs receipts 20,000; bulk desirable 160 to 325 pound weight 10.90 to 11.15; 140 pound selections topped at 11.35; bulk packing sows 9.35 to 9.60; majority desirable killing pigs 11.75 to 12.00; shippers took 6,000; estimated holdovers 7,600.

Sheep receipts 10,000; desirable fat lambs 14.75 to 15.25; shipper demand good; others and sheep steady; better grade yearling wethers showing fat lambs advance, best 12.90; aged wethers 9.50; fat ewes upward to 8.00; bulk feeding lambs 15.00 to 15.50; few held late around 15.75.

CHICAGO WHEAT

CHICAGO, Oct. 29 (Canadian Press).—Heavy selling to realize profits in the wheat market late yesterday wiped out most of an earlier sharp advance in prices. The temporary bulge in values was due more or less to active purchasing on the part of speculators who previously had been on the selling side of the market. Wheat closed unsettled at 3-8c net decline to 5-8c gain, new style, December 149 3-8 to 149 1-2, and May 146 1-4 to 146 3-8, with corn unchanged to 1-8c higher, oats 1-8 to 1-4c off, and provisions varying from 20c decline to a rise of 12c. On the upward swing of the wheat market, commission houses usually identified with leading Chicago traders were the chief buyers of December delivery. Meanwhile Eastern interests were lively purchasers of May, and with the market for the time being almost bare of offerings no obstacle to the rise in values appeared until there had been a jump of 3c a bushel. Then profit-taking sales set in. With the wants of earlier buyers satisfied, a reaction followed and adequate support for prices was lacking.

Indications that only a difference of 2 cents a bushel prevented shipments of wheat being made from Duluth to Chicago was something of a factor in bringing about the late set-back in prices here. Considerable attention was also taken of the fact that the Liverpool market yesterday showed less of an advance than had been looked for in view of the sharp upturn Tuesday on this side of the Atlantic. On the other hand, there was evidence that difficulties were being encountered in filling October contracts both at Liverpool and Winnipeg. There was also further complain of urgent need of rain in Australia.

Corn and oats were governed almost entirely by the action of wheat. Provisions responded more to the course of grain values than to developments in the hog market.

EGG MARKETS.

OTTAWA, Ont., Oct. 29.—(Canadian Press).—The egg market continues very firm on the best grades of fresh. The only price change in Canadian markets today is from Vancouver where there has been another two cent rise in prices at country points. American future markets show a slight rise over yesterday.

Toronto egg market is very firm on the best grades of fresh while the undertone on storage stocks is easy. Jobbing quotations unchanged.

Montreal egg market is dull with demand slow excepting for best grades of fresh and these are scarce.

Edmonton egg market is steady. Jobbing storage extras 45, firsts 40, poultry unchanged.

Vancouver egg market is firm. Dealers paying country points extras 64, firsts 62, Jobbing extras 68, firsts 66, seconds and pullets 57 Live poultry unchanged.

Halifax: No change in egg or poultry markets.

Saint John fresh eggs are scarce and demand is fair for storage firsts. Prices are unchanged. Fresh killed chickens wholesale 35, fowl 30. The market is well supplied and there is a brisk demand.

New York fresh extra firsts 48-52, fresh firsts 43-46, December refrigerators 35 1-8.

LOTS OF VICTUALS TWO SUPPERS HELD

Ladies of St. Paul's Church Were Industrious—Meetings Were Successful.

STIRLING, Oct. 28.—The supper at St. Paul's United Church on Monday night was a great success. The ladies of the church supplied more than the immense crowd could consume in one night, so they are to have another supper on Tuesday, which closed their first anniversary services under the new regime, as the United Church.

The receipts from all sources were over $1800, so all those interested should be congratulated on the success they attained. An excellent programme was arranged and carried out in the main auditorium of the church, after the supper, which was held in the basement. During the interval of waiting and eating, an orchestra, under Gerald Clute's supervision kept the people in good humor.

The Rev. C. W. Barret had charge of the program which began by the singing of the first verse of the familiar hymn, "All Hail the Power of Jesus' Name," followed by the Lord's prayer in unison.

Rev. Mr. Barrett had associated with him on the platform, Revs. L. S. Wight, of Holloway St. United Church, Belleville; B. F. Byers, St. John's, Anglican, Strrling, and F. Joblin, of Rawdon circuit, United Church; each giving interesting addresses which were interspersed with solos by Miss Stella Marshall, Mrs. Jackson and Miss Bessie Conley, all of which were well received by the large audience. During the evening it was brought to the notice of those present by the Chairman there were 52 churches in the Presbytery to which St. Paul's belongs, and this church ranks as second in their givings, but their standing in the conference is as No. 1. St. Paul's certainly should be congratulated on their financial standing, as well as having as their pastor and leader, the chairman of the Bay of Quinte Presbytery.

Smith's Birthplace Sold Governor Was Interested

The house in which Governor Alfred E. Smith, of New York, was born fifty-two years ago, and in which he spent the early years of his life, was sold at auction in the West Side Auction Room today at 1:00 by Joseph P. Day.

In Governor Smith's childhood this neighborhood was entirely given over to residential buildings. Now the district is almost wholly tenanted by ship chandlers and merchants.

When Governor Smith was informed of the impending sale he sent the following telegram to Mr. Day:

"Dear Joe: It is interesting to note that the old house is going under the hammer. Let me know who buys it and what price it brings.

"Alfred E. Smith."

LONDON'S DOGS SICK.

Change in Weather Puts Many of Capital's Canines Off Color.

LONDON, Oct. 29—The change in the weather is causing a lot of sickness among dogs. In London there is an epidemic and in many cases the sickness is attended with peculiar symptoms.

Mr Arthur Case, a leading veterinary surgeon, of Fulham, states he has treated dozens of dogs lately for sickness which he described as a form of gastro-enteritis.

"They generally start with lassitude. Then they refuse food and there is a wasting of tissue. This is followed by stomachic trouble. No time should be lost in treating the sickness in its early stages. The patients should be given a mild aperient, kept warm, put on a light diet and given medicine according to the development of the symptoms."

It is mainly due to the weather. Dogs have shed their summer coats and are growing their winter ones, and during the change they are liable to catch a chill which may lead to pneumonia.

AGENT'S REPORT.

Officials of Passenger's Association Discuss the British Harvester Question.

LONDON, Oct. 29.—(Canadian Press)—The position of British agricultural workers in Canada was raised at a meeting of the British Passenger Agents' Association here yesterday, especially the question of whether British harvesters in Canada were stranded at the end of the season.

Secretary Wright, of the Passenger Agents' Association, who was with a party that recently toured Canada, asserted that sometimes the farm hands would not remain at work at the conclusion of the harvest in Western Canada when they could do so, but instead of this, they spent their money and got into financial difficulties. He was satisfied, he said, that there was enough work there to keep people employed all the year.

The report of the delegation that had made the tour in the Dominion gave a favorable account of the position of the settlers in the West who had emigrated from Great Britain under the Canadian Government's colonization scheme of ultimately settling 3,000 families on the land. The conditions in connection with these settlers showed improvement this year compared with the conditions a year or two ago, the report stated, and there was every reason for optimism with regard to the scheme.

Eat 4 Times More Fish And Wipe Out Nation's Debt

MONTREAL, Que., Oct. 29. — If Canadians would eat four times as much fish as they do now, Canada's national debt would be wiped out in several years, for the annual income from fisheries would reach $200,000,000, according to J. A. Paulhus, former president of the Canadian Fisheries Association, and founder of "Canadian National Fish Day," which was celebrated yesterday.

Charles Davy of New Britain has brought suit against Clarence Tuska of Hartford for $1,000 damages as the result of a plane smash at Brainard Field here several weeks ago. OFFERS FERRY LOAN.

President of Company Proposes Plant to City of Toronto.

TORONTO, October 29. — "I will loan the city a boat and a crew to run it without charging any rent for the boat if they want to run it," stated Lawrence Solman, president of the Toronto Ferry Company, yesterday, when asked if any arrangements had been made for continued ferry service to Centre Island during November. The city representatives who were appointed to meet Mr. Solman had not been in touch with him yet. The city would pay wages and costs of operation and collect for itself the fares if his offer were accepted, said Mr. Solman. The collection of fares would not be legal, however, as the city has no authority to run a ferry service.

LEADING U.F.O. MEN SUPPORT BOWEN

Speaker Declares Meighen To Be One of Brainiest People He Knew.

BETHANY, Oct. 27.—The school house at the Brick Corners was packed last evening at a meeting held in the nterests of F. Bowen, the Conservative candidate. Mr. Geo. McCartney acted as chairman. Col. McKay, of Toronto, was the first speaker, and he dealt with the issues of the day in a very able manner, pointing out that a high tariff was the only thing necessary at this time. J. Thornton, of Orono, who had been a member in the house for nine years was then called to the platform. He had been asked repeatedly re the two men (King and Meighen), as to their ability; in reply stated he had sat in the house with the both and knew them well. Mr. King was one of the best speakers he had ever met and had some good qualities, but he had a failing—and that was he had a swelled head and a weak back-bone. Mr. Meighen was the brainiest man he ever saw; and, more, he used them, and he was the one who could lead the people out of the wilderness. The speaker pointed out that we buy $20 worth of food stuff for every man, woman and child from the U.S.A., whereas they only buy 50 cents worth from Canada, and, while he did not always agree with the Tory party, he thought it was high time for a change in government.

T. A. Rei was the last speaker; he said that no doubt the people wouldn wonder at the stand he was taking after being the U.F.O. candidate for Durham four years ago but he said that he had to make a choice and he thought the Meighen policy was the best, and he meant to support, although the Progressive party had done some good, ye he did not believe that it was wise for them to tie themselves as a party to either Grit or Tory, and if they were so weak that they could not stand on their own props they had better quit (applause).

He urged the people to support one of their own men, Mr. Bowen, and not a man who came from the city as Mr. Massey was.

The singing of God save the King brought a splendid meeting to a close.

SCRAP SUBMARINES.

Britain Will Adopt Further Economic Measures By Cutting Reserve.

LONDON, Oct. 29. — (United News).—Great Britain will economize on her navy by scrapping five of the big class "K" submarine the admirality announces the K-26 will remain in commission.

Further economics will be achieved by abolishing the special naval resources engineer corps and the relegation of one destroyer flotilla to the reserve—submarines of class "K" are the largest in the British navy but for the lone specimen of class "X" which displaces 2,780 tons. The "K" submarines range from 1,880 to 2,140 tons.

Activity at Tannery.

The Omemee Tannery, which is now being operated under a new management is undergoing much repair and already is employing many new men. Other employees have been compelled, owing to housing conditions here to leave their families behind for the winter in the hope that several new houses may be erected in the spring.

OBITUARY.

Fred Scarlet.

News of the death of Fred Scarlet, of Estan, Sask., reached Omemee, last week.

Mr. Scarlet was well-known to the older inhabitants, of Omemee having come to Omemee from Cobourg, when quite a young man and bought a drug business, where the Mackey drug store now stands, which he conducted successfully for several years. Later, leaving for the West, he took as his bride, an Omemee girl, Miss Molly English, who was a talented musician of the village at that time.

Mr. Scarlet passed away following a brief illness. The remains were brought to Winnipeg for interment.

To the sorrowing widow and family is extended the loving sympathy of many former Omemee friends.

James Balfour.

News of the death of James Balfour, of Carberry, Man., reached Omemee this week.

The late Mr. Balfour was the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Gabriel Balfour, of Omemee. He was born on the farm now owned by Mr. Alex. Lang. When a young man, Mr. Balfour went into the building business and was a most successful contractor. His first wife was Miss Kerr, daughter of the late George Kerr, of Emily. His second wife was Mrs. Ivory, widow of the late James Ivory, both of whom predeceased him.

Mr. Balfour passed away in Brandon, following a lingering illness. The funeral was held from the house of his son in Carberry, last week, interment taking place in that town.

Back to Health and Strength

AFTER illness, the journey back to health is often long and tedious. The digestion is impaired, and the appetite fastidious. These conditions retard recovery. An appetizing food, rich in body-building and energizing elements, a food easily assimilated by the system, is a first essential.

"Ovaltine" completely fills these requirements. It provides super-nourishment in a delicious and easily digested form, and quickly establishes that progressive development which so encourages the patient.

"Ovaltine" is a delicious beverage, a concentration of natural foods—ripe barley malt, rich creamy milk, eggs and cocoa. One cup contains more nourishment than 12 cups of beef tea, or 3 eggs.

THE MARKETS

TORONTO LIVESTOCK.

TORONTO, Oct. 29—For three days the cattle receipts are 11,224 and today's receipts are 68 cars, 988 cattle, 263 calves, 1,945 hogs and 2,039 sheep and lambs. Tuesday's sales were small compared to the supply on hand and only 1,848 were disosed of. The quality of butchers' cattle on sale is poor and the demand is light for this variety. The bulk of this week's sales will consist of stockers and feeders, but immediately the offering of these is just a little too heavy and despite this prices are steady.

There was a drop of 25 cents a cwt. today on light yearling stocker heifers, which are now selling at $4 a cwt. Butchers' cattle are down 25 cents a cwt. and more in some cases. A load of good handyweight steers and heifers sold today at $6 a cwt. Bulls brought steady prices with exports $4.75 to $5.75 a cwt. and $6 a cwt. One baby beef sod at $9 a cwt. It is roughly estimated that there are 4,000 cattle for sale today. Butchers' cows were reasonably steady.

Calves are easier, although the run is light, and this is partly due to the slackened demand for Buffalo. One choice calf touched 12 cents and others were 10½ to 11½ cents a pound. Medium calves were 8 cents and grassers 5 cents a pound.

Good to choice lambs are well taken at a firmer market of 25 cents a cwt. All the good lambs brought 12¾ cents a pound. Fair quality sheep sold at 6 and 6¼ cents a pound.

Tuesday's hogs did not bring over $11 a cwt. f.o.b. and the packers expect to get them today at another cut of 25 cents a cwt., at $10.75 a cwt. f.o.b.

Her Monthly Love Letter

The first day of the month, and every month comes this love letter to her. For over two years now she has been receiving it, and it will come with the same regularity as long as she may live.

It was a thoughtful, loving husband and father who made this arrangement. His love letters really come from Beyond to the little family, for by a provision made years before he died, The London Life was to send his wife $100.00 a month as long as she should live.

A more beautiful thing was never arranged. Both wife and daughter are guaranteed the necessities of life. The home is preserved; the mother's love and care is extended to her little daughter; the child is assured of proper surroundings, a good schooling, and every opportunity in life.

And how easily it was arranged—how simple the doing of a deed with such far-reaching effects. An annual deposit equal to $5.80 per week in a London Life Monthly Income Jubilee Policy taken when he was 30, accomplished it all.

WHERE THEY'RE SCRAPPING

Dramatic events are taking place in China on the eve of the Nine Power Conference on tariffs which is scheduled to meet in Peking next Monday. A new struggle among the big military chieftains has begun. Marshal Wu Pei-fu, who for two years was the boss of most of the country, but was defeated when deserted a year ago by Feng Yuh-siang (the "Christian General") has suddenly re-appeared from exile as the chief factor in Central China. His troops, under Gen. Sun Chuan Fang have driven the army of Chang Tso-lin to the northward out of Shanghai. Six big provinces are said to have joined his standard. Chang, dictator of Manchuria, still holds Shantung province and most of Chihli, with virtual control of Peking. Northwest of Peking, with headquarters at Kalgan, Feng, the "Christian General," has been organizing for a year with Russia and is prepared to give battle to Chang for control of Peking.

WELCOME TO NEW PASTOR WAS COMBINED WITH FAREWELL TO R AND MRS MADILL AT ST. PAUL'S

William and Mrs. Allen Were Greeted By People.

LOSING ELDER.

Mr. and Mrs. W. Madill Had Been Members For 34 Years.

A social evening at St. Paul's Church last night took the form of a double event, when over three hundred of the members of the congregation assembled in the Sunday School-room to formally welcome Rev. Mr. and Mrs. Allen to the church and to bid farewell to Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Madill, who are leaving the city this week to reside in Toronto. Rev. D. A. Thomson of Hastings acted as chairman.

The programme opened with a hymn and prayer, followed by a few brief remarks from the chairman and a vocal solo by Miss Greta LeBarr, with accompaniment by Mr. M. Chenhall. During the evening, a vocal solo was rendered by Mrs. R. W. Davidson, and a quartette by Messrs. H. McKeown, C. Sedgwick, A. McLeish and O. Steer. Mr. Chenhall played accompaniments.

Mrs. Allen was presented with a bouquet of roses by Isabel Davidson, and Rev. Mr. and Mrs. Allen were called to the platform by the chairman.

Greetings to the new pastor of St. Paul's Church and his wife were extended by Rev. Mr. Goodwill, of Cobourg, on behalf of the Peterboro Presbytery; by Rev. Dr. Blagrave, on behalf of the Peterboro Ministerial Association, and by Mr. Richard Lees, on behalf of the congregation.

Rev. Mr. Goodwill spoke of the reputation held by St. Paul's Church as having always had in its pulpit men who stood four-square as to doctrine, and considered that the reason for the firm stand taken by this church in the recent turmoil of Church Union.

"What we need is more candid preaching and less candid talk," said Mr. Goodwill. "It is something to be able to stand in the pulpit and say 'I know.' Rev. Mr. Allen comes to you with this attitude and the experience of a life spent in serving God. He is a man who may be described as a strong revivalist, because he not only awakens the sinner, but he also stirs up the saints."

Rev. Mr. Thomson, interjecting the remark that the credentials presented by Rev. Mr. Allen were some of the very best that had ever passed through his hands, called on Mr. Lees, who, on behalf of the congregation of St. Paul's, extended a warm welcome to the new pastor.

Rev. Dr. Blagrave, representing the Peterboro Ministerial Association, made a humorous little speech, which finished with a hearty welcome to Rev. Mr. and Mrs. Allen, assuring them of prayers from their brethren of the cloth for great service and benefit to his church.

Rev. Mr. Allen's Reply.

Rev. Mr. Allen, who speaks with a pleasing Scotch burr and a friendly, frank, outspoken manner, replied to the triple expressions of welcome extended to him and to his wife. He spoke of the session of St. Paul's as being unique in its character, "a band of men whose hearts have been touched and who seek to extend the kingdom of God." He spoke of his present connection with the church as being merely a temporary phase which might or might not deepen into closer relationship, and warned his congregation to think "not so much of the drawing of the cork as of the contents of the bottle," or in other words, to think less of the man and more of his message. "There are some congregations who will listen to all manner of theological poison from the lips of a man whom they like," he said. "Think not of what you want yourselves so much as of what the will of God in the matter may be."

Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Madill.

The second portion of the programme was devoted to the public farewell to Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Madill, who leave the city and St. Paul's Church in the near future. Both were called to the platform, where Mrs. Madill was presented with a bouquet of roses by Daisy Reid.

The address read by Mr. D. H. Moore, which is given here in full, was followed by a few remarks by Mr. Moore, who spoke with sincere emotion as he addressed his old friend of thirty-five years' standing. The confidence, esteem and respect of the citizens of Peterboro had always been given to Mr. Madill, he declared, who was a man of temperate views, who sought to live at peace with all men. The only fault he had ever been able to find with Mr. Madill, he said, had been his views with regard to politics. It was seldom that a man in any community could serve that community for the length of time in which Mr. Madill had been associated with the business life of Peterboro, and yet fail to have one derogatory word uttered about him.

Mr. James Dutton followed Mr. Moore, referring to the present of the teapot which was being made to Mr. and Mrs. Madill by the congregation, and presenting them with an album to contain Mr. Moore's address, the photograph of the session, of which Mr. Madill is a member, and the signatures of the session and of as many of the congregation as wish to inscribe their names therein.

Mayor Turner made an appropriate speech, opening it with a reference to the many natural and industrial advantages of which this city should be proud, and saying that these could not compare with the upright characters and reputations for truth, honesty and right enjoyed by men like Mr. Madill, who go out from Peterboro to make their homes elsewhere.

Mayor Turner also spoke of Rev. Mr. and Mrs. Allen as being newcomers to the city, and of the former having the right to expect that his new congregation would uphold his hands in his ministerial endeavors.

Presented With Book.

A further item in the programme of farewell to Mr. and Mrs. Madill was the presentation of a handsome book, entitled "London," to Mr. Madill, by the president of his Sunday School class, Dion Sudgrove, who read the brief address inscribed therein.

Mr. Madill, replying for himself and Mrs. Madill, was visibly moved by the many expressions of affection and esteem showered upon them both. He spoke of the pleasure and joy which he had experienced in his long years of Sunday school work in St. Paul's Church and also his twenty-three years' service on the Nicholls Hospital Trust Board. He thanked the different speakers and the congregation for their kindness, of which he declared himself unworthy, and spoke of his sorrow at leaving just when Rev. Mr. Allen was taking up the work of the pulpit in St. Paul's. He also asked the congregation to give their new minister every support. Mr. Madill referred to his friendship of long standing with Rev. Mr. Thomson, the chairman.

Rev. Mr. Thomson rose to refer briefly to the good work done by Mr. Madill and other members of St. Paul's in helping years ago to establish the present flourishing Knox Church.

The programme concluded with the hymn, "God Be With You Till We Meet Again," and the service of refreshments by the Ladies' Aid Society of the church.

The address read by Mr. D. H. Moore follows:

Dear Mr. and Mrs. Madill:

Our hearts are too full tonight for us to venture to express, in any adequate manner, the depth of our feelings. The ties that have united us for many years, in the closest and most enduring bond of all, Christian fellowship, are so deeply cherished that your impending departure creates a desolating sense of the loss we are sustaining. The thought, "What shall we do without you?" is in all our minds and still awaits an answer.

It is thirty-four years since you first identified yourself with St. Paul's Congregation. It was on November 6, 1893, that you, Mr. Madill, was elected to the eldership of this church. Never have we had an elder who more fully held our respect, love and confidence. As you have passed in and out among us, these many years, we have grown to realize that because you have delighted to honor God and sought to please Him in all your ways, He has shown that His loving favor has been upon you and that you have been one of His beloved servants in whom He has been well pleased.

It is beyond our power to express our appreciation of the faithfulness of your service among us. Although for many years engrossed in arduous business pursuits, each Lord's Day has found you faithful in your attendance, morning and evening, in God's House.

Your unremitting, spirit-filled ministry as a teacher in the Sunday School, of which, for some twelve years you were the Superintendent, has enriched the lives of hundreds, yes of thousands of the young people who thus were brought into contact with you and, through you, with the Lord whom you served.

As an elder you have been faithful in your ministry and to your elder's responsibilities, never shirking the difficult and occasional unpleasant tasks that your duty, as a faithful shepherd of the flock, has called you to perform.

The weekly prayer meeting has brought added blessings to us because of your constant attendance and spiritual ministrations. The mere sight of your face, revealing, as it has so fully, the richness of the inner life of the Spirit, has proved a constant benediction to us. It has enabled us to realize how true are the words of the Psalmist, "The steps of a good man are ordered of the Lord and He delighteth in his way." We can the more easily believe, also, that, "When a man's ways please Jehova, He maketh even his enemies to be at peace with him."

Your home life, to those who have had the privilege of meeting you there, has been an inspiration. There we have seen that "A worthy woman is the crown of her husband," and we have united with the Psalmist in the question: "A worthy woman, who can find her, for her price is far above rubies? The heart of her husband trusteth in her."

We cannot express how much we shall miss you both. We can only rejoice with you in the fact that you are to be with your son and daughter and others connected with you by the ties of kinship. Our united petition to the Throne of Grace is that you both may be spared in health and strength for many years of further service for the Master, and to enjoy the love and confidence of all who know you.

We trust that your automobile, which we have grown to prize because of your enjoyment of it, will bring you back for frequent visits in our homes and to our church, where you will always be welcomed, honored and esteemed.

MASSEY HOLDS THREE MEETINGS

Visited Millbrook on Final Evening of Election Campaign.

OTHER SPEAKERS.

MILLBROOK, Oct. 29.—Honorable Vincent Massey made his third and final appeal to the local electors here before a crowded hall on Wednesday night, even standing room being at a premium.

Three meetings that evening mear that Millbrook came second on the list, and Mr. Massey's arrival was delayed until ten o'clock. J. C. Ross, of Toronto, during the time of waiting, made two announcements that created interest and called forth warm applause, giving illustrations of what Mr. Massey had already done for Durham. The first had reference to a returned soldier, J. R. Smith, of Millbrook, who had bought a farm and stock, etc., when peak prices prevailed, and was afterward obliged to relinquish same and lose what he had paid thereon.

Mr. Massey, said Mr. Ross, had taken up the matter with Ottawa, and a letter was read from the secretary of the Soldiers' Settlement Board, stating that in view of the circumstances of the case, the Board was prepared to give Mr. Smith a chance to go on the land again.

The closing of Osaka station, used by the farmers of the district as a shipping point for cattle and produce, and which, if closed, would necessitate an increased haul of some miles, had been decided upon, said Mr. Ross, but Mr. Massey had taken up this matter with the Railway Board at Ottawa, and a letter from Mr. King's secretary was read, giving the information that the station was to be kept open, and the present agent, Mr. Fox, retained.

A warm tribute was given Mr. and Mrs. Massey upon their arrival at the hall, the entire audience rising and singing heartily, "For they are jolly good fellows," and prolonged applause greeted his introduction to the people.

"I appreciate tremendously such a large gathering coming out on such a night as this, with roads in their really dangerous condition," said the candidate. "I believe to-morrow we face a danger — and a very real danger—in the higher tariff and higher taxation proposed by Mr. Meighen."

Three cheers and a tiger, with prolonged applause, were given Mr. Massey as he concluded his address, and was leaving the hall.

Dr. John Hunter of Toronto, who fifty years ago practised his profession in Millbrook, was the first speaker of the evening, and referred to the fact that in 1878 West Durham was represented by Hon. Edward Blake, while East Durham had an equally distinguished member in Colonel Williams. "You have now the third opportunity of making your riding one of the best known in Canada by returning Honorable Vincent Massey — a gentleman, a scholar, a man of splendid ability and wide business experience."

A. E. Roebuck, of Toronto, delivered a strong speech, pointing out the gain to the country from the introduction of the Progressive party into its political life. The fact that government by Order-in-Council has been discontinued during the past three years, the railway situation and its improvement in recent years, the reduced burden of taxation, and the advantages of a balanced budget (due largely to Progressive influence), were among the points dealt with in detail by the speaker.

Rev. Adam Hamilton of Cobourg and Mr. J. Wearing of Peterboro both were accorded an excellent hearing, though under the disadvantage of coming on the platform after 11 p.m., the latter beginning to speak when it was approaching the midnight hour. Both strongly endorsed the candidature of Mr. Massey, and put forward, in a convincing manner, some of the issues of the day, and the need of the policy supported by the government of Hon. Mackenzie King for Canada's prosperity and national unity. Mr. Hamilton, who is a Scotchman by birth, struck a strongly Imperialistic note throughout his address.

The meeting closed with the National Anthem.

Music was furnished by the [illegible] band and by the Post orchestra, while the people were gathering. Mr. Orrie Gamsby, who is a general favorite, singing one or two songs, and also specialties between the gathering, during the evening.

IT PAYS TO ADVERTISE

LIBERAL SPEAKERS MAKE LAST EFFORT

G. N Gordon and Mrs. Thorburn Addressed a Meeting of Electors in Lakefield.

LAKEFIELD, Oct. 29—The last Liberal meeting of the present campaign was held in the Memorial Hall on Tuesday evening, with a large attendance, the ladies probably outnumbering the men. The chairman was Mrs. W. M. Graham, convenor of the Women's Liberal Committee, and the speakers were Mrs. Chas. Thorburn of Ottawa, and Hon. G. N. Gordon, M.P., who both delivered excellent addresses upon the issues at stake in the present campaign.

Seated on the platform were Mesdames A. G. Lawless, Wm. Simpson, Geo. A. Charlton, Mrs. J. A. Porter and Mrs. H. T. Moore and Misses Webster, M. Fortier and G. Simpson, and Messrs. J. A. Porter, Duff, J. H. Sherin, F. J. Moore, G. A. Graham, and Dr. J. C. Smith.

Solos were rendered by Mrs. A. B. Burrows, "Love's Old Sweet Song," and by Mrs. D. H. McMillan, "My Ain Folk," and a ladies' chorus rendered "O Canada," in splendid voice, while the audience, led by a men's chorus, sang several of the "choice" on the song sheets provided.

Mrs. H. E. Moore and Miss Gwen Simpson played the accompaniments.

Invitations are out for the Fireman's Hallowe'en Dance, to be held on Friday, October 29. It is the first dance of the season and bids fair to be popular, especially as it fits in between Election Day and the hunting season, which calls so many of the young men away to the wilds. The stewards are Messrs. A. H. Clarke, W. Murduff, W. Robruise, T. A. Simpson, E. Robertshaw, A. Summers, S. A. Grylls, and J. C. Ridpath.

Snow Plough Appears.

The appearance of the snow plough doing much needed service on Wednesday was almost unprecedented in October, and evoked many prophecies of diverse character from the weather-wise in the village. A little bit of winter when one expects a glorious Canadian autumn is not a popular substitute.

Personals.

Mr. F. J. McFadden of Peterboro was in the village on Tuesday on business.

Mrs. A. Northey and Miss Ray have returned from a week's visit in Montreal.

Mr. J. H. Sherin and Mr. John C. Sherin have returned from a trip to Saskatchewan.

BARN BURNED.

Lantern Explosion Was the Cause of Loss to Farmer.

OMEMEE, Oct. 29.—The explosion of a lantern which he was using in doing his chores, was the cause of a fire at three miles north of Omemee this morning, on the property of James Sharp. The livestock was saved, but the season's crop, barn and implements were destroyed.

Easy To Gain Weight With Yeast and Iron

New Combination of Yeast With Vegetable Iron Builds Up Weight in Three Weeks

Thin, run-down and underweight men, women and children can improve their health, increase their energy and put on from five to twenty pounds of good solid flesh in three weeks.

A new combination of yeast vitamines with vegetable iron, renews the action of sluggish blood cells, drives out dangerous body poisons, increases energy and endurance and supplies the system with the vitamines that build up weight.

For years yeast has been known as a rich vitamine food, but not until we perfected "ironized yeast"—which comes in concentrated tablet form, was it possible to take yeast and iron in the right proportions to build up weight.

Vegetable "Iron" when combined with yeast is quite easy to digest, therefore better for the system. And "yeast" when ironized becomes just twice as beneficial as ordinary fresh or cake yeast.

Ironized Yeast tablets are composed of concentrated food elements, therefore they are pleasant to take and free from drug-like effects. It makes no difference how old you are—or how young you are—how long you have been under-weight—or how much underweight you are, "ironized yeast" tablets are positively guaranteed to pick you right up, and add from five to twenty pounds of good firm flesh in three weeks' time. If they fail get your money back.

JOSHUA AND MARY ANDERSON CELEBRATE 70 YEARS MARRIAGE

Mr. Anderson is 99 and His Wife Ten Years Younger.

IN GOOD HEALTH.

Have Always Lived on the Same Island in Trent River.

(By Staff Reporter).

ANDERSON'S ISLAND, Oct. 29.—The first two votes polled at the sub-division at Glen Ross, in South Hastings riding, at the election today were cast by Mr. and Mrs. Joshua Anderson, of Anderson's Island, which is situated in Trent River, about five miles from Stirling. Mr. Anderson is 99 years old and his wife is ten years his junior. He has been voting for the past 75 years, every time in the same subdivision, and in all these years has never failed to take part in either a Dominion or Provincial election. He has always been a Conservative, and in politics, as in all other important problems, he and his wife have been in accord, before and since the franchise was given to women. Mr. Anderson was 24 before he cast his first vote. In those distant days every voter had to be a freeholder, and he had not secured the deed of his farm until three years after he had attained his majority. One year ago in the by-election in which Charlie Hanna defeated Gus Potter, Mr. Anderson was the first to hand in his ballot at Glen Ross.

Their Wedding Day.

Thursday was an auspicious occasion in the lives of this aged couple. They left the polling place and returned to their home, where, with their children and grandchildren and great-grandchildren, they celebrated the seventieth anniversary of their wedding day, an anniversary so rare in the annals of matrimony that no special designation has ever been found for it. Seventy years of married life is the history of a period that extends back to the pioneer days when Anderson Island was a forest. Out of that forest the young couple carved the home which shelters them in peace and comfort today.

Nearing Century Mark.

If Mr. Anderson lives until the 21st of January next, he will be 100 years old, and once again his children will gather to do honor to him on the anniversary of his birth, just as they have done on the same occasion for years past. He was born in Murray Township, Northumberland, about a mile from his present home, just across the county line. When he was 11 his parents moved to the island, the first to ever settle here, and the place was given their name.

Has Had Four Birthdays.

Mrs. Anderson, whose maiden name was Mahala Parcels, was born in Murray township not far from the home of her future husband, on April 3, 1836. That day was Easter Sunday, and in the past 89 years the anniversary of the Resurrection, has fallen on the same date only four times so that Mrs. Anderson is wont to say that she has so far had only four real birthdays. Both she and her husband enjoy the best of health with faculties wonderfully preserved considering their years. Only once in his life has Mr. Anderson required the services of a doctor. They have outlived all the contemporaries of their youth and have still a fair prospect for continued existence.

The late Rev. William Black, at that time in charge of a Methodist mission station where Stirling is now situated, officiated at the marriage that was solemnized so many years ago.

Long-Lived Relatives.

All of Mr. Anderson's brothers and sisters are dead, one brother having reached the age of 79, and a sister passing away at 95. His mother died when she was 95 and up to the present no older person has been buried in the Stirling cemetery.

Mrs. Anderson's grandfather, the late John Parcels, who fought in the war of 1812, lacked only one month of being 101 years old at the time of his death. As an evidence of his marvellous vigor it is in the records of the Parcels family, that in his 100th year he made the trip from Trenton to Toronto, and return, in less than a week, covering the entire distance on foot. Vigorous men were required to convert Ontario from a wilderness to a garden and it seems that such men were provided for the strenuous task.

The Children Present.

Five of the six living children of Mr. and Mrs. Anderson, came down withwith their aged parents to the wedding dinner on Thursday. These were Mrs. William Hanna of Stirling; Mrs. William Reaume of Wallaceburg, and Mrs. Chester Hoard, who resides with her husband on the farm next to her parents. The two sons present were Lester of Hoard's Station and Fred, who resides with his parents. Fred, a other son lives in Saskatchewan. A large number of the 20 grand and 27 great grandchildren, were in the gathering.

Five children have passed away and the death of three of these brought to Mr. and Mrs. Anderson the only tragedies of their peaceful and otherwise uneventful lives. Richard and Angelina aged 11 and 10 years respectively broke through the ice while crossing the Trent River on their way from school, and were drowned, their bodies clinging together, being recovered later. A son, Wilson, who kept a store at Wellman's Corners, was killed by a horse some years ago.

OBITUARY.

MARTHA PRISCILLA PICKLE.

NORHAM, Oct. 29.—Following a lingering illness which extended over several weeks, Martha Priscilla Pickle, wife of the late Nelson King passed away at the home of her son Ira King, in Brighton township, west of Codrington early Monday morning.

The funeral services were held in Mount Olivet United church on Wednesday afternoon at 2.00 p.m.

MRS. ROBERT RUTHERFORD.

COLBORNE, Oct. 29.—The death of Mrs Robert Rutherford has removed a lady who was highly esteemed throughout the community. Mrs. Rutherford had been ill for a long time, but although her passing was not unexpected, it has left a deep feeling of sadness. Mrs. Rutherford before her marriage was Miss Chapin and her life had practically been spent here. Besides her husband she leaves a daughter, Mrs. Charles Black, and twin sons, Fraser at home and Arthur in Detroit. She is survived also by one brother, Mr. George Chapin of Cobourg.

The funeral was held on Sunday afternoon. Service was conducted by Rev. Mr. McCullough, Presbyterian minister, and the interment was at Lakefield cemetery.

GUSTAVUS HOWDEN.

There passed away in Emily Township on October 23rd a very highly respected resident in the person of Gustavus Howden, in his 87th year. He went to bed Wednesday night in his apparent good health, but took ill Thursday morning before rising. The doctor was summoned, who informed the relatives that there was no possible chance of his recovery, owing to the condition of his heart. Kind hands ministered to him until he passed peacefully away at 5 p.m. Friday.

The funeral took place from the homestead, 3rd Line, Emily, Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock, to the Emily Cemetery, and in spite of the most inclement weather, a large crowd gathered to pay their last respects to the departed.

The deceased came from Fermanagh, Ireland, with his parents and brothers seventy-eight years ago, crossing the ocean in a sailing vessel and taking eleven weeks to cross. They took up residence in Cavan Township, near the Fallis Line, later moving to Monaghan.

When a young man he married Mary Kerr, of Emily, near Omemee, and they lived a few years in Monaghan, near the old Town Hall, later moving to Emily. There were seven children born, four of whom survive: Mrs. Stuart Fallis, Fallis Line, Cavan; Mrs. I. Magee, Peterboro; Wilfred, merchant, Fowler's Corners; Will on the homestead.

Mr. Howden was a broken-hearted man when he was bereaved of his wife forty years ago, and he was left a widower with five small children. He afterwards married a cousin, Mary Gallagher, who predeceased him over four years ago. To this union was born one son, Herbert, living in Emily, near Omemee. One brother also survives, Richard of Omemee.

The deceased was noted for his kind, sympathetic and cheerful disposition, always entering into the sports of the young folks, and loved to meet and visit with old friends. He is mourned by the entire community. The pastor, Rev. E. Rowland, spoke very touchingly, and paid some glowing tributes to the deceased. He said he had known Mr. Howden for thirty-five years, and when he was just a lad entering the ministry, he received a great deal of help and encouragement from Brother Howden, and he felt that he should be among the mourners instead of the officiating clergyman. Mr. Howden was a Methodist in religion, and was Sunday School superintendent for years. There is in the home a large family Bible, presented to him years ago by St. John's Anglican Church, where for some time he was their Sunday School superintendent. There is also a rocker which was presented to him by the Middle Road Sunday School, where he was superintendent for years, and a devoted member of the little church.

Those from a distance who attended the funeral on Sunday were a nephew, Vincent Howden, Detroit; Mr. and Mrs. H. Biglow and Miss Pricilla Howden, Bethany; Mr. and Mrs. Robert and Will Howden, Cavan; V. J. Fallis, M.P., and Mrs. Fallis, Fallis Line, Cavan; Reginald Fallis, Cavan; Ex-Warden A. Henderson, Fallis Line, Cavan; William Russel, Port Hope; — and Mrs. J. Bradley, Bridgenorth; Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Howden, Peterboro; Miss A. Somerville and Miss Hazel McWilliams, Peterboro; Mr. and Mrs. F. Guthrie, Peterboro; Mr. S. C. Kerneghan, Peterboro.

MISSION WORKER GIVES INSPIRING TALK AT MADOC

Says United Church Worth Any Previous Hardship Suffered.

CASTE SYSTEM.

Christianity Levels Classes —Asiatic Nations Are Waking Up From Slumber.

MADOC, Oct. 29—Citizens of Madoc were given a rare treat on Monday evening when Dr. Bates, a missionary home on furlough from Japan delivered an instructive and inspiring address in the United Church.

Rev. Mr. Foster introduced Dr. Bates as bringing a message from the Central Executive, and as one able to give the message concerning the new church and able to speak of the work both at home and abroad in the Mission field. Mr. Foster regretted that varied interests had prevented many from attending the lecture Dr. Bates, in referring to the smallness of the audience, said that a remark had been made by one of the early Japanese Christians which he had always remembered and which he had found inspiring and comforting all through his service. This man was the Hon. S. Ebara, M.P., a leading statesman, a highly educated gentleman and a member of the House of Lords in the Japanese parliament, and he said, "Whenever I speak I always remember that God is here and then it makes no difference how many are in the audience."

Dr. Bates spoke of the pleasure it gave him to see this part of the country. He had not known that this beautiful section of the country was the one that helped to make the ladies beautiful, that it was the centre of the talcum industry. He spoke of the joy and privilege it was to be at home this year on furlough, to be here at this birthday of the church. Dr. Bates was appointed by the Japanese church as delegate and he reached Toronto on June 9th in time to be present at that memorable service held in the arena. He spoke of how much the union of the churches meant to the mission field. It is the most convincing argument for the gospel of Jesus Christ. He spoke of the way in which denominational names are carried into the Japanese language and said he longed for the time when the only name would be the Church of Christ. The United Church is worth any hardship, any sacrifice there may be made. Greater things will be accomplished in the mission field when the United Church gets into its stride. Today it can be said of the United Church Mission as it is said of Britain: "On it the sun never sets" Dr. Bates then gave a brief but clear cut, concise resume of some of these missions.

One wonderful thing of the program for this work is that we are brought into contact with the civilization of the world. There are four types of civilization: 1, Our own, the Greco-Roman; 2, the Mahaammedan civilization which is found in Arabia, Turkey, India, China; 3, the Indian or Hindu which is the civilization of three hundred million people; 4, the Chinese, which embraces China, Formosa, Korea, Japan. All these still leave Africa outside. Africa is still below; is just emerging from the stage of barbarism into that state where there is a written language and a little literature.

The Congregational Church brought to the United Church a wonderful challenge in this mission in Africa. When Mr. and Mrs. Curry, missionaries sent out by the Congregational church, went there they had to teach the Africans everything as if they were children. They had to invent their literary life that they might have a written language to teach them from. In Portuguese territory the missionaries had to learn their language as well as the African language as they were not allowed to teach them in any language but their own. Miss McKenzie, a missionary in Africa, had said that they even looked to her for medical aid, but there were three things she felt safe in carrying and administering at times and these were quinine, castor oil and baking soda.

Dr. Bates said if time in his only permitted it, how much he would like to go to Africa to teach these black children who are only now emerging into the joy and light of the Christian religion, and of whom there are still so many who appease their grotesque do's with incantations and sacrifices.

The speaker then referred to India which he characterized as a remarkable country. India has produced wonderful buildings, government, religion, and fine men and women. We must not think we are on a higher level looking down on the India people. They have culture and many wonderful things, yet these are little without that one priceless possession which they lack and we have, Jesus Christ. There are two types in India, the Hindu and the Mohammedan. India has sometimes been called the mother of religion and the mother of philosophy. One of the greatest men of today is the poet-philosopher, Tagore. Dr. Bates explained the system of caste in India, and in this connection cited two Christians, Bishop Azarah and Mr. Karmarkar, both noted men. Bishop Azariah was of lower caste than Mr. Karmarkar and before becoming Christians, had his shadow fallen on Mr. Karmarkar, the latter would have been polluted and would have had to go through many ceremonies to become purified. Christianity did away with these differences and now these two men are able to eat together and to be friends. When these men first met they could not converse with each other except in English, because they were from different parts of the country, and though both Indians, neither could speak the other's language, but they were both able to speak English. That is one way in which Britain has helped to unify India by giving her a common language.

In referring to China's ancient civilization, the speaker said China was a great nation when our ancestors were running through the woods with war-paint and feathers. Three hundred years ago Champlain was discovering this country, but three thousand years ago the Chinese were a cultured people. Then they went to sleep for centuries but now they are waking up with tremendous rapidity. It can no longer be said of the East that it is unchanging.

In speaking of Korea, Dr. Bates said that there are more Christians there than there were in the whole world in one hundred years after Christ. The rapidity of the work there has been most astounding. The Koreans are not happy in their political relations, but Christianity has brought much joy and peace to them.

Last of all Dr Bates touched on his own mission field, Japan. A mission was established there by the Methodist Church in 1873. There have been three streams of civilization merged into one in Japan. First, there was the old Japanese life. Then came the Chinese influence which was very strong, and following that, the European. When Dr. Bates went to Tokio twenty-three years ago there were no cars, no lights, none of the modern appliances. Now it compares favourably with any great city in the West. They have a splendid medical system, an efficient police system and post office. The Japanese are an attractive people, but they are without Christ, although the work is advancing well. There are fifty nine million people in Japan of whom two hundred and forty thousand are Christians. Dr. Bates thinks the next twenty-five years will bring great changes and he hoped that the foreign mission work may come to its consummation there during his life-tme. Dr. Bates has been connected with the West Japan College for the past ten years. In this college they have an auditorium that seats sixteen hundred. Over two thousand students have graduated and one hundred and thirty Christian ministers have been trained for their life work in this school.

CAMPAIGN ENDS IN EAST RIDING

Dr. Embury Wound Up His Electioneering at Marmora.

HAVELOCK MEETING.

MARMORA, Oct. 29 (Special to The Examiner)—Marmora's spacious town hall was filled to overflowing on Wednesday evening with electors from Marmora Village, Marmora Township and Deloro to hear Dr. A. T. Embury, the Conservative candidate.

Mr. S. B. Wright took the chair, being supported by the candidate, Reeves G. B. Achart and R. Bonter, Hon. J. R. Cook, and Mr. R. A. Elliott. Sill's Orchestra of Madoc furnished selections at the commencement and between speeches.

Hon. J. R. Cooke gave a very striking speech, extending almost an hour. He eulogized Dr. Embury and spoke next on the Government's great duty of nation building. In thinking of problems of the future he recalled words spoken to Canadian boys by Earl Grey, to the effect that in days to come the greatest Empire the world has ever known would have its capital in Canada. He contrasted the policies of the Liberal and Conservative leaders in their relation to Imperial welfare. He remarked that the Conservatives were upholding British connection as believed in by the Fathers of Confederation. He concluded by saying that three humiliating factors of the Liberal governments of the past would be followed by another on the morrow.

Dr. Embury followed in breezy style. He said that Marmora stood as a granite rock for Conservatism. He then dealt with the national debt and the causes leading thereto. Next he depreciated the third party, though he adduced that his opponent was rather an Independent than a Progressive. He proceeded to answer statements made concerning himself, not by Mr. Brethen but by his supporters, on the temperance question. He stated that he could not sign the petition, for the reason that the electors would have no respect for a man who would use the church as a political football to bring him into parliament. In conclusion, he solicited support as the standard bearer for the Conservative party.

Reeve C. B. Achart having briefly spoken, the chairman read an extract from The Kingston Standard, wherein Senator Mr. J. O'Brien, Liberal, by telegram, had stated he was behind the Conservative party in this election. Mr. R. A. Elliott followed with a brief outline of organization work. The meeting was next addressed by G. S. White of Madoc and John Sexsmith, ex-M.P.P., who had just arrived from a meeting in Madoc.

The latter, who spoke last, commenced under unusual circumstances by replying to a question from a member of the audience in such vigorous style as to cause mingled applause and laughter from those present, and which were renewed throughout a lengthy discourse. A noteworthy feature of the meeting was the tributes paid by three speakers to the character of Sir Wilfrid Laurier. After lasting three hours, the meeting terminated at 11.15 p.m. with the National Anthem.

Havelock Meeting.

HAVELOCK, Oct. 29.—The Town Hall was crowded on Wednesday evening with a very enthusiastic audience to hear the policy of the Liberal-Conservative party discussed for the last time in this campaign. The speakers were Mrs. Fallis of Peterboro, Dr. Harper of Madoc, Col. McKay of Toronto. Mr. S. S. Joyce presided and asked the following to take seats on the platform: Mrs. Wm. Vance, Mrs. Geo. Smith, Mrs. E. Mathison, Mr. J. Kennaird, Mr. R. Sanderson. All of the speakers were billed to address a mass meeting at Norwood. Mrs. Fallis was the first to arrive, and left immediately after her address for Norwood. Dr. Harper was the second speaker and Col. Johnston the last.

Dr. Harper gave some reasons why he said Dr. Embury should be elected. "Progressive is only a name," he said, "because the Liberal-Conservative Party is progressive." In closing he asked the citizens of Havlock to do their part and support Dr. Embury and Canada.

Col. McKay was next called, and dealt in a very masterly way with the railway problem, national debt, exodus to the U.S.A., and the tariff, and asked the audience to support Dr. A. T. Embury and the national policy of Mr. Meighen.

BROADCASTING STATION RESULTS OF DOMINION ELECTION AT EXAMINER

A local Tory, who is great on Radio, and has a set-up in his domicile, coming home from a political meeting, felt shivery (quite natural feeling under the circumstances), and making this excuse to his spouse, betook himself to bed. There he snuggled and twisted and curled himself, till at last, he sprawled over the border-land to sleep—and dream. In his dream, that which was uppermost in his mind dominated. He was not sure of what the result of the election would be, he told his better half (in his dream, of course), so he would just sit up and get the result from the broadcasting station as he sat in his comfortable chair. What an age it seemed sitting there waiting for it coming through! Would he have to go down to the Examiner after all for the result x x x He would rather not x x x the dream was sweet and glorious—until he could not rest, and the awkward thing was that he could not walk freely about, whether it was Protection which had got him, or the wife had wrapped a rug round his limbs, he could not make out x x x but walking was difficult x x x "Gur-r-r—Buzz—Buzz. Ah, here we are, now listen! CFCA Broadcasting Station—further election results—Peterboro West—gurr—gurr—gurr—Hon. G. N. Gor—" A deep sigh was the only sound—he heard no more, with a groan he sank into "his work" in his bed and finished the night in a garrulous nightmare, part sleep, part waking. He told his wife in the morning of his dream—and she cheered him for his duties of the day with the soothing remark, "Oh! dear, dreams are always contrary." By the time this is under your eyes, perhaps you may want to 'phone 1600 or 1601 for the result—let your enquiries be short and sweet, or if you wish, you can obtain all the election results in the EXAMINER EXTRA to-night—which is right—his dream or his wife? ADVICE TO GIRLS

By Annie Laurie

DEAR ANNIE LAURIE:

Is it wise to get sore if a boy friend does not come around often or is it better to ignore the absence and pretend you do not care?

UNCERTAIN.

UNCERTAIN: No, it is not at all wise to get sore about an occurrence like that. By doing so, you will lower your own dignity considerably in your eyes and his, and besides, you will lose part of your attraction for him. He will think you are wild about him, like the ladies in Morley Plunkett's old song. There is no reason in the world, though, why you should only have one boy friend if that one is lukewarm.

DEAR ANNIE LAURIE:

I have a chum who I have been going with for several years. Lately she has been going with a fellow and I haven't sought another chum yet, sometimes we go uptown together in the evenings (not often). Is it necessary that she can't have any of our old boy friends home with us? Hoping to see my answer in the paper, I remain,

"BUBBLES."

BUBBLES: The young lady appears to take her present infatuations so seriously, you will either have to help her along with it and go home quite unattended, if that is what she desires, or else get another chum. That depends on your personal viewpoint. Perhaps you had better get some other girl to go out with you on the evenings that you wish to have some fun, and confine your excursions with this young lady to the quiet times when you will be contented with her company alone. She may be acting rather selfishly, according to your opinion, but then people in love are inclined to be selfish, anyway.

DEAR ANNIE LAURIE:

Who is proper? Is it proper for the fellow to ask himself to the house or is it the girl's place to ask him? Looking for an answer in the paper. Thank you.

BABE.

BABE: That depends, Babe. Some men would never even think of asking for an invitation to call, even if they wished to come very badly, while others would think you were running after them if you suggested that they call on you. The proper procedure, according to the etiquette books, is to wait until the young man asks permission to call on you, but then, according to any well-behaved etiquette book, no young lady ever allows a young man to kiss her unless she is engaged to him. As any real flapper would tell you, that is "applesauce." So you must govern yourself accordingly. If the young man appears to admire you and yet doesn't say anything about coming around to sit on the Chesterfield, you might casually invite him to drop around some evening and hear your new records, or have a game of bridge, or listen to your father's political views, as the case may be.

DEAR ANNIE LAURIE:

I am a young girl in my 'teens, and am very much in love with a young man two years my senior. I used to go with him steady but of late I see very little of him. When he is in my company he always seems very happy. So please, dear Annie Laurie, advise me how to win him back again.

BLUE EYES.

BLUE EYES: When you are in your 'teens, you may think you are very much in love with anybody who happens to catch your fancy, but you may easily transfer your affections at any time. You shouldn't worry too much over this young man. Perhaps he has transferred his affections to another young lady. You may think this is a harsh statement, but use your common sense. If he has stoped going with you "steady", as you say, there must be some reason for it. Either you have done something to offend him, and that isn't likely, if he appears to be happy in your company, or else he is merely cooling off a little. Remember the old song, "Sigh no more, lady, sigh no more. Men were deceivers ever. With one foot on the sea, and one on the shore, to one thing constant never." How would it do to look around and see if you can't find someone else who likes you?

People Can Talk With Ease New Plane Nearly Noiseless

SAN DIEGO, Calif., Oct. 29. United News.—A new airplane that glides so smoothly through the skies that passengers may talk to each other in ordinary conversational tones, has been built here at a cost of $40,000.

The "cloudster," as it is called, will carry 14 passengers at a rate of 115 miles an hour; it is equipped with a radio receiving set for entertaining its passengers, and will be used on a new air line between San Diego and Northern California cities. On Friday morning Mayor John L. Bacon and the City Air Board are going up in the "Cloudster" for a trial flight.

WROUGHT IRON ACCESSORIES

By Annette Bradshaw

The age of wrought iron is upon us, and who can deny that this exquisite craftsmanship is decorative, artistic and adapted to all pocketbooks? True, during Colonial days, the wrought iron fittings had quite a vogue, but they have lain forgotten and gathering dust these many years, until some enterprising artist found the courage to again bring them to our notice. And how we have "grapped" them! From the fittings for the fireplace we have gradually emerged into an era of wrought iron lamps, book ends, flower stands, ferneries, sconces, candlesticks—everything which one can think of in the way of accessories. And they're lovely!

Just a few of the many things now found in the shops are shown above. The graceful flower stand, with its tripod base formed of three arrows, gold tipped, makes a charming effect in the corner of the porch or living room. The bridge lamp we have always with us, and isn't it a comfort? Particularly with a well chosen, natural parchment shade.

The book-ends come in many designs, and have the added attraction of blending with any furnishing scheme.

Can't you just see the fernery standing in one of your sunny windows, giving an every-satisfying beauty to your room?

And the andirons! And the replace fittings! And the joy of just wiping them off with an oiled cloth instead of spending hours in polishing.

If one happens to be artistically inclined, the fittings may be purchased in their natural state, and decorated in colors or dull gold to suit the fancy. But a little goes a long way and just the merest touch is sufficient. Too much paint or gilt will make your fittings garish—than which there is nothing worse.

There are so many graceful designs to select from that it would be impossible to tell of them all. But they're all so lovely it's hard to select any one style, but there's something to suit every one.

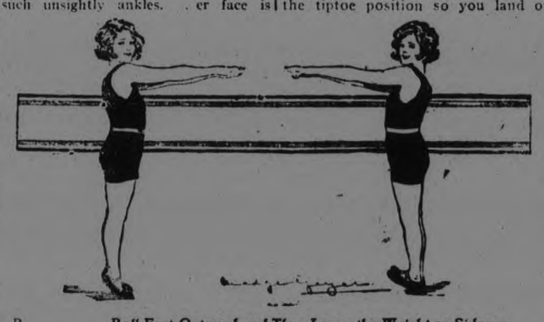
The Secrets Of Charm

By Lucrezia Bori

Slim ankles are the desire of every woman who wants to be beautiful. They are a mark of refinement which all women who are careful of their appearance respect.

Now I know a beautiful girl. At least her face is extraordinarily beautiful. Strange to say this is almost a drawback in her case, simply because her face is in such strong contrast to her ankles. Perhaps if the face were less lovely, people would not notice the contrast so, but they are constantly saying:

Isn't it a shame So-and-So has such unsightly ankles. Her face is so lovely."



Roll Feet Outward and Then Lower the Weight on Sides of Feet.

But this suggests a way for the girl who is not so beautiful of face to shine. If her ankles are unusually good-looking, she can have a decided claim to beauty, for it seems there is no one in the world who does not appreciate beautiful ankles.

There is nothing pleasing to the eye in legs which have no curve from the foot to the knee. There should be two decided curves—one from the ankle to the calf, and another from the calf to the knee. If you lack these curves, either your ankles are too stout, or your calves are too small.

Now, just a simple exercise like rising on your toes alternately will do much to slenderize your ankles. But I am also going to give you two other simple exercises which are excellent to reduce ankles that are inclined to thickness:

First, rise on your toes. Rise way up, as high as you can, so that you feel a decided pull on the muscles down in your ankles.

Now, roll your feet outward, at the same time lowering yourself from the tiptoe position so you land on sides of your feet.

The second exercise which you can alternate with the first one, is as follows: Rise way up on your toes, as you did in the first exercise.

Then let your weight slide back to the back part of your feet, till your toes are up in the air and your heels only are resting on the floor.

Going up and down steps with a good springy gait is also very excellent for your ankles. As you step on each step, let your weight rest on your toes, and raise your heels up high. This gives you much the same movement that you get when you stand still and rise on your toes, except that there is probably more pull on your muscle in step-climbing. Stand erect when you go up steps, and the muscles of your whole body will be benefitted and beautified.

Today's Fashion

This Stunning Coat Combines Wine Velvet and Black Fox.

The vogue for velvet has brought frocks and coats of this material into the greatest fashion prominence.

Among the colors most favored is the rich wine shade, which we see exploited in both dresses and coats. It is often relieved by a contrasting color.

The gracefully flared coat above is of wine velvet, and the fur which borders all the edges and finishes the cuffs is black fox, a medium which offers an effective contrast.

GREEKS EVACUATE BULGARIAN SOIL

League Council in Secret Session Considered Committee Appointment.

BULGARIAN ATTACK.

PARIS, Oct. 29. — (Canadian Press). — Apprehension in the League of Nations' quarters over the reported renewal of fighting along the Greco-Bulgarian frontier was relieved to-day by the receipt of an official despatch from Athens stating that "despite the Bulgarian attack," the Greek Government had issued definite orders hastening the evacuation of Bulgarian soil by its troops.

The League Council began a secret session this morning to discuss the telegrams from Athens and also to consider the appointment of a committee of investigation which, it is expected, will be composed of both civilians and military men.

Up to noon no word had been received from the Council's military agents regarding the state of evacuation.

Later it was stated that Sir Horace Humbold, the English diplomatist who took such a prominent part in the Lausanne peace conference between the Allies and Turkey, would head a committee of investigation which would also include a French officer, an Italian officer and Swedish and Dutch civilians.

The Council, after its secret session, adjourned until late this afternoon, when it will hold a public session to announce the personnel and programme of the committee.

The Council this morning received a telegram from the Allied military attaches who were sent to the scene of Greco-Bulgarian trouble from nearby capitals reporting that they arrived at the frontier yesterday afternoon, met both the Greek and Bulgarian commanders and obtained not only thier promise of evacuation but a definite undertaking that under no conditions would hostilities be re-opened. The Bulgarians, to avoid any new incident, promised not to re-occupy their frontier posts until to-morrow afternoon.

RUSSIA FORBIDS GRAIN PURCHASE

WANT EXPORT TRADE.

MOSCOW, Oct. 29 (Canadian Press).—In order to secure greater control of this year's grain supply the Government yesterday issued regulations forbidding state commercial organizations from purchasing grain from private traders or commission agents. This affects many thousands of Russian merchants, who have accumulated several hundred million rubles' worth of wheat from the peasants at their own prices and who will now be forced to dispose of these stocks at any figure obtainable. It is likely that the entire accumulation of grain in private hands will come into the possession of the Government, which desires a lower price for bread and also to increase its grain export abroad.

In business circles this is regarded as one of the most drastic orders ever issued by the Government.

YOUR HEALTH

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M.D.,
Former Commissioner of Health, New York City.

THE MEANING OF AN INFANT'S PROTESTS.

During the past month I have tried to make clear to you the meaning of a baby's cry. I have done this because you must not look upon crying as of no significance. A young baby has learned little of the artful things which may be indulged in when it grows up. In infancy the child reacts naturally and normally. Every one of its performances means something definite to the trained observer.

If you have read the series of articles you realize how much the loving and alert mother can learn from the cry of her baby. She reads every communication with its sources of strength or weakness. The cry tells her what is wrong and, in most instances, what should be done to remove the cause of trouble.

The cry of a healthy child is full and clear. It is not muffled or subdued. It is not a wail or a moan. It is an honest-to-goodness yell.

There is nothing modest or retiring about a normal infant. When it is displeased or in pain it does not hesitate to vocalize its protest.

When you and I weep, great tears roll down our cheeks and splash on the floor. When a young infant cries there are no tears. Not until it is three or four months old do real tears appear. The eyes may appear moist but there is no escape of fluid.

When the child grows older the tears are observed. Above the age of three or four months their absence is worthy an explanation. After they have once made their appearance, if the child is sick and the tears disappear, it is a sign of serious illness. You may be reassured and confident that recovery is on the way when they reappear.

In certain diseases the child may be very sick and yet cry but little. For instance, in pneumonia or bronchitis, in any disease where the free passage of air to the lungs is interfered with, there may be little crying, even if there is a good deal of pain. The baby cannot stop breathing long enough to cry—it requires all the remaining air space to get oxygen into the lungs. Instinctively the infant refrains from crying.

In conditions where there is great loss of physical strength, as all the debilitating diseases are, there is a low or sitting rather than weeping. The child is too weak to cry.

The cry of a baby may be annoying at times, but it is of real significance always. The mother must learn just what it means. When he has done this he will be able to make the baby comfortable and happy, and the baby never is comfortable and happy when it is crying.

Note: This is the fifth and last of a series of articles prepared especially for new mothers and published weekly in this newspaper.—Editor.

GOOD NIGHT STORIES

By Blanche Silvar

BOBBY LEARNS TO FISH

Bobby tossed in his fishing line, then settled himself on the bank, waited a second, picked up his line, and tossed it in again.

After he had repeated this action several times, he heard a soft chuckle and turning around saw a great tall heron watching him from behind the shadow of a bush.

"No wonder you never catch any fish," laughed Mr. Heron. "Mr., if I didn't have any more patience than you have, I'd soon starve to death."

"My goodness me," Bobby laughed, tossing in his fishing line again. "Have you been standing out in that water very long?"

"Before you a' from there," replied Mr. Heron. "You ar long time before you came along. I don't believe I've complained yet and while you put fish for fun, it might me need to me and mine. I have a wife and baby waiting for a fish. That means I must catch three fish to supply my family."

Just then Mr. Heron flicked his proud head down and up came his long bill between which wiggled a fish.

"Now, why couldn't I have caught that for you?" asked Bobby.

"You probably would have a much better chance if you were fishing so your shadow would not fall in front of you. Don't you think these fish have some sense? Of course they have. Then, too, your line is too white. Look at my leg," and Mr. Heron held up his leg to show Bobby. "See my leggings? They are just about the same color as the marsh grasses. They mingle with the grasses so well that it would be a hard job for a fish to see them. I'm standing in the shadow so I cast no shadow in front of me. If you stayed around me long, I'd make a fisher out of you."

"Well, I've seen a good many heron since I've been down here in Florida," laughed Bobby, "but I never noticed until just now that you have brownish-green legs. Not a bad idea. Then, too, I think you're right about throwing a shadow on the water in front of you."

"And above all things," chuckled Mr. Heron, "when you're trying to catch fish, keep still. Why, I can stand so still folks on the bank think me a log, until I spread my wings to fly. That just makes me think, I must hurry," and he snapped up another fish and holding it between his bill, he spread his beautiful white wings.

"Is your home around here some place?" asked Bobby.

"Not very far away," replied Mr. Heron, "just over at the edge of the woods, in the tallest fir tree over there. Come over sometime and see the wife and the youngster," and once more spreading his white wings, he soared away towards the woods.

Bobby watched him out of sight, then he gathered up his fishing things and sought a shady spot and tossed in his line. He sat very quiet and before many minutes he had enough fish dangling on his string to make a nice lunch.

FAMOUS FORTUNES

By Barbara Bayne

FRANK W. WOOLWORTH—the Nickle and Dime King

Frank W. Woolworth represents the typical American business man—rising from obscurity to the highest degree of success.

The sixty-story Woolworth Building in New York City, 792 feet high, "built with nickels and dimes" until it finally towered above all others in the world, typifies America. The giant structure is the monument to an idea which could find expression only in America, the land where merit has opportunity to blossom.

He Worked for the Station Master Without Pay

Its builder, Frank W. Woolworth, was born in New York in 1852, and his early life was a hard, dreary round of farm duties. "So poor" said he, in telling of his experiences, that he "never knew what it was to have an overcoat even in that cold climate."

After two Winter's session in a Watertown commercial college, he worked for the station master without pay in order to gain experience. But his great ambition was to stand behind a counter, and finally, at twenty-one, he landed a job in a store. After working two years for $6 a week, he went over to a rival store where he received $10 a week.

This seemed like such affluence that he thought he could afford to marry. Living on a 4-acre farm where his wife helped to swell the family exchequer by raising vegetables and chickens to sell, Woolworth worked from 7 a.m. until 10 p.m. until 1879, when the great idea was born which was to prove the greatest merchandising idea on earth.

Woolworth persuaded his employer to try out the venture by selling an assortment of articles at 5 cents. So confident was he of success that he borrowed $300 from the merchant and opened up a store of his own in Utica.

Followed several failures and successes; but, convinced that he had found the career for which he was fitted, he stuck to his guns and went ahead opening up 5-cent and 10-cent stores. Realizing he was sailing uncharted seas, he studied how to put the thing he had created on a permanent basis.

With the expansion of his business he found it more profitable to have a partner in each store. His stores buy in tremendous quantities, taking the entire output of manufacturers of many kinds of goods. Unlike other big concerns of today, he established his business on principles of trade. Though he could have done so he never manufactured an article.

After that first loan was repaid Woolworth never borrowed another dollar, and there was not a dollar of indebtedness on his properties during his lifetime.

In his Fifth Avenue home is a unique music room and the most elaborate organ in the world. His private office is an exact copy of Napoleon's "Empire Room." The "Nickel and Dime King" died in 1919, leaving a fortune of $70,000,000.

ANNUAL REPORT PREPARED BY MOTHERS' ALLOWANCE BOARD SHOWS USEFULNESS OF THE ACT

Provincnal and Local Ladies Provide Well Administered Public Service.

OVER 4,000 HOMES.

Twelve Thousand Children Receive Benefits of These Allowances.

The Mother's Allowances Act has been in force for nearly five years, and the social values of the Act should now, in some reasonable measure, be apparent. The Annual Report, for the year October, 1923-24, in its statements, record of expenditures and outlook for the future fully justifies what is said of it. In its operation and administration it has claimed and gained the unstinted service of hundreds of good men and women, who cheerfully and loyally spend time and thought to the end that great good may be accomplished. If all public service could be equally as well administered this old world might come to be a much better place to live in. At present too many merely exist.

In forming up the report the Chairman of the Provincial Board asked the Secretaries and Chairmen of Local Boards to contribute personal impressions of the working of the Act in the several localities where boards are established, which pretty nearly covers the whole province. The result was that there came in such a mass of written observation, encouraging comment, intimate detail and hearty approval that the compiler of the report, at headquarters was swamped. So much was offered of high value as affording a slant on conditions from one of the province to the other, that it was with regret that a great deal had to be left out.

Going over the several communications, paragraphs, were selected as might best inform the public, which contributes by its taxed portion of the allowances cost, just what was being accomplished. And it is felt, that while the ratepayers will not be unmindful that the municipality pays half the cost, they will be equally interested in the human documents that reveal how well the Act is fulfilling its object. Excerpts are taken from what has been written and all here printed are fully authenticated.

In over 4000 homes in Ontario there has come, through the Mother's Allowances Act, a higher standard of living, and in these homes are over 12,000 children with larger opportunities for health, education and happiness. It is gratifying to find that the vast majority of mothers are giving good care to the children. Reports from each family reach the Head Office, monthly, through the visits of supervisors.

At the outset some feared that the Mother's Allowances Act would lessen private philanthropy, but the experience of the last four years in administration of the Act shows, with the splendid co-operation of churches, service clubs, etc., gifts and raising of funds has been largely stimulated in respect to the care of the widow and the fatherless.

From the details of administration certain facts stand out of large interest. The statistics compiled in the course of the work are absolutely to be relied on, and year by year are furnishing substantial and reliable information as to the prevalence of certain diseases, causes of death and other valuable data.

Under provisions of the Act, the amount appropriated by the Legislature for payment of allowances for the fiscal year, (Nov. 1923 to October, 1924, was $1,710,000. Of this amount $1,707,894 was expended, leaving a balance of $2,106. The share (one half) collected from municipalities was $768,372, and the balance was assumed direct by the Province, $939,522, covering assistance in unorganized districts, judicial districts and in cases where a part of allowance was paid, outside the municipalities.

The net amount chargeable to Peterborough county was $5,814.50, and to the city of Peterborough, $9,944.50. The number of families receiving allowances was 4058, and the number of children involved, 12,374 (children under sixteen years of age), 92.9% of the beneficiaries are of British birth; 68.7% of that number being Canadians. Only 7.1% are naturalized Canadians.

There is an increasing number of applications on the ground of the husband's total and permanent incapacitation. Each of such applications must be supported by a medical report on the Commission's medical form, and only received and considered if the husband is totally and permanently incapaciated, when an allowance is granted.

Statistics relating to the death of the father reveal that pneumonia, tuberculosis and influenza are responsible for 45.3%, nearly one-half of all deaths. Accidents are responsible for 284 deaths, and 196 died of cancer, while 49 of the fathers committed suicide and ten were murdered. It is thus seen that in so many of the distressing cases of violence, resulting in death, and circumstances warranting, under the Act, assistance has been granted to the widow and children in the form of an allowance.

The members of the local boards, who have had opportunity of observing closely the effects of the Mother's Allowances in the homes of widows living in their communities are unanimous as to the good results in such families, from such allowances, and the benefit to the community of these results. Almost all the Boards have noted in particular the increase in educational advantages for these children and the opportunity given them by the allowance for training for future citizenship. Extracts from the reports of the Local Boards are given below, as it would be onerous to print such in full, there being no less than ninety-six local boards:—

Educational Opportunities.

"Criticism of the Act has disappeared in our city, possibly because those who criticized have been watching the changes that have taken place in some of these families. If so, they cannot help seeing that instead of the children they used to know in some of these homes who were not given much consideration by their more fortunate schoolmates on account of the pinched circumstances of their home surroundings, they may now see many of these children to-day, after a year of two of Government assistance, manly boys and tidy girls who no longer shrink but show a certain spirit of independence and are ready to insist that they be given equality of opportunity with other children."

"We find the Act a great help, not only to the widows in the county, but to the schools. These children are sent to school more regularly than ever before, as in the father's time the small boys were kept from school to help in the plowing and harvesting. Now the mother knows this cannot be done. Teachers notice the difference, and that widows in some parts of the county are saving and sending their children on for higher education, and we feel sure, knowing their old circumstances, that this could never have been the case without the help of the Act."

"Widows are impressed with the idea that their children need a good education which will lead to their ultimate success. This, I think, is one great outstanding feature of the Act."

"The regularity of the contribution to the household enables a systematic planning of economics and is one of the Act's chief merits. This, needless to say, gives opportunity, among other things, for regular school attendance and immeasurable results in future citizenship."

"This aid gives the mothers an opportunity to educate their children, and make them fit members of society, with a fair chance of earning their own living, rather than having them run the streets and become later on a burden on the community through the lack of parental ability to care for them."

"Four of the five families in this district have taken a new lease of life and are being morally trained and cared for and will be a benefit to the community. On the whole, our Board finds that our mothers are pleased, relieved of worry, and able, consequently, to raise a healthy and educated generation."

Improvement in Home Conditions.

The changed outlook in many of the homes has been written of by the Local Boards in their reports:—

"Merely from the standpoint of a scheme of relief, the Act's advantages over any other method, either civic or personal are apparent. It is regular in its payments, giving a sense of stability. The recipient looks upon it as in some sense a wage for public service, rather than as a dole to a pauper. In very many cases we note with pleasure and interest that the whole tone of the home has been raised by the receipt of an allowance. Mothers who have been indifferent home-makers, through the efforts of the Investigator and the Local Board, become thrifty, cleanly and painstaking. The children are better clothed, better fed and even better mannered, and a chance for education is given them."

"To-day, when I enter some of these homes, I find the mother spending her time in profitable employment; she needs no encouragement for the future; her allowance has given her a foothold to face the problems that confront her, and when talking with her she may tell of some of the latest difficulties she has overcome, but her main topic is her plans for the future and appreciation of the assistance that is given her. In most cases it is such genuine appreciation that the listener cannot but help feel a glow of gladness in his heart, knowing that his contribution to the municipality and the Province helps to make this change in the homes of the fatherless possible."

"We have see evidence of the beneficial results of state aid in improved home conditions, where before was nothing but poverty and distress, the mother untidy and discouraged, the eyes seeming to have no expression bu

"In my memory I compare some of the widows of to-day with the widows some two or three years before they received the allowance, and the careworn, fretful expression of their faces, thoughts that were always in the past or on the gloomy surroundings of their present circumstances, no heart to plan or figure for the future; the rippling laughter of their girlhood was unknown to the children who looked to them for support."

Another point which has been commended and commented upon is the rareness of delinquency in Mother's Allowances' families. This deserves to be particularly stressed.

"I think the mothers in almost every case are fully appreciating the work of the Commission, and delinquency is a very rare thing indeed. It also has its effect in improving the general surroundings of the home, because the mothers have felt that the Board was keeping an eye on them and in consequence they felt it was their duty to live up in every way to the spirit of the Act."

"While the allowance, of course, has been limited, as this is a new law in our Province, it has been sufficient in most cases to enable the mother, who would otherwise have been in dire poverty, to enjoy with her family the blessings of home life and give the children the necessary upbringing and education for life."

"It is worthy of note that notwithstanding the vitally important position of the father in the family and, while many families deteriorate to a deplorable extent during his prolonged absence, not one boy or girl from these fatherless and subsidized homes has caused us any worry or developed any anti-social trait."

"Anyone who has observed the working of the Mothers' Allowances Act can have no doubt as to its value as a constructive piece of social legislation. If, as is frequently stated, 'the home is the heart of the nation,' an Act that has done so much to improve conditions in so many homes should be given the credit it deserves. I have visited many of the beneficiaries and am quite satisfied that the results more than justify the expenditure. In fact, I challenge our critics to visit any ten homes receiving the allowance and not be convinced."

Gratitude of The Mothers.

Local Boards have also written of their knowledge of the attitude of the mothers toward the help they receive under the Act. Gratitude is expressed in each beneficiary's home, not only for the monetary assistance, but for the timely advice and guidance of the visiting Investigator. The periodical visit of this officer to the home provides a connecting link between the mother and the Commission. It is worthy of note how in almost every case the allowance cheque is received and welcomed without the recipient being conscious of or even thinking she is receiving so-called charity. This is as it should be.

"I should like to tell you of the appreciation of one of our mothers in her own words:

"'Thank God for the help I receive from the Mothers' Allowance. It is truly a wonderful blessing, which enables me to keep my children with me and properly care for them'."

"A mother said to me recently, 'Please thank everybody who has had anything to do with this allowance. I don't know what I would have done without it'."

"I have been particularly touched by the gratitude of those mothers with whom I have come in personal contact. Frequently, after receiving their first cheque, they telephone to thank the Board for its help in getting on, which all goes to prove that they really appreciate the little enough trouble we take for them."

"All are keenly appreciative of that steady monthly cheque which gives them such a feeling of security in providing essentials and thus maintaining a standing in the community."

"Then, too, there is the personal touch supplied by the Investigator. I believe the majority of our mothers look to the Investigator for sympathy, guidance and advice. The periodical visit of this officer to the home provides a connecting link between the mother and the Commission."

"It will never be known just how much good has been accomplished by our Investigators. 'Home missionaries' seems to describe these fine women, who not only advise the mothers in the careful expenditure of their incomes, but who cheer and encourage those under their care. One mother told me that she cried bitter tears over her first payment, to think that it was necessary that she must accept aid. Then she said, 'Only God knows what it means to feel that some one wants to share my burden, and to sympathize, that some one wants to hear about my troubles'."

"A widow wrote to me one Christmas, saying, 'I don't know how to thank you enough. If it wasn't for the allowance we wouldn't all be together this Christmas. It's hard enough, God knows, to have a vacant chair, but what would it be if we were all scattered'?"

One of the Investigators makes the following statement in her report:

"In looking over the list of families in which the allowance had ceased during the past twenty-two months through there being no longer more than one child under sixteen years of age, I was struck with the fact that of the thirty-four families who formed this list, thirty-two were ready to carry on as self-respecting and self-supporting members of the community."

Local Connection With The Work

At date of writing (October 26th), some forty-six families comprise the Peterborough city list. Then there is the County list of beneficiaries, many of whom reside just outside the city, but not eligible to enrollment on the city list. In the city, the allowances vary as to number of children from $30 to $55 per month. There is a continual change in the personnel of the list. Cases are withdrawn because the families become reasonably self-supporting. New applications come in with regularity, are investigated and if permissible placed for an allowance. Applicants come, state the circumstances and offer recommendations from friends in furtherance of the application. Such are not needed. Investigation will, as it invariably does, reveal the exact circumstances, and if meeting the requirements of the Act, no influence or protest will prevent an allowance being made. And no amount of recommendation can, or should, help a case that does not substantiate itself. These are the reasons that enable the Mother's Allowances Local Board to work quietly, efficiently and successfully, free from all extraneous influences. The same thing obtains in other communities.

The local board numbers five—Sidney Whatley, Chairman; Mrs. M. C. Hardie, vice-Chairman, and Mrs. J. Knox; T. J. McMurray and F. H. Dobbin, the latter being Secretary of the Board.

LAKEFIELD RALLY ENDED CAMPAIGN

Mr. Peck and His Supporters Addressed a Good Meeting.

LAKEFIELD, Oct. 29. — The last gun in the campaign was fired on Wednesday night when Messrs. Bolton and Soden of Peterboro, and Mr. Regan of Toronto, spoke in the interests of E. A. Peck, the candidate, the candidate of the Liberal-Conservative party.

Dr. J. R. Fraser occupied the chair and in a brief address introduced Mr Boulton, the first speaker. Mr. Boulton said he was encouraged by the wave of Conservatism which was sweeping over Canada, and which showed that Canadians are sick and tired of the King administration.

R. J. Soden was the next speaker who announced that as a retail business man he felt called upon to emerge from the retirement from politics into which he entered six years ago, owing to ill-health, because of the condition of business in this country.

Mr. Regan of Toronto announced himself as a Liberal who had decided because of his disapproval of Mackenzie King, to support the Conservative party.

Mr. Regan considered Laurier probably the greatest leader in Canadian history and certainly the greatest Liberal leader. "We want a tariff to protect existing industries and provide traffic for the railways. Mr. King's choice of cabinet associates is an indication of what we may expect from him: James Murdock and Clifford Sifton (the Judas of the Liberal party) and others. We want members, who in the event of a national crisis will have the courage of their convictions and not shilly shally with great issues."

Mr. Peck did not take the time of the people to make a speech but referred his hearers to the message of Right Hon Arthur Meighen in the Mail and Empire and his own brief message in the Examiner, on which, in legal parlance, he rested his case.

Dr. Fraser announced that a radio would be installed in the hall on Thursday night ,and the band will give a free concert. It is expected that election returns will be received.

England is acknowledged to have the best girl hockey payers in the world, but it is likely that formidable rivals soon will be fund in the United States, where hockey has become a popular sport at many of the prominent schools and colleges for girls.

Tomorrow's HOROSCOPE

By Genevieve Kemble

FRIDAY, OCTOBER 30.

Although the sidereal operations for this day encourage new projects and incite to change and important journeys, yet there is also an augury which may be read as hazardous to all financial interests. Speculation might be disastrous and lending money be attended by risk. Also there is a possible menace of trouble through quarrels, impetuosity or litigation. However, these portentous aspects do not apply to domestic and social matters, but there is a strong admonition toward discreet conduct in the latter.

Those whose birthday it is are under the promise of an active and enterprising year, but they are enjoined to safeguard their money—which should not be risked either in loans or in speculative ventures. Also disputes and rash acts should be shunned, and particularly circumspect conduct is enjoined in the social relations. A child born on this day may be inclined to be rash, hasty and headstrong. It may meet reverses in business through speculation.

Relation of the Liver and Kidneys

Such that each suffers when other deranged—Both regulated by Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills.

When the liver becomes sluggish or torpid in action, the kidneys have to help out with the work of filtration. When the liver fails the kidneys have all the work to do.

Hence the beginning of trouble is usually biliousness, indigestion and constipation and after a time the kidneys begin to be affected and there comes backache, urinary derangements and kidney disease.

The remarkable success of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills is due to their unique combined action on the liver, kidneys and bowels. They get at the cause of trouble and remove it no matter how complicated it may be. Promptly and thoroughly they cleanse the bowels or intestines, arouse the liver action and thereby relieve the overworked kidneys.

BOTHERED WITH ECZEMA IN RASH

Face Was Disfigured; Healed by Cuticura.

"Some time ago I was bothered with eczema which broke out on my face in a rash. I took no notice of it at first until the trouble began to spread and the irritation caused me to scratch. My face was disfigured and the trouble lasted about three months.

"I tried different remedies but none seemed to do any good. I heard about Cuticura Soap and Ointment and purchased some, and after using three cakes of Cuticura Soap and one box of Cuticura Ointment I was completely healed." Never Let a Cold Get a Start

Vapors Check a Cold Overnight

There are many ways to treat a cold but only one DIRECT way—with vapors that can be inhaled.

Vapors penetrate immediately into every corner of the air passages and lungs, soothing and healing with every breath.

Vicks is so remarkably successful in treating cold troubles because it acts like a "vapor lamp in salve form."

When rubbed over throat and chest the body heat releases vapors of Menthol, Camphor, Eucalyptus, Thyme and Turpentine. At the same time Vicks is absorbed through and stimulates the skin like a poultice or plaster.

This double, direct action often checks the worst cold overnight.

STAR PLAYERS ARE LAID ASIDE INJURED LIMBS

Coach Nicholson Has Been Harassed By Problem All Season.

TEAM CHANGES.

Outline Strategy For Game on Saturday Against Argonauts.

MONTREAL, Oct. 29 (Canadian Press).—Ill fortune continues to dog Coach Nicholson and the Montreal Big Four Club, for practically every game in the Interprovincial Union this season the Winged Wheel leader has had to cope with the question of the loss of players, through injury or other causes. This week is no exception, and almost on the eve of their tussle with the Toronto Argonauts, Nicholson has been forced to re-arrange his backfield.

The change has been necessitated by the loss of Pean Bennett, sturdy little half back, who has been ordered out for the season by the club's physician, owing to torn muscles of the legs. To fill the gap Nicholson has decided to start Dave Paterson on the half line with Clarrie Booth, but to make certain of not losing offensive strength on the back division, has come to the conclusion that he had better assign the quarterback position completely to Wally Shéppard, leaving Jeff Russel free to work on the half line.

Paterson, who replaces Booth, has been a regular first string back division sub all season, and has shown fine work. Earl Whittall will relieve Paterson from time to time Whittall is probably the more rugged player of the two, but he has not been as steadily with the squad this season.

Two points are being drilled into the Montreal squad this week as far as holding the Argonauts are concerned. To cope with the hard line-smashing team, Nicholson is having the front rank clip more than they did against the plunging Ottawa team last Saturday, and in this way hopes to negative Argos' heavy thrusts. To halt the end runs he is satisfied that he has smart enough outside wings to nip any attempts that the double blue might make in that direction.

Vernon Forbes. There is a big doubt as to whether Vernon Forbes, the brilliant Hamilton goalkeeper, will be seen in hockey this winter. Forbes was sold to New York with the rest of the Hamilton team, but up to the present time has not come to terms with Tommy Gorman, the New York manager. He has always been rated as one of the best net guardians in the game.

LOYOLA VICTORS IN JUNIOR GAME

Will Meet Queens in Semi-Final of Canadian Second String Championship.

HOME AND HOME.

MONTREAL, Que., Oct. 29.—(Canadian Press).—Loyola College yesterday earned the right to meet Queen's University in the Canadian Intercollegiate Junior semi-finals by taking the second game of a home and home series from Bishop's College, Lennoxville, 12 to 6, making the total count on the round 35-12 in favor of the locals.

The game was played here at the Loyola campus.

In the first period, Anglin plunged for a try following long running gains by Eddie Cannon and Gagne and later added to the five points with a rouge kicked by Savard. This ended the scoring for the quarter but in the second session Bishop's collected a point when McCaw punted for a rouge making it 6 to 1 at half time.

The third quarter was evenly fought with Loyola adding to their margin by way of another rouge. The last quarter saw both teams score touchdowns, Anglin getting his second for Loyola and Johnson crossing the opposing line for Bishop's.

It is likely that the semi-final series with Queen's will consist of home and home games with the first on November 7, and the second, one week later.

TRAINING FOR OTTAWA GAME

McGill Resumed Practice Yesterday After Rest Since Saturday.

LIGHT WORKOUT.

MONTREAL, Que., Oct. 29.—(Canadian Press).—Just how much condition players can lose in three days was fully demonstrated yesterday at the McGill Stadium when Coach Shaughnessy had the red and white squad out for their first drill since their hard tussle at Kingston last Saturday. Three trips around the field took all the wind the players had and then they were sent through but a light signal drill to complete the workout. Today, however, they will be given two hours of scrimmaging to prepare them for the exhibition game at Ottawa against the Senators on Saturday, and the team, well-rested after last Saturday's game, will be ready for a stiff battle with the Big Four leaders.

Shaughnessy intends to send his regulars into the fray, with the exception of Hammie Boucher, who is well-bruised after his terrific display of fine cutting last week, on the half line it is likely he will use Bill Grassick.

While McGill is going into the Ottawa exhibition in earnest, they are also manifesting keen interest in the Queen's-Varsity tussle to be staged the same day at Toronto. McGill men who witnessed the first meeting between the two university teams at Kingston at the start of the season

RETIRES FROM RING.

NEW YORK, Oct. 29.—(Canadian Press).—Charley Cook, manager of Floyd Johnson who was defeated in one round by Harry Wills in Newark on Monday, said last night that he had no comment to make regarding the decision of the New Jersey State Boxing Commission barring his boxer from future ring appearances in that state. Cook threw in the towel that ended the contest.

Johnson, who is preparing to return to his home in Auburn, Washington, within a few days, declared that it was needless for the New Jersey Commission to make such an announcement.

"I let it be known in my dressing room after the bout that I would not fight anywhere," Johnson said. "So far as my showing went I thought when I signed and also when I went into the ring that I was strong enough and good enough to defeat Will but I have learned that even if a fighter has the will to win he cannot win unless the physical self responds to the will."

SUCCESSFUL YEAR.

The annual meeting of the Women's Canadian Club took place on Tuesday afternoon in the green room of the Young Women's Christian Association, the President, Mrs. F. D. Kerr, in the chair. Total, $325.42.

Balance on hand, $18.29.

The membership of the club last year totalled 111.

Business Discussed.

After the meeting had unanimously accepted the report of the Nominating Committee of the Executive, Mrs. F. D. Kerr, re-elected to the presidential office, thanked the members, the Councillors and the Executive for their loyal support of the year past, spoke of the keen interest taken in the various endeavors of the club, and said that the society should congratulate itself on having had the services of two such efficient helpers as the Treasurer and Secretary, Mrs. G. E. Porter and Miss A. Erskine.

A standing vote of acceptance of the motion was made after Miss A. Lancaster had proposed a resolution of appreciation of the work done during the year by the President, Mrs. F. D. Kerr, and by the retiring Treasurer, Mrs. G. E. Porter. This was seconded by Mrs. J. A. Aylmer.

Mrs. Kerr suggested a change in the method of electing officers, asked for an expression of opinion as to the best method of increasing the membership of the club, and also spoke of the difficulty in getting members to propose votes of thanks to the speakers.

It was decided finally to change the present method of having the Executive bring in a list of new officers to one in which a nominating committee, named by the members, shall meet one week previous to the regular annual meeting, suggest several names for each office, approach those named for their consent, then bring in the list for consideration of members at the annual meeting. The Nominating Committee, appointed at yesterday's meeting, will include this year the following ladies: Mrs. J. A. Aylmer, Mrs. R. M. Waddell and Miss Pearl Faint. These have power to add to their numbers.

It was decided to express in some other fashion appreciation of the services of the visiting speaker, rather than by the present method of moving and seconding a formal vote of thanks.

To increase the membership, it was suggested that each member try to bring one or more new members to the club's meetings.

Miss Wood announced two lectures to be given within the next month, one in the first week of November, by Dr. Renison of Hamilton, and the second on Tuesday, November 24th. The last will be an illustrated lecture to be delivered by Arthur O. Wheeler, F.R.G.S., of Vancouver, B. C., a noted member of the Royal Geographical Society.

GENERAL BUSINESS AT W.M.S. MEETING

Discuss Details of Sending Annual Bale—No Refreshments.

MILLBROOK, Oct. 29—The Woman's Missionary Auxiliary of St. Thomas' church held its October meeting on Monday evening at the home of Mrs. C. M. Westmacott.

The president, Mrs. (Canon) Allen, occupied the chair, and expressed her pleasure in the excellent attendance, and the evident interest bing taken by the members in the W.A. work.

Mrs. H. J. Grassett took up the chapter from the study book, "The Clash of Color", and the curate, Rev. D.. R. Dewdney, addressed the Auxiliary for the first time since his appointment as assistant to the rector, Rev. Canon Allen. Mr. Dewdney's talk on the work being accomplished through the Women's Missionary Society, and the possibilities which lay ahead as greater things were planned and attempted in the Master's Name, with special reference to the necessity and value of prayer, was both inspiring and practical.

During the business session, some details in connection with the preparation of the spring bale which the Auxiliary sends each year, received attention.

By a majority vote at the September meeting the Auxiliary decided to dispense with refreshments at its meetings this fall and winter, as it was felt the tax on the hostess' time and attention made it impossible for her to enjoy the devotional and educational part of the gathering to the full.

Polling Affects Toronto Exchange: Closed at Noon

TORONTO, Oct. 29 (Canadian Press)—The stock exchange this morning in its short session dealt almost wholly with McIntyre and Dome though some activity developed also in Smelters, Twin City and Canadian Canners preferred. Very little business on the whole was transacted, the exchange adjourning at noon on account of polling in the Dominion elections. Dome opening strong, sold down fifteen cents during the session closing at high, 21.90 a loss of ten cents. Smelters was strong, advancing a point and a half at 165 but Twin City lost three quarters at 68 1-2 and Canners preferred a quarter.

Brazilian eased an eighth.

Rain Prediction Caused Decline in Chicago Wheat

CHICAGO, Oct. 29. Canadian Press. — Wheat prices took an early swing downward to-day influenced by the predictions of rain in Australia, where damage by drought has been threatening a curtailment of the crops. Favorable weather conditions for wheat growth were also reported from Argentina. On the decline in values here however, buying became of a broader volume and something of a rally ensued. The opening 3-8 to 1 5-8 lower, new style, Dec. 148 to 149, and May 144 3-4 to 145, was followed by a slight further set back and then by upturns which wiped out most of the preceding loss.

Unseasonable low temperatures are said to be necessitating the heavy feeding of hogs and cattle 30 to 60 days earlier than usual gave a decided upturn to the corn market. After opening unchanged to 3-8c off Dec. 73 3-4 to 74, prices all around advanced, Dec. touching 75½.

Oats sympathized with corn starting at 1-8c lower to a shade advance, Dec. 39, the market soon hardened.

Provisions were firmer, affected mainly by corn strength.

Wild Stampede For Motor Stocks Continues On Street

NEW YORK, Oct. 29.—(Canadian Press).—Another wild outburst of buying in the motor and accessory shares, a dozen of which mounted to new high levels for the year, featured the resumption of the broad upward movement in to-day's stock market. Buying of the motors was influenced by the publication of unusually favorable third quarter earnings reports by General Motors and Chrysler Corporations, the former earning over $5 a share and the latter $9.06 a share in that period Chrysler crossed 241 to a new high price, and General Motors established a new top above 140. Studebaker, Hudson, Packard, Pierce-Arrow Common and Preferred Timkin Roller Bearing and Fisher Body also reached new high ground. Rails responded to publication of additional favorable September earnings statements and continuation of record-breaking carloadings. Southern Railway, Atlantic Coast line, "Nickel Plate" and Western Pacific Preferred all breaking through their previous 1925 maximums. Merchandise, Public Utility and Chemical shares also presented several outstanding points of strength.

Standard Mining Boom Suffers Slight Recession

TORONTO, Oct. 29.—(Canadian Press.)— The boom was continued on the Standard Mining Exchange to-day but a number of issues reacted from the recent high marks. Transactions during the morning session came with 250 shares of the half million mark, with attention centering on Argonaut, Goldale, Kirkland Lake, Beaver and McKinley Darragh. Argonaut lost a point, Beaver a point, McKinley Darragh three and Kirkland Lake one.

Goldale was the exception, climbing three and a quarter points at 24 3-4. Con, West Done gained four and an eighth, Lakeshore and Dome ten, New Ray Mine nine, Vipond four and Teck Hughes and Keeley one. On the other side Hollinger dropped 30, Contiagas five and Castle Trethewey two, besides the four leaders mentioned above.

AT THE REGENT

THOMSON HERE IN NEW LAUGH AND THRILL SHOW

Fred Thomson and Silver King in their latest F.B.O. production, "The Bandit's Baby"—a hilarious thriller which has more laughs than a congressional investigation—is now showing at the Regent Theatre.

As if uproarious comedy and burlesque were not enough, "The Bandit's Baby" is a smashing action western which brings Mr. Thomson back into his familiar cowboy regalia in which he has won so many laurels for popularity. A corking horse race, a rodeo, the rescue of a youngster from the tracks in a race between a horse and a train and a dozen other features make this a remarkable picture. The story and scenario, by Leete Renick Brown and Marion Jackson respectively, develop delightful situations, not the least of which is a baby show in a western town where gun threats of the proud parents make the life of a baby judge something to think about. Del Andrews did a fine job in directing the production.

AT THE GRAND.

ABIE'S IRISH ROSE.

The increasing interest noted in the forthcoming engagement of Anne Nichols' perennial success, "Abie's Irish Rose", the comedy with a beautiful love story, which begins an engagement of three nights, beginning tonight, with matinee on Saturday, October 31st, at the Grand Opera House leads the management to believe Peterboro will be another city to be added to the long list of record-breaking engagements which this perennial attraction has played, and which is no doubt due to its irresistible appeal to all classes, and especially to those who appreciate clean, wholesome comedy, projected with rapid-fire speed and precision at the target of one's risible emotions, for this play is certainly one of speed, one screamingly hilarious complication following another so quicky as to give no pause to the roars of laughter the scenes and brilliant dialogue evoke. The success of this comedy is the more remarkable when one realizes the difficulty of exploiting racial and religious differences and clashes, which lies in avoiding offensive material.

Miss Nichols, who is the author of the play as well as the producer, has accomplished this successfully in "Abie's Irish Rose," which deals with the marriage between a Jewish youth, Abie Levy, son of a proud and intensely orthodox Hebrew, to the daughter Rosemary Murphy, of a typical Irish Catholic. This couple is married three times in rapid succession in an effort to appease their raging and antagonistic fathers, these ceremonies being performed by a Methodist Minister, a Rabbi and a Priest. The fathers, however, refuse to accept conditions as they have developed, and the young couple are disowned. In the last act of the play everybody becomes reconciled, largely due to the efforts of the Rabbi and the Priest, and the heartclutching baby hands of Abie and Rosie's first born. A simple enough story, though based on unusual lines of comedy situations so deftly constructed in dialogue and scene that offense is given to no one.

Such a play with its distinct character types requires specially selected players, and the organization to be seen here is that which has played eight weeks at the Gayety Theatre in Rochester, and includes Natt Koff, Grace Stafford, Warren Ashe, Mildred Elliott, Marty Ford, John McCabe, Edwin Maynard, F. B. Hersone and others.

LOG ROLLERS RISK LIVES FOR MOVIES.

Lumberjacks Perform Dare-Devil Stunts in "The Knockout."

Riding on a log, less than two feet in diameter, down a rapid stream, isn't the easiest thing in the world. Yet the lumberjacks who were drafted into actors' jobs for atmospheric scenes in "The Knockout," which comes to the Capitol Theatre to-day, declare that they would rather ride a log than cruise in a taxi down Broadway.

They made this assertion while in New York, where they were brought by First National from Canada for the interiors of the picture.

One of the most thrilling scenes in the picture is an incident in which a number of intoxicated woodsmen ride down a rapid stream to witness a fight between Milton Sills and a six-foot-seven adversary. That he might get genuine thrills into this scene Director Lambert Hillyer engaged a dozen or more of Canada's best log riders for the action.

Among these men were Edourd and Emanuel Letang, who have undisputed claim to the world's log rolling championship. Either one of these boys can ride a chair on a log; stand on each other's shoulders; play leap-frog on a log and do other stunts. Both of them have a number of medals and cups for their prowess, won in competitions with the world's best log rollers.

The shooting of the rapids is said to be only one of the many sensations of "The Knockout." There's a jam break with thrilling rescues; the blowing up of a river dam; a lumber camp battle and several other hair-raisers.

The picture, a product of an Earl Hudson unit, is a screen version of M. D. C. Crawford's stirring novel, "The Comeback." Supporting Sills is an unusually strong cast, including Lorna Duveen, Jed Prouty, John Philip Kolb and Claude King.

DOUBLE FEATURE PROGRAMME TO-NIGHT.

Jack London's "Adventure" and Herbert Rawlinson in "Dark Stairways."

Are the movies developing a new type of heavy? Is the old-fashioned thoroughly-vicious villain, without a single, redeeming quality, giving way to a more modern, rather human sort of bad man? In other words, are we about to witness the rise of the comedy-villain?

It looks very much that way, judging from the character Wallace Beery portrays in "Adventure," the latest cinematic thriller, which Victor Fleming produced for Paramount from the Jack London story of the same name.

Let there be no misunderstanding, Beery is still very much a villain in this photoplay, and a mighty good bad man, too. But there are moments during the unreeling of the film when the audience is certain to laugh at his machinations rather than hiss him. Such a thing was unheard of in the past—would almost have been considered a sacrilege. However, times and fashions are constantly changing, so perhaps it isn't so surprising to find the style in villains changing as well.

One of the most amusing episodes in "Adventure"—one that illustrates admirably the comedy part of Beery's villainous role—occurs in the early portions of the picture. Tom Moore, owner of a large copra plantation on one of the South Sea Islands, is in debt to two unscrupulous money-lenders, Beery and Raymond Hatton, to the extent of many thousand dollars.

When the men arrive to collect their debt, they are met by Pauline Starke, who had but recently entered into a business partnership with Moore. She pays them out of her own money. Surprise at finding a girl on the island gives way to cupidity when the money-lenders discover that Miss Starke is amply provided with funds.

They then invite her to sit in a game of poker. Although feigning ignorance, she agrees to play and the crafty card sharks anticipate an easy time trimming her. To their dismay, she wins steadily. At the end of half an hour, Miss Starke has won back not only her own money but all of theirs and even the sloop in which they came to the island. A typical example of cheating cheaters!

RAN TO HELP CHUM WAS STRUCK BY CAR

Children Going Home From School When Fatality Occurred.

BRAMPTON, October 29. — Canadian Press. — Ten year old Violet Cash, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Cash, Victoria, was almost instantly killed when she ran across the road in front of a car driven by George Campbell of Cheltenham, to the assistance of a little chum who had fallen on the side of the road. The children were going home from school when the accident occurred. Eye witnesses exonerated Mr. Campbell from blame.

ARABS' STORIES ARE ONLY NEWS FROM DAMASCUS

Lack of Other Facts Causes Acceptance of Native Rumors.

NO INTERVENTION.

No Steps Have Yet Been Taken By League of Nations.

LONDON, October 29. — Lack of current news from Damascus tends to encourage the acceptance of rumours from Arab sources that many heretofore peaceful natives have joined the marauding bands in the neighborhood of Damascus, thereby adding to the seriousness of the situation. It is rumoured that the Beirut-Damascus line has been cut and that the French columns has been isolated by Druse tribesmen, but there is no means at present of verifying this report.

The Question whether the League of Nations is going to intervene in any manner in the Syrian trouble continue to be asked here. So far as can be ascertained no steps have yet been taken by the League.

ORDER RESTORED.

PARIS, October 29. Canadian Press. — Order has been restored in Damascus, says a report received today from General Sarrail, French High Commissioner in Syria.

Denying the reports that women and children were evacuated from the city the general says that a few persons left at the time of the bombardment, against the insurrectionists on October 18, but that they are returning.

The only trouble, he declares, was caused by the bands of brigands outside of Damascus, and measures are being taken against these.

AGED ARTIST DEAD.

Painted Portraits of Notables, Including King Edward and Gladstone.

TORONTO, Oct. 29 (Canadian Press)—John Colin Forbes, R.C.A., outstanding Canadian portrait artist, died yesterday in his 70th year. He painted portraits of many of the great personages of his day including King Edward, Queen Alexandria, Gladstone, Campbell-Bannerman and Sir John MacDonald.

PAINLEVE RETAINS FINANCE PORTFOLIO

New Cabinet Received By French Public With Suspended Judgment.

PARIS, Oct. 29. — (Canadian Press).—Premier Painleve, accompanied by members of his new Cabinet, arrived at Elysee Palace early this afternoon for the customary presentation to the President of the Republic.

Premier Painleve retains the portfolia of Finance for himself, and a new portfolio of Minister of Budget has been created.

The new Cabinet is received generally by the French public with suspended judgment. The big question seems to be whether Painleve will make a success of the Ministry of Finance.

RELIABLE REFUGEE TELLS EXPERIENCE

Saw Moslems Save Christian Quarters After Looting French Barracks.

LONDON, Oct. 29.— (Canadian Press.)—A despatch to the Daily Mail from Jerusalem quotes statements of a "reliable British refugee" from Damascus regarding his experiences during the recent bombardment there.

"On Monday morning, October 19," said the refugee, "the French vacated the entire Christian quarter, which was then at the mercy of Druses and Moslem robbers. I realized that it was unsafe for missionaries to remain, unprotected from the fire of French guns at the citadel and Salehie quarter, so with a Moslem police escort I took eleven British and American missionaries to the British hospital.

"I saw the Moslem mob loot the French barracks and then try to enter the Christian quarter, but they were prevented by about fifty other Moslems with sticks, swords and spears. The Christian quarter was entirely saved by Moslems. The casualties were estimated at several thousand Syrians killed and about three hundred French. There were many instances of cold blooded shooting by French soldiers."

STATE PROPERTY PLOT DISCOVERED

Espionage Organization Planned Destruction of Railways and Bridges.

MOSCOW, Oct. 29.—(Canadian Press).—The discovery of daring plans for the destruction of railways, bridges, airdromes and military depots in Soviet Russia is claimed by the state political police, formerly known as the Cheka. The plot, according to police, was to be engineered by a counter-revolutionary espionage organization on behalf of the general staff of a bordering state. Police allege this organization has been collecting military and political information for one of the great powers. Several scores of persons have been arrested in connection with the plot, many of them former officers and citizens of the Soviet Republic.

IN MEMORIAM.

In loving memory of our dear father, William Maxwell, who died Oct. 29th, 1917:
When the evening shades are falling
And we are sitting all alone,
To our hearts there comes a longing
If he only would come home.

Oft and oft our thoughts do wonder
To a grave so far away,
Where we laid our darling father
Just eight years ago to-day.

Surrounded by friends we are lonely
Amidst pleasures we feel blue,
A smile on our face and a heartache,
Aching and longing for you.

Friends may think we have forgotten you
When at times they see us smile,
But they little know the sorrow
Which that smile hides all the while.

—Sadly Missed By His Loving Daughter and Son, Mr. and Mrs. O. Green.

IN MEMORIAM.

In loving memory of Charles M. Shannon, who died October 9, 1920.
Sadness has always been right in our home,
Since our dear one left us all alone;
Five years have past since our loved one departed—
Five years have we been all broken hearted,
But we all hope to meet on the beautiful shore.
Never, Oh, never, to part anymore.
—Inserted by his wife and family.

IN MEMORIAM.

In fond and loving memory of our dear father, William Maxwell, who departed this life Oct. 29th, 1917:
Days of sadness still come over us,
Hidden tears do often flow,
For memory brings that loved one near us
Although he died eight years ago.
—Always Remembered By His Loving Family.

IN MEMORIAM.

In fond and loving memory of my dear husband, William Maxwell, who departed this life Oct. 29th, 1917:
The Master called to him and said:
Thine armour now lay down,
Thy time to bear the cross is o'er
Come now and wear a crown.
—Sadly Remembered By His Loving Wife.

Large Turnover in Votes is Shown When E. A. Peck Wins

Local Conservative Nominee Had Majority From Both Urban and Rural Sections of West Peterborough Constituency.

TOTAL SHIFT ABOUT 4,000.

Returns from all the polls in West Peterboro were still lacking the results in the northern townships late this afternoon, and the available figures were but little changed from last night. One of the last counts gave E. A. Peck, the Conservative member elect, 8638 against Hon. G. N. Gordon's 6,715, a majority of 1,923.

Such was the decision on the Peterboro salient of the campaign which in this constituency will occupy a prominent place in the political records. And the term salient is probably used accurately for the reason that the Hon. Mr. Gordon was one of the leaders of the Government who had been ingled out for attack in Central Ontario at least. Two others were Premier King and the Hon. Vincent Massey in Durham. And all three are among the fallen. One of Mr. Peck's headquarters staff said last night that a fleet of cars had been sent from Toronto to assist in the assault on the Liberal member here, and that some of them were contributed by the gentleman who in the last few days of the campaign had carried on the press controversy as to the condition of the textile industry. However, those episodes today were almost forgotten.

"Ou sont les nieges d'antan?" Where are the snows of yesteryear? In the comparative hush of the morning after the Ontario landslide that swept out the Premier and some of his chief lieutenants with so many of the rank and file, the October sun was reinforced by the smiles of the Conservatives who were looking for Liberal friends in the spirit of the slang expression "Laugh that one off."

One of these active Conservatives said to the Examiner: "Well, I guess I'll go around and cheer up so and so. When an election comes on we steer clear of each other as much as possible, and when we do meet politics is strictly barred, because we are both strong party men, but real friends However, I suppose it is up to me to go around today and start our friendship all over again until the next election."

From the first poll last night giving Peck a majority of 41 there was no doubt in the Conservative camp about how the city had gone, and when the gap had widened to an absolute margin of safety and victory the party leaders and followers organized a parade carried the man who had regained Peterboro for the Conservatives up through the crowds that surged about the Examiner block. Then there was the celebration in Victoria Hall, and many of the ardent partizans of both groups were still arguing and chatting away on into the night. This morning the debate was resumed wherever men met, and for the most active workers in the campaign there was bitterness or jubilance in these salutations according as fortune yesterday had deserted or favored them.

WEATHER

This morning the thermometer marked 8 degrees above zero, a little lower than yesterday, and the lowest of the present season. The barometer was particularly high, and an area of high pressure and more settled conditions is apparently passing over the country. I am referring to the mercurial barometer, and not to the political barometer. The cold dip of yesterday and to-day is the lowest temperature in October for many years, and the weather sharps at the Toronto Observatory say it has only been exceeded once or twice in 80 years.—W. LEAGUE COUNCIL REGARDS CRISIS AS NEARLY OVER Satisfied That Hostilities Between Greeks and Bulgars Have Ceased.

ANOTHER SESSION.

Reports Will Be Received From Attaches Sent to the Spot.

PARIS, Oct. 30. — (Canadian Press).—Hastening to the scene of the Macedonian fighting on special trains provided by the Jugo-Slavian and Greek Governments, the Allied military attaches at Belgrade and Athens so succeeded in smoothing out the Greco-Bulgarian conflict that the Council of the League of Nations was vastly aided last night in its worth of cleaning up the Balkan crisis.

Although another session will be held at 11 o'clock this morning to receive final reports from the attaches that evacuation has been completed, the Council unanimously adopted Austen Chamberlain's resolution that the Council was satisfied hostilities had ceased and that the troops were withdrawing, and formally approved a commission of inquiry headed by Horace Rumbold, the Ambassador to Spain, to proceed to the spot and report its findings to the December session of the Council.

Both Greek and Bulgarian representatives assured the Council that their countries would accept the commission's findings without qualification and give it every assistance at the frontier and in Athens and Sofia.

The Council resolution emphasizing the wisdom of the commission studying measures to eliminate future conflicts and specifically instructs it to ascertain the origin of the recent outbreak and establish facts enabling the fixing of responsibility. It must also supply material for determination of reparations. It is stipulated that all prisoners must be released and all confiscated property restored.

This was announced yesterday from national offices of the party on King street west, where its leaders are mapping out a programme of meetings, and preparing literature and propaganda by which they hope to convince some that they possess a cure for the ills of society.

MINISTERS WHO LOST IN 1921 WERE RETURNED

Dr. Bennett, Bog Rogers and R. B. Bennett Captured Seats.

OTHERS STILL OUT.

Messrs. Normand, Monty and Fauteux Failed To Secure Seats.

OTTAWA, Oct. 30 (Canadian Press).—A number of members of the Meighen Government, who were defeated at the last general election, waged successful battles yesterday. Dr. J. W. Edwards, Minister of Immigration and Health under Mr. Meighen, triumphed over his Progressive opponent in Frontenac-Addington, and in West Calgary, Hon. Bennet, Minister of Justice under Mr. Meighen, who was defeated by a narrow majority in 1921, was victor yesterday.

Hon. Robert Rogers, member of the Government of Sir Robert Borden in which he held the portfolio of Public Works, was returned by the constituency of South Winnipeg, where he defeated former Premier Norris of Manitoba, the Liberal candidate. Sir George Perley, former High Commissioner for Canada in London, recaptured the Quebec seat of Argenteuil for the Conservatives. This constituency was represented by Hon. Charles Stewart, Minister of the Interior in the King Government, throughout last parliament. Members of Mr. Meighen's cabinet formed just before the 1921 election who met with defeat in Quebec, were Hon. L. P. Normand, president of the Privy Council, who was defeated in Three Rivers; Hon. Rodolphe Monty, Secretary of State, who was unsuccessful in Laurier-Outremont, and Hon. A. Fauteux, Solicitor General, who met with defeat in Bagot. Hon. E. L. Patenaude, Conservative leader in Quebec, failed to win the constituency of Jacques Cartier. Mr. Patenaude was a member of the Government of Sir Robert Borden, holding the portfolio of Inland Revenue. He resigned on the conscription issue and ceased, for the time being, to have any connection with Federal politics.

His re-entry into Dominion politics was welcomed by the Conservatives.

Gordon, newly appointed Minister of Immigration; Hon. James Murdock, Minister of Labor, Hon. W. E. Foster, Secretary of State, and Hon. J. E. Sinclair, Minister without portfolio.

In the Province of Quebec, where the Liberals secured a solid block last Parliament, the Conservatives gained at least four seats.

Ontario Gain Parallelled Twice Since Confederation

TORONTO, Oct. 30.—(Canadian Press.)—The Conservative victory in Ontario at the polls yesterday, which increased the party's representation by 33, defeated Premier King and seven of his ministers and left only 9 Liberal and two Progressive seats, has been parallelled only twice since Confederation. In 1917 Ontario reutrned only eight Laurier Liberals out of 78 seats, the rest going Unionist, and in 1911 at the reciprocity election, the Liberal party gained 13 seats and the Conservatives 72. There was one independent returned, on that occasion.

Thief Who Entered Here Would Be Cold Blooded

BERLIN, Oct. 30. — (United Press). Only a cold-blooded burglar would attempt to crack a safe protected by a new device, just put on the market. The apparatus takes advantage of the fact that the human body radiates heat. The device, according to its inventor, registers the almost imperceptible change in temperature when a person enters the room in which it is concealed. If the room is entered during hours when lawful entry would not occur, the device is adjusted to release current which rings a bell to summon the watchman. If body heat failed to register, the bell certainly would ring when a cracksman's blow torch was lighted.

Meighen's Total Less Than Half of House; New Election Seen

No Indication of King Resigning, Although Havoc in His Cabinet May Force That Course — Meighen is Five Short of Clear Majority.

ANOTHER APPEAL NEXT YEAR?

OTTAWA, Oct. 30 (Canadian Press)—The resignation of the King Government is regarded in political circles as the most probable outcome of yesterday's general elections.

Of this, there is as yet no official indication. Leaders of both Liberal and Conservative parties are awaiting final returns before making official pronouncements. There will no doubt be cabinet meetings before the prime minister decides on his course. But the fact that he and no less than eight of his cabinet ministers were defeated gives rise to the feeling that he will decide not to attempt to continue in office. Should he retain the premiership, a series of by-elections would be necessary to repair the damage to his cabinet. Three of the ministers defeated yesterday—Hon. Vincent Massey, Hon. Herbert Marler, and Hon. J. E. Sinclair—held no portfolios but the remainder, not counting the Prime Minister, who is also head of the department of external affairs, held between them the portfolios of immigration, secretary of state, labor and railways Appointees to these portfolios, including the Prime Minister himself, would all need to be either elected or re-elected.

And what of the Prime Minister's successor should Mr. King place his resignation in the hands of the Governor-General? As head of the largest group in the House, Mr Meighen would no doubt be invited to form an administration. But it is questioned if he would accept, except on the understanding of another general election to clear the air. On all hands, in fact, the expectation is that Canada's new parliament will be short lived.

The gossip is that it will likely meet for one session, vote supplies necessary to carry on the administration of the country's affairs, pass essential legislation, and that another general election will be on the cards for next year.

Returns received up to 12.30 p.m. give the Conservative following at 118 or five short of the 123 necessary for a clear majority in the next house. There are still 12 seats to hear from.

Women M.P.'s Not Wanted Four Running, One Elected

There will be only one woman member in the next House of Commons, namely, Miss Agnes MmPhail, Progressive candidate in South-East Grey and member of the late House, who defeated Dr. L. G. Campbell, Conservative, by a majority of about 1,000. Three others tried their luck at the polls with poor results. In Carlton-Victoria, N.B., Mrs. Minnie Bell Adney, Independent, received only 78 votes, Hon. J. K. Fleming, Conservative, getting nearly 7,000. In North-West Toronto Dr. Caroline Brown, Independent Conservative, received 545 votes. In New Westminster, B.C., Mrs. Rose Henderson, running in the Labor interests, lost out.

B. C. TORIES HAVE 3 NEW MEMBERS

Gain of Two From Progressives and One From Liberals.

VANCOUVER, B.C., Oct. 30. — (Canadian Press.)—The Conservatives of British Columbia increased their representation in parliament from seven to ten as a result of yesterday's vote, the gain of three being made at the expense of the Progressives and Liberals. Two seats were won from the former and one from the latter. The Liberals, however, still retain a representation of three as in the last parliament, having won the new constituency of Vancouver North. They lost Fraser Valley to the Conservatives, H. J. Barber defeating A. Munro, late member, by approximately 1,000 majority.

ELECTRICITY AIDS BLOOD TRANSFUSION

Continuous Flow of Blood Was Kept Up in Operation.

NEW YORK, Oct. 30. — (United Press).—Electricity for the first time was used in a blood transfusion at the Green Point Hospital in Brooklyn Thursday. The innovation is said to provide a continuous flow of blood between the donor and the patient who, in this case, was Mrs. Mae Wahl, an anaemic. The donor was a professional.

Dr. Angelo Horesi, of New York, is the inventor of the machine, which consists of a small electric motor and a syringe.

NEW AMBASSADOR.

Senator Berengen May Succeed Daeschen as Representative in States.

PARIS, Oct. 30 (Canadian Press) —It is learned on high authority that Senator Victor Henry Berenger will be appointed shortly to succeed Emile Daeschner as French ambassador to the United States.

QUEBEC STILL LIBERAL.

MONTREAL, Oct. 30. Canadian Press. — The solid phalanx of 65 members who represented the Province of Quebec in the last House of Commons, was penetrated by the voting yesterday, four straight Conservatives being certain of election while two Independents had been returned. The Conservatives made three gains in the City of Montreal, and in Argenteuil.

Throughout the remainder of the province the Liberals held their positions, if with reduced majorities.

Toronto Candidates Lost Deposits In Many Cases

Fifteen of the thirty-one candidates in Toronto and York County were so badly beaten in the election yesterday that they lost their deposits.

These were: Dr. Caroline Brown, James Gilchrist and James Simpson in Northwest Toronto, John Callahan in East Centre, Hon. James Murdock in High Park, K. A. Christie in Parkdale, F. Murphy in West Centre, Claude Pearce and Norman McEachren in South Toronto, H. C. Farrel in East Toronto, A. E. Matthews in Northeast Toronto, E. C. Beer in Toronto-Scarboro, Alexander MacGregor in West York, and J. Galbraith and R. J. Reesor, in South York.

The only defeated candidates who did not lose their deposits were Premier King, Joseph Singer, Dr. J. H. Cascaden and Cecil Armstrong.

PREMIER DENIES INTENT RESIGN

Will Wait Until All Returns Are In Before Making Decision.

THEN WILL ANNOUNCE

OTTAWA, Oct. 30. — Premier King definitely denied this afternoon that he had decided to place his resignation in the hands of the Governor-General. "When all the returns are in," he informed a Canadian Press representative, "I intend to discuss the situation with the Governor-General and I shall then make a statement on my intention." Beyond that the Prime Minister declined to go further.

Drastic Methods of Keeping Restive Population Under Control.

DECAPITATIONS.

PEKING, Oct. 30. — (Canadian Press). — Serious conditions in Honan Province, where poorly fed and ill-disciplined troops, estimated to number 300,000, are said to be urging their leaders to action, are reported by foreigners arriving here from the province.

They report that the troops have not been paid for a long time and that most of them are still in summer clothing, since winter uniforms are not available. Furthermore, the people are suffering from requisitions by the military, heavy taxation, looting by the soldiers and depredations by bandits. Drastic methods are being employed to keep the population under control, it is reported, and the heads of several persons recently decapitated are being exhibited in the railway stations at Kiufing, the provincial capital, and Chengchow, a railway junction on the Peking-Hankow line.

Yueh Wu-Chan, Governor of the Province, who is an ally of General Feng Yu-Hsiang, the "Christian General," is said to desire peace, but he may be forced to take part in the civil war and attack the neighboring provinces in order to get rid of his superfluous troops. Some of his subordinate generals are known to desire to cast the lot of the province in with the alliance of Marshal Wu Fei-Fu, while others are opposed to the alliance.

YOUTHS BURNED BRETHEN'S EFFIGY

Conservative Victory Was Celebrated By Bonfire and Torchlight Procession.

MARMORA, Oct. 30.—Keen interest prevailed in the Marmora district in the hearing of results on election day. C. A. Bleecker's office was acquired by R. A. Elliott, secretary of Hastings Conservative Association, and returns from the polls in the riding at first came in very freely. At the Town Hall, the G.W.V.A. had telegraphic installation, and results were displayed on the screen during the exhibition of a special picture. The first poll to be heard from was Poll 78, Belmont. Owing to remoteness, returns were not available from Poll 19, Marmora and Lake Township. Beyond a few rounds of cheering at the picture show, there was no celebration until 11 p.m., when youth of the village illuminated the front street first by a bonfire and later by an elaborate torchlight display, which culminated in the burning of an effigy of Mr. Brethen. Pool 75, Asphodel, hitherto not reported, recorded votes as follows: Brethen 74, Embury 45. The total majority of Dr. Embury over his opponent approximately reaches 2,800.

LEAGUE OBEYED GREEKS LEAVE BULGARIAN SOIL

Allied Attaches Were Present and Witnessed the Withdrawal.

ESTIMATE DAMAGE.

30,000 Troops of Greece Had Been Engaged in Warlike Operations.

SOFIA, Bulgaria, Oct. 30 (Canadian Press).—The Greeks sullenly and silently began their march out of Bulgarian territory at 1 o'clock yesterday morning. At that hour a bugler walked between the hostile camps and signalled the Greeks' intention to obey the orders of the League of Nations.

The Bulgarians retained their position until the arrival of the Allied attaches was heralded by bugles in the Greek camp. The attaches went forward to meet the Bulgar Colonel Zlateff. They warned him not to disturb the Greek withdrawals.

Already the attaches have begun to estimate the damage caused in the evacuated territory. The number of Green troops engaged in the entire operations was thought to be about 30,000.

In the appointment of Miss Mary W. Wimpenny of Edgartown, Governor Fuller of Massachusetts has named the first woman ever to serve as a register of probate and insolvency in the Bay State.

Quite a number of free dowries for prospective brides are distributed annually in England. One of the best known is the Bute Marriage Portion, which amounts to about $250. It represents the interest on a fund set aside by the Marquis of Bute to commemorate his silver wedding. The recipient must be a girl of good repute, engaged to some worthy young man, but unable to get married owing to lack of means.

FRIDAY, OCTOBER 30, 1925.

THE FEDERAL SITUATION.

At the time this article was written the chances of Right Honourable Arthur Meighen to secure the necessary 123 seats that would give him a majority of one over all parties in the House were not favourable, as his total then was 118 seats, with six seats in doubt. The Conservatives will have the largest group in the House, and Mr. Meighen will undoubtedly form a Government and endeavour to carry on, relying on securing sufficient support from the Protectionist Liberals and Independents elected to put through his tariff changes.

Failing in this, of course, he would be compelled to go to the country again, necessitating another general election next spring.

Had the Patenaude movement made any impression in Quebec Mr. Meighen would have had a comfortable working majority, for he swept Ontario, almost wiping the Progressives out of existence, and carried Nova Scotia, New Brunswick, Manitoba and British Columbia. Mr. Patenaude's campaign was a failure, and the three seats gained in Quebec would have been won if he had never entered the lists.

Outstanding features of yesterday's election were the big Conservative sweep in Ontario, a similar Liberal triumph in Quebec, the completeness of Mr. Meighen's victories in Nova Scotia and New Brunswick, the inroads made upon the Western Progressives by both Liberals and Conservatives, and the number of Mackenzie King's Ministers who were rejected by the electorate.

THE CHAMBER OF COMMERCE.

It is gratifying to note that the objective of three hundred members for the Peterboro Chamber of Commerce is likely to be speedily reached as the membership now totals some 265 people.

The Chamber has proven its usefulness to the community in many ways, but none more strikingly than its success in encouraging tourist traffic whether by road or water.

The large increase in the number of visitors who materially augmented the summer sales of Peterboro merchants, can in a great measure be accredited to the Chamber of Commerce and its affiliated organizations—the Peterboro branch of the Ontario Motor League and the Trent Waterway Development Association—whose efforts to bring the merits of this district before the attention of residents of the United States have resulted in attracting many visitors who saw the Kawarthas for the first time and will be back next year, bringing their friends with them.

The advantage of this increase in tourist traffic must be apparent to the merchants of Peterboro, and encourage them to ally themselves with the Chamber of Commerce, especially in view of the low annual fee, $15, whereas the membership charges in most centres amount to $25 a year.

At $15 a merchant is paying only about 30c a week in the assistance of an organization that is materially helping to swell his receipts.

Thirty cents a week for business insurance of this kind appears a very small premium in view of the benefits to be secured.

THE PROGRESSIVE SLUMP.

One of the features of yesterday's election over which both Conservatives and Liberals are rejoicing was the proof given that Canada is well on its way back to the two-party system.

The Progressives were almost wiped out of existence in Ontario, where the Conservatives gained seat after seat from them, fallen including Hon. E. C. Drury, ex-Premier of Ontario, while the almost solid Progressive bloc in the Prairie Provinces was badly shaken by the Conservatives in Manitoba and the Liberals in Saskatchewan.

In Ontario especially, yesterday's debacle will do much to end the Progressive political movement, as it was evident that many of its former members swung back to the old parties.

Probably the announcement made by Hon. T. A. Low a few days ago that the Progressives had formed a working agreement with the Liberals in this Province had much to do with this drifting away from the agrarian standard, as undoubtedly had Mr. Meighen's promise to extend the principle of protection to agriculture as well as to industry.

The victory of so many Conservatives in rural ridings in Ontario would indicate that the farmers favoured the tariff wall against the importation of American farm products as promised by the Canadian leader.

Be that as it may, the Progressive standard-bearers were slain in all parts of the Province, and if another general election has to be fought shortly, as seemed likely in view of the Federal situation at the time this was written, the number of Progressive candidates in the field is likely to be considerably smaller than it was yesterday.

THE LOCAL RESULT.

The triumph of E. A. Peck, ex-M.L.A., carrying the Conservative banner, over Hon. G. N. Gordon, Minister of Immigration, in the local constituency of West Peterboro yesterday was more complete than even the most optimistic of the victor's supporters predicted, Mr. Gordon going down to defeat by a majority that will be around the 1,850 mark when the complete returns are all in.

The contest, featured by the intensive publicity and speaking campaign of both candidates and by visits from Right Hon. Arthur Meighen in behalf of Mr. Peck and from Hon. Charles Murphy, Postmaster General, and Hon. Vincent Massey for Mr. Gordon, was climaxed by the largest vote ever polled here, and by a majority for the winner that represented a turnover of about 4,000 since 1921.

The regard in which the Conservative candidate is held in all parts of the riding, the efforts of a large and most enthusiastic organization of both men and women workers, and the success of the Conservative appeal for protection, both for industry and agriculture, were the factors that spelled defeat for the Minister of Immigration.

A Conservative majority in the city was conceded, but Liberal headquarters counted upon holding it down sufficiently to enable the rural vote to win the day.

Mr. Peck not only, however, carried the urban section of the riding by over 1,800 majority, having majorities in every ward and in nearly every subdivision, but he developed great strength in the country, having a small majority in the townships to add to his city total. The former portions of East Peterboro, added to this riding by redistribution, did not prove as helpful to the Liberal cause as had been anticipated, Douro and Otonabee contributing some 300 majority, while Peck carried Lakefield by 65 votes.

The township of North Monaghan alone took care of the added divisions, giving a Conservative majority of 246, while the winner came out of South Monaghan with a lead of 26, came close to breaking even in the Liberal township of Smith, and had a majority at one of the Ennismore polls.

Electors of both city and townships are to be congratulated upon the record vote piled up, indicating a very lively and healthy interest in the important task of the Canadian people yesterday.

THE CHINESE TARIFF CONFERENCE.

The Chinese tariff conference opened on Monday at Pekin with an attendance of five hundred, the majority of whom were Chinese, of whom all but one wore foreign garb. The Minister of Foreign Affairs, Shen-ju-lin, was elected chairman of the gathering, and the delegates were not long in getting down to the main business of the conference. The chairman of the conference indicated that it was the intention of the Chinese Government to ask for tariff autonomy, stating that it was inconsistent that a sovereign nation should be restricted in the matter of tariffs. While the announcement came as a matter of surprise, it was given a friendly reception. The nations realize that, with the new spirit of political freedom that has arisen from the Great War, no sovereign nation can long be held in bondage in regard to the domestic affairs.

The proposals which were presented to the conference by Dr. Wang, a former Premier and Foreign Minister, on behalf of the Chinese Government, for its consideration, were as follows:

First—The participating powers formally to agree to remove all tariff restrictions contained in existing treaties.

Second—China to agree to the abolition of the Likin simultaneously with enforcement of the Chinese national tariff law, which shall take effect not later than January 1, 1929.

Third—Before enforcement of the said law an interim surtax of 5 per cent. on ordinary goods, 30 per cent. on wine and tobacco and 20 per cent. on other luxuries shall be levied, in addition to the present 5 per cent. tariff.

Fourth—Collection of surtaxes to begin three months after the date of signature.

The delegates of twelve powers, besides China, were assembled at the conference. The answers of the foreign delegates to the requests of the Chinese Government were, for the most part, friendly and sympathetic towards the national aspirations of China. While things went on quietly inside the picturesque winter palace, where the conference was held, two thousand students, carrying banners, paraded outside, reviled the provisional government, and demanded entrance to the conference. When this was refused, they fought the police with clubs and stones. One policeman was killed, and a score of others were seriously wounded. Some of the students were also injured, and others were arrested. The Chinese people will find before they go far in parliamentary government and international diplomacy, that one of the first essentials in the founding of a sovereign nation is the establishment of a stable government and the preservation of law and order among themselves.

ENGLAND NOT DONE FOR.

Sir Robert Horne warned his American audience at the Pilgrims' dinner against exaggerated pictures of Great Britain's gloomy future. England's present situation is difficult, but this does not mean that she is slipping from her place among the nations. Her trials are part of the world's trials. Her share of the world's trade is what it was before the war. If she must cope with nearly a million and a half unemployed, it is because world trade is still 20 per cent. below the pre-war level. As the prosperity of the nations wins back to its former height Great Britain will recover her proper share.

This is not the forced optimism of a former Conservative Chancellor of the Exchequer. It is precisely the same view held by so good a spokesman for the British Labor Party as Mr. Sidney Webb. Indirect corroboration is available from other sources. If there is any one observation point from which British prospects have been visualized in the darkest shades, it is Moscow. From the Soviet publicists have come the most emphatic and joyful predictions of the steady collapse of England's economic life, the disruption of the Empire and Britain's fate to play the captive at the chariot tail of American capitalism. Yet it is Moscow that has hastened to explain the treaties at Locarno as one more triumph for Great Britain. At Locarno, according to the Moscow version, a great anti-Russian bloc has been organized under British leadership and backed by the resources of American capitalism. That is indeed a remarkably speedy recovery for a patient so sick as England has been described.

Great Britain's economic troubles need not be minimized. On the other hand, there is no question that pessimism has been fed by something more than trade depression and unemployment. The militant note struck by the trades unions at the Scarborough congress seemed to invoke the menace of revolution in the trail of industrial depression. But the attitude of political Labor in Great Britain has done much to discount the Scarborough threat. The same evening that Sir Robert Horne was addressing the Pilgrims Arthur Henderson, one of Ramsay MacDonald's chief aids, spoke at Cooper Union, "No matter what you hear," he said, "we are trying to transfer the great industries by democratic methods to public control." His emphasis was throughout on "democratic methods;" that is to say, on peaceful, constitutional agitation. With the spectre of revolution shown up for the bogy it is, Great Britain's economic problems, though sorely difficult, take on their right proportion. She faces a task but not a catastrophe.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

Druggists report a lively sale of gargles for the worn-out throats of the army of campaign orators.

The pedestrian who didn't stop, look and listen before crossing the street yesterday was taking a big chance. The two political organizations had plenty of motor cars and they were kept moving until 6 o'clock.

A THOUGHT.

SPIRITUAL, NOT RELIGIOUS FORCE.

Put me down as a man who believes that the plain doing of duty beats all the flights of heavenly fancies. To do a good day's work on Monday, and then contribute some cash to charity on Tuesday, is more expressive than the most ecstatic enthusiasm of religious eloquence.

Religion is a belief in God. Doing our duty is showing God. Religion is pious worship. Helping humanity is unselfish service.

Donald A. Adams, President, Rotary International, says:

"Rotary is a spiritual force—mark my word, I did not say a religious force—I said a spiritual force. On no other grounds can I account for the way in which it has gripped thousands of lives and changed them from selfish existence into helpful and unselfish service."

Religion introduces rules and regulations. Service puts these rules and regulations to work. Religion teaches an obedience to the will of God. Service manifests in so many ways that religion is right. Religion is faith. Service the factor.

The world needs more doers of duty and less of the rivalry of religion, as prescribed by Rotary.

CHICAGO WHEAT

CHICAGO, Oct. 30 (Canadian Press)—Selling operations on a big scale, ascribed chiefly to the Northwest and East had a depressing effect on the wheat market today. Beneficial rains in Australia, together with Russian government measures to increase port clearances were among the principal bearish factors. Wheat prices closed weak 1 1-2 to 2c net lower, Dec. 1.47 3-4 to 1.47 7-8 and May 1.44 3-8 to 1.44 1-2, with corn unchanged to 3-4c up, oats at 1-8c off to a shade advance, and provisions irregular varying from 15 decline to 95c advance.

Large deliveries on October contracts at Winnipeg and something resembling a collapse of prices there had an additional weakening influence here as the day drew to a close. There were also late reports that purchases of considerable wheat to be shipped to Europe from this side of the Atlantic had been cancelled.

Efforts that numerous Chicago traders put forth to rally the wheat market from declines were of no lasting effect in the face of the general character of the day's news, including announcement that Russian clearances for the week totalled 1,084,000 bushels, as against hardly a quarter that much the previous week and none at all a year ago.

Corn prices had an upward trend as a result of wintry weather that hastened heavy feeding of nogs and cattle.

Oats were upheld by corn strength.

Provisions averaged higher, responding to the action both of corn values and of hogs.

SLAYER AVOIDED BEING CAPTURED

Faced Police Pistols, Jumped From Second Story Window.

CHICAGO, Oct. 29 (Canadian Press)—Martin J. Durkin, the steel vested auto thief and slayer last night met with his ready pistol an attempt to arrest him in his sweetheart's apartment and eluded a police trap after probably fatally wounding Lloyd Austin, his betrayer, and shooting a detective. Sought since he killed Edward Shanahan, federal agent, October 11, and wanted for wounding two policemen in Sacramento, California, several months ago. Durkin faced the blazing shot guns and pistols of policemen, jumped from a second story window and vanished.

WE SEEM TO HAVE TURNED TRICK E. A. PECK'S COMMENT ON ELECTION

Member-Elect Made Addresses to Followers Expressing Delight.

RECALLS CAMPAIGN

Task Seemed Difficult With the Eastern Townships Added.

E. A. Peck, draped in a big Union Jack, appeared before a massed crowd of his supporters in Victoria Hall.

"We seem to have done the trick this time," he said, as soon as he could be heard. 'West Peterborough has returned to its old allegiance with the Liberal-Conservative party. It has been a determined and bitter fight, but the old supporters have rallied round and we see the effect of it tonight.

'When I stood on this platform a short while ago and received the nomination as candidate, it seemed as if I faced an impossible task—"

Voice in the crowd: "But you're game!"

"And when there were later attached to the riding, Lakefield, Douro and Otonabee, it made the situation appear still more hopeless. The riding was built for Mr. Gordon."

Voice: 'It was, till Mr. Peck came along."

"Then Mr. Gordon received his appointment to the cabinent. To counteract all this the Conservatives fell in line, and the ladies, everyone, worked night and day in my behalf, and for the success of the Conservative party. I thank you and all the rest most heartily for the support, as nothing could be said which would over value the indefatigable service.

"I have been touched up a bit by the gentlemen on the other side of the road, but it was expected; unkind things had been said——

Voice: "You look alright now."

Mr. Peck: "But I am prepared to forgive my enemies—in fact regard them still as friends." (Deafening applause) 'but it was pretty hard to take the scurrilous attack sponsored by The Star last night, especially as more than 3,000 copies were circulated with a purpose to do me harm more especially as it was withheld until I had no chance for a reply ——("They got their reply") "I was defenceless."

"I am prepared to overlook even that—I could not help it in view of the majority which I have been given.

"I can say no more than thank all those who gave their assitance to the cause and I am gratified to hear that Lennox has carried North York and the career of MacKenzie King is at an end. I am also pleased to hear that Massey has been summarily disposed of.

The result of all this is the returning to power of the Rt. Hon. Arthur Meighen with his proposed plan of safe and sane administration.

"He will pursue his policy which will keep the Canadian people in their own land and bring back those who have been driven away by Mackenzie King. Gentlemen, I thank you for the far-sighted and open-minded manner in which you have dealt with this great national issue."

JUBILATION IN CONSERVATIVE ROOMS AS MAJORITY GROWS

Supporters Were Hopeful Even Before First Poll Was Heard From.

A GOOD OMEN

Majority Given by First Poll to Report Increased Their Confidence.

At Peck's Commitee rooms the officials gathered in shirt sleeves around telephones. All were completely confident before any polls were even head from. When at 6.15 poll 23 at MacFarlan's House, Homewood avenue sent in their report, the first to report, sent in a majority of 41 for Peck, there was a stir and all present asserted this a good omen.

Steadily the reports dribbled in each bearing the welcome news of a Peck majority and steadily the excitement rose. As the polls reported the fact was borne in upon these standard bearers of Peck that they had surely won their fight, joy rose wave on wave until it reached fever pitch. A smile covered each countenance. Jokes and hysteric laughter rose. Mr. Peck came in and all sprang up to shake his hand and congratulate him.

Mr. Peck was so assured of his victory that when called to the long distance 'phone to answer a Toronto call, he said, "Yes, this is Peck, the member for West Peterboro." He hastily corrected himself, but his henchmen cheered.

About 7.45 the band was ordered out, and bundles of fireworks were prepared. Finally, borne upon the wild wave of victory, borne in from every quarter, the Conservatives left their committee rooms and hurried out upon the streets to gain room for their voices and to vent their feelings in cheers.

Along the crowded streets every face was shining with the light of victory. Tory hand gripped Tory hand in firm handshakes. All were radiant.

The band came swinging down George Street, playing "O Canada." The crowd cheered, horns tooted and the noise was deafening.

Sky-rockets went swishing into platform and the gallery.

As each telegram was read bringing further glad tiding, the crowd rose to a man and cheered. Speeches were called for. Roland Denne spoke, assuring the people of a Conservative landslide. Mrs. Fallis was urged to take the platform and responded. She too assured the happy audience in a triumphant voice of the Tory victories everywhere. W. Bolton proclaimed the clean campaign that Mr. Peck had conducted personally, and he stated that this demonstrated the fact that it was possible to conduct a litical fight in a sportsmanlike manner against a strong enemy. He assured the people that Peck could take his place among the members of the House and represent Peterboro so that this city would be proud of him. R. J. Soden mounted the platform and told that soon the people would see the change in the financial condition of Canada.

the air, leaving a long tail of light. The rockets cartooned off buildings and fell back into the crowd, still glowing, but no one seemed to care.

All on the streets seemed Conservatives. Apparently the Liberals had, like the Arabs, slipped away in the night and were licking their wounds.

The Conservatives crowded into Victoria Hall to hear the further reports of their victory. The hall soon became crowded. Every seat was filled, and many stood along the walls. They overflowed the

SHOWER GIVEN TO BRIDE-ELECT

Mock Marriage Feature of Happy Evening Entertainment.

TWEED, Oct. 30—A very pleasant evening was spent on Wednesday night at the home of Mrs. G. M. Dallyn, where a miscellaneous shower was held for Miss Lilian Cobb bride-elect. Many useful gifts were presented.

The amusement of the evening was a mock marriage, with Miss Jennie Harris officiating. Miss Francis Graham acted as groom, while Mrs. A. J. Maynes took the bride's part. Mrs. Lloyd Martin looked very nice as flower girl, while Mrs. Russell Fawcett, Miss Hilda O'Keefe, Miss Gracia Lafontain and Miss Grace Houston were bridesmaids. Mrs. Dr. A. C. Locke took her part as groomsman.

The guests numbered about twenty-eight.

WILL WORK FOR PROTECTION AND DISCHARGE CONFIDENCE MR. PECK SAYS IN STATEMENT

Has Worked Hard in Interests of Protection During Campaign.

APPRECIATES HONOR

Questioned by The Examiner as to the policy which he will pursue while in the House, Mr. Peck made the following statement:

"I have worked hard during this campaign in the interests of Protection, and if the Rt. Hon. Arthur Meighen is returned as Premier with sufficient backing, we will be as good as our word. We will give the industries of Canada protection and do all in our power to further the interests of the Dominion and community. I intend to aid in the movement to keep Canadian youth in Canada, for there can be no better citizens than those born in the limits of this country.

"In short, I wish to say that I intend to justify the confidence which the electors of West Peterboro has chosen to repose in me."

GERMANS FAVOR SECURITY PACT

Chancellor Believes the Agreement Will Be Implemented By Reichstag or Election.

ADDRESS AT ESSEN.

ESSEN, Germany, October. 30—Canadian Press. — Chancellor Luther is convinced that a great majority of the German people favor the security agreements framed at the Locarno conference and believes it is a matter of secondary importance whether endorsement of the agreements is given by the present Reichstag or by an appeal to the nation.

The Chancellor made this clear in an address before a meeting here yesterday, in which he dwelt upon the necessity for disarmament to secure that peace at which the Locarno pact aimed. Germany, he added, must be treated on an equal footing with the other European nations.

CAILLAUX MISSING.

Question of United States Debt Left Over in the Meantime.

PARIS, Oct. 30 (Canadian Press) —Premier Painleve has succeeded in re-constituing the Cabinet, which will proceed to grapple with France's problems, financial, military and political, without the aid of M. Caillaux and several other members of the previous ministry.

M. Painleve has taken over the portfolio of the finance ministry himself. Artistide Briand remains as Minister of Foreign Affairs, and Charles Chaumet, who was formerly Minister of Commerce, has been appointed Governor of the Bank of France.

With his cabinet, M. Painleve called yesterday on President Deumergue, who ratified the selections.

WEATHER DELAYED WORK ON THE FARMS

Sale of Stock.

Mr Wilbert Lunn had a sale of farm stock on Monday.

Jaw Broke

Gladys Coyte had her jaw broken on Monday afternoon. She was playing around her home. She was able to make her way to the house alone, but did not know how it had happened. It is supposd it was from the kick of a horse. The jaw was badly fractured.

Mrs. James Keegan.

It was a great shock to the community when it was learned on Monday evening, that Mrs. James Keegan had died suddenly and unexpectedly about six p.m.

Mrs. Keegan for some time had not been feeling well and it was known that her heart was affected, but her friends had not thought there was any immediate danger.

During Sunday night she was suffering pain, and early Monday morning the doctor was summoned. He stayed with her a couple of hours or more and when he left her she was feeling much relieved. About half an hour before her death she was talking quite interestedly in everything, but suddenly began to breathe heavily, lapsed into unconsciousness and quickly passed away.

Mrs. Keegan had spent practically her whole life in this neighborhood and was highly esteemed and loved by her neighbors and friends. She was a true friend, a good neighbor, a loving wife and mother and will be missed in the church and in community affairs.

She leaves to deeply mourn her loss her son Everett at home, her daughter Ruth, a nurse-in-training at Rochester, and her husband. She is survived by two sisters, Mrs. L. Parnell, Newcastle, and Mrs. Wm. Pritchard, Cavan; also two brothers, Creighton and Robert Carr.

Miss Ruth Keegan arrived home on Tuesday morning.

Among those from outside points who attended the funeral were: Mr. and Mrs. L. Parnell, Jean and Charlie, Newcastle; Mr. and Mrs. Skuce, Mount Horeb; Mr. and Mrs. Jas. Armstrong, Mr. Russell Armstrong, Janetville; Mr. and Mrs. Darling, Peterboro, and Mrs. Jas. Casey, Valentia.

The wreaths, sprays and other floral tributes which covered Mrs. Keegan's casket and were placed near, showed the esteem in which she was held. Besides the flowers from immediate friends and relatives there were several from different organizations in church and community.

The pall-bearers were: Messrs.. Richard Matchett, Jas. Paul, Harry Lang, Fred Staples, Jos. Perrin and Edwin Moore.

Her pastor, the Rev. J. O. Totten, conducted the funeral services. Miss Annie Tinney sang, "God Shall Wipe Away All Tears."

Mrs. Kellett, Toronto, who has been visiting her aunt, Mrs. J. Paul, for a week, has gone to Oshawa to visit her sister, Mrs. Brown.

THE MARKETS

MONTREAL MARKETS

MONTREAL, October 30. Canadian Press. — Small business was done in the local grain market yesterday due to the low prices offered, but the undertone was steady and the prices unchanged.

Trade in export trade in spring wheat flour was also quiet, but the domestic demand was active. Prices were unaltered.

The United States enquiry for mill feed was better while a fairly good trade continued for local and country account.

Liverpool advices noted a stronger market for Canadian baled hay and an advance of 5s per ton with late sales at 80s per ton c.i.f. The local market was steady with a fair trade passing in car lots.

The egg market was featureless, and there was no change in the potato trade.

Beans were unchanged at $2.40 to $2.50 per vushel.

The receipts of butter were 909 packages, as against 870 for the same day last week, and 2362 for the corresponding day a year ago. The firmer feeling that developed in the market on Wednesday was rather more pronounced and sellers in most cases were asking a further advance of ½c per lb. for all grades, but as buyers were not disposed to operate freely at the higher level the volume of business was reported smaller and the highest figure realized for Eastern Townships No. 1 pasteurized creamery was 42 3-4c per lb with 43c asked, while No. 1 creamery was quoted at 41½c to 42c per lb., and No 2 creamery at 40½c to 41c per lb.

The receipts of cheese were 3843 boxes as compared with 6595 for the same day last week, and 5411 for the corresponding day a year ago. The market was without any new feature to note, business generally being reported quiet owing to the somewhat limited demand from foreign buyers, but the undertone was steady and spot prices were unchanged.

LOCAL C. OF C. GETS 15 MORE MEMBERS

Total Now Stands at 265—Objective For Year is 300.

The executive council of the Peterborough Chamber of Commerce met on Wednesday afternoon at 5.15, and along with other business on the slate voted in fifteen new members, whose applications had been received within the last ten days. This makes a total of about 265 members and the executive's objective of 300 members for the present fiscal year should soon be reached.

The new members referred to are mainly main street merchants, which would indicate that the business people of the city realize the value of an active voluntary organization of public spirited citizens such as this Chamber of Commerce, who really do things and promote the welfare of the city and district generally.

Among the many activities of the Chamber of Commerce, perhaps the most striking and successful has been the recent development of the tourist traffic by road and water. It is admitted by those who are in a position to judge, namely, the merchants in the business section that their summer sales were materially boosted by the influx of tourists this past season, and the Chamber of Commerce, with which is affilated the Ontario Motor League, Peterborough Branch, and the Trent Waterway Development Association, has been very active in this branch of their worok.

Business men are supporting an organization that brought a quarter of a million dollars into circulation here during the three summer months, when trade as a rule is dull.

The illinois Women's Athletic Club of Chicago has 2,200 active members.

HISTORY OF HASTINGS PARISH

HASTINGS, Oct. 30.—The pretty little village in the Trent Valley, through which runs the Trent River, dividing it between the Counties of Peterborough and Northumberland, and now known as Hastings, was in its early days called "Crooks Rapids." To this little hamlet came in 1847, Reverend Father Higgins, the first resident priest. He lived and also celebrated Mass in what is now the Lock House. At this time was included in this parish, the villages of Campbellford, Norwood and Warkworth.

Here Father Higgins labored until 1852, when he was succeeded by the Reverend Father Farrelly, who built, on the site of the present one, a place of worship, where the faithful attnded Mass.

Rev. Father Farrelly was succeeded in 1857 by Father Harty, who remained for a few months and in the same year was followed by Father Byrnes, who had charge of the parish until December, 1858, when Father Brophy came, remaining until February, 1862.

In the year of 1862, Reverend Father Quirk, of pious memory, was appointed to the parish. By him was built the present church, which was completed in October, 1865, and on the 15th of that month dedicated to Our Lady of Mount Carmel, by the late Bishop Horan, of Kingston. Father Quirk also inaugurated the Separate School. After many years of labor in his wide and scattered parish, he died in June, 1895, and was buried beside the church which he had built which now stands as a fitting monument to his memory.

Father Michael Connelly succeeded Father Quirk. He built the present residence of the parish priest. He died in October, 1897, and was buried at Perth, of which place he was a native.

Reverend Father Peter McGuire became priest of this mission in April, 1898. With his well known zeal and energy he labored not only for the spiritual, but also for the temporal betterment of the parish, and during the seven years of his pastorate, many improvements were made, among which might be mentioned the institution of the Parish Cemetery in its present situation, a short distance from the church.

Reverend Father Bretherton, the present pastor, took charge in May, 1905. The present highly-commendable condition of the church and its surroundings are due to his care and foresight. The congregations are justily proud of their beautiful church, with its terraced wall, neat fence and walks and beautiful shade trees, but they give credit where they know it is due, to Father Bretherton's artistic taste and to his zeal that all things in and about the House of God should possess the characteristics of order and seemliness. The interior decoration and renovation of the church is also one of the many improvements of Father Bretherton's pastorate.

The other church property, the school house and grounds, and the well-kept cemetery, also testify to his care. Among the more recent improvements was the building of a substantial vault on the cemetery grounds.

Father Bretherton was ordained in Peterborough Cathedral in 1883 by Bishop Jamot, first Bishop of the Diocese. Twenty years of this time he has spent in Hastings. He is now the second oldest priest in the diocese, Mons. Murray of Cobourg, being his senior in priesthood.

At the present time, the year of the Diamond Jubilee of the Dedication of the Church of Our Lady of Mount Carmel, the people of the prosperous Parish of Hastings looking back in imagination the little Lock House Chapel, have reason to return fervent thanks to Almighty God that He has blessed the work of their good pastors and enabled them to carry on His work so successfully. It may be said that Hastings Parish is now second to none in the diocese.

JUBILEE SERVICE CHURCH RENOVATED

Improvements Largely Due To Efforts of Mayor Turner, Peterborough.

APSLEY, Oct. 30.—In commemoration of the jubilee of the Anglican Mission of Apsley, the interior of St. George's church has been thoroughly renovated. The walls have been lined with British Columbia cedar, the ceiling painted a light green color, a new chimney built from the basement up, the inside doors covered with red felt, and the outer doors repainted and grained. With the exception of building the chimney, all the work was done locally, most of it voluntarily. These improvements were made possible through the good offices of Mayor Turner of Peterboro, who volunteered to secure the necessary funds from friends and sympathizers of the Mission in Peterboro, to whom the congregation of St. George's extend their grateful thanks. The work was completed and the church reopened for service on Sunday last.

On Monday, the Lord Bishop of Toronto, who was accompanied by Rural Dean O'Conor Fenton of Norwood administered the sacred rite of confirmation to twenty-one candidates (twelve women and girls and nine men and boys). His Lordship after extending hearty congratulations to the congregation on the improvements made to the church and to the rector on presenting such a large class for confirmation, addressed the candidates on the revelation of the will of God emphasizing the impossibility of serving Christ and doing the will of God from the heart without the indwelling spirit of God. The Rural Dean and Rev. E. W. Gardner assisted at the service.

On Tuesday morning the Bishop celebrated the Holy Communion, assisted by the Rev. C. A. G. Spence.

The following are the new officers elected: Roy Rutherford, president; Miss Sylvina Rutherford, secretary-treasurer; Miss Emma Tate, vice-president.

After considerable discussion it was finally decided to hold the fortnightly meetings the first and second Wednesday of each month. F. Barnard, Miss E. Donaldson and D. Rutherford were appointed a committee to arrange and plan for a commencement which will be held by the club on Armistice night, November 11th.

"Women's Institute are doing good work for Sick Children's hospital." In response to an appeal from the Sick Children's Hospital, Toronto, the local branch of the Ladies' Institute are getting up a shower of jam, jellies, marmalades and other thick fruits, and are requesting anyone whether members of the local branch or not to contribute any amount they feel they can spare, and leave the collection at J. W. White's store. It will be forwarded to the Sick Children's Hospital on November 14th.

GOOD PROGRAMME AT BETHEL CHURCH

Occasion Was Thirty-seventh Anniversary Service.

HASTINGS, Oct. 30.—The thirty-seventh anniversary services were held in Bethel church on the Hastings circuit on Sunday. Rev. M. E. Wilson, M.A., of Amelisburg who was pastor of the church at its erection had charge of the services. The choir of the Hastings United church provided the music for the occasion.

On Monday evening an old fashioned tea meeting was held. After lunch was served a programme was given. Rev. M. L. Hinton acted as chairman. A recitation was given by Arnold Murphy and Blue's Hawaiian Orchestra from Campbellford rendered a selection, those taking part, Miss Grace Blue, ukulele, Miss Bertha Blue guitar and Mr. W. Blue guitar. Little Mary Murphy recited; Miss J. Wilcox, sang a solo; an address was given by Mr. Henry Thistlewaithe of Elgin. After another selection by the orchestra, Miss Ada Bond recited "His Only Friend", a dialogue entitled "John's Baby" was given by the young people of the church and a selection by the orchestra closed the programme.

RAIN AFFECTED CHURCH SERVICE

'How to Change Minus Into Plus' Was Topic of Interesting Sermon.

MORE IN EVENING.

BAILIEBORO, Oct. 30.—The anniversary services were held in the Union Church here, on Sunday morning at eleven o'clock, and Sunday evening at seven o'clock.

Rev. McLaughlin of the Keene United church conducted the morning service, and on account of the heavy downfall of rain which kept up all morning the crowd at the morning service was not so large as it would otherwise have been had the weather been fine. The pastor chose for his text Psalm 119, the 59th and 60th verses. "I thought on my ways, and turned my feet unto thy testimonies" and "I made haste, and delayed not to keep thy commandments. The principal topic of the sermon was "How to change a minus into a plus." The sermon throughout was most inspiring and the message delivered by Rev. Mr.. McLaughlin will no doubt linger long in the minds of the members of the congregation who were fortunate enough to be present at the morning service and hear the splendid sermon delivered.

Rev. A. H. McConnachie of the Springville Union circuit was present at the evening service, and delivered his message to a packed church. The seating capacity was completely taken up. The latter pastor chose his text from II Timothy, the first chapter and the twelfth verse, "For I know whom I have believed." Mr. McConnachie's sermon was also a most inspiring sermon, and the message rendered by the well known pastor, was fully appreciated by all present.

The church choir provided splendid music for both services, consisting of quartettes, trios and anthems.

The annual meeting of the U.F. Y.P.O. club was held in the club rooms at Centreville, on Friday evening last. With the president, Mr. Harold Bebee, and secretary-treasurer, Miss Sylvina Rutherford, presiding..

There was a goodly number present at the meeting, and after the usual business items were transacted the new officers for the ensuing year were then elected by ballot.

Join in your children's fun!

DON'T let ill health rob you of your children's or your own pleasure. Many mothers say that they are too tired to join in their children's games, and it is usually because they have allowed themselves to become nervous and run down.

Medical research has definitely proved that one of the causes of a run down condition of the body is a shortage of certain mineral elements, including iron, potassium, calcium, sodium and phosphorus, and until a sufficient supply of these minerals is restored to the body, good health is impossible. Wincarnis contains every one of these elements in addition to other health giving ingredients and in a form in which they are most rapidly absorbed into the blood and carried to every part of the body to be converted into vital force.

Wincarnis has been recommended by over ten thousand physicians in cases of nervousness, anaemia, sleeplessness, and the general debility that accompanies a run down body. For fifty years this strength giver and nerve restorative has brought new life and happiness to weakened men and women.

PARTY CALCULATIONS ASTRAY AND RESULTS EXPECTED FROM MUNICIPALITIES DISAPPOINTING

Large Majority Expected For Maybee Was Not Obtained.

LIBERALS HOPEFUL.

Think King Government May Be Able To Retain Office.

CAMPBELLFORD, Oct. 30. — Confident as they were of an overwhelming victory, both in the Northumberland riding and throughout the country the Conservatives of Campbellford had planned for a monster parade to be headed by A. Riendeau's cub bear, recently captured in the wilds of Haliburton. Riendeau was impartial with forms and had agreed to lead bear in any triumphal procession no matter which party won was no procession of any The result was so disappointing to both sides that the passed quietly. The Conservatives received their first surprise when the majority of between and six hundred, which they had for in Campbellford, turned out to be actually 355. Four years ago Mr. Maybee led Mr. Slade in town by a plurality of 776, but as a three-cornered contest, and Kerr, the Liberal candidate, had 1,378 votes, the majority of evidently going to Mr. Slade's in yesterday. In the townships results demonstrated that the Conservatives who voted the Progressive ticket in 1921, fell back into the old party ranks yesterday.

In Their Own Townships.

Each candidate made a good showing in his own township, Mr. Slade rolling up a majority of 306 in Haldimand and Mr. Maybee leading by 150 in Murray. Hastings village was the only urban centre in the riding that gave a Liberal majority. Mr. Slade leading there by 10 votes. All calculations made by the Liberal party workers went astray except, perhaps, in Campbellford. Cobourg, which was expected to break nearly even, rolled up a Conservative lead of 402, and Mr. Slade failed to score as well in the western part of the riding as he did four years ago.

No Loud Cheering.

There was none of the loud cheering that is usually heard on the night of an election here, although the Conservatives did work up a fair show of enthusiasm when the Ontario results were announced from their committee rooms. The streets in front of their headquarters were practically deserted by 11 o'clock, but the Liberals, however, up to the last, remained until in their committee rooms, receive the latest returns which failed the result.

Returning Officer Stone A. J. Meyers, secretary of the Association, were on duty midnight in the latter's office receive the returns from the differing places in the riding. election officials were slow in these in, and few were from the rural booths, although sults in the townships were ined. In the vicinity of town some of the results were as follows: West 3 School House, majority for Slade 9; Stanwood, where a few years ago such an individual as a Liberal voter was practically unknown, Maybee got 56 and Slade 31; the English Line gave Maybee a majority of 22, and his lead at Conley's School was 12.

The Liberals Hope.

The Liberals broke up early this morning, cherishing the hope that their party will when all the returns are in, have the largest group, and will, with the support of the Progressives, are still able to carry on. Unless the Conservatives manage to secure a plurality of the seats, the Liberals fail to see how they can expect to form a government, as a coalition with the Progressives seems impossible. However, as they separated the supporters of the Government refused to acknowledge defeat.

FRENCH UNEASY OVER SITUATION IN DAMASCUS

Dissatisfaction at Policy of High Commissioner Becomes More Articulate.

ATROCITY CHARGES.

Allegations of Executions and Plundering Brought Against Sarrail's Army.

PARIS, Oct. 30. — (Canadian Press).—M. Millerand in the Senate Committee yesterday, demanded the recall of General Sarrail, French High Commissioner in Syria. He declared that General Sarrail was responsible for the death of 3,000 French soldiers and serious injury to the prestige of France in order to cover the blunder of the party which had appointed him to the post.

Persistent reports of the gravest trouble in Syria have developed a most serious feeling in political and official circles. The situation is commented upon vigorously in the lobbies of the Chamber, where much impatience is shown at the meagre information received from the High Commissioner. There is an insistent demand among the Opposition groups for his recall and a rumor was current yesterday that M. Briand, the Foreign Minister, had requested that he be relieved of his command. The Syrian post is under the authority of the War Ministry.

The Foreign Office, however, denied last night that any action had been taken with respect to General Sarrail. Latest advices tend to indicate a lessening of the danger in the Syrian situation, but Opposition deputies have given notice to the Premier that they will insist upon having a full explanation immediately after the Chamber reconvenes on Tuesday next.

Stern Measures.

CAIRO, Oct. 30. — (Canadian Press).—The Damascus newspaper Omran, copies of which have been received here, says that 43 insurgents and 160 residents of Damascus and its environs have been arrested by the French, together with Hassan El Karreth, said to be the leader of the insurrection. Three of these have been executed, the newspaper says, adding, "but we do not know the nature of their crime."

The night of October 23, this journal says, the French issued the following communique: "The Syrian Government and the representative of the High Commission informs the public that all guarantees having been given the authorities that the fine imposed on the city regarding money and rifles (the French are said to have demanded £100,000 in gold and 3,000 rifles) will be forthcoming, the danger of bombardment is over for the time being."

However, the paper says, two days later the British Consulate at Damascus issued a communique predicting a bombardment the following afternoon and asking British subjects to call at the Consulate early in the morning, bringing food with them so that they might be conducted out of danger.

Reign of Terror.

LONDON, Oct. 30. — (Canadian Press).—Syrian refugees, the Cairo correspondent of the Daily Mail reports, charge the French troops with committing excesses at Damascus. After the bombardment had ceased two armored cars passed through the principal streets, firing at the shops on either side. French officers and soldiers are alleged to have broken into a jeweller's shop and removed the contents, asserting that the proprietor was a Moslem whom they wished to punish.

The house of one the leading Moslems adjoining the French bank of Syria was blown up with dynamite after the bank's valuables had been safely removed.

The refugees report that the bombardment wrecked the jail, killing 1,200 prisoners.

PAINLEVE MADE

The new ministry is contituted as follows:

Premier and Minister of Finance—M. Painleve.

Minister of Foreign Affairs—Aristide Briand.

Minister of Justice—Camille Chautemps.

Minister of the Interior—A. Schrameck.

Minister of Work.—Anatole de Monzie.

Minister of War—Edouard Daladier.

Minister of Marine—Emile Borel.

Minister of Commerce — Daniel Vincent.

Minister of Agriculture—Jean Durand.

Minister of Instruction — Yvon Delbois.

Minister for the Colonies—Leon Ferrier.

Minister of Labor—Antoine Durafour.

Minister of Pensions—Louis Anteriou.

Minister of Budget (tentative).—George Bonnet.

Under secrtaries of State were also appointed.

The new ministry was scarcely on its feet, when pressure was put upon it from groups of the coalition for radical measures to solve the financial problems. Opposition groups served notice that the government can rely upon their support only if it follows a policy of national concord and rejects the demands of the extremists for the carrying out of policies decided upon outside of parliament. The Socialists propose to wait upon the Premier and ascertain just how far he is going to satisfy their demands.

In spite of the good impression, the ministry has made in radical circles, the re-opening of parliament next week promises to bring a period of serious difficulties for the cabinet.

M. Painleve is disposed to allow the United States debt to rest where it is for the present. He has not yet made any declaration concerning it, but his attitude is described as regarding the question less pressing than other financial problems confronting the government.

LINDSAY ROTARY AT DOWNEYVILLE DESCRIBES WORK

Dr. Kirkconnel, Collegiate Principal, Tells English Social Conditions.

ROTARY WORLD WIDE.

Man Wrapped Up in Business Has No Vital Interest in Life.

DOWNEYVILLE, Oct. 30.—The members of the Rotary Clob uf Lindsay motored out to our village Monday evening to enjoy a few hours intercourse with the Downeyville people. An excellent fowl supper was served by the ladies of the parish and a large crowd was present. The evening was indeed a very enjoyable one for one and all, when songs, stories and speeches were enjoyed.

Mr. E. L. Miles, President of the Rotary Club, gave an address explaining what Rotary stands for and its main aims and ideals. The speaker of the evening, Dr. Kirkconnell, Principal of the Lindsay Collegiate Institute, gave a very interesting account of the social conditions of England during the reign of Queen Elizabeth and told of the many forward strides which were made during the last four hundred years. Special mention was made of the Workmen's Compensation Act and the Mothers' Allowance Act; also the different measures brought forward in regard to child labor and other things.

Rev. Father Galvin, on behalf of the people of Downeyville, in welcoming his visitors expressed his appreciation of the visit. He was firmly convinced that Rotary was on the right track and would do many things for the betterment of the world. Rev. Father Collins of Lindsay was a visitor and gave a short address, as did many Rotarians.

Mr. Miles' address was the following: "The speed with which the Rotary movement has encircled the globe is in direct proportion to the development of transportation. Transportation is an element in the progress of civilization, and its advancement records the tremendous strides in science duuring the past twenty years. Since 1905, when the first Rotary Club was founded in the city of Chicago, the world has been literally placed on wheels, and nationalities or races have been literally plucked from their isolation. The intermingling of people by travel and international trade render fortified boundaries and great walls obsolete, while neutral zones and common grounds of needs have been set up, and so, too, out of this development has been created the word 'Rush.' People are simply darting here and there in quest of trade or pleasure until we have now arrived at a time when all visible cares for home and friends, along with the community spirit, have been lost in the turmoil. But these cares are there just the same, ever responsive to the touch of the other fellow, and so, too, we are now passing through the age of conventions for every walk of life, but largely confined to a special trade where its members discuss their problems on common ground. The idea is splendid as no convention is dispersed without a better feeling among its members through the opportunity of acquaintances. But we must go further than that. We must have tolerance and friendliness among all trades and professions, all religions and creeds, all nations, all races, and so to its ends Rotary has come into being, and since the first International Club was established in Winnipeg in 1910 Rotary has spread into 30 countries with 2,218 clubs and a membership of 110,500. Think of the marvelous development since 1922 when the Lindsay club received its charter, printed in the English language, and now we hear the Rotary Club of Prague in Czecho-Slovakia has received its charter, written in the language of the Slav. But why this rapid extention of Rotary around the world to Europe, to Asia, to Africa, to the Orient, and even to Iceland and Alaska and other faraway points? Is it a great American movement operating under the trade name of Rotary and floating to the four corners of the earth on the wings of rapid transportation, soon to find its organization and leadership dashed on the rocks of time? No, Rotary is a trade name for Golden Rule, founded on the principles of the Golden Rule and the truth of its motto, 'He profits most who serves best.' Rotary is sometimes described as 'Practical Idealism,' but any title you like so long as it embraces the full meaning of the word 'Fellowship' and extends to the international field a common code of conduct. All over the world Rotary Clubs are meeting weekly, all accepting the same charter, constitution, objects, ethics and resolutions, but carry on their meetings in their own native languages. I am proud to say that Rotary knows no color or creed, has no political leanings, and all men are admitted to membership on the simple but effective plan of limited representative membership. Representative because Rotary believes it can break down the barriers of intolerance by bringing the individual members into contact with men of other lines of life, and so we classify the membership and limit it to those of distinct lines of trade or professions within the territory of the club. Is it not so that any man who is wrapped up in his business and has no real concern, no vital interest in life besides his business, is the type of man, is the kind of man who lowers the tone of that business life? Is it not so that the moralist becomes cold and hard, yes, inhuman, because his point of view becomes narrow and ethical, and therefore can take no human consideration into account? Even the educationalist may teach nonsense if he looks at everything from a professional point of view. That explains our reason for classification, but does not let down the bars that our meetings may become an open forum for the exchange of hard-boiled opinions. Friendliness among our members and among mankind, backed up by a mutual understanding, based on honesty of purpose, is our goal. Surely this will bring international peace on earth quicker than any league or systems of treaties. Then I say to you, let's try a world fellowship of business and professional men united in the Rotary ideal of friendship and service.

"Good people of Downeyville, we extend to you a friendly hand tonight, and by this meeting we trust that we have been of service to you. We trust that you will find your dealings with us individually on a higher plane because of Rotary, and that you will feel the good and benefits of Rotary through one community service through our community service children of the county and the underprivileged boy and through the better business methods we seek to advance. For, after all, man expresses himself in what he does, and it is our duty to live honestly and have honest things about us.

"Rotary is more than the members thereof, as a vessel is more than its crew."

FREAK BET ON ELECTION DAY

Campbellford Man to Roll Peanut With a Cane.

BET ON MAJORITY.

CAMPBELLFORD, Oct. 30. — There was at least one freak bet made in Campbellford on the election. Charles H. Davidson, Reeve of the town, chief of the fire brigade, and one of the most devout and optimistic Conservatives of them all, made a compact with a Hastings man. The conditions were that if Maybee failed to secure a majority of 1,000 in Campbellford, Mr. Davidson would roll a peanut with a cane from Meyers and Stone's service station on Front street, to the spur track crossing, a distance of about a quarter of a mile. The bet was to be paid on the afternoon succeeding the election. If the peanut is broken in transit before the destination is reached, another will be secured and the trip begun again from the starting point.

Mr. Davidson is possessed of the true sporting spirit and never attempts to welch. He will pay the bet and the event is likely to provide the populace with more amusement than anything they have seen or heard during the campaign.

REPORT SHOWS PROTESTANT HOME IS IN SATISFACTORY CONDITION

Public Interest as Great as Ever, But Donations Fallen Off.

LEGACIES RECEIVED

Thanks Tendered to Individuals and Societies For Assistance Given.

The following is the report of the secretary, Mrs. F. M. De la Fosse, for the Peterboro Protestant Home for the year ending September 30th, 1925, as submitted at the recent annual meeting:

Madame President, members of the board of the Protestant Home, Ladies and Gentlemen:—

I beg herewith to present my Annual Report as Secretary of your Board. In order to provide a clear idea of the work accomplished and the various matters dealt with the important items have been placed under separate headings.

Meetings

There were seventeen meetings during the year. The average attendance at these was seven. There were no special meetings.

Diet Kitchen

At the annual meeting last year an appeal was made for funds for the building of a Diet Kitchen in order to facilitate the work. This appeal was so generously responded to that enough money was received to build and fully equip the kitchen. It is pleasant to add that it is absolutely clear of debt.

Donations

Although public interest in the Home has seemingly been as great as ever fewer donations than in past years have been received. It is scarcely necessary to stress the fact that in an institution such as this gifts are always very gratefully welcomed, for the calls are many and unending.

Buildings and Grounds

The buildings are in good repair. The rear galleries have been reinforced and the verandahs renovated and painted. A good deal of calsomining and painting has been done in the interior of the building.

The grounds have been excellently kept and the flowers and shrubs have evoked much favorable comment from visitors to the Home.

Entertainments

The Christmas Tree celebration held on Dec. 23rd, 1924, was a great success. Mr. Gordon of St. Andrew's Church conducted the proceedings, assisted by Mr. John Crane and members of his choir. Thirty-two out of thirty-six inmates were able to be present to enjoy the festivities.

Various Young People's Societies and choirs of the city churches kindly tendered their services for concerts during the year and gave much pleasure to their audience.

One event that deserves to be specially recorded was the annual outing provided by Royal Arthur Lodge A.F. & A.M. on July 23rd. Mr. and Mrs. Breyfogle very kindly placed their cottage at Chemong at the disposal of the guests and a delicious tea was served by the St. Andrew's Ladies' Aid.

Legacies

The sum of $700 has been received during the past few years in legacies It is proposed that this amount shall form a nucleus towards the erection of an Annex and chapel for the purpose of providing accommodation for aged married couples and others who may desire to take advantage of such benefits as the Home provides.

Any contribution towards this fund will be thankfully acknowledged.

The Late Miss Helen Denison

During the year the sad news was received of the death of Miss Helen Denison, a former Secretary of the Board. At the time of the building of the present Home Miss Denison did invaluable work and her memory will long be cherished with gratitude and affection by her friends in Peterborough.

General

We again had the pleasure of a visit from Mrs. Roger our esteemed Honorary President who took the chair at the meeting held on August 12th and conducted the proceedings with her accustomed ability.

The clergy and doctors of the city have been most kind in giving their services at all times. The warmest thanks of the Board are due to these gentlemen and also to the members of the Press and all others who have in any way helped to brighten the lives of the residents of the institution.

Miss Lancaster, as in past years, has done efficient work in her capacity as superintendent and Mrs. Hurry has been unremitting in her care of the old people. Her work has been most valuable.

Under Mr. Hamilton's supervision the garden and buildings have been splendidly looked after.

To sum up in a sentence — the year which closed on September 30th left the Home, in all respects, in a satisfactory condition.

Most Women

Have discarded old hygienic methods to assure immaculacy at all times

FEW modern women but employ a new and different way in hygiene. A way that supplants the old-time "sanitary pad" with true protection.

Wear filmy frocks and light things . . . any time. Dance, motor for hours without doubt or fear.

It is called "KOTEX" . . . five times as absorbent as the ordinary cotton pad!

Thoroughly deodorizes . . . thus ending ALL fear of offending.

Discards as easily as a piece of tissue. No laundry. No embarrassment.

You ask for it without hesitancy simply by saying "KOTEX" at any drug or department store. Costs only a few cents. Proves risky old ways a folly.

KOTEX
No laundry—discard like tissue

STORE COMPLEXION NOT INJURIOUS, IF

Those who can remember fifty years back will recall that Canadian women then had the clearest and ruddiest complexions that real beauty could tolerate. To-day how rare it is to see a clear and rosy skin. The cause is improper food. Then women ate no "denatured" white flour, prepared or refined cereals or white sugar sweets for they were not known. All these foods are "Excess Acid," because their alkaline salts are largely removed in milling the grains. This makes the blood acid and these acids are thrown out mostly by the skin, which irritates it, dries it, makes it shiny, pimply and murky. If women would use very much more brown flour and brown whole grain cereals, milk, nuts, beans, eggs, leafy vegetables and fruits, all excess alkali foods (opposite of acid) and less acid-forming white flour, refined cereals, meats and sweets, they would again have beautiful skins and store complexions would not injure them.

Roman Meals is 400 parts in each 1,000 parts "Excess Alkali", the only alkaline cereal sold to-day. It clarifies and softens the skin because it keeps the blood normally alkaline, free from irritating acids which must find a way out of the blood by the pores of the skin or kill the body that retains them.

Roman Meal makes delicious porridge. Muffins made from it "melt in your mouth" And for the sake of your children and your own well-being, you should always mix Roman Meal with your white flour (at least 25%) to restore valuable properties lost in making flour white.

"EVERYBODY PLEASE STAND UP— THE LADY HAS LOST HER SHOE"

"MRS SHULMAN THIS IS A STRICTLY HIGH-CLASS HOUSE. WE DON'T ALLOW EATING LUNCHES"

The USHER GUM SHOES UP BEHIND AND POURS A HOT FLOOD OF LIGHT OVER THE ENTWINED PAIR.

By Edith G. Bayne.

"These here seats must be weak in th' hinges or something," declared the kingly little old man with whiskers and rheumatism. "Soon's you put 'em down they fly right up agin!"

Twice he had pressed the seat beside him down and carefully parked his fedora thereon and each time as soon as he let it go it flew up and shot his hat into the lap of the lady behind.

"Of all th' new-fangled dodges I ever heard tell of!" he muttered, as he recovered his property and then settled down to enjoy the show. "Say, keep yer eye on that there organ. Don't it beat all what contraptions there is nowadays? Feller with all th' air, he punches one o' them keys an' derned if a dawg don't bark 'way over there in th' wall somewheres! Time was when I'd'a' never think th' cream-depastor was a mighty smart little invention, but shucks!" He pulled out a plug of chewing and bit off a corner. "Th' wife an' I moved into town a month ago an' I been like a fish outa water ever since. Yep, sold the farm. We've jined th' folks that live in layers. 'Partment house—sixth shelf, heh! heh! We're very grand now. Nothin' to do but twiddle our thumbs an' set 'round waitin' till th' roll is called up yonder! They keep it awful dim in here, don't they? It's that restful I could shut m' eyes an' go asleep. Th' wife an' I been trapsin' up an' down th' streets, her gawpin' in all th' windas at th' wimmen's dresses. Come four o'clock I sez: 'Look here, you go on an' do yer shoppin' an' when y' buy up one side o' Yonge street you can start on th' other, but as fer me, I'm a-goin' t' go an' set in a show an' rest m' feet!' I sez. So here I am."

Movie Fan: Variety, No. 2.

At "Greed"—a pleasant little drama containing two murders.

A strong-minded lady, severe and superior, wearing balloon-tire specs and an air of disapproval. On her lap a copy of Atlantic Monthly. President of a Browning club. Charter member Imperial Order Daughters of the Empire. She sat as one detached from the sorry procession of life seeing accurately the relative unimportance of its puny sorrows and pathetic joys. Only saw a movie when she happened to be caught downtown in a heavy shower without an umbrella. As the story approached its sanguinary climax her lips drew together tighter and tighter—

And then a hand tugging gently at her sleeve, and a voice:

"Excuse me, wouldja mind trading seats with my little Benny so he can see the gentleman choking his wife?"

Questions and No Answers.

At one of those shows that might be had for grandma:

"However, that isn't the lady's husband she's kissing, is it?"

"Sh-h!"

"Well, is it?"

"No! Keep still!"

"Is it her brother, then?"

"No!"

"Is it her cousin?"

"No! Will you be quiet?"

"Mmmm!"

No reply.

"Mommer?"

"The next time I come to a show I'll leave you at grandma's—that's what I'll do!"

"I jus' wanted to ask one more question."

"Well, what is it?"—tone of exasperation.

Bright child, pointing at screen: "If at man isn't any relation to the lady, hat's she kissing him for?"

Tragedy With a Happy Ending.

The lady the management has installed for the purpose of mopping up the face powder that the girls spill in little heaps under the mirrors, is a sociable soul.

"It's a real nice job and I get time to see the pictures, too," she confided. "The patrons are very nice to me—that is, most of them are."

She displayed a large box of choice candy, the other evening between the comic and the news reel: circular in shape and tied with broad satin ribbon.

"I'm not going to offer you any because I'm taking it home to my little nephew," she said. "A girl just gave it to me. Pretty thing she was, too—bipade with a boyish bob and my, but she was feeling bad! She came in here to powder up. Seems she and her fella had been arguing about something and he up and left her and went right out of the theatre. They'd just opened up this box, but hadn't taken any chocolates yet and it lay in her lap. She sat on, sort of expecting him back, but when she'd seen the picture round twice she got up and came out here to the dressing-room. 'Here, says she, you take this candy. I couldn't eat one—it'd choke me!' She slaps it down on the table and begins rouging her cheeks. Well I've a little nephew. Crippled. Thinks I, this is a windfall for him. 'What a lovely ring!' says I to the girl. 'Yeo, it's going back to him to-morrow,' says she, jerking it off her finger. 'What were you two quarreling about dearie?' I asks her. 'Nothing at all. That's the trouble' she says. It doesn't take anything to get us scrapping and that's the way our married life would be, I'm glad we found out our mistake in time—divorces are so expensive.' Well, she goes out. About two minutes later she comes back. 'Oh, Mrs. X.,' says she, her face all smiles, 'I just came back to tell you he's out there hanging round in the lobby—no, no, I didn't come back for the caddy!—and he looks as though he wants to make up—te hee! What'll I do?' 'Now you be nice to him, dearie,' I tells her and don't act huffy.' She takes the ring out of her pocket, breathes on it, polishes it against her sleeve and puts it back on her finger. Then she comes over and puts her arms round my neck and kisses me. 'You're an old dear!' says she, with a kind of catch in her voice. 'And I promise you I won't be horrid to him. But,' says she, 'you better believe I'll keep him guessing all the way home!'"

Diogenes, Demon Servitor.

Meet Diogenes, our hard-working young usher. Diogenes the ushest was long of beard and he carried a lantern as he went about a perfidious and dissolute world searching for an honest man. His modern counterpart wears sideburns and totes an electric torch, but very often he seeks that which is infinitely more difficult to find, viz., a lady's shoe. In summer, or corn season, as many as three Cinderellas will have off a shoe each, in a single bloc of seats.

"What kind of a shoe was it, lady?"

"A tan pump with two straps and a medium heel. Almost new. It was a little tight so I just slipped it off—"

"A black one, you say?"

"No, no, tan."

"Sit down!"—from the patron behind.

"Hafta ask yuh to stand out in th' aisle."

"What's the matter? Did she lose anything?"

"Sit down!"

"Jummimmit. Gotta find this lady's property."

Lady limps out into the aisle and stands there on one foot like an unterrified sandhill crane. The torch shoots its cone of light beneath the seats.

"It can't be very far away. I surely slipped it off a minute—"

"What did she lose, usher, a pearl?"

"I don't see it, lady. Anybody see a shoe with two straps and a medium heel? I guess—"

"It was a tan shoe."

"A tan shoe. Is this it, here?" Diogenes fumbles groundly for a shoe of the description but draws back, lost in thought. It has a foot in it.

"Hurry up and get settled, you up there please!"

"Oh dear, where's you found it? Maybe it's got kicked forward or something."

"It's a wonder people wouldn't wear shoes that fit 'em," growls the bald-headed man behind.

"Hafta ask yuh all to stand," is Diogenes' order.

The whole row rises. The fat woman grunts, clutches her handbag, her hat, her neck fur and two parcels and achieves her feet, the two flappers get up; the Chinaman rises; the college freshman and his sweetie, too, the latter spilling a cascade of caramels from her lap, the school-teacherish person with the pince-nez elects to half-stand, drawing her skirt aside primly. Her own feet are comfortably encased in roomy ground-grippers.

The long finger of light swings up and down and eventually the shoe is located, perhaps all of six seats away. But before it is revealed Diogenes' torch brings to light various phenomena of an interesting and even sometimes of startling nature: a wad of chewing gum, a dusty glove, a half-sucked orange, a six-cent piece, and a hole in another lady's stocking.

Dio genes' other big job is discouraging the petting parties. The old method was crude. The usher stood in the aisle and bluntly bawled out an amorous couple with: "Break away, there!" Now he merely gumshoes up behind and pours a hot flood of light over the entwined pair. It is effective and there are no hard feelings.

Shafts—Conservative Values.

At "His Supreme Moment"—one of the season's sappiest but it had lots of scenery and a beautiful sheik:

"Isn't he divine! He has such soulful eyes and such swell manners! And when he smiles—!"

"Huh! I' never can tell about those collar-ad guys."

"He isn't a collar-ad! You're jealous."

"Yeah—of a stuffed shirt!"

"He makes love just wonderfully"—a sigh.

"Musta had lotsa practice."

"Be a sport and admit anyway that he's a good actor."

"Say, I'd like to meet that bozo some night in a dark lane, with a club"—tone of concentrated feeling.

"Go on, show your mean disposition!"

"I'd show him some acting he wouldn't forget."

"I think you're perfectly horrid! Gracious, you needn't talk, after the way you raved about that La Marr woman——"

"Who—me?"

"Well, you said you like the way she wore her hair. And everyone knows she's had five husbands——"

"My sad aunt! What's hair got to do with that?"

A feminine sniff and a thick silence. Then:

"Honey, y'aren't sore!"

"M-m."—non committal.

"Aw honey, gimme your hand again."

"Lean on your own breakfast."

"Aw, whadda I care about shadows. I like substance ——"

"Now, you stop!"

"Poppa love momma? You bet. Momma love poppa?"

"Silly! That usher's looking."

"Let him. Whadda we care!"

Silence again. Presently the crisp rustle of waxed paper, followed by the peaceful munching of chocolate walnut creams. Every girl will recognize the moral herein contained. It is: A sheik by your side is worth two on celluloid.

Guardian of the Aged.

At "Paths to Paradise"—a solicitous niece and an aunt who probably has money.

"Now auntie, are you sure you're not too far forward?"

"Quite."

"We could move back a couple of rows."

"No, no, I'm very comfortable where I am."

"We really ought to have had loge seats."

"These suit me all right, my dear. That's Douglas Fairbanks, isn't it?"

"Goodness no, auntie. You didn't forget your glasses, did you?"

"I'll be all right. I brought my aspirin. At least."—carefully—"I think I did."

"Better look and see."

"Here, you take my bag and see if they're there. Look away down in the corner . . . What a darling little dog! He reminds me of Teddy—you know, the one your uncle got in Honolulu. Did you find them?"

"Yes, isn't he a great comedian? He always plays with that actor. No, they're not here."

"Look in the little pocket at the side. I hope they don't trust him cruelly——"

"Oh, here they are. Thank goodness we won't have to move after all!"

"Pass me one of them. I guess I can swallow it without water——"

"But, auntie, dear, it's the glasses I found—not the tablets!"

"Then it must have been the aspirin I left on the table in the hall . . . There! That's much better."

"You're sure we're not too far forward?"

"Positive, my dear."

"Or too far back?"

"No, no. Stop fussing—you make me nervous."

"Well, just as soon as you feel it a strain to see, let me know."

They settle down just as the picture ends.

Courtesy For One and All.

The Yiddish theatre is a first-class house and don't you forget it. The utmost courtesy is extended to the patrons. Once a lady passed a box quarter across the theatre elsewhere but did the gentleman behind touch it to the mouth and begin to chew the oil? No, he didn't. On explaining that she had been to the range and must have picked it up there, that she had lost four hundred bones and was down to chicken-feed the ticket-vender pleaded sympathetically and suggested that that she wasn't the only hard proposition he had ever met with. He, just before the door open. He hurried.

"That's entirely o.k. lady!" he said generously. "We all make mistakes, gin't it? Come back again some time when your luck is better."

Seats downstairs are thirty-seven cents, upstairs a dime less. Mrs. Lebanguich, the jeweler's wife, always sits below on account she's got short breath and falling arches and the sun cent is nothing to her anyhow; has our good friend Mrs. Shulman of Spadina, young and single and the mother of seven, goes upstairs because business is rotten in the junk line and the baby can holler all he likes up there.

Is the air better above? Such a question! Hey Mot, the lady wants to know can she get better air upstairs! Nobody comes for air but to see the picture! This way, Mrs. Shulman, your Morry he's getting a big boy—you should pay full fare pretty soon by golly.

"Bless me, I hope not!"—searches hurriedly.

"Do you feel your vertigo coming on?"

"No, I feel very well . . . What did I do with them?"

"Did you forget your peppermints?"

"No, no, my glasses. I was sure I put them in my coat-pocket——"

"Maybe they're in your handbag."

"Oh now I remember! I left them on the hall table! How stupid!"

"My soul! We'll have to go right up to the front."

"What! Away up there by the orchestra? My dear, it's so conspicuous——"

"But auntie, you'll have one of those awful eyestrain headaches if we don't!"

How long is a Piece of Soap?

PERHAPS you have noticed how a cake of ordinary soap gets soft after it has been in the water a few times. The result is, the cake doesn't last any time—it just seems to "melt away."

PEERLESS ERASMIC never does that. It is a thoroughly milled soap. Its texture is perfect and there is very little water left in it. It remains hard and firm right to the last thin wafer. You save by using Erasmic, for a cake will outwear two or three cakes of ordinary soap.

Mrs. E. Morrison, superintendent of the Young Women's Christian Association, entertained the young ladies resident at the "Y" and several members of the board of directors, at a jolly Hallowe'en dinner last evening. Guests to the number of about eighty were present. The dining-room was attractively decorated with Hallowe'en novelties in yellow and black. The ladies were given a welcome to the dimly-lighted room by Mrs. W. R. Widdess, in a striking witch's costume, and the Misses Geraldine Glover and Margaret Storey, as ghosts, also enlivened the party. The menu contained several real Hallowe'en dainties, and a Hallowe'en night ghost story was told by Miss Ethel Garbutt. Bogus election returns were received and added to the merriment of the entertainment.

ADVICE TO GIRLS

By Annie Laurie

DEAR ANNIE LAURIE:

I am coming to you for advice.

Not long ago the only fellow that I like real real well in Peterboro' or any other place and I had a quarrel.

We were not going together very long, but in that short time I fell for him and he fell for me. We got along just great; I never met a fellow I liked half so well as him. He seemed to enjoy my company and was anxious to go out with me and used me real nice. He wasn't one of those "shieks" that's why I liked him so well. But, alas! Annie Laurie this didn't last long.

One night he took me to a party. We had a great time until coming home we had our first quarrel. As I hate quarreling on the street I remained silent and walked part of the way with another fellow and girl he seemed so changed in that short time I couldn't believe it was him. But before we reached home he offered to make it up but I was too angry and refused, so he left me with a friendly good-night and was gone.

Now it was after that that I realized my mistake, as I never enjoy myself with anyone else. He said he thought a lot of me and I do love him, but of course I never told him that. Now, Annie Laurie, when we meet he speaks to me and I think sometimes he would like to come back but he is very proud and won't shove himself in. The more I see him the more I want to be with him.

As I started to quarrel first and without a big reason either, should I be the first to try to get some way to make it up or let him come back if he wants to. Please advise me and accept my thanks.

YEARNING.

YEARNING: As you say that you started to quarrel first, I think it would be quite in order for you to try and make peace with this young man, particularly as you say you are in love with him. If he offered to make it up, he may think the second move is yours and wait for you to show some sign of relenting. If you do not wish to drop him a note, why not try to meet him somewhere or in some way commence a conversation that will show him that you have relented. Possibly you were angry over some occurrence that roused your jealousy. You had better watch out for a repetition of the feeling and guard against it in the future. It is a mighty easy thing to start this quarreling game, and to keep it up, but it is very hard to stop it.

DEAR ANNIE LAURIE:

When a girl is off on a visit and meets a young man whom she likes, is it her place to write to him first when she returns home?

BLUE-EYED BLONDE.

BLUE-EYED BLONDE: No, I think the young man should take the first step toward renewing the friendship, my dear. If he is really interested in you he will ask permission to write.

DEAR ANNIE LAURIE:

I am a boy in my teens, I like two girls, one as well as the other. Both are jealous of each other. Please advise me what to do. UNDECIDED.

UNDECIDED: Since you are not engaged to either of these young ladies, it is your privilege to meet both of them, and you are wise to take advantage of it. If they are jealous of each other, there is really nothing you can do about it—except to stop brooding.

BUSTLE EFFECTS MARK THE NE W MODE

Bunches of Soft Materials on Large Bows Achieve Back Fulness.

By ANNETTE BRADSHAW

The vogue for skirts with back fulness makes itself known in various ways. Some of the skirts are perfectly plain at the front and sides, with inset gathers or pleats across the back.

Another reflection of the mode for back fulness is seen in the bustle skirts, which really hearken back to a far distant period for their inspiration.

The frocks above, one for day wear and one for evening, show the smartness which can be achieved in the modern interpretation of the bustle skirt.

The daytime gown is developed in bright blue charmeuse The softness of this material lends itself admirably to the bunched treatment which produces the smart bustle. This is the only trimming, otherwise the frock is perfectly plain, with an almost semi-fitted bodice and long tight sleeves.

At the left is a very lovely evening gown of rich red velvet, with an unusual bustle which slants off in a point at one side. The back of the dress is cut out very much like the new decollete evening gowns, except that the cut out portion is filled in with gold lace If this gown is copied it can be made slightly less decollette, and the lace left out.

A FASHION MODEL'S DIARY

By Grace Thorncliffe

SHE DESCRIBES AN EXQUISITE EVENING GOWN

Today a lovely young blonde came in and asked for Madame.

She was obviously a new client, and such a good-looking one that I felt sure Madame would enjoy designing clothes for her.

Graceful Evening Gown of Mauve Georgette Banded in Purple and Silver Roses'

Gaby seemed to read my thoughts, for she came close to me and said in a low voice.

Wouldn't it be easy to make stunning clothes for that young thing?"

I agreed with Gaby heartily, for the young thing" in question had a straight figure, a lovely profile, and hair bobbed in the classic manner.

Just then Madame came in to meet the new client, and they were soon in a deep consultation on the clothes question.

It seemed that the young lady wanted an evening gown as soon as she could get it, for some very important occasion.

Madame took her into the private office, and I knew she was planning to design something on the spot, for Madame works very quickly.

Sure enough, there soon came a call for samples from the stock-room, and I hastened up with the errand girl to look over the materials that were wanted.

Madame had sent for two special shades of georgette, and the shades in question were the best mauve and the best purple that we could find.

Then there was a call for pins, and I gathered that Madame was going to drape the new creation on the client.

I found odd jobs to do near the office, in hopes that I'd have a chance to see the gown, and luckily Madame called me in. She said:

You show Miss Cecil the silver embroidery on the newest pink frock, so she'll know how the silver roses will look on this gown when it's completed.

I hastened to get the pink gown from the line to show her the silver roses embroidered on it in fine threads, but worked with the threads so massed that the design looked very thick and heavy.

Madame had pinned a straight sheath of the materi l on the figure, with a border of the purple at the bottom. Then there was a slanting wing effect from one shoulder at the back, with a single strap, so the neckline was a one-sided affair. On the shoulder was a silver tissue rose.

Fall Style

By HEDDA HOYT.

(Written for the United Press.)

NEW YORK, Oct. 26 (United Press).—Elaboration marks the newer evening frocks designed for Fall. For the young girl in her teens who cannot afford to wear elaborate materials and trims, the petal frock is an ideal choice. We have had frocks with petal-trimmed skirts for many seasons but the new models are far lovelier than any we have seen previously.

One such model is made of pale green chiffon with semi-fitted, long-waisted bodice of the sleeveless, round-necked type. The skirt which is merely a continuation of the straight-lined frock has chiffon ruffles beginning at the hips and extending to the hem. The ruffles shade from the pale green of the bodice to a beautiful deep green at the hemline. The ruffles are unusual in that they are cut very circular so that where they are attached to the skirt they are plain and without gathers. Each ruffle is scalloped in the irregular shape of an Autumn leaf and finished with a pecot edge. The ruffles are perhaps, seven inches deep and each ruffle overlaps the one above it. One can't imagine the fluffy effect of this type of ruffled skirt until one sees it.

Such a frock would be pretty in shades of yellow fading into orange tones. Or one of orchid fading into purple or pink fading into rose. At least three or four shades of chiffon are used for the ruffles since the shading must be almost imperceptible to be pretty.

The young Miss might also follow the vogue for metallic lace this season. She must be careful that her silhouette is youthful, however. There is a charming little gown in a Fifth Avenue window made with a bodice of gold ace and a skirt formed of three tiers of gold lace flouncing. The waistline is placed just below normal and gold rose-buds extend about the waist covering the joining of the top flounce to the bodice. The neckline of this frock is cut rounded in front and with a deep V in the rear. A berths of gold lace falls to a point midway between shoulder and elbow and ends at the V neckline in the rear, thus leaving the rear neck bare. This is a very youthful model for a young girl.

SMART STYLE NOVELTIES

MOVIES CHANGE

And to the hesitant ones an usher, standing just within the portals by the ticket-chopper, chants:

"Ladies and gents, for twenty-seven cents you can sit already in the balcon-y!"

An accommodating usher, sonorous-voiced and a good salesman. Perhaps even an artist. For to speak in measured meter and not know it—is that not a gift?

Mrs. Shulman, pantingly as she sinks into balcony seat: The nerve from him! I should pay for Morry full fare yet!

Morry: I can't see!

Dapper young usher with disapproving frown: Mrs. Shulman, this is strictly a high-class house. We don't allow eating lunches.

Mrs. S. (calmly): Vell, who's eating it a lunch?

Usher: Your kid here. Why doesn't he eat his meals at home?

Mrs. S.: That ain't a meal—it's a herring. Don't you know a herring ven you smell him?

Usher: Well, make him put it away!

Mrs. S. (as her firstborn crams the sandwich rapidly into his mouth at the imminent risk of choking: Nu, foolisher, ain't that what he's doing!

Progress on the Celluloid.

Before the era of the snappy subtitle a caption introduced the hero briefly as: "John—in love with Alice." But now:

"Alice Had John's Heartstrings all Twisted Up Like a Forkful of Spaghetti."

The old-style caption used to announce "Wall St." and let it go at that. To-day it is amplified to read:

"Wall Street—Where They Dry-Clean Without Gasoline."

The villain used to appear as: Roderick La Rue, whose methods are unscrupulous." But now he is:

"Roderick La Rue—As Tough As a Night in an Upper Birth."

"Boston—the intellectual hub of New England," read the ancient formula. The modern reads:

"Boston—Home of Culture and Codfish."

Who says the movies don't move? Trouble is we don't move with them.

You used to go to the movies and see:

(a) Mediaeval flappers in three-strap satin slippers.

(b) Noah in an ark with rain windows.

(c) Leander swimming the Hellespont in a boiled shirt.

(d) Gloria Swanson taking a bath in a sunken pool with four maids in attendance.

These were the productions that first enabled the stars to invest heavily in first editions, Old Masters, Paris gowns, antiques, oil-wells, fancy hawgs, autos, Italian villas, bootleg, real estate, pink plaster bungalows and pedigreed pups. Times have changed.

But we, the people who go to the movies, have we been as consistent in our progress and in our allegiance to the good, the true, the beautiful? (Business of laughing.)

The people we meet at the movies have not changed radically. There is still the fat man having an argument with the usher; the reader-aloud of captions; the man who steps on a match to hear it go spiut! The lady who pours the cold water of veracity down the back of illusion by telling you exactly how old the star is. There are the folks who go to kill time., to spoon, to criticize, to sleep, to make a date with the second violin, to get a line on the new fashions. We're a varied lot. Some like "The Enchanted Cottage," others "A Slave of Fashion." What is one fan's meat is another fan's bichloride of mercury. It induces the philosophical reflection that boredom is but a relative quality and criticism—written, spoken, or gargled—only the unsupported opinion of the individual and so comparatively valueless.

YOUR HEALTH

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M.D.,
Former Commissioner of Health, New York City.

AMAZING CONDITIONS IN RURAL SCHOOLS.

There is an endless discussion about country health as compared with city health. An important contribution to this subject has just been made by Professor Thomas D. Wood of Columbia University.

Dr. Wood is Chairman of the Committee on Health Problems of the National Council of Education. In this capacity he has made extensive study of children attending the rural shool in America.

I want my readers to know some of the conclusions of this Committee. Even though you heartily disagree with them, it will do no harm to set you thinking about the importance of improving the surroundings of the little children of this country.

Here are some quotations from this report:

"In every respect the country child is more defective than the city child. This is a most surprising reversal of popular opinion. More than twice as many country children suffer from malnutrition as do city children. The former are also more anaemic, have more lung trouble and include more mental defectives than do the latter.

"The art of human care has progressed much more slowly in the country. The father in the city spends, on the average, a larger percentage of his income for the welfare of his children than does the father on the farm. The farmer, relatively, raises everything else more carefully and, as a rule, more successfully than his children.

"The rural school, from the standpoint of health and general fitness for its important use, is the worst type of building in the whole country, including not only the types of buildings used for human occupation, but also those used for livestock and all domestic animals. Rural schools are, on the average, less adequate for their use than prisons, asylums, almshouses, stables, dairy barns, pigpens, chicken houses and dog kennels are for their uses.

This is a dreadful arraignment of the rural districts, isn t it? Is it true? If so, what is being done to correct these evils?

If it isn't true, how can we explain these health statistics?

There must be found a reasonable and convincing explanation for this state of things, or else we must find a means of giving American children a better chance for health and long life.

Health is fundamental to success and happiness. It cannot be neglected. No chances can be taken about it. We must make sure that the children are so placed as to guarantee them every prospect of sound bodies and minds.

GOOD NIGHT STORIES

By Blanche Silver

DORIS MEETS A NEW KIND OF SWIMMING TEACHER.

When Doris saw the dear little animal out in the center of the mill pond, she thought it was drowning.

"Oh, dear, I wish Squeedee was here," she whispered. "I know he could help that poor animal." Just then Doris discovered the animal in the water was carrying something on it's back. "Squeedee, Squeedee," Doris called out loud, then she laughed when a tiny elfin hand caught hold of her apron and jerked it. "My, but I'm glad to see you, Squeedee. Something is wrong out there. That poor animal must be drowning. Who is it, anyway? At first I thought it was Billy Beaver, but I see it isn't. Who is it, Squeedee?"

Squeedee glanced out in the pond at the little animal then he laughed and blew on his magic whistle. The little swimmer turned around and seeing the elfin, swam over to the shore.

"Come on up on the bank, Mrs. Coypu," laughed Squeedee. "I want you to meet my little friend Doris. That's all right, just bring the babies up too. I'm sure Doris would love to see them."

The little animal scrambled upon the shore and Doris laughed when four little furry babies jumped from their mother's back to the grass.

"Well, of all things!" Doris cried, patting the little furry heads. "Do you always carry your children around on your back like that?"

"Until they learn how to swim for themselves," replied the happy little mother. "Ever seen a Coypu before?" Then she laughed when Doris shook her head. "I'm just about the same size as my cousin Billy Beaver, but there is one thing I don't do that Billy Beaver does, I never make a loud noise on the water with my tail. Yes, and you would hardly believe me when I tell you Porky Porcupine is a cousin of mine too."

"Well, I'd never have thought that," said Doris. "Porky Porcupine's body is covered with sharp prickles and you have such lovely fur. I should think your fur would be valuable too."

"So it is, just as valuable as Billy, Beaver's fur," said Squeedee. "And Mrs. Coypu can swim just as good as her cousin too."

"Come Up, Mrs. Coypu."

"I suppose you build dams and—" began Doris but Mrs. Coypu shook her head.

"There's where my cousin and I don't agree," she laughed. "I like my home in the bank of a stream. Then I can build tunnels through the bank out into the water. I think it's much safer. Billy Beaver can waste his time building dams if he wants to. I don't care to build any myself."

"You are right, Mrs. Coypu," laughed the elfin. "But I'm afraid if you stay here talking much longer, your babies will never learn how to swim. Just about time they were learning, isn't it?"

"I was going out to give them a lesson," Mrs. Coypu said, slipping back into the water and calling her babies. "It doesn't take them long to learn," and bidding Doris and Squeedee goodby, Mrs. Coypu swam across the mill pond with her babies on her back. Doris and Squeedee watched her out of sight. Then they ran on through the woods in search of new adventure.

WITH M'MILLAN IN THE ARCTIC

The Eskimo belle shown above is typical of those seen in the Arctic by Captain Donald MacMillan and his fellow explorers aboard the vessel Bowdoin. Also seen are some of the party's huskies holding a polar bear at bay until the hunters arrive and despatch the big animal. Captain MacMillan and the Bowdoin have just sailed from Sydney, N. S., on their way south after four months in the polar regions. On the Labrador coast MacMillan found prehistoric remains which, he is convinced, prove that Norse Vikings visited that land before Columbus crossed the Atlantic in 1492.

WHERE HISTORY LENDS ITS ROMANCE.

Scotland is famous for many things: there are its plaids, its kilties, its heather, its moors, its grouse, its Highlands. The man of leisure looks to Scotland to provide him with amusement during the Summer. There is no place where the grouse are so plentiful and the hunting so delightful as in the Highlands of Scotland.

The Famous Scotch Plaids.

And nowhere is there such a combination of mountain and sea and lakes and rolling country. It is the most romantic of all lands scenically. One can understand the history of the people of Scotland when one sees the stern grandeur and beauty of their land. It is well fitted to lend background to its many heroes.

Robert Burns is of course, the most popular idol of his country. It is said that there are more statues erected to this poet than to any other man in the world. Scotland is full of memories of him and his short, chaotic life.

Then there are the spots that bring back memories of Macbeth and Macduff and Macgregor. These are ineatricably iterwoven with the mystery that is Scotland's.

Mary, Queen of Scots, lends her tragic charm to make the beauty of Scotland more intriguing. The whole of her pitiful story pervades Scotland.

Memories of Robert Louis Stevenson and of Walter Scott assail even the casual visitor to Scotland. Everybody owes to Sir Walter Scott those charming memories of early school days when romance crept out of his books to carry us away to strange times. Enchantment lay beneath his words. And now that we have grown up we find that same enchantment in the scenes of which he wrote Scotland's beauty is austere but it is romantic, it is intriguing. It has a fascination that no other land can boast.

MEASURE DEPTH OF WATER WITH NEW APPARATUS

To be Placed in Service of Merchant Ships to Facilitate Service.

"ECHO SOUNDING"

Has Three Essential Features Which Measure Ocean's Depth.

A new apparatus for ascertaining the depth of water at sea has been developed by the British Admiralty Research Laboratory. According to advices received by the Bankers Trust Company of New York from its British Information Service, this apparatus, originally developed for the use of the Royal Navy, will be put at the service of merchant ships and will provide an additional safeguard to such ships, because with this method of sounding the ship usually is able to take a more or less correct record of the depth of water and to proceed along a river or approach the coast without slackening speed.

The new method of depth sounding is known as "echo sounding," and depends upon the principle that sound travels in water at a known speed and is reflected from the sea bed in the same way that a sound wave in air is reflected fom hill and cliffs. The essential features are: (1) the apparatus to produce a sound wave under water, known as the transmitter; (2) a sensitive receiver of the echo reflected from the sea bed known as the hydrophone; (3) the recording gear for measuring the interval of time between the sound impulse and the sound echo.

To take a concrete example, the average velocity over a depth of 30 fathoms of sound in sea water of 35 per cent salinity and at a temperature of 15 degrees Cent. is 4935 ft. per second. Let us suppose the angular displacement of the brushes relative to the insulating segment in the telephone circuit when an echo is heard is 18 degrees. The time taken by the segment to rotate through 18 degrees is 18-360 by 1-3 second, or 1-60th second, since the segment goes round three times per second. In this time the sound will have travelled 82 1-4 ft., and the depth of water is, therefore, a little under seven fathoms. In practice no calculation is required, this depth being read directly on a dial. While taking soundings on this principle is not absolutely new, it is claimed that the British Admiralty is the first to project a simple system suitable for use on merchant ships as well as ships of the Navy. The cost of the apparatus is about £300.

Tomorrow's HOROSCOPE

By Genevieve Kemble

SATURDAY, OCTOBER 31.

Restless and unsettled conditions are presaged for this day, judging by the strong position of Uranus, both by lunar and mutual configuration. While the trine to Mercury may make the mind keen, alert and daring, yet other testimonies point to difficulties and disruption. It may be difficult to enforce even the cleverest of convictions or inventions. Those in the employment of others are urged to be very cautious. Heart and home affairs are likewise under an uncertain rule.

Those whose birthday it is may encounter restless and unsettled conditions, although their faculties should be alert and adventurous. Those in employment are urged to protect their positions, and home and heart affiliations may require care. A child born on this day should be clever, original and inventive, but may find it difficult to succeed owing to its restless and unsettled nature. It may have a particularly trying time if in the employment of others.

McRuer, K.C., who will represent the Attorney-General of Canada at the trial of forty-two Western Canadian fruit dealing corporations and eleven individuals charged with acting in restraint of trade, which will proceed at Vancouver the first week in November. The accused will be prosecuted on only ten of the counts contained in the original indictment, six of the charges being dropped in order to avoid possible legal complications.

NATURE'S OPEN SEASON IS MYTH

Weather Man Says Storms Not More Serious During Equinox.

EXAMPLES QUOTED.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 23 (United Press).—"Equinoctial storms" are a myth and have no standing in meteorology. They are "line squalls."

"There is no maximum of storm frequency, according to statistics, either in this country or in Europe, close to the date of either equinox," according to the American Nature Association which publishes an extended statement on the point in Nature Magazine by C. F. Talman, of the United States Weather Bureau.

"Of course in the long run many storms do occur about these dates, just as they occur at all other times," the writer points out, "but there is no scientific reason for supposing their occurrence can be connected in any way with the sun's passage over what the schoolboy described as a "managerie lion running around the earth."

An "equinoctial" is looked for in the United States particularly in the autumn. The autumnal equinox occurs during the season of West Indian hurricanes, and it occasionally happens that storms of this character sweep up our eastern seaboard within a week or two of the date in question, extending their influence far inland. These events have probably helped to foster the widespread belief in autumnal equinoctial storm.

"Violent upward and downward movements of the air prevail in all squalls and thunderstorms. This fact has been known for many years, but it has only recently assumed practical importance. Formerly only the birds and occasional balloonists were whirled aloft or dashed downward by vertical gales, but to-day such gales threaten the lives of an army of aeronauts.

"Squalls, like tornadoes, are of such brief duration and generally of such limited area that they defy prediction by means of the ordinary machinery of weather forecasting.

"As to storms, the Big Wind in Ireland, January 6-7, 1839, according to contemporary newspaper accounts was one of the great weather disasters of modern times.

"The 'Great Storm' of 1703 is supposed to have the most severe tempest that ever visited the British Isles. It cost the lives of more than 8,000 seamen, including some 1,500 men of the Royal Navy.

"The Barbados Hurricane of 1780 was probably the most destructive hurricane that has occurred in the West Indies.

"Saxby's Gale swept over eastern Canada with terrific force October 4, 1869. It owes its name to the fact that it was predicted by a Lieutenant Saxby, of the British Navy.

"In the Backergunge Cycle, October, 1876, more than 100,000 people were drowned by the storm waves over the Ganges Delta.

"The Blizzard of March 11-14, 1888, also known as the Great March Blizzard, 'the New York Blizzard,' and, in New Hampshire, as the 'townmeeting Storm,' is historic.

"The Samoa hurricane of March 16, 1889, wrecked American and German warships in the harbor of Apia, with heavy loss of life.

"The St. Louis Tornado of May 27, 1896, was the most destructive of the three tornadoes that have occurred in large American cities, the others being the Louisville Tornado of 1890 and the Omaha Tornado of 1913."

An excellent programme has been prepared by the Maryland Jockey Club for the short Autumn meeting opening at Pimlico, on November 2. The customary daily steeplechase will be a popular feature. Pimlico was the first track in the country to hold a race over the jumps every day, and consequently its meetings never fail to attract nearly all the leading cross coutnry stables.

ARTICLE No. 3

A rather interesting question has been submitted to the writer. "If your partner bids no-trump and second hand bids two hearts, with what type of hand should you double?" There are two separate and distinct cases in which the partner of the no-trump bidder should double an adverse over bid on his right. For example, suppose the dealer bid one no-trump, second hand bid two hearts and you hold the following hand:

Hearts — 7, 2.
Clubs — K, J, 7, 4
Diamonds — A, J, 10, 5
Spades — K, 10, 2

Don't you think you should double two hearts? If your partner has a no-trump hand, it should be impossible for the heart bidder to make his contract. On the other hand, it would be difficult to score game at no-trump or a suit bid. On the other hand, suppose your partner bids one no-trump, second hand bids two hearts and you hold the following hand:

Hearts — J, 10, 9, 7, 5
Clubs — K, 7, 4, 2
Diamonds — K, 10, 2
Spades — 10

Don't you think you ought to double two hearts with this hand? If your partner has a sound no-trump you should defeat the two heart bidder by two or three tricks. These hands are not inconsistent. They merely specify the two types that justify a double of an adverse two bid over partner's no-trump.

The same player has suggested that with strong hands of the first type, it would be better to double with the understanding that the original no-trump bidder should bid his best suit. This type of informatory double has been tried out many times but is not considered good tactics. The whole purpose of the informatory double is to force partner who has not yet bid to show his suit. To extend this principle to one who has already bid is carrying the principle too far. By bidding no-trump, a player declares himself as having at least two quick tricks distributed in at least three suits. To ask him to give further information is unnecessary. If he has greater strength than indicated by his no-trump bid, he should be allowed to show this strength voluntarily without being forced to do so by his partner's informatory double. He has done his duty by bidding no-trump. If he is overbid, his partner should not take up the burden. If he has a good suit, he should bid it. If he has a hand that justifies a double, he should double. If he has a hand that justifies a two no-trump bid, he should bid it. If his hand does not justify any such action, he should pass. It is then up to the no-trump bidder to make another bid if his hand justifies it. Auction is a partnership game and the object of the bidding is to find the best bid of the combined hand, the best bid for twenty-six cards, not thirteen. This can be best arrived at by bidding after partner has bid rather than by use of the informatory doubles which force bids, because forced bids are always hard to read. They may have strength and they may not. Never voluntarily place yourself in a position where you must guess as to your partner's strength if there is any other way open. Guesses, no matter how brilliant, can never cope with cold, hard facts.

In this connection a restatement of the nature of a business double is pertinent. A business double is a double made for the purpose of defeating the bid doubled. Any double is a business double if made after partner has bid or doubled, or any double of an original suit bid of four or more, or a double of an original two no-trump. In this connection, please note that after partner has bid a no-trump and opponents have overbid and the partner of the no-trump bidder has doubled, such a double is a business double and made for the purpose of defeating the bid.

ANNUAL MEETING OF PROTESTANT HOME

Reports Were Read By Officials and Officers Elected.

The sixty-fourth annual meeting of the Peterboro Protestant Home was held at the Home, Anson Street, on Wednesday afternoon, with a large attendance. Mrs. R. Neill was in the chair. Mayor Turner was present, also directors and representatives from the churches of the city. Rev. A. J. Langford conducted devotional exercises.

The minutes of the last annual meeting were read and approved, followed by reports. The adoption of these was seconded by Mayor Turner, who also spoke briefly, thanking the Board of Directors for their work, which he considered of great value to the community, and speaking of the pride with which visitors were shown the Home.

Election of officers resulted as follows: 1st honorary president, Mrs. W. Roger; 2nd honorary president, Mrs. Hazlett; 1st honorary vice-president, Mrs. R. E. Birdsall; 2nd honorary vice-president, Miss Nicholls; president, Mrs. Robert Neill; 1st vice-president, Mrs. D. Walker; 2nd vice-president, Mrs. Robert Hall; treasurer, Miss Sara Robinson; secretary, Mrs. F. M. De la Fosse. Board—Mrs. C. I. Suckling, Mrs. F. L. Robinson, Mrs. Somerville, Mrs. E. Harvey, Mrs. G. R. Scott, Miss Dickson, Miss M. Archer, Messrs. H. Rush, E. F. Mason, J. A. Aylmer, and E. J. H. Vanston.

Reports Read.

Reports were given by the superintendent, Miss A. Lancaster; the caretaker, Mr. J. C. Hamilton; the secretary, Mrs. F. M. De la Fosse, and the treasurer, Miss Sara G. Robinson.

Miss Lancaster referred to the past year as one of considerable change in the institution, with death taking one woman and five men, also many removals and re-admissions. Four of the inmates are over ninety years of age.

Grateful reference was made to the thoughtfulness of citizens who provide treats at times for the aged people of the Home. "A new thing this year," said Miss Lancaster, "was the action of the Motor League, who invited those who could go, to be their guests at the Exhibition, to view the Fair,' as one old lady quaintly put it. About 20 went. And I am sure that none of those to whom attendance at the Exhibition is a regular and ordinary thing, could have enjoyed the occasion more. On different occasions, too, the various churches have invited those who could go, to the churches instead of having the service here, sending for and returning them, and this has been a pleasant change, although the services in the house are always gladly anticipated, and I think the clergymen who minister to their spiritual needs Sunday after Sunday would bear testimony to their interest and reverent attention. To all of these our deep gratitude is due.

"Very pleasant was a recent entertainment arranged by Mrs. F. A. Hodgson, who brought up a quartette, piano, guitar, mandolin and banjo, and gave the old people an evening of very delightful music, which was thoroughly enjoyed."

Miss Lancaster referred to the work carried on by some of the inmates. "O old lady mends assiduously and cheerfully another makes quite remarkable quilts another is a famous fruit picker—all of these over eighty—and another, who is seventy-five, does very neat plain sewing and hemming of towels."

The caretaker, Mr. J. C. Hamilton, reported on the Home's garden and barns. A cow, a horse, and a number of chickens comprise the live stock family of the institution. The poultry provided over 472 dozen eggs and 2 table fowls and the cow gave 5,100 quarts of milk during the year. The garden furnished pasture for the stock and vegetables for the table during the summer and sufficient to carry the Home through until the spring. Mr. Hamilton gave an itemized statement of vegetables, etc. and their value, which totalled $630.55.

Reports of the treasurer, Miss Sara G. Robinson, and the secretary, Mrs. F. M. De la Fosse, will appear in a later issue.

HON. DR. R. J. MANION, Fort William.

The woman who finds it something of a [illegible] to dress twice a day may find consolation in the statement that there is at least one woman who has been obliged to change her dress 126 times every week for several months on end. This is the record of a prominent actress appearing in a recent successful play on the New York stage. Her part required her to change her costume twelve times at each performance, which, with the change into street costume meant fourteen changes [illegible] and double that number on each of the two matinee days—a total of 126 changes in the course of the week.

PASSED A CROCK ON CHEMONG LAKE

Indian Fined $50—Companion Nearly Drowned and Mother Complained.

The place other than his dwelling as prescribed by the Ontario Temperance Act for the possession of liquor in the case of a Curve Lake Indian was on Chemong Lake, and for that offence Magistrate Langley imposed a fine of $50. The accused passed a bottle to another young man from the Curve Lake resort while they were paddling on the lake, and as a result the youth who had shared "the crock" was subsequently nearly drowned. His mother complained to Provincial Constable Maker and hence the case in the county court.

PIANO SALESMAN IS SENT TO JAIL

Wilfrid Lawson Given Three Year Sentence For Forgery.

Wilfrid Lawson, piano agent and salesman, was sentenced by Magistrate Langley this morning to three years in the penitentiary at Kingston, on each of twelve charges of forgery to which he had pleaded guilty and elected summary trial. The sentences will run concurrently.

Appearing in police court today on remand, Mr. Lawson said that he placed himself entirely in the hands of the court, with an appeal for clemency.

"I don't enjoy the best of health," he told Magistrate Langley in answer to the question as to whether he had anything to say before the decision of the court was pronounced. "I have had heart trouble for some time and have been under the care of my physician."

That was his only plea, spoken in a low voice that scarcely carried to the bench.

Crown Attorney Hatton, in asking that sentence be passed on the prisoner, said: "In the opinion of the Crown as represented by myself, this case shows no extenuating circumstances at all. Poor people were robbed of their monies, and the crimes committed were such that according to the Code, the prisoner would be liable to imprisonment for life if the penalties were applied to the limit. These things were going on for 3 years, and the amount of defalcations which the Crown has been able to trace amount to about $7,000, and we haven't disclosed all of it yet. In addition, there were legitimate commissions coming to this man, possibly another $7,000, but there is nothing whatever to indicate what has become of all this money."

Mr. Hatton remarked that it was difficult to understand where these sums had gone to in view of the reports of the financial condition of Mr. Lawson's family.

One of the Frauds.

"It is all very well to be lenient time after time," the Crown Attorney continued, "but punishment is intended to prevent a repetition of them, and if the Court is too lenient they will continue to go on. One of the charges is that the prisoner appropriated to himself the proceeds of the sale of a piano which was owned by a woman of sixty years and had lately left this city after selling her furniture. There is no trace of what became of the money. The piano was sold, and the proceeds, $500 I am told, were put away by him. At any rate, the woman never got a dollar and is not likely to. And there were other poor people who were subjected to similar treatment.

If there is any excuse, what is it? All we can get is that this man should not have been in business, that he didn't know how to look after it. That's a poor excuse. Any man in business at least should know enough to give to people the money that belongs to them. If this sort of thing were allowed to go on, legitimate business would be at an end."

'A Mask of Flint."

Magistrate Langley said he was called upon to perform a painful duty. "But in these cases, as Mr. Justice Grant properly said the other day, magistrates must present a mask of flint. Your case is particularly sad in some respects, but apparently you have gone along the line of systematic fraud in this community. You have not even told us what has become of the money. The inference is that you lost it in business, but it may be covered up some way.

Mr. Lawson interrupted with the statement: "No, your worship, that is not so."

"Well, I accept your word," replied Mr. Langley. But it was so systematic that it must be looked at in that light."

The Magistrate pointed out the threefold purpose of punishment of prisoners: First as a penalty for the offence that has been committed; second, as an example to the community, and to deter others; and, third, as a means of reforming criminals. After taking into consideration all the circumstances, Mr. Langley said he had decided to inflict the punishment of three years in the penitentiary.

"You will have time to reflect on your conduct, and I think the ends of law will be met," said His Worship. "I hope this will be an example to any one who may set out on a career of that kind."

Coughs and Colds

Are dreaded by Mothers who do not know of Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine.

What a weight of responsibility rests on the mother of the family during the cold weather season. In every cough and cold she seems to hear the warning of serious developments. She dreads croup, bronchitis, pneumonia and consumption and realizes that these are the natural result of neglected colds.

But Dr. Chase has provided a prompt relief for coughs and colds and a preventive of more serious ailments of throat and lungs, in his Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine.

This medicine is so well-known that only a reminder is necessary to most people to recall its effectiveness in relieving croup, bronchitis, asthma and all forms of throat and bronchial troubles.

KIWANIANS HEAR OF MINE DEVELOPMENT

Mr. Ackerman Tells of the Rouyn District— Compared With Ketchecum.

The development of mining from its earliest stages to the position it occupies in Canada was the subject on which Lt. Col. Ackerman addressed the Kiwanis club at their weekly luncheon today. In the course of his subject Col Ackerman spoke of the new claim in Rouyn, the Waite property in which he is vitally interested, and which is situated just north of the famous Noranda mines. The speaker said that the district of Rouyn was very similar in appearance to Ketchecum, north of Peterboro and was of the opinion that some day there would be mining developments carried on there. Wilfred Huycke acted as booster, and the prize winners were Walter Oke, William Detlore and Joe Wearing.

NEW YORK TEAM COMPOSED OF CANADIAN STARS

Fixtures Have Been Arranged For This Season's Hockey League Competition.

21 GAMES AT HOME.

Professionals and Amateurs Will Play in Madison Square Rink Garden.

NEW YORK, Oct. 30.—(Canadian Press).— Forty-two hockey games bringing into action intercollegiate professionals and amateur teams will be played in the new Madison Square Garden rink between December 15 and March 15.

BIG FOUR GIANTS GETTING READY FOR SATURDAY

Ice Upset Nicholson's Plan For Early Morning Workout.

DRILL AT EVENING.

Argonauts Will Field Their Strongest Side in Effort to Win.

MONTREAL, Que., Oct. 30.—(Canadian Press).—Montreal's preparations for the important Big Four rugby tilt with the Toronto Argonauts here Saturday afternoon were given a severe setback by the weather man yesterday. Coach Nicholson had his squad in the field house over night so as to give them a morning workout, but when he arose early and saw the ice-covered gridiron he returned to slumber and shut off the alarm that had been set to awaken the footballers.

The result was the players had to postpone their drill until this evening and even then the gridiron was in none too good condition for a real scrimmage and the artificial light also tended to limit the work that Nick could give his candidates.

A light drill tomorrow will complete the Winged Wheelers' preparations for the meeting with the Argos squad. Argos play much the same style of pounding game that was shown by Ottawa against Montreal last week end and Nicholson has a better idea of what to expect than he had prior to the contest with the Senators.

Argos will arrive early to-night from Toronto and after changing at the hotel into their uniforms will hold a signal drill in secret at the McGill Stadium as a means of shaking the train stiffness from their bodies.

Against Montreal Coach Rodden will send the strongest squad that he can muster for the double blue.

Coach Nicholson has not definitely announced his team for Saturday, but it is expected that the players will start in the following order:

Flying wing, McCaig; halves, Russel, Booth and Paterson; quarter, Sheppard; snap, Hamilton; insides, Starke and Carruthers; middles, Ryan and Foran; outsides, Robinson and Consiglio.

Injuries have depleted the Montreal squad and Coach Nicholson will have few experienced substitutes on whom to count. For the backfield he will have Earl Whittall only, although he will be a bit better fortified on the line, with Work, Lane, Lewis and Parkes available for duty, and at the outside berths, Dune Anderson, Pete Mill, Macdonald and Colon will be ready to go in on a second's notice.

TEX RICKARD CHOOSES YOUTHFUL CANADIAN WHO USED TO CARRY HIS SKATES TO BED

Billy Burch Becomes Captain of the New York Hockey Team — A Player Who Determined to Make Himself Level-Headed—And Did It.

Tex Rickard, as keen a gentleman as ever made sport a business instead of a pastime, has committed himself to the spending of large sums of money to popularize the Canadian game of hockey in the large metropolis of New York.

Mr. Rickard is rarely casual in the matter of spending large lumps of money. When he sends it out, he usually expects it to return again with plenty of interest.

It seems safe to assert, therefore, that Mr. Rickard expects hockey games to be highly popular and quite important affairs.

With this theory in mind, it is interesting to note that this same Mr. Rickard, his agents, legal representatives, servants or scouts have picked a young Canadian, of short professional experience and only 25 years old, to captain the ice heroes who are to dazzle the sophisticates of Gotham and bring them to their feet in cheering multitudes at stated dates this coming winter.

Billy Burch, last year playing with the Hamilton, Ontario, pro. team, is the young gentleman under discussion.

Naturally, he is a good hockey player. He commenced at the mature age of four and has continued, weather permitting, ever since. Had there been any eagle-eyed gentleman, interested in the game on hand, when Mr. Burch commenced his preliminary cantering about slippery surfaces 21 years ago, they might possibly have foreseen what has now taken place—to some extent at least.

For young Mr. Burch—or Billy as he was then called and still is for that matter—was not satisfied with the training hours allotted to him on the backyard rink by his mother. He skated vigorously from the back steps to the back fence and back again and performed various juvenile antics in between but was not content to leave it at that.

When the time came to go into the house and go to bed, he obeyed without discussion. He only made one qualification. He took the skates with him. He did this so often that taking skates to bed became a sort of tradition. Confronted with this evidence, one would not have needed the abilities of a Lou Marsh to state confidently two decades ago that the boy would probably grow up and be an excellent hockey player.

The more or less technical aspects of the case can be dismissed by simply stating that he had played hockey in Toronto on a host of teams, has been a professional player for two years and last year, as star centre of the league-leading Hamilton club, was awarded, by a jury of ten, the Hart Trophy as the league's most valuable performer.

He Criticised Himself.

Contrasted with this is the fact that shortly before his entrance into the ranks of the pros. Billy Burch was a hot-headed young player and generally rated as such. His impetuosity led him into numerous mix-ups, many of which resulted in penalties. On many occasions he took short vacations at the urgent request of the officials and sat at the side of the ice for a few minutes.

Then he seems to have realized exactly what he had been doing. Without reading such inspirational volumes as "The Power of Will" or submitting himself to the nearest professor for psycho-analysis he proceeded to take himself in hand. He criticized his own actions as severely as any dramatic critic with indigestion ever panned a poor production.

He got results, one of them being the Hart Trophy and another the reputation he now has as perhaps the cleanest player in Canadian pro. hockey. Last year, Fred Hooey of Boston who is considered the pace of United States experts in hockey matters picked the young Canadian as centre for the all-star team which he trotted out on paper at the conclusion of the season.

The little affair of checking his own hot-headedness labels Billy Burch as a person of considerable intelligence and common-sense and must have been one of the deciding factors in Tex Rickard's choice. For if there is one thing above all others necessary for the captain of a hockey team which is to play on the edge of the bright lights of Broadway, it is a head that is level without being solid.

Billy Burch's standing as one of the cleanest, most conscientious and hard-working of hockeyists throws an interesting and highly favorable sidelight on the whole question of hockey as a business.

When he finally attained it there was a noticeable change in his opponents' attitude towards him on the ice. Were conditions in professional sport what the wise croackers claim, it would be reasonable to suppose that members of other teams, knowing his decision for coolness and straight tactics, might have attempted to take advantage of it on the assumption that they might be able to put over a fair amount of questionable stuff without a come-back.

The opposite happened. Players opposite almost invariably turned in a clean game. All of which is, as the old lady said when she saw a baby gazelle for the first time, quite interesting and rather nice.

To be picked as a Rickard lieutenant was a distinct tribute to the young Canadian. Rickard is an astute selector, taking a great many other things then mere playing prowess into consideration. There are a goodly number of highly-touted players already in the States, either importations or home-brew products and compared to some of them Billy Burch lacks length of service and experience. There is Mr. Drury, the ex-pride of Port Colborne and quondam wizard of America's Olympic entry. There are the speedy gentlemen of the Pittsburg Yellow Jackets and a quantity of others, not to mention those mile-a-minute towsled Scandinavian miracle-men who used to come out of the lumber camps and play breathless hero roles in the odd hockey stories that appeared from time to time in United States periodicals. Surely there must still be one or two of those wonder-workers hidden among the sticks.

But the 25-yearold player who used to take his skates to bed with him got the call.

FROZEN GROUND HINDERS DRILL

TOOK NO RISKS.

MONTREAL, Que., Oct. 30.—(Canadian Press).— McGill were cheated out of heavy scrimmaging they had planned to put in this afternoon as a final spurt prior to meeting Ottawa in an exhibition game at the Capital Saturday. The frozen ground was a bit too dangerous for Shaughnessy to take any chance on injury to players.

However, the first string squad were taken behind the goal posts where the turf was soft and the red and white put in a useful drill of an hour practising a defensive line system designed to halt the smashing game played by the Senators.

Shaughnessy did not announce the squad he would start against the Big Four leaders, but from the positions he played and the signal drill it appears that he is set on starting the majority of his seniors and not a lot of substitutes. Grassick, a speedy half-back who has shown great promise for the past two years at McGill, but who was ineligible for senior football, was worked as the secondary defense half. Otherwise the squad was practically the same as that which played against Queen's last week. Blair, Gordon and Hammie Boucher were badly battered in the Queen's game. Boucher will probably give way to Dick Woodruff at right inside, but Blair and Gordon will likely be used.

PRESENTATION AS RESIDENTS DEPART

Friends of Mr. and Mrs. William Herlihey Extend Good Wishes.

KING'S WHARF, Oct. 30.—A very pleasant time was spent Tuesday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Herlihey, Sr., when all their friends and neighbors gathered at their home to say good-bye to them and wish them success in their new home. The house was crowded and it was a very enjoyable occasion. Mr. and Mrs. Herlihey, Sr., were presented with a purse of gold and Mr. D. M. O'Leary read an address in which he expressed his regret at losing Mr. and Mrs. Herlihey from the parish as well as from the community in which they lived. Mr. and Mrs. Herlihey have been life long residents of this community and will be greatly missed as they are moving to Lindsay to take up residence together with their children, Miss Lillian, Della and Fred.

During the evening another presentation also took place when the members of St. Luke's choir, Downeyville, presented Mrs. W. Herlihey (nee Carmelita Morrissey) with two leather chairs as a token of esteem in which she was held. She having been organist of the chuurch for the past four years. Mr. Clare Harrington read the following address:

Dear Mrs. Herlihey,—

We the members of the choir have gathered this evening to offer our congratulations and good wishes to you. During your years as choir leader, Mrs. Herlihey, you always have been ready to do your utmost for church and social functions. We are quite sure your efforts in this regard have been appreciated. We are glad that you are remaining in Downeyville and will continue to help us in the future as you have done before. As a token of appreciation we ask you to accept these chairs and pedestal with our heartiest good wishes for a long and happy life.

Signed on behalf of the choir.

Mrs. Herlihey though taken by suprise thanked the members and hoped to see them often in her new home. Dainty refreshments were then served and the remainder of the evening spent in dancing, card playing and social intercourse.

ORLAND NEWS

ORLAND, Oct. 30.—The Orland cider mill is kept busy these days as it seems to be the only way farmers can dispose of the surplus of apples.

Mr. Frank Phillips team ran away today and would have done much damage had it not been for the presence of mind of Paul Reece who when he saw them following him, backed his team and wagon across the road blocking their further progress.

W. J. Latimer is canvassing the farmers for the purchase of several cars of sweed turnips for export.

Walter Reycraft has sold 1200 bushels of turnips which are of excellent quality, and will load them at Brighton the first of the coming week.

Rev. Mr. Woodland is still continuing revival meetings here and is assisted by Rev. Mr. Moffat who is considered an exceptionally good singer and exhorter.

Sam Hazlewood who has been confined to his bed for some days is reported not quite so well.

W J. Wright who went west to Dutton to pick apples for Mr. B. Clapp has returned home. He reports that the kind of work did not agree with him. He says he left all the rest of the Orland contingent well and hard at work in and around Dutton, Ont.

The prospects for an early winter are many and many sportsmen cast their longing glances over the large flocks of wild geese that are frequently passing over on their way to a warmer clime.

Edward Pool has erected a beautiful monument in his family plot in the R.C. Cemetery this last week.

Very little fall ploughing has been done as yet in this vicinity.

Australian Rain Forces All Chicago Grain Down Grade

CHICAGO, October 30. Canadian Press. — With general rains in Australia reported and with Liverpool quotations lower the wheat market here headed down grade this morning. Rains were regarded as likely to repair much of the injury which the drought conditions of late had done to the Australian crop. The aparent slowing down of wheat demand from flour mills in the United States was also a bearish factor, it being stated that liberal offers of wheat from here last night to mills in all directions had failed to bring about the purchase of even one carload. The opening 3-8 to 1¼c lower, new style, Dec. 146 7-8 to 147 1-8 and May 143¾ to 143 3-4, was followed by something of a rally and then by a fresh downturn.

Scantiness of corn offerings gave a relative firmness both to corn and oats as compared with wheat. After opening at 1-8c lower to 3-8c higher, Dec. 74 7-8 to 75, the corn market scored slight general gains. Oats started unchanged to 1-8c off Dec. 39 and later held near to the initial figure. In line with hog values, the provision market was firmer.

TORONTO, Oct. 30.—(Canadian Press). — Re-action set in on the Standard Mining Exchange this morning under heavy sales. The transactions totalled 346,695 shares. Mining Corporation declined nine points to 309, and McIntyre sold 70 points lower at 21.05. Dome Mines was 15 points down at 16.10 and Vipond six points at 122. Tough Oakes dropped two points.

Smelters Active Leader On Quiet Stock Exchange

TORONTO, Oct. 30.—(Canadian Press).—Trading remained quiet on the Toronto Stock Exchange this morning, with Smelters the active leader. British Empire Steel Preferred issues were also prominent, First Preferred closing unchanged at 13¾ and the second easing slightly at 35¼. Smelters closed the morning a point higher at 167. An outstanding feature of the session was the point and a quarter advance of Steel of Canada at 90 5-8. Twin City gained a half and C.P.R. a quarter. McIntyre Mines sold down seventy cents to 21.20.

Jazz Bands In Diplomacy Refused Entry To England

LONDON, Oct. 30.—(United Press).—American jazz bands have suddenly risen to the dignity of an international diplomatic exchange.

After granting permission for the bands of Vincent Lopez, Ted Lewis, Brooke Johns and Isham Jones to enter England, the Government denied entrance to other bands. Consequently the disappointed jazzers appealed to their Government, and the result is understood to have been the opening of diplomatic correspondence between the two Governments as to the status of American jazz artists applying for entry into England.

SENT TO SUDBURY

COBOURG, Oct. 30.—Bert McDonald and George Oliver, the two men who were arrested after the serious motor accident on the Provincial Highway east on Tuesday of last week, charged wtih the theft of a car at Sudbury, were taken back there yesterday for trial. The men received medical treatment in the jail here, one having a bad wound in one leg that was presumably received before the motor accident, in which both sustained minor injuries. Physically the men were not in very good shape. They were on their way to Ottawa, it is stated, in a car that was stolen on Oct. 15 from the Union Taxi Service, Sudbury. Mr. B. Steinberg Toronto, who suffered from concussion after the accident and had car wrecked, has recovered sufficiently to return home.

CONVENTION HELD IN BETHANY CHURCH

Inspirational Addresses Given—Officers Elected for Coming Year.

NORHAM, October 30. — The Brighton Township Sunday school workers held their annual convention in Bethany United church on Tuesday afternoon and evening. The sessions were well attended and a number of inspirational addresses and papers were given by local talent as well as an address by Rev. C. F. McIntosh, formerly of the Campbellford Presbyterian church, but who is now residing in Toronto and engaged in Young People's work for the United Church of Canada.

The opening exercises were taken by Rev. J. F. Everson, pastor of the church, after which the secretary, Miss Edith L. C. Valentine, gave a report of the finances which were found in a safe standing. Miss Valentine also gave a report of the different nine schools in the township and these were found to be well manned and doing splendid work.

During the session, Mrs. Rev. Herbert Mutton of Smithfield, gave a paper on "The Need of a Home Dept.," and Mrs. S. J. Sweetnam of Smithfield, gave a paper on "The Problem of the Young People."

Between the numbers Mrs. Clarence Cole sang a solo.

The evening session was opened by Mr. W. G. Orvis conducting a song service, after which Rev. Mr. Mutton took charge of the devotional exercises. Miss Aileen Sweetnam of Smithfield gave a paper on "The Teen Age Girls," and Rev. W. H. Clarke of Hilton, an address on "Opportunity." The master address on "The Task of the Teacher" was given by Mr. McIntosh in which the speaker stated that Jesus was able to teach with authority because he acquired a knowledge of the Scriptures in his youth. He urged teachers to spend much time in the study of the word of God, and then carefully impress it upon their scholars illustrating spiritual truths by reference to practical things ,and in this they would be following the example of Jesus. Teachers like Jesus must study human nature and become acquainted with the common actions of men. The succesful teacher must pay the price of efficiency. He must have an experience. He must know the way himself by walking in it.

Bethany choir furnished music for the evening session. The delegates were entertained in the church by the ladies of the congregations for tea.

The following officers were chosen for the ensuing year:

President, Mr. Robt. Ryckman, Orland.

Vice-President: Mr. Lloyd Herrington, Hilton.

Secretary-treasurer: Miss Edith L. C. Valentine, Hilton.

Adult Division: Mrs. William Wilson, Codrington.

Young People's Department: Mrs. Rose Maitland, Brighton.

'Teen Age Boys: Mr. Clarke Lawson, Smithfield.

'Teen Age Girls: Miss Edith Van-Blaricom, Codrington.

Home Department: Mrs. S. J. Sweetnam, Smithfield.

Teacher Training: Miss Madeline Bellamy, Brighton.

Missionary Superintendent: Miss Lizzie Way ,Carmen.

Temperance Supt.: Rev. J. W. Edwards, Brighton.

NINE MINISTERS INCLUDING KING

"I do not care to make a statement until the results are complete," stated Right Hon. Arthur Meighen, Leader of the Conservative party, at midnight.

Mr. Meighen, when questioned as to what would be his attitude toward the Province of Quebec if he became Prime Minister, in view of the heavy adverse vote in the French-speaking constituencies, replied: "I should certainly seek French Canadian Cabinet representation. That is the right of Quebec."

Interesting high lights on the election results was the election of Right Hon. Arthur Meighen in his old riding of Portage la Prairie over Harry Leader, Progressive, who defeated him last election.

Patenaude Goes Down.

Henri Bourassa, Independent was elected in Labelle, and Armand Lavergne defeated in Montmagny, and Hon. E. L. Patenaude, Quebec Conservative leader, whose election was widely heralded in the campaign, was defeated in Jacques-Cartier.

The extent of the Conservative sweep is indicated in Ontario, where the Conservatives were returned in 68 or 69 ridings, whereas in the last House, they had 35 seats and the Liberals 24. Yesterday the Liberals emerged with apparently 10 or 11 seats. Hon. James Murdock's defeat in the Conservative stronghold of High Park was overwhelming, the majority against him being about 10,000. Hon. Vincent Massey made a closer fight in Durham, but he was about 1,000 votes behind his Conservative opponent.

Undertaking is hardly a business one would expect women to adopt, yet there are more than 150 women undertakers in England, eight of them in the city of London.

"ADVENTURE" JACK LONDON'S SUCCESS.

If "Adventure," the latest Paramount cinematic thriller, which had its initial showing last night at the Royal Theatre, has a thousand points of interest, it is because Victor Fleming, the producer, has put into this picture all those basic movie elements so dear to the heart of the average film fan.

To begin with, there is a cracker-jack story with a South Sea locale written by the late Jack London, whose fertile brain has hatched out many a stirring action plot, of which "Adventure" is a typical example. Imagine a lone white man on one of the cannibal Soloman Islands waging a desperate single-handed battle against the rebellious native blacks, while his body is racked with black water fever. Imagine him collapsing and being saved from a fate worse than death by the timely arrival of a brave, courageous girl — this opens the way for adventure, doesn't it?

And the dramatic developments that follow, the dangers they face, and the risks they run furnish the nth degree of excitement and thrills. There is swift, unlimited action, much color and picturesque atmosphere, some hearty laughs and plenty of love and romance.

From the standpoint of acting, the picture may well be set up as a model. Tom Moore has the strong role of the young plantation owner, whom Fate overwhelms with a multitude of troubles; Pauline Starke gives a memorable performance as the woman soldier of fortune; Wallace Beery, as usual, is a very effective villain; and Raymond Hatton proves once again that he is one of the best character actors in filmdom. The supporting players including Walter McGrail, Duke Kahanamoku, James Spencer and Noble Johnson give an excellent account of themselves in the minor parts.

"Adventure" is a photoplay you are sure to enjoy because it is a picture that lives up to its promising title!

AT THE REGENT

"THE SEA HAWK" RICH IN DRAMA

Sabatini's Novel Made Into Outstand Picture of Year by Frank Lloyd.

Regarded, by virtue of its originality and magnitude, as even a better entertainment than the author's well remembered "Scaramouche," Rafael Sabatini's "The Sea Hawk" as picturized by Frank Lloyd and released as a First National picture, comes to local playgoers next Monday on the screen of the Regent Theatre.

Resplendent in rich dramatic value and requiring many and massive backgrounds for its many big sequences 'The Sea Hawk," as transferred to the screen by Mr. Lloyd, is not only one of the outstanding cinema achievements of the past year, but one of the singular triumphs of screen history.

Whereas the average superproduction has had its locale on the land, a majority of the big scenes of "The Sea Hawk" have been taken at sea, on four gigantic ships of the Sixteenth Century period, two of them rowed by galley slaves.

The story begins in England, where Master Peter Godolphin is murdered shortly after his sister Rosamund and Sir Oliver Tressilian announce their coming marriage. Oliver is accused of the murder because a trail of blood leads from the dead man's body to the door-step of Penarrow Hall, Oliver's home. When Oliver submits to an examination and proves his innocence to the justice, Lionel, his brother, fearing that he might be accused of the murder, has Oliver kidnapped and taken aboard a ship about to sail for Algiers, thus making it seem positive that Oliver had fled from punishment for his guilt.

At sea the pirate ship on which Oliver is held prisoner is attacked by a Spanish marauder and Oliver becomes a galley slave for several years. When a Moorish gallease attacks the Spaniard, Oliver frees himself from his chains, helps the Moors to conquer the ship and is made a commander by the basha. Later, hearing that Rosamund is about to marry Lionel, Oliver goes to England and, aided by his corsairs, takes Lionel and Rosamund from the altar and returns to Algiers with them, bent on making Lionel suffer for his intrigue and convincing Rosamund of his own innocence. In Algiers, however, the fair haired Rosamund attracts the attention of the basha and some highly interesting encounters between the forces of Oliver and the basha are said to develop.

Foreman's Tongue Slips; Convicted Negro Freed

WASHINGTON, Oct 31.—(Special by United Press).—The slip of a jury foreman's tongue gave Timothy Williams, a negro charged with assault with a deadly weapon, his freedom in Criminal Court yesterday. When the verdict was brought in it was announced as "not guilty," although the jury intended it to be "guilty." The mistake of the foreman was made known to the court and the jury was polled, returning a verdict of "guilty." Justice Stafford decided that the first verdict must stand and ordered the defendant released.

OBITUARY.

MARTHA PRISCILLA PICKLE

NORHAM, October 30. — The last sad rites for the late Martha Priscilla Pickle, widow of the late David Nelson King, and daughter of the Frederick Pickle, who passed away at her home in Brighton township, a mile west of Codrington, on Sunday afternoon were conducted by her pastor, Rev. J. F. Everson, in Mount Olivet United Church, on Wednesday afternoon.

A long string of automobiles followed the cortege from the house to the church, showing the high esteem in which the deceased was held. Special music was furnished by the local church choir. After the service the remains were interred in the Mount Olivet cemetery beside those of her husband who predeceased her 13 years ago.

Mrs. King was born in Brighton township on August 15, 1844, and although in her 82nd year was able to go about until a few weeks ago. She leaves to mourn her loss one daughter, Mrs. Walter Ames Codrington, and one son, Ira on the homestead. Mrs. Morley Alyea, Trenton, and Mrs Augustus Maybee, Stockdale, are sisters.

The pall-bearers were Walter Rowcraft, Willot Simpson, George McAllister, Robert Carr, David Goodfellow and Grant Goodfellow.

Before Election —And After

(By Jeannette.)

It was the day before election..... John Doe walked down the street with a buoyant step. There was a jaunty swing to his walk. John was an important man to-day. He had a certain amount of standing in his neighborhood and his "vote and influence" had been solicited repeatedly by prominent members of both parties. He had been visited by members of both political groups, and had kept a wise tongue, refraining from making any rash promises. He had gone to every political meeting for the past five weeks and had occupied a front seat, so that the tall bent of the appeals to the intelligent elector should not be lost on himself or his wife. He had been bombarded with facts and figures until his head swam and he had been obliged to tell Mrs. Doe very plainly on more than one occasion that he couldn't be bothered explaining politisc to her. Let him read his paper in peace. Women had no business messing in politics, anyway.

On one occasion, too, he had been publicly singled out as an example of what could be done in the way of making a good honest living by the deserving immigrant because John was one of a number who had come over from England some years back to settle in a new country. He really hadn't much idea of the meaning of a lot of things talked about, such as Senate reform, and fiscal programmes and the exodus to the United States, but he knew it was a nice thing when the boss of the gang, who had decided views with regard to a certain political party, addressed him as "Mr. Doe," and when the rival candidates insisted on stopping him on the street to shake hands warmly and enquire after Mrs. Doe and the little Does. He felt that he had something to do with the making of this great country after all.

It was election day.....John Doe hustled home. A nice man with a big car had promised to call for him at the noon hour, and take him over to the polling booth where you marked a cross for the man you wanted to elect. John had the idea that a cross registered against the man you didn't want would be more in order, but it appeared that wasn't the proper method. After gulping a hasty meal, he went off, sitting proudly in the front seat of the big limousine. He was so excited that he forgot to make up his mind who to vote for until he was safely inside the curtained enclosure. Then he decided to vote for the man whose first name was the same as his own. John was a good name.

It was the day after election..... John went down the street to his work. The men around the office of the defeated candidate scowled at him. John had a little drink the night before and had let slip the fact that he had voted for the rival man. But that gentleman was too busy too see John when he stepped in to congratulate him on his success, and Mr. Doe passed on to his work with a slow step. The foreman, whose favorite party had been defeated greeted him with a snarl and told him to get busy or he would lose his job. As John bent over his shovel, he sighed .....It was the day after election.

LEAGUE'S TRIUMPH IN SOLVING TROUBLE IN BALKANS REVIVES UNITED STATES OF EUROPE IDEA

Example Set By Greece and Bulgaria Must Be Followed By All.

HORIZON WIDENS.

Japanese Delegate Suggests Adoption of Security Pacts In Other Parts of World.

PARIS, Oct. 31. — (Canadian Press).—Internationalism as opposed to extreme nationalism — an internationalism which will be based in moments of war peril on some surrender of state sovereignty—was given new strength yesterday by the League of Nations. Completing the work of its special session by quickly adjusting the crisis between Greece and Bulgaria, the task for which it was convoked, the Council of the League, passing on to greater issues, practically wrote the second chapter of a modern history of which the Locarno security treaties with Germany constituted the first chapter.

This second chapter is that henceforth the League of Nations becomes the machinery for the settlement of all disputes and that war must cease, because, as Austen Chamberlain, the British Foreign Secretary, said, if it does not all nations will perish from the earth.

Obeying the covenant of the League, Greece and Bulgaria, by agreeing to submit their quarrel to the mediation of the Council, set a precedent which, Mr. Chamberlain warned, must be followed by all. Britain's Foreign Secretary even went so far as to add that any menace of war anywhere concerns all the members of the League.

The international backing given the League, with two great powers, France and Great Britain taking the leadership, has created a profound impression in Paris, and started anew last night talk of the formation of a United States of Europe, the idea which Mr. Lloyd George vainly tried to launch at the Genoa conference.

It also has convinced statesmen that Europe's power, economtcally, financially and politically working through the League, will become greater because it will be concerted instead of divided by jealousies and rivalry. Another feature of yesterday's Council meeting which is causing tremendous interest, was the intervention of Viscount Ishii of Japan, who expressed the hope that security pacts like those of Locarno will multiply in other parts of the world. There is considerable speculation as to whether Japan would like to see elaborated a pacific security pact which would include the United States and would be broader in scope than the Washington four-power agreement which replaced the Anglo-Japanese alliance.

Replying to the Japanese statesman yesterday afternoon, M. Briand emphasized that, if the delicate Locarno negotiations had succeeded, it was because all the participants in the conference took care to link them with the spirit of the League covenant.

"When I met Chancellor Luther (of Germany) in our first private interview," said M. Briand, "I told him we would succeed or fail accordingly as we perceived the magnitude of our task, and that if he talked as a German and I as a Frenchman we perhaps would not succeed at all.

"We achieved not only security between us but also planted the germ of world peace, because dropping our nationalities we talked as Europeans."

To Keep Order To-night 'Mid Goblin Revellers

Chief Newhall told The Examiner this morning that he had a special force of assistants engaged to keep order throughout the city this evening.

Celebrants of Hallowe'en who take advantage of the occasion to destroy property will be arrested and brought to the police station. The ordinary amusements will not be interefered with, but those who break the law are warned that a summons to appear in court awaits them if they are caught.

SEASONAL AIR MARKED CITY MARKET TO-DAY

Thanks giving Spirit Seen Despite Political Discussions at Every Corner.

EGGS 50 AND 55c.

Potatoes Reach $2.25 and $2.40 a Bag in Upward Climb.

The farmers' market had an atmosphere of Thanksgiving bargaining about it this morning. The tang of frost in the air and the plentitude of fowl in the basket section reminded the buyers of the forthcoming holiday. In the open section, the political situation and the rot that is blighting the potato supply were the chief topics of conversation. Potatoes, selling at $1.50 a bag a fortnight ago, were $2.25 and $2.40 this morning, with prospects of still further increases.

Eggs were 50 and 55 cents a doben this morning, butter 45 and 46 cents a pound. Downstairs, eggs were selling at 48 cents a dozen. Poultry was exceptionally plentiful. Geese that ran to helfty specimens of ten and twelve pounds were priced at 23 and 25 cents a pound, and ducks at 25 cents. Rich, yellow hens were 20 cents a pound, and chickens were 22 and 25 cents.

One vendor had Brussels sprouts at 25 cents a quart.

A little boy who had watched his father buying a fowl for to-morrow's dinner proudly shouldered the leggy bird and marched off with it. In the entry downstairs, a small light-brown fox terrier pup slept soundly undisturbed by sundry pattings. He was waiting for a buyer, with a price of $3 on his head. Just inside the door, two talkative white Pekin ducks were on view, at $3 for the pair.

Several loads of hay were drawn up directly behind the vendors' carts this morning, and were priced at $12 a load.

Pork was 20 and 22 cents a pound.

Apples were at prevailing prices. Snows and Tolman Sweets and Greenings were 20 cents a peck and Wolf Rivers 25 cents. A fine eating apple called the Crimson Pippin was 35 cents a peck, and St. Lawrences 40 cents. Pears were 65c cents a peck, and citrons a nickel apiece.

MARRIED BY PROXY.

Man in Chile, Girl in U. S. Two Licenses Were Employed.

HARRISBURG, U. S., Oct. 31. — Although separated by 6,000 miles of land and sea and kept apart by professional demands and emigration laws, Edwards Stewart Winfield, West Point graduate and construction engineer, in Chile, and Miss Mildred Roslyn Fineberg, of Trenton, were married by proxy through a ceremony held in Harrisburg. Of the contracting pair only the bride was present.

The strange wedding took place at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Mark E. Winfield, parents of the absent bridegroom. Rabbi B. Notelwitz, of the Kesher Israel Congregation, performed the ceremony and placed the ring on the finger of the bride.

Two marriage licenses were employed in the wedding. One was sent by the bridegroom from Chuquicamata, Chile, where he is employed, and the second was obtained at the Dauphin County Courthouse. Mr. and Mrs. Winfield will go through a second ceremony when they meet in Panama three weeks

Foreman's Tongue Slips; Convicted Negro Freed

WASHINGTON, Oct 31.—(Special by United Press).—The slip of a jury foreman's tongue gave Timothy Williams, a negro charged with assault with a deadly weapon, his freedom in Criminal Court yesterday. When the verdict was brought in it was announced as "not guilty," although the jury intended it to be "guilty." The mistake of the foreman was made known to the court and the jury was polled, returning a verdict of "guilty." Justice Stafford decided that the first verdict must stand and ordered the defendant released.

Y.W.C.A. PARTY HAD BIG CROWD

Prize Winners Were Misses Bossence, Sedgewick, Kay and Crawford.

GHOSTLY WELCOME.

One of the most successful of the many successful parties held at the Young Women's Christian Association building was staged last evening, when the annual Senior Hallowe'en party took place in the gymnasium. Of the two hundred and fifty people who attended the party, the majority were in costume and the big gymnasium echoed with the merriment and fun of a very jolly evening. Excellent music was provided by a three-piece orchestra composed of Leslie Abraham, Bruce Whaley and Jerry Collins.

The entire building was decorated with the yellow and black of Hallowe'en. The gymnasium was hung with gay streamers and in the entrance hall, weird black witches with brooms greeted the visitors, who were convoyed down throug subterranean passages where they were intercepted by spooks with clammy fingers. In the gymnasium, the Grand March was the opening, followed by games and contests. Miss Ina Terrace won a very funny glass egg and spoon race. The first prize for costumes went to Miss Lizzie Brennan, as Hallowe'en. The most original costume was that of Miss Ethel Bossence, as a South Sea Islander, and the prettiest were worn by a Colonial Couple, the Misses Mary Sedgewick and Lily Kay, and Miss Hazel Crawford, as Butterfly. Honorable mention was made of the Misses Midge Lawrence and Ted Cheverill as Squibbs.

Judges were Mrs. E. E. Harvey, Mrs. B. Harkness, Mrs. H. Beal, Miss Margaret Hamilton and Miss M. Jory.

POLICE RECOVER STOLEN SILKS

Travellers Samples Were Pilfered From Room in Listowel.

SOLD AT LOW PRICE.

INGERSOLL, Ont., Oct. 31 (Canadian Press).—Another theft case of outstanding proportion appeared to be in the process of a clean-up yesterday, when the police secured great numbers of silk scarves silk ties, and like goods which were alleged to have been travellers' samples and stolen from a sample room in Listowel. An Ingersoll young man and woman are said to be connected with this, as well as a Woodstock young woman. Yesterday afternoon the police were looking for a stranger said to be the prime mover in the case. The goods were being sold at ridiculously low prices here for the last day or so. The police last night stated that they had some of the goods confiscated before they knew for sure that they had been stolen. They still have many silk scarves to account for.

CONSCRIPTION CRY.

Believes Many Who Voted Against Him Will Follow Him Later.

MONTREAL, Que., Oct. 31. — (Canadian Press).—Hon. E. L. Patenaude yesterday issued the following statement to the press:

"The election fight has just been completed.

"We placed before the people a programme of political action stamped throughout with sincerity and patriotism, our declarations and our acts bear full testimony to this fact.

"The leaders of the Liberal Party of our province, instead of discussing the questions submitted to the electorate by the Prime Minister — Senate reform, emigration, the railways, the tariff—preferred to rouse political passions and called on our compatriots to vote against conscription. Let them now bear the responsibility.

"The appeal to prejudice won over doctrines. Our province ceded to this appeal, whereas the rest of the country judged the questions of the hour on their merits and chose new administrators.

"We are proud of the doctrine that we preached, and if we had to commence again, we would conduct the same campaign, using the same vigor and no less dignity. This doctrine will bear its fruits, and we even know that a great number of those who could not vote with us, because of prejudices which had been strewn along their path, do not the less accept our policy in its entirety and that they will end by giving it their support."

FRANCE TO MAKE ALTERATION IN EMBASSY TO U.S.

Well Known Financial Authority Will Displace Emile Daeschner.

DEBT SETTLEMENT.

Ambasadsor is Said to Have Conveyed Erroneous Impressions to Washington.

PARIS, Oct. 31. Canadian Press—Senator Victor Henry Berenger, the noted French financial authority, it became known yesterday from an unquestionable source, is soon to be appointed French ambassador to the United States to succeed Emile Daeschner. The choice of M. Berener for the post, is still an 'official secret,' knowledge of the government's intention being confined to a narrow circle.

Official announcement of a change in Ambassadors is not likely to be made for some days, and both the Foreign Office and Senator Berenger decline to confirm that the appointment is to be made.

M. Daeschner's position has been shaken by the criticism of the members of the French Debt Mission since their recent return from the United States. They affirm that the ambassador did not prepare President Coolidge and the members of the United States debt funding commission to understand the French situation, and that he did not seem to be aware that Senators Borah and Smoot and others were likely to raise opposition to acceptance of the French terms. M. Daeschner is represented as having cabled the Foreign Office before M. Caillaux left France for the United States as head of the Debt Mission that the United States government would accept almost any offer of settement or payment of the debt.

The Ambassador is also said to have informed the State Department at Washington that the French Mission would not insist upon linking the Dawes reparations payments to debt annuities. He did this upon instructions from Paris, but it is certain now that he failed to convey the precise bearing of the communication on the negotiations.

Aside from the manner in which he made preparations for the debt conference, the general action of M. Daeschner is heartily approved and highly praised.

Conservative Offers To Resign Seat To Let Leseuer Join Meighen Cabinet

SARNIA, Ont., Oct. 31.—(Canadian Press).—R. V. Leseuer, defeated in Thursday's election, yesterday received a message from a Conservative fellow-member of the last Parliament, offering to resign his riding in favor of the local man so that the latter would be available for a Cabinet portfolio in event of Mr. Meighen being called upon to form a government.

LONDON NEWSPAPERS COMMENT ON CANADIAN ELECTION RESULTS

Standard Says American Influences Inspired Unfair Attacks on Mackenzie King.

MEIGHEN PRAISED.

Rothermere Organ Sees Closer Relations Between Dominion and Mother Country.

LONDON, Oct. 31 (Canadian Press)—"Nine Cabinet Ministers of Canada defeated." This is the legend appearing on more than one newspaper contents bill on the streets of London last night. London has indeed awakened rather tardily to the importance of the Canadian elections. The absence of any clear cut Imperial issue was doubtless responsible for the comparative lack of interest in the earlier stages of the contest, notwithstanding the fact trat leading papers for some weeks carried numerous special articles concerning the campaign.

Canadians here all along hesitated to express prophecies. It was felt at this distance despite the most copious newspaper cables impossible to prognosticate with any degree of certainty the trend of the election.

Lord Beaverbrook's Standard last night says that Premier Mackenzie King has recently been subjected to violent and unfair attacks by another London newspaper and that these attacks seem to have been dictated by American influences calculated to give the British public the impression that Premier King possessed anti-imperial proclivities. The Standard declares that this idea is quite erroneous and never had any foundation in fact. Mr. King is a man of the very highest character and of strict integrity says the paper which remarks that the same might be said of Mr. Meighen.

"The Dominion is highly fortun-

Cabinet Meeting Monday To Formulate Its Plans

OTTAWA, October 31. — Canadian Press. — Premier King has called a meeting of his Cabinet for Monday when the subject of what aition will be taken, will be discussed.

PAINLEVE PLANS TAX ON WEALTH

Caillaux and Klotz, Ex-Ministers of Finance, Seek Place on Committee.

VERY IMPORTANT.

PARIS, Oct. 31 (Canadian Press) —The Matin prints a long statement from Premier Painleve this morning, out lining the financial measures which he hopes to submit to parliament within a week. These include neither forced consolidation nor a moratorium for national defence bonds, the principal features being a sinking fund provided from the proceeds of special taxes principally on accumulated wealth, and consequently completely and permanently independent of regular budget resources.

Meanwhile fromer Minister of Finance Caillaux and Louis L. Klotz, who also is an ex-Finance Minister, have become candidates for membership in the Financial committee of the Senate. Great importance is attached to the election, as it will provide the first indication of the present attitude of the upper house toward a capital levy as both Caillaux and Klotz oppose it.

King Will Carry on Until Vote in House Shows No Confidence

Impossible Now For Conservatives to Gain a Clear Majority in House—Meighen's Position Precarious Even If Government Is Voted Out.

NEAREST TO DEADLOCK KNOWN.

Only Fairly Certain Thing is That Next Parliament Will Be of Short Duration—Conservatives Think British Practice Demands King's Resignation.

OTTAWA, Oct. 31 (Canadian Press)—With 116 seats won and only six remaining in the doubtful column, the Conservatives cannot now secure a clear majority in the next house. In these circumstances, it is practically certain that Premier King will not resign before meeting Parliament. He will have a conference with the Governor-General before making any public pronouncement, but in circles close to the ministry it is understood that he favors challenging a vote of non-confidence in Parliament. If the House votes against him, his resignation will necessarily follow. Right Hon. Arthur Meighen, Conservative leader, according to the usual practice would then be called upon to form an administration. But it is not likely that he would continue in office long without another appeal to the country.

In any event the next session of Parliament is not likely to see anything in the way of sweeping legislation. The situation has resulted in the nearest approach to parliamenary deadlock in the history of the Dominion. Premier King could only count on a majority with the help of Progressives, Labor and Independents, groups which, although not included in the official opposition sat on the opposition side in the last house. There is likely to be little beyond necessary money appropriations and essential legislation. At the same time, the situation will be one of constant uncertainties with party whips harrassed day and night in fear of a snap vote.

Parties Would Ally

Prominent Liberals feel that any motion by the Conservatives calling for higher protection would ally the Liberals, Labor, Progressive and Independnt members resulting in the Government securing a majority. They take the ground that under constitutional practice the Government is in power, until it fails to retain the confidence of Parliament, that so long as it can secure a majority in Parliament it should retain office. Nevertheless whether Premier King retains office or not, the feeling in political circles generally is that Canada's fifteenth parliament will not be of long duration.

Conseravtive Opinion

Prominent Conservatives in close touch with Mr. Meighen, however, urge that under British practice there is nothing for Mr. King to do but to hand in the resignation of his government forthwith. The Ottawa Journal quotes Conservatives as saying: "Mr. King was first called upon to form a Government as the leader of the largest group in Parliament. He is no longer that. He cannot speak or answer for the Progressives and Independents.

PARTIES MUST WORK TOGETHER

U.F.A. President Says Farmer Members Will Weigh Legislation Impartially.

IN INTERVIEW.

CALGARY, Oct. 31 (Canadian Press).—Whether one of the political parties has a dominating majority or not, United Farmers of Alberta representatives are bound to support legislation on its merits only, and must weigh all legislation impartially," declared N. W. Wood, president of the U.F.A., in an interview here yesterday.

Mr. Wood had been asked concerning the position of the U.F.A. members provided neither of the old parties secured a majority over all and whether the U.F.A. members elected Thursday would align themselves with one or the other of the parties.

"However, I must say frankly," stated Mr. Wood, "that I do not expect very much more satisfactory legislation in the futture than we have had in the past until all legislatives groups get on a co-operative basis for constructive legislation."

GATHERING ELECTION RESULTS EFFICIENTLY AND ACCURATELY WAS GREAT WORK WELL DONE

Canadian Press Service Covered All Canada Most Thoroughly

RESULT WAS LATE.

No General Sweep Occurred to Make Prediction Possible.

TORONTO, Ont., Oct. 31 (Canadian Press)—The Canadian Press is in receipt of many congratulatory messages on the speed and accuracy of the handling of the election returns throughout the Dominion, none of which will be more highly valued by the staff than the following from E. Norman Smith, vice-president of the Ottawa Journal and first vice-president of Canadian Press:

"Perhaps the most difficult, I hear from all sources it was the best election service yet and that also is my conviction. In the absence of President Woods I most sincerely congratulat you and all your staff. Loyalty plus enthusiasm produced a fine job."

E. H. Woods, managing director of the Calgary Herald and President of Canadian Press, was aboard S. S. Makura approaching San Francisco last night and received the election returns by wireless from the Canadian Press Bureau at Vancouver. He is returning from attending the Imperial Press Conference in Australia.

In his wire quoted above Mr. Smith alludes to the peculiar difficulty surrounding the gathering and compilation of the present election results. That this was so is recognized by every Canadian newspaper man who had anything to do with the job, and why it was so has perhaps interests for the general public. It is a noteworthy fact that though the organization was never so perfect, the general result was not known on the night of the election nor until far into the following day, whereas in the previous elections of 1917 and 1921 th result was accurately forecast by Canadian Press at an early hour in the evening. It is this fact that explains the difficulty. There were so many cross-currents in the general situation with no evident swelling tide of victory for one party or the other that there seemed small prospect of a "sweep" and therefore of an early declaration of the general result—the crescent to which all the patient preparatory work covering several weeks led up. It looked indeed as if there were to be a new cleavage in Canadian politics, cutting across the general strata, precisely as had happened in 1911—precisely but with a difference for there was now a third party to be reckoned with. Among new factors were (1) the rally towards Conservatism in the Maritime shown by the recent provincial elections, (2) Mr. Patenaude's crusade as independent Conservative leader in Quebec, where he had been acclaimed at his meetings as the future Prime Minister, (3) the question as to whether Grit or Tory was to take the lion's share of the spoils of the moribound Progressive party in Ontario, (4) and, finally, just how far had this defeatist spirit within the Progressive ranks spread to the three prairie provinces?

All this seems to have little to do with the prosaic though highly technical business of the collection of election returns, but bearing in mind the central fact that all that preparation led to the one thing only, the definite announcement of the general result, it indeed had everything to do with it. For the first time in many years it looked in the prospect exactly as it developed in the upshot, that the election would have to be fought to the bitter end from coast to coast, through every individual province, each a pivot of the whole; and that being so, with no walk-over in sight, every part of the Dominion had to be carefully banketed so that the returns of all should come forward promptly and smoothly.

Thus, last night, when the tide of Conservative victory in the Maritimes had definitely manifested itself, interest shifted at once to Mr. Patenaude in Quebec, because if he could do his bit, Mr. Meighen was pretty certain to be next Prime Minister. The collapse of the Patenaude campaign at the polls more than restored the Liberal position, but meantime in Ontario the Conservatives had been having it much their own way, and then the picture, as told in these elected bulletins, moved to the Prairie, and the all-important question became not whether the Liberals could make substantial gains, nor indeed whether Western Progressives could hold their own, but whether Mr. Meighen could make sufficient gains from the Progressives to achieve his majority. This the Canadian Press ventured to put into words at ten minutes past ten, which stood for the whole night as the furthest in the way of a forecast it could go.

Manitoba Conservatives, led by Hon. R. Rogers, contributed a handsome quota, and the admirably organized returns of British Columbia, completed for the Province, while as yet few of the far-flung Prairie constituencies had reported definitely, further swelled his mounting prospects. But in the final analysis it was left to the two Prairie Provinces to say him nay, and most political students will agree that it was the tide of Liberal victory in Saskatchewan, where Mr. Mackenzie King had so able a lieutenant in Premier Dunning, which set a definite limit to Conservative hopes of a clear majority. But even that was not settled until the morrow.

It was a night of dramatic suspense, alike for the political chieftain and the general public, and by no means less so for the many hundreds engaged in this humble task of collecting and interpreting election returns—a strange, baffling, multitudinous business, with the flood of "flimsy" bulletins like nothing so much as confetti at a gala wedding. Credit for its success belongs equally to the staff of every daily newspaper of Canada—members of the Canadian Press—who within their area so admirably co-operated in getting out their returns, to the Canadian Pacific Railway's telegraph, the Canadian National Telegraphs, which gave close co-operation throughout Western Canada, and to the various telephone companies who did similar good work.

Thanks are also due the weather man for clear and sparkling skies, ensuring perfect weather conditions, of which full advantage was taken by the two or three hundred Morse telegraphers who transmitted the service over Canadian Press wires and laid it down in every urban centre in Canada, as well as contributing to good radio broadcasting service.

As examples of what was done, the following cases may be cited. The first election result to be received at Canadian Press head office in Toronto came in at 5.35 p.m. Eastern time, recording result of four polls in Colchester, N.S., just thirty-five minutes after those polls closed. The first Ontario poll received was a single result from Brantford, exactly fourteen minutes after that poll closed. A similar poll from Winnipeg North-Centre came into Toronto twenty minutes after its close. First polls from Saskatchewan and Alberta were received in Toronto forty-five minutes after they closed, but they had to fight their way east against the full flood of eastern election results then westbound.

It was an anxious night, but members of the staff who for six weeks previously had successfully passed through the much more trying ordeal of covering without fear or favor, comprehensively and accurately, through the news reports of the Canadian Press the entire political activity of the campaign, had the added satisfaction of another job done right.

CITY SMITHS STILL SHOE HORSE IN SPITE OF EVER-GROWING USE OF THE MOTORIZED SUPPLANTER

Shops Kept Busy With Many Trades and Delivery Horses.

TAXES PROHIBITIVE.

Country Blacksmith Has To Be Jack of All Trades and Master.

The city garage man sits.
—Anonymous.

The world, whizzing along at a two mile-a-minute clip, has discarded the humble horse except as a gambling proposition to keep the roof over the heads of book-maker's wives. Horses are also maintained by concerns which would prefer to feed a living organism baled hay and oats rather than attempt to satisfying the insatiable appetite of a flivving mechanism; farmers whose fields are filled with flocks of rocks must maintain a span of horses in order to cultivate his terrain thoroughly, although he gazes in envy at his neighbour who leaps aboard a shiny little tractor and does six times more work in one sixth of the time.

While autos pound the pike with insulated hoops costing $25 a throw once a year, the horse could have his hoofs equipped for fifty cents a piece, and as the saying used to go, 'get there just the same.' But it would seem now that pople would rather pay more and arrive quicker; for the great problem of the age is to arrive even if there is nothing to do when one gets there.

Still Shoe Horses

In Peterborough the maintenance departments are still to be found. Tucked away in the crannies, the blacksmith shops with their weather-worn brick exteriors, insides blackened with soot and smoke can actually be discovered if the searcher looks diligently. There the dusky Vulcan devotees are busy through nine hours treating the horny feet of their patrons, trimming down the growth near to the "quick" and searing it with the hot shoe to see if it fits.

In the fire which smoulders low, two or three shoes are thrusting upward from the hot coals. The smithy seizes one with a long pair of tongs, yanks it quickly from fire to anvil and beats it with quick cunning strokes which mold it to the required shape. When the shoes are ready he nails them to the horse's feet so that the sharp spikes pass through the hard outer ring and cause the horse no pain. In fact the animal, standing grotesquely on three legs while the blacksmith hammers away at his remaining extremity, seems to enjoy the process immensely.

After the nails are all in place the clinching process follows: a sharp set of clippers is used for this and after the points are hammered down and smoothed with a rasp the work is done and the horse is led out by his driver, pounding the floor with his newly acquired set of calks.

In Jack Cadd's shop, Sam Clancy paused long enough to give the Examiner some ideas about the status of the trade. In the past fifteen years he stated that the number of shops had decreased considerably. In 1905, he said, there were twenty seven shops in the city whereas now there were but seven and there was no more work for individual shops now than at that time. Most of the horses are owned by city firms such as those used on bread and milk delivery. Very few were country horses due to the fact that the average farmer has acquired a car.

While the prices charged for work are considerably higher the taxes, cost of materials and helpers' wages have run neck and neck with the result that the blacksmith charging seventy cnts a shoe gets little more for his work than when he received twenty-five cents. Added to this is the fact that municipalities, finding the shops objectionable, are trying to drive them out by the taxes. Should a shop be burned down it could not be rebuilt in the city nor can a new shop be constructed within the municipal limits.

This fact was instanced lately, said Mr. Clancy in Havelock, when a blacksmith was refused permission to construct a business place in the village.

No New Apprentices

Due to the tendency of the age to shun hard work, young blood is not being injected into the business. In fact it would not pay a city smith to employ a man who knew nothing of the trade. A good man can command a salary proportionate with his value some being paid from $25 to $50 per week.

Th city horseshoer works nine hours a day and can equip from fifteen to twnty equines with new boots. In order to stand up under the strain a man must be of a robust, wiry type, one whose back is strong and whose physique is capable of withstanding the pulls and jerks of fractious steeds. The light horses are usually the worst to handle because of their nervous disposition while the big truck animals are usually very docile although occasionally they may take a spell of ponderous playfulness which considering the bulk of his feet is rather inconveniencing to the sweating smith.

Auto Competition

The inroads which motorized vehicles have made in the business are taken as a matter of fact. Usually the smith has a car himself and is able to get more out of life than usual. Few smiths went into the garage business although they make capable foundry men and mechanics.

"All they have to have," said Mr. Clancy "is a hard head and a strong arm."

Few modern innovations have made their appearance in Peterboro; the stalls and appartaus to keep a "kicker" from displaying his wares could not be fuond here. There are few calk setting machines and no trip hammers. The electric blower is possibly the most widely adopted convenience and the romantic picture of a smith pumping a big hand blower is rare even in the country where men of the craft have adopted the neat rotary blowers.

The Country Smith.

The blacksmith in the country has a different proposition. He must be able to shoe horses,it is true, but if he cannot solder a water pipe, adjust a carburteor, tinker a binder or put in a pane of glass, he is practically useless. The Smith in the rural section is the general Jack of all trades and master of every one of them.

He works by no stipuated hours. When the cock salutes the first crack of dawn, he leaps out of bed, sticks the porridge over the fire in the kitchen cook stove, milks his cow which bawls in a neighbor's pasture field, feeds the horse, hens, pigs and himself, and then goes to reduce the line-up of impatient farmers who all want their work done first. The front of his establishment is cluttered with farm machinery, wagons and milk route outfits. His is a diversified task. All through the day he toils, taking all comers, disposing of them in masterly fashion, and after supper when night has stopped the labors of others, he goes back to his shop and attacks a medley of tinkering jobs. The cackle of his gasolene engine may be heard while his efficient little lathe turns out a neckyoke or whiffle-tree, or the planer sends out a buzzing whine as he prepares the wood for a bookcase.

Traditionally the farmers bring their binders to be repaired, so they can start harvesting next day, they want sleighs built or repaired when the first snow falls, and when the sun mellows the soil they gather in a bunch, demanding that their drag teeth be sharpened or they must have a new tongue in the seed drill. They had all winter to get these rush jobs done, but they never thought of that. After a spell of icy weather, the horses flock around for an outfit of sharp calks and in the summer when a dry spell comes, the tires get loose on a hundred wagon wheels. Added to his usual work the country smith pumps gasoline for the passing tourists and repairs their broken springs.

The shop is the clubhouse of the community, where folk gather to discuss sales, crops and the "govamint." Church problems and questions of morality are dispatched with vigor, while debates centering on prohibition crop up at any and all times. Grit and Tory, teetotaller and addict, enter the lists with their favorite views as weapons while the smith hammers iron and listens, non-committal, to the flow of wisdom.

But times have changed. In the cities, filling stations are taken as models for a four-roomed bungalow, supplanting the establishments which formerly equipped the mode of transportation. Now the dingy little shops shrink in retirement, while countless people pass them without a glance. Instead they gaze with admiration on the landscape gardened gas station and watch the proprietor pump another five gallons into the receptive maw of the gasping flivver.

"Fruit-a-tives" brought early relief

MRS. C. W. THOMPSON

"I first heard of "Fruit-a-tives" through a friend of mine living in St. Johnsbury, and as I was troubled with very high Blood Pressure and Constipation, I decided to try the fruit treatment. The result is that I am feeling very much better, and I am glad to recommend "Fruit-a-tives" to anyone". Mrs. C. W. Thompson, Lyndonville, Vermont.

All your physical and mental energy is drawn from your blood stream. If the bowels and kidneys do not function properly, poison enters the blood-stream, and the heart, brain and nerves are all affected. Three Ridings All Returned Conservatives With Largest Majorities in History.

ONE POLL 103-0.

HAMILTON, Oct. 31.—(Canadian Press).—Records were broken in Conservative majorities for Hamilton, official and complete returns yesterday show. Major-General S. C. Mewburn, in East Hamilton, had 7,353 majority over both Alderman Lawrence (Labor) and John Newlands (Liberal), while C. W. Bell defeated Geo. Gow (Liberal) by 11,577.

In Wentworth a new record was also established when Gordon C. Wilson defeated C. F. T. Woodley (Liberal-Progressive) by a majority of 8,005, the largest in history. In Dundas, Barton, East Hamilton and Saftfleet Mr. Wilson carried every polling sub-division, and in one East Hamilton division the count was 103 for Wilson while his opponent never got a ballot. All opponents to the Conservative party in the two Hamiltons and in the county lost their deposits.

COMMITTEES OF COUNCIL VISITED BY DEPUTATIONS

Hockey Club Asked Finance Committee for Grant of $500.

DRAINAGE BAD

Complaint Registered by Residents of Bolivar Street.

Last night was apparently deputation night for the Finance and the Board of Works Committees of the City Council. The Finance Committee met first and was visited by a deputation from the Peterborough Hockey Club, headed by President J. J. Duffus. Others present were Messrs. Ed. Wright, Charles Ackerman, L. L. Maguire, Leck and Hughes.. Their request for a grant of $500 to help finance the team in its preliminary practices to be held before defending the S.P.A. Cup. When the estimates were struck there was $200 included for the club but $100 of this was given to the 21st Battalion Club for their annual reunion. The matter was left over until the Chairman, Alderman Nagle Phelan, can check up the finances and see if there is enough money in the treasury for a grant.

Among the accounts passed for payment was one which brought out strenous opposition from Alderman Crowe. This was for some $67.00, the excess spent by Alderman Jones, Chairman of the Fire, Water, and Light Committee, and Fire Chief Gimblett, over the $200 allowed them for a trip to the Fire Chiefs' convention.

The question of holding up payments on the work at the sewage disposal plant because of delays in finishing the various portions of the work was thoroughly discussed. City Solicitor Joseph Wearing expressed the opinion that no penalty could be exacted unless it were shown that the city suffered loss by the delay. Alderman McIntyre said that when it was seen that the work was behind the City Engineer should have got after the contractor to hurry him up. Mr. Parsons said that the delay was due to the unusually bad weather conditions encountered this fall.

Board of Works.

The Board of Works received a deputation of two residents of the west end of Bolivar street, Messrs. J. Constable and Walter Hughes. These men wished something done with regard to the drainage of that portion of the city. They said that after Sherbrooke street had been graded outside the boundary a greater amount of water was coming down into the low spot there and a blockade in drain to Sherbrooke street was holding it up. Mr. Hughes said that he wished to fill in his lot but that if he did so the water would be forced onto Mr. Constable's property. The Aldermen promised that work would be done on the blockade in the drain. A further complaint was from Mrs. Henry, that a culvert put in on the west end of Sherbrooke street was causing the ditch at the end to become worn to a dangerous depth. The City Engineer recommended that culvert should be continued down to the end of the surface drain at Penrose avenue as soon as the city had money to do it.

Snow Ploughing.

Tenders were received for work of removing the snow in the various divisions of the city as follows:

Section 1—Work done by the Board of Works

Section 2—E. J. Ferguson, $210; Wm. J. Stinson, $225; awarded to Stinson.

Section 3—T. H.. Jackson, $225; A. Deal, $200; Edgar Millen, $235; E. J. Ferguson, $250; T. Flannery, $240; awarded to A. Deal.

Section 4—J. B. Parrington, $160; R. J. Manley, $175; E. J. Ferguson, $150; awarded to Manley.

Section 5—Tendered on only by John Lynn, who was awarded the contract.

Section 6—Tendered on only by H. Moncrief, who was awarded the contract.

Section 7—William Millen, $165; Austin Allen, $143; R. W. Mitchell, $145; awarded to Mitchell..

Section 8—William Millen, $160; Austin Allen, $133; R. W. Mitchell $135; Benjamin Revoy, $150; awarded to Mitchell.

HALLOWE'EN TEA AT ST. ANDREW'S

Ladies Held Very Pleasant Affair in Sunday School.

WELL ATTENDED.

The ladies of St. Andrew's Church held a very pleasant afternoon tea from four to six o'clock yesterday, in the Ladies' Parlor of the Sunday School building. The handsome big room was very attractive with its Hallowe'en decorations in black and yellow, with witches and black cats on the curtains and a number of big, lighted pumpkins . The tea-table was effectively centred with a large, halved pumpkin, filled with green grapes and tied with a huge bow of black ribbon. Black lighted candles were in silver candlesticks and there was special Hallowe'en candy in silver holders. The guests were received by Mrs. J. W. Gordon and Mrs. C. R. Banks, assisted by Mrs. G. A. Gillespie, Mrs. A. McNabb and Mrs. Latimer. Mrs. Hartshorn and Mrs. A. MacFarlane presided at the tea table, assisted by Mrs. R. A. Carmen, Mrs. P. L. Allison, Mrs. T. Glover, Mrs. C. Perry and Mrs. C. B. Waite. Mrs. R. M. Waddell and Mrs. Geo. Gilman had charge of the tea room, assisted by Mrs. Jas. MacKintosh, and Mrs. M. Wilgar and Mrs. M. T. Breckenridge were in charg of the musical programme, which included vocal solos by Mrs. L. M. Brooks and Mrs. Ford Turner, instrumental numbers by the Misses Agnes Logan and Marjorie Turner and Miss Gadd, and a banjo selection by Mr. Frank Clarke.

LONDON NEWSPAPERS

ate at this juncture," says the Standard, "In having as leaders men whose whole lives and actions discourage the baser side of politics! Mr. Meighen has also had to suffer some quite unjustifiable detraction in this country . He was the minister in the late government of Sir Robert Borden who negotiated the agreement whereunder the Grand Trunk Railway was taken over."

The Westminster Gazette says the Conservatives won their seats in the Dominion election yesterday chiefly at the cost of the Progressive party, which is now one third of its size in the last Parliament. This has caused so definite a swing to the Conservative side that the Gazette wonders what have been the motives of the electors, scattered over such a large area, and says the motives are difficult to understand.

The Gazette says that no doubt the taxation, which is regarded by Canadians as heavy, has had some weight in the result of the vote, but Mr. Meighen's advocacy of high tariffs has had much more effect upon the electors. "Probably, however, the more vague desire to have a change of government," the Gazette adds, "has had as much influence as any other factor in the result."

The Standard thinks the election may involve the retirement of Hon. P. C. Larkin from the Canadian high commissionership in London and says this "would be greatly regretted both in London and Ottawa." The paper adds some complimentary references to Hon. Mr. Larkin's work here.

Lord Rothermere's Evening News claims that the Conservative victory means that there will be closer contact between Canada and the mother country than has obtained under the Mackenzie King administration. There may be an increase in the Dominion tariff, with a corresponding increase in the British preference, the News says, and adds: "Canada will protect her own industries first and Great Britain's second."

The Evening News claims that the outcome of the Dominion general election is partly due to the unsatisfactory position of the Canadian National Railways. The paper notes that while the income tax in Canada is regarded by the Canadians as high it is only about one-fourth that of Great Britain. There is a feeling abroad, the Evening News says, that Canada has been dilatory in her immigration policy. So far as tariffs are concerned there is little to choose between the two main political parties, according to the Evening News. Canada does not like to see the encroachment of American interests in the Dominion, it says, and adds: "Canadian labor probably is the soundest in the empire. It is loyal and is opposed to "red" influences and it does not exercise such restrictions as exist elsewhere."

PLAY SAFE.

A bulletin issued by the Ontario Safety League and calling attention to a section of the Highway Traffic Act that is often disregarded by cyclists, should be of service.

The section in question says: "On a bicycle when overtaken by a vehicle or horseman, you shall quietly turn to the right and allow such vehicle or horseman to pass."

Many cyclists ignore that safety first regulation, and as a result add to the number of accidents.

ONTARIO APPLES.

"Buy a barrel of apples" is the advice that is being given to Ontario people at the present time, and it is counsel that is worth taking in view of the extraordinary crop and the splendid quality of the fruit that is available.

Ontario never produced more apples, and doubtless, Ontario never produced better apples than in 1925.

There is nothing finer in the fruit line than a No. 1 Ontario apple, and the opportunity that is offered of securing a supply now is one that should not be overlooked.

The Ontario Government, realizing the situation, is assisting the apple-growers of the Province to find a market for the heavy crop, not only by arranging for the sale of 25,000 barrels in Great Britain, but by endeavouring to increase the home market by means of an advertising campaign.

That is good business for the producer, the consumer and the Province generally, for the creation of a greater demand for Ontario fruit is a good thing all round.

BACK TO TWO PARTIES.

The next election, which everybody seems to agree will not be long forthcoming, will undoubtedly complete the destruction of the Progressive Party.

With only two representatives of the third party elected in Ontario and the Western forces reeling from the effects of Thursday's election, it is evident that the country is fast coming back to the two-party brand of politics.

The independent vote in the West deserted the Progressives on Thursday, leaving the latter merely a farmer group with no outside support, and there will undoubtedly be further disaffection in the next campaign as Liberals and Conservatives in the West work to widen the breach that has been made in the Progressive ranks.

The movement is dead everywhere east of the Great Lakes, and it is dying fast on the Prairies if the old parties' victories in Manitoba, Alberta and Saskatchewan mean what they apparently do.

Many electors in the West who thought that Progressive candidates could not be beaten have seen that they were wrong, and that is another factor that in the event of another election will enable the old parties to make still further inroads upon the Forke bloc.

The Progressives have elected but a third of their former strength in the House—and will fare even more badly in another contest.

THE FEDERAL SITUATION.

The general situation following Thursday's election is still obscure, but the prevailing impression is that another appeal to the electorate within the next few months will be necessary to clear the air and break the deadlock that threatens at present.

With many of his Ministers among the fallen, necessitating by-elections to return them to the House if he attempted to carry on, it is thought that Hon. Mackenzie King will, after consultation with his colleagues, announce the resignation of the Government, and that the Right Honourable Arthur Meighen will be called upon to form a Government.

If the Conservative leader does so, it is expected that he will select his Cabinet, have the House called together and the necessary supply voted, and then go to the country for a mandate to carry out his policy of protection.

The people of Canada are not anxious to have another election, but neither do they desire to see government carried on by the compromise and bargaining that becomes necessary when no party has a decisive majority over the rest of the House.

Another campaign, if it would result in the return of a strong Government able to put into effect its policies, would be welcomed everywhere—and another campaign seems certain in view of the present situation.

A GREAT HATER.

That the late U. S. Senator Henry Cabot Lodge hated President Wilson is a fact of common knowledge, says the St. Catharines New Standard. But the intensity and malignancy of that hate was not fully realized until the publication of his post-humous book, "The Senate and the League of Nations." Hatred has often proved to be a potent force in public affairs, and Lodge's hatred of Wilson is a case in point. It was because of this hatred that Lodge marshalled the Republican forces in the Senate to block U. S. ratification of the Treaty of Versailles and the entrance of the United States into the League of Nations. The fact that Wilson had taken a principal part in the framing of the treaty and regarded the institution of the League as the crowning act of his public career, that Lodge set himself to wreck both, so far as it was in the power of the U. S. A. to do so. He succeeded, and probably his success was Wilson's death-blow. But Lodge's hatred was not of the sort which stops at the grave. This book is dedicated to the task of demonstrating that Woodrow Wilson was a monumental egotist consumed with an ambition which would have been dangerous to his country if he had not lacked the qualities of mind and character which go to the making of a great military commander. The Senator failed in his attempt to blacken Wilson's character, but he succeeded in revealing his own—and it is a most repellent character that he reveals.

Just one extract from the book is sufficient to show Lodge's hatred of the President obscured his judgment and made him write nonsense. Mr. Wilson, he writes, "had as great an opportunity as was ever given in human history to one man. He could have settled the affairs of the world from the White House and take a position both at the time and in the opinion of posterity which it would have been hard to rival. He would have had the world at his feet; but he could think only of himself, and his own idea was and had been for a long time that the part for him to play was that of the great peacemaker."

You see, Wilson might have had the world at his feet and been in a position to exercise a power such as has been at the command of but few human beings in the world's history; but he flung away his opportunity; he misused his power; he chose to be a mere peacemaker. A despicable failure, in Lodge's eyes. But one wonders how Lodge would have had the President make use of his great opportunity. He does not say. Probably somehow to make the United States the dominant nation of the world—a sort of Caesar among the nations, with all the others as mere pygmies in comparison. But Wilson's ideal was world peace, and, because he made that his one great aim, Lodge makes the accusation that "he could think only of himself."

The book will not injure Woodrow Wilson's reputation. But it will effectually damn the character of Henry Cabot Lodge in the eyes of this generation and of posterity.

THE ELECTION—AND AFTER.

(Financial Post.)

As this is written the votes are being polled which will decide Canada's new Government. The election is one in which serious issues are at stake, even though they have been beclouded by petty politics during the campaign. With the great body of Canadian taxpayers, who are bearing the chief burdens of the nation's debt and heavy running expenses, the issues rather than the men are the dominant consideration. As the votes are being cast, it is timely to take stock of the national situation to decide what should be done in the best interests of the country by the new Government—no matter what its political complexion.

The head of one of the big industrial concerns recently made a tour of this country looking into conditions. It was his first opportunity to see Canada. For years he had been a close student of business conditions in the United States.

"What is your impression of Canada?" he was asked by The Financial Post.

"My feeling is of exasperation."

"Exasperation?"

"Yes. Exasperation that a country with such great resources is making such poor use of her opportunities," he explained. "It seems to me that Americans have more confidence in Canada that have the Canadians themselves," he continued, "and this is borne out by the investments of American capital being made here. My company has made huge expenditures here, convinced that there are great opportunities for development, but if Canada is to come into her own there will have to be more enterprise and more accomplishment on the part of Canada herself."

That feeling of exasperation is shared by many Canadians, who see opportunities for progress and development neglected and new enterprise discouraged by heavy taxation and other handicaps, not borne by industries of other countries, with which Canada has to compete. We have heard it said that the Twentieth Century is Canada's so often that we have come to believe it without realizing that a quarter of that century has passed without any real indication that the optimistic forecasts will become a reality.

At this time The Financial Post presents the important issues before the country and calls upon the head of the new Government to face and deal with these problems in the interests of all the Canadian people.

TAXATION.—The reduction of the tax burden on business so as to give industry and commerce encouragement to expand. To this end national expenditures should be cut and Government departments run on a basis of business efficiency. Expenditures on public works should be suspended for a term of years or until conditions improve. Income taxes should be reduced to a basis comparable with that of the United States if business in this country is to be given an opportunity to compete and if the migration of Canadians to that country is to be discouraged.

TARIFF.—Prosperity demands the maintenance of a tariff to encourage increasing production in Canada by those industries using Canadian products as their raw materials, and all industries manufacturing goods for the home market, but which will not permit combines to unduly raise prices to the detriment of consumers. This policy to be enforced by a permanent commission to act in an advisory capacity to the Government in the scientific study of tariff matters.

TRANSPORTATION.—Discontinuance of capital expenditures on the Government railways and reduction of operating expenses to the end of eliminating deficits. Business-like efforts to co-operate with the Canadian Pacific in providing efficient service without duplication, but under fair competitive conditions. The appointment of a body which will insure the operation of the National lines without political influence, and if this is found impossible, the lease or sale of the system to a private company and the whole problem left in the hands of the Railway Commission.

IMMIRATION.—The improvement of economic conditions throughout the country by encouraging industry and reducing taxation until prosperity returns and brings with it not only a wave of immigration, but the discontinuance of emigration. This involves a policy which will encourage the influx of new citizens and the removal of the present stringent reglations which are keeping out desirable as well as undesirable newcomers.

NATURAL RESOURCES.—The development of all raw materials and natural resources—water powers, pulpwood, nickel, asbestos, etc.—in the interests of Canada by regulating exportation, but giving foreign manufacturers now being supplied an opportunity to move their plants to Canada.

If these questions are faced by the new administration with a determination to serve the best interests of Canada, whether it is formed by Liberals, Conservatives or Progressives becomes of secondary consideration.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

Weather conditions in the city helped to get the big vote out. In the country the bad roads perhaps kept some away from the polls.

Messrs. Patenaude and Massey will both drop off the front page following Thursday's results.

The latest advices do not show any indication of recounts being asked for in any of the Toronto seats.

A THOUGHT.

FAULTS AND VIRTUES

Some men have a way of showing only their faults to some people, while they show only their virtues to others. This gives them a double life or personality, and a double world. However we must admit that often faults are magnified, while virtues suffer from shrinkage. The man who sees faults too readily may be able to recognie them from his own experience. And the man who always sees virtues is liable to have many himself.

CATTLE, GRAIN AND PRODUCE

Peterboro—Toronto—Montreal
Winnipeg

MONTREAL MARKET

MONTREAL, Oct 31 (Canadian Press).—There was some enquiry from foreign buyers for wheat and oats in the local grain market yesterday, but the volume of business was small and the market quiet. Little business was done in cash grain. The undertone to oats was steady and prices were unchanged.

The condition of the market for spring wheat flour was unchanged, prices for all grades being the same with a fair amount of business passing for local and country account. The feature of the trade in millfeed was the increased demand from the United States' buyers for Manitoba bran and large sales were made for November-December shipment, and some for immediate delivery. A fair trade was done in standard grades of rolled oats and prices were maintained. The baled hay market was fairly active with no change in prices to note.

Beans were quoted at from $2.40 to $2.50 per bushel.

The tone of the market for fresh eggs remains firm owing to the fact that supplies were just about sufficient to meet the requirements of the trade. On the other hand the storage situation is just about steady under a fair demand for small lots to meet actual wants. The receipts yesterday were 1,942 cases cases, as compared with 3,582 for the same day last week, and 5,125 for the corresponding day a year ago.

The feature of the potato trade yesterday was the stronger feeling that developed in the market, and prices for Quebec varieties scored an advance of 25c to 35c per bag. This was attributed to the fact that United States and Cuba buyers entered the market again at the recent lower level and quite an active business resulted, which relieved the market of the surplus stock.

The receipts of butter yesterday were 665 packages, as compared with 2,939 for the same day last week, and 1,947 for the corresponding day a year ago. There were no further developments in the condition of the market, the undertone being firm with a fair amount of business passing for domestic account.

The receipts of cheese yesterday were 4,825 boxes, as against 5,447 for the same day last week, and 10,796 for the corresponding day a year ago. The tone of the market in the country was easier and prices at some of the boards were 3-16c to 1-2c per lb. lower than a week ago.

EGG MARKETS

OTTAWA, Oct. 31 (Canadian Press).—Conditions on the egg market are unchanged with the demand continuing brisk for the better grade of fresh with a weak undertone on storage stocks. American markets show greater strength on both fresh and storage stocks.

Toronto—Jobbing, fresh special 60, extras 58, firsts 47, storage extras 44-45, firsts 41-42, seconds 36-37.

Montreal—Egg market is quiet. Quotations on storage stocks are: extras 47, firsts 40, seconds 30, with some extras commanding a cent more.

Winnipeg.—Market is unchanged, with trading remaining very quiet.

Edmonton—Egg market is firm. Dealers are quoting country shippers extras 37, firsts 32. Poultry is unchanged.

Vancouver—Jobbing, extras 68, firsts 66, seconds and pullets 57. Live poultry is unchanged.

Halifax—No change in the egg or poultry market.

St. John—Jobbing, fresh extras 55, firsts 47, seconds 41, storage firsts 44, seconds 41.

Chicago—Fresh firsts 44-48. December refrigerators 34 1-2.

STERLING EXCHANGE

MONTREAL, Oct. 31 (Canadian Press). — Sterling exchange rates were quoted here yesterday as follows:

Sterling cables $4.83 1-4.
Sterling demand $4.83 3-4.

CHICAGO LIVESTOCK.

CHICAGO, Oct. 31 (Canadian Press).—Cattle receipts 5,000; slow; some 1,272 pound steers 11.00; bulk short fed 8.50 to 10.00; canners and cutters fairly active; stockers and feeders weak; bulk vealers to packers 13.00 to 13.50.

Hog receipts 20,000; active; bulk good and choice 140 to 160 lb. average 11.30 to 11.60; best 140 lb. average topped 11.75; bulk desirable 180 to 325 butchers, 11.00 to 11.35; majority packing sows 9.70 to 10.00; better slaugther pigs largely 11.75 to 12.25.

Sheep receipts 14,000; fat lambs mostly 25c lower; others and sheep steady; bulk desirable wooled lambs 15.00 to 15.25; clipped 14.00 to 14.25; culls 11.50 to 12.00 mostly; choice yearlings wethers 13.00; best fat ewes 8.00; one load feeding lambs 16.00; heavy medium grade feeders 13.50 to 14.00.

CHICAGO WHEAT

CHICAGO, Oct. 31 (Canadian Press).—Evident slowing down of wheat demand from flour mills in the United States tended further to weaken wheat values. Word was received that liberal offerings from here to mills in all directions had failed to bring about the purchase of even one carload. Besides, no export demand of any consequence was in sight. On the other hand, the exportable surplus of Australia was unofficially estimated at 80,000,000 bushels or more and the Argentine exportable surplus as 185,000,000 bushels.

Selling of corn increased with the decline of wheat prices. Early upturns in the value of corn were thus more than wiped out. Oats followed corn.

Provisions averaged higher, on the firmness of the hog market.

This Car Cost a Widow $10,000

HER husband was a young business man of good prospects. He believed in living more carefully than his wife did, having business instincts and principles which she lacked.

'I would sooner put the money it would cost me to run a car into life insurance", said he. "I could get a good big endowment policy with the money running a car will cost us every year.

"The Jones's have a big new car", she replied. "Everybody we know has a car."

That was three years ago. She has her car. It is still a fairly good car. She would like to sell it for $200. Her husband was right. A $10,000 Mutual Life policy would have been a far better investment. But it's too late, now.

Are you carrying the amount of life insurance you should? Talk it over with our agent.

ELECTION WAGER STILL UNSETTLED

Awaits Official Returns of Maybee's Figures in Northumberland Riding

CAMPBELLFORD, Oct. 31.—The freak election bet, the penalty for which is the rolling of a peanut with a cane along Front Street, has not yet been settled and will not be until the official returns for Northumberland riding are announced. The parties to the wager say that Chas. H. Davidson's claim was that Mr. Maybee would have a majority of 1,000 in the riding, so that the issue is still in doubt.

ONTARIO

To Truck Owners and Drivers

Provisions against overloading at this season provided by The Highways Act will be rigorously enforced. Avoid penalty by obeying the law.

To save the highways from unnecessary damage during the wet spring months when foundations are easily fractured and road surfaces broken, The Highways Act provides that during March and April trucks (outside cities and towns)

"shall not be loaded in excess of one-half the carrying capacity of such vehicle as registered with the Department, without obtaining a permit as provided in section 31."

The attention of every truck owner and driver is called specifically to this provision. In their own interest the Department urges their co-operation in obeying the law and thus saving the highways from unnecessary abuse. In view of this public statement of the law, they are notified that rigorous prosecution will follow neglect or refusal to do so.

While the whole of the people of Ontario have contributed to the building of highways in the past, it may be expected that the cost of repairs and maintenance will fall more and more on those who use the roads. The traffic which does most damage, naturally will be expected to pay the most.

Therefore, it is in the interest of every truck owner and driver to see that his loads and speeds are kept well within the legal limit at this season of the year.

An advertisement issued by the Ontario Department of Highways to secure the co-operation of motorists and truck drivers, Automobile Clubs and all other public-spirited bodies, in abating the abuse of the roads of the Province.

The Hon. George S. Henry, Minister; S. L. Squire, Deputy Minister.

NEW DRY FORCE IS ORGANIZED

Fifty "Under-Cover" Agents Organized To Get Bootleg Kings.

WETS WANT JOBS.

Fifty 'under-cover men," appointed this week, are about to start a new drive against illicit alcohol selling in Philadelphia, Major William G. Murdock, prohibition administrator, revealed this week.

Major Murdock also said that numerous ex-bootleggers, many of whom served prison terms, have sought jobs as prohibition agents and informers, but that all their applications were rejected.

The administrator said the applicants sought to "cash in" on their knowledge of bootlegging in that way, after they had either been driven out of the alcohol business or been denied permits for the withdrawal of alcohol.

Dry Leaders in Conference.

The employment of fifty additional agents, Major Murdock said, had been authorized by General Andrews, Assistant Secretary of the Treasury in charge of enforcement.

In disclosing that plans have been completed for a new drive against illegal distributors of alcohol, Major Murdock said:

Agents to Work Under Cover.

"Forty or fifty new appointments to act as prohibition agents under me for this district have been authorized by General Andrews this week at Washington. The names of the new men will not be disclosed. They will work under cover.

"Plans were formulated by myself and my assistants for an alcohol drive by which we expect to apprehend the big fellows connected with the illegal distribution of alcohol in this district.

PARIS, Oct. 31 (Canadian Press) Leon Daudet, the Royalist leader, so is being sued by M. Bajot, the chauffeur in whose taxi-cab M. Daudet's fourteen year old son, Phillippe, was found in a dying condition from a revolver shot two years ago, was kicked by one of the witnesses at yesterday's session of the Assizes Court, and the Judge had to suspend the sitting until the excitement subsided.

The witness was M. LeFlaouter, a reformed anarchist, in whose small bookshop M. Daudet has charged that Philippe was assassinated by the police. M. Daudet has charged in his newspaper L'Acton Francaise that Bajot was an accomplice.

When LeFlaouter took the stand, M. Daudet, although nominally in the role of accused, began to cross-examine the witness in the best approved style of the French courts. In his excitement the Royalist leader advanced close to the little rail constituting the witness box, pointing an accusing finger at the witness. The latter kicked M. Daudet and Jacques Allard, Daudet's brother-in-law, put his hand to his hip-pocket to draw a revolver. He was surrounded by guards who compelled him to surrender the revolver to the Judge.

When calm was restored the court moved in a body to M. LeFlaouter's little book-store in Boulevard Beaumarchais in impressive old hacks with top-hatted footmen. Here Judges, attorneys and the plaintiff and the accused witnessed re-enactment of a scene which M. Daudet charges took place on the night of his son's death. Shots were fired at a dummy in the basement. The noise was not heard on the first floor or in the street, and M. Daudet claimed this was proof that Philippe might have been killed there without the occupants of the house or passers-by being aware of it.

PARIS ORDERS GENERAL SARRAIL TO RETURN HOME AND FURNISH REPORT ON SITUATION IN SYRIA

Cabinet Displeased at His Maladroit Handling of Damascus Outbreak.

PERMANENT RECALL.

Significant Remark of the Minister of the Interior.

PARIS, October 31. — Canadian Press. — Official announcement was made last night that the government had summoned General Sarrail, the French High Commissioner in Syria, to Paris, to furnish a full explanation of the Syrian situation. It has also been decided to appoint a civilian High Commissioner to Syria.

This announcement was made after a special Cabinet council convened to consider the recent disturbances in Damascus and the general unrest in Syria.

Pending the arrival in Syria of the new civilian High Commissioner the duties of the office will be discharged by General Duport, a member of the Supreme War Council, who is now in Syria on a mission of investigation

APPOINT CIVILIAN COMMISSIONER.

PARIS, October 31. — The Cabinet, in special session last night to consider the situation in Syria, decided to invite General Sarrail, the French High Commissioner in Syria to come to Paris for the purpose of explaining in detail the recent events in Damascus and the surrounding country.

There have been persistent reports the last few days of the likelihood of General Sarrail being displaced as High Commissioner, for the authorities have made no secret of their displeasure over the manner in which he has reported on the trouble between the French and the Syrian tribesmen.

At the close of the Cabinet council to-night the remarks of M. Schramock, Minister of the Interior, to the newspaper correspondent, was interpreted as indicating that the recall of General Sarrail is not unlikely. He said: "The most elementary discretion commands us to first inform the interested parties of the decisions and measures of which they have been the object before the press is permitted to publish them."

General Maurice Nollet, former Minister of War, and at one time the Chief of the French Military Mission in Berlin, is being prominently mentioned as General Sarrails successor in the Syrian post.

"So this is Your Birthday, Grandmother."

"YES, dearie, I am seventy-five years old to-day. It doesn't seem possible, for I don't feel old."

"And you certainly do not look old. Besides, you are always so happy and cheerful that you do not seem at all old."

"A woman is only as old as she looks, you know, and I have always tried to keep young and healthy."

"And were you never sick, grandmother?"

"Oh, yes, indeed, there was a time in my life when I never expected to live to be fifty, say nothing about seventy-five. When your mother and my other children were small I had my hands full and got run down in health. I got so nervous that I could not sleep and had frequent headaches. Every little thing the children would do seemed to annoy and worry me until, finally, I gave out entirely, and was in bed for months with nervous prostration."

"Did you have a doctor?"

"Yes, dearie, I had two or three doctors, but they only told me that it would take a long time for me to regain strength. One day your grandfather came in with some of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food. He said some one told him that it would restore me, and he went away to the drug store and bought half a dozen boxes."

"What did your doctor say about using it?"

"Well, what could he say? He only said that he had done all he could, and that he had run across a great many cases in which the Nerve Food had been used with excellent results. So I began using Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, and it was not long before I was on the way to health and strength."

"And did it make you well?"

"Well, the best evidence is that I am here to-day, well and happy, after all these years. And I am more than ever enthusiastic for Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, for I have used it several times during the last few years when I felt that I needed some assistance to keep up vitality. As a person gets older I think their blood gets thinner, and they seem to need something like Dr. Chase's Nerve Food to increase their strength and vigor."

"That is something worth knowing, grandmother."

"If you will take my advice, dearie, you will not forget about Dr. Chase's Nerve Food when you get run down, tired out and nervous. This has been my advice to a great many people, and I know that it has done them good."

NORTHERN MUSHERS TO GET GROCETERIA

First Trip Was Great Success —Indians Welcomed Innovation.

EDMONTON, Alta., October 31.—The old order of things is gradually being changed for the inhabitants of the far North. One of the primary and generally most exacting tasks of the backwoodsman in the past, has been that of transporting his camp supplies to the distant outposts.

If the idea seized upon by Alex Hamilton of Lac La Biche, is capitalized and extended to the north generally this problem has now been solved.

Mr. Hamilton, who recently reached Edmonton from the north country told of taking the groceteria idea into the Arctic. His power boat, he explained, had been fitted out with a varied assortment of provisions, displayed on shelves and counters alike in the city stores. His plan was that such a novel trading ship, going into the north directly in the wake of the treaty-paying parties would receive a good reception at the hands of the Indians. According to his story, his most optimistic hopes were fully realized.

A boat owned by a lumber merchant at Lac La Biche was purchased and shipped by rail over the railway to the end of steel. Here it was fitted with regular store fixtures and a stock of approximately 17 tons of dry goods, groceries and other wares taken on board for the long trip north.

Seventeen other traders all fired with the same ambition organized a similar expedition and succeeded in getting out of Waterways ahead of the newcomer. The "groceteria" boat left three days after these enterprising traders, but rapidly gained on his rivals and overhauled them in lake Athabasca. He reached Fort Fitzgerald well ahead of his competitors. Here the storeship was greeted with great interest and a thriving business soon developed.

Word of the approach of the first first "groceteria" had spread down the river ahead of the trader, and everywhere a large crowd of Indians and traders were awaiting the arrival of the novel store. By the time Aklavik, on the Arctic was reached the floating "groceteria" was completely cleaned out and the return trip to Lac la Biche started. More than 4000 miles were covered. Mr. Hamilton proposes to make similar trips again.

RUSSIAN WHEAT TRADE EXPENSE TO CANADIANS

Would Make Serious Inroads On Canada's Western Farms.

STOP SPECULATION

British Firm is in Russion Trade to Keep Price Even.

BRANTFORD, Ont., Oct. 31.—(By Canadian Press).—Any development of the Russian xport wheat trade must be at the expense of the Canadian exporters, the Canadian Co-Operator comments in reprinting the following report from the Scottish Co-Operator.

"Acting principally on behalf of the Co-operative Wholesale Society, the Anglo-Russian Wheat Exporting Company, Manchester, has ordered half a million tons of wheat and barley from Russia. A hundred vessels have been chartered in London and the first shipments are now en route to Avonmouth.

"The C.W.S. has the prior claim on the corn, and is anxious to check up speculative operations which last year sent up the price of the Canadian crop. The rest will be available for private buyers."

Concerning the report, the Canadian Co-Operator in its current issue says: "The life of a speculator in the necessaries of life is probably not as rosy in Moscow as in Winnipeg, and it looks as if British co-operators are coming to the conclusion they can develop a wheat-buying business in Russia free from the price disturbances which speculators, with nothing but a gambling interest in the commodity, cause to actual buyers for use.

"The Co-operative Wholsale Society, Russian Co-operative organizations and the Russian Government have each a proprietary interest in the Anglo-Russian Wheat Exporting Company. As, hitherto, the C.W.S. claims to have purchased for its flour mills one tenth of the wheat produced in Western Canada, it seems obvious that the development of the Russian trade must be at the expense of this country.

"Efforts ought to be made to establish mutually satisfactory relations between the Western Wheat Pools and British Co-Operator. If, too, gambling in wheat at Winnipeg by people who have no legitimate interest in the commodity means the development of other markets by Canada's customers it would seem to be necessary that steps should be taken to eliminate it by the legislature of legislatures having the authority."

CHILDREN ARE BEHIND NORMAL

Average in British Columbia is Retarded Nine Months.

CHANGE COURSES

VANCOUVER, B. C., Oct. 31.—(Canadian Press).—The report of the educational survey just completed and printed in full in the local press is of interest to parents elsewhere. The survey states that the average British Columbia child is nine months behind the normal, and that 37 per cent. of retardation is preventable. In interior points it ran as high as 30 months. "The survey doubts whether the smattering of Latin and French three-quarters of the high school girls now receive will help them make their own dresses or prepare a dinner in 1940. The arithmetic of elementary schools, without the addition of a high school course, would answer most of the prospective needs in that subject. A knowledge of music would be of more help than a hazy memory of geometry. The ability to express oneself with pen or tongue would be better than algebra."

In the opinion of the survey home economics fo$r girls should be encouraged to a vastly greater extent than it is. It presses, indeed, for its inclusion in the qualification for matriculation, and it suggests the appointment of a woman advisor for high school girls. She should be a teacher possessed of the proper temperamental qualities and should bear the title of associate principal. "The plain truth is that the programmes are practically forcing 60 per cent. of the pupils to take courses that they ought not to take, and would not be permitted to take if allowed an intelligent choice; in order to suit the needs of 40 per cent. who take these courses to enter normal or university," says the report.

DISPUTES AROSE IN FORMER DAYS

Election of 1881 Was Nearly Given to George A. Cox.

ONE IN COURT.

There have been curious situations in the past in connection with political contests in Peterborough. Many of these, seemingly important at the time, are buried and forgotten. But in 1881 it looked, for a time, as if the two parties, Conservative and Reform would amicably agree to agree and select a representative to the Ontario House, on what appeared to be a common sense basis.

On January 20th (1881), a gathering of Conservatives was held to select a candidate to contest the seat vacated by the death of W. H. Scott, at that time the sitting member. At the meeting it was put forward that Mr. George A. Cox, President of the Midland Railway desired the seat, and as he might be, if member, in a position to advance the interests of the town and railroad.

It was suggested by Mr. James Stevenson (Cons.), that Mr. Cox might be unopposed. Mush discussion ensued, the proposition being somewhat a novel one to the fighting rank and file of the Party. No decision was reached, except that a further meeting be held to decide on a candidate in view of what Mr. Stevenson had suggested. But before the meeting adjourned, the following gentlemen were proposed as candidates to establish a record: Messrs. John Carnegie, Hugh Waddell, H. H. Smith, Jas. F. Dennistoun and Dr. R. Kincaid.

At a representative meeting of Reform electors, held on January 25th, following, Mr. Cox was unanimously nominated as the candidate for his party, in view of the circumstances as noted above. A committee composed of Messrs. Lundy (J. J.), Stratton, (J. R.), Sanderson, Edwards, Moloney, Wood and Walton were appointed to attend the Liberal-Conservative convention and confer as to a choice of candidates.

At a meeting of the Conservative party held on January 27th, the proposition of accepting Mr. Cox as a representative without a contest was discussed. A proposed platform was brought forward to which Mr. Cox was asked to give his assent, and support. But the best laid plans often go astray, for a loose connection developed when further on in the meeting Dr. Robert Kincaid was nominated as a candidate and he, claiming to be much more of an Independent than he was as a Conservative proved to be acceptable to the Reform party and supporters. At the ensuing nominations, Dr. Kincaid was elected by acclamation.

An unusual dispute emerged from the election contest of 1891, between James Stevenson and George A. Cox, and found its way to the Assize Court, in which Clement Gordon sued T. G. Hazlitt to obtain payment for services as a canvasser in the interests of Mr. George A. Cox. A lot of evidence was taken and, after argument by counsel, the case was dismissed.

Sportsman is "as good as new" after one treatment

Sportsmen have learned a simple way to take out pain and stiffness when they get lamed up from exposure or over-exertion.

A Philadelphia sportsman writes that he caught cold in his back while out gunning and the next day found himself so stiff and lame he could hardly bend.

"I went to work, but had to come home," he writes. "I applied Sloan's freely and went to bed. The next morning I was as good as new, thanks to the quick and sure action of Sloan's Liniment." (Name and address given on request.)

It is amazing what Sloan's does for any kind of muscular pain. Just pat it on lightly. No need to rub. Sloan's alone does the work.

Instantly it sends a healing tide of fresh, new blood right to the sore spots. Your muscles limber up, stop aching and get back their tone. So clean and pleasant to use, too. Get a bottle today. All druggists—35 cents.

AUSTRALIA IS IN MIDST OF HEAVY ELECTION FIGHT

Communism Chief Issue as Far as Government is Concerned.

LABOR OPPOSITION.

Policy of Coalition is Denounced By Matthew Charlton, Labor Head.

SYDNEY, Australia, Oct. 31.—(By Canadian Press).—Both the Premier of the Commonwealth, Rt. Hon Stanley M. Bruce, and the Labor Leader, Matthew Charlton, have been campaigning recently in Nw South Wales, and the federal election contest is warming up noticeably as the polling date, November 14, draws nearer. It is becoming more apparent daily that the chief issue in the election—at least, so far the coalition Government composed of members of the Nationalist and Country Parties led respectively by Premier Bruce and Hon. Dr. Page, Treasurer, is concerned—is the question of Communism.

Premier Bruce continues in his speeches to associate the Labor Party with the Communists, and he criticizes Labor Leader Charlton for not stating definitely, if Labor came into power, what is would do against those who are "trying to subvert the present conomic and social system."

In a recent speech in Sydney Premier Bruce, replying to a speech made by Mr. Charlton in Sydney a few nights previously, said that every constructive suggestion which the Labor Leader had made was culled from the policy of the Goverment. Mr. Charlton's defence policy, he claimed was fundamentally unsound, and it showed such a lack of appreciation of the problems of Australia that, in the Premier's opinion, that "it must cause consternation to the whole people."

Mr. Charlton, in his speeches, charges Premier Bruce and Treasurer Page with misrepresenting Labors attitude towards Communism. He declares that the sole stock-in-trade of these two political leaders consists of fables of social and sectarian horrors which would arise if Labor were to come into power in Australia. He denounces, Mr. Bruce's immigration policy on the ground that Australia has a large excess of labor and there are no vast empty spaces except in the desert. It is in the expansion of home production of articles now imported that ways and means of maintaining a new population must be found, Mr. Charlton says. Labor would co-operate with the State Labor Governments in order to break up large estates for new settlers.

On the question of defence Mr. Charlton says that it has been shown that Australia could have 16 submarines for the cost of one cruiser, Submarines, he pointed out, need no expensixe bases and are particularly suitable for Australian needs and resources. Similarly the cost of a cruiser would buy 468 aeroplanes.. The Labor Party wanted money spent on the farms of defence which, in its opinion, should have priority, and the spending as far as possible to be done in Australia. In the policy of the Bruce government cruisers are favoured as the means of defence for Australia.

Further outlining his attitude on defence Mr. Charlton says Australia needs shore guns within whose range no enemy vessel would appear, and needs an aerial fleet that could not be outnumbered, and also internal means of production and maintenance He claims that the Nationalist Party and the Country Party are bent, not on the defence of the Commonwealth, but on forced contributions to Imperial expansion masquerading as defence. They are Jingoes and anti-Australian in their defence policy, the Labor Leader declares.

On the question of Australia's foreign policy Mr. Charlton says Premier Bruce has urged that Australia should have a voice in foreign affairs, which in the Labor Leader's opinion, would mean that Australia would be committed to any oversea war that Great Britain decided to enter. Mr. Charlton states that Labor stands for an Australian foreign policy developed in the light of day for a people determined to uphold their national rights and honest enough to admit that other nations have co-equal rights.

Mr. Charlton defines the Labor Party's general policy as embracing co-operation and government aid in marketing, agricultural and pastoral research, rural credit banks, extension of the Commonwealth Shipping Line ofr the cheapening of freights, the establishment of Commonwealth agricultural implement factories, and a comprehensive scheme of water conservation and irrigation.

The Labor Party, Mr. Charlton says, believes that a compulsory wheat pool is necessary and it would pay a cotton bounty of 2d. a pound.

Mr. Charlton states that if the Labor Party came into power it would make provision for motherhood endowment. It would seek an alternation of the constitution in order to bring about uniformity of the working hours throughout Australia, and it would also seek other enlarged powers with a view to benefitting the people of the Commonwealth in general.

FARMERS DISPUTED FLOCK OF TURKEYS

102 Pages of Evidence in County Police Court Case.

A dispute between George Ward and David Beck, farmers, of North Monaghan, over the ownership of a flock of fourteen turkeys, was settled yesterday by Magistrate Langley in the county court, although it was intimated that Mr. Beck would appeal the judgment by which he was fined $10 and costs or $66.25. The action was launched under a charge of theft against Mr. Beck, and had dragged through several sessions of the court, with judgment being handed down yesterday.

After studying the 102 pages of the stenographic record of the evidence in this case, Magistrate Langley decided that the turkeys belonged to Ward. Mr. J. A. O'Brien represented the defendant Beck and Crown Attorney Hatton conducted the prosecution.

One of the witnesses was a poultry expert from the Ontario Agricultural College at Guelph.

Apples, Potatoes, Roots, Buckwheat, Some of the Crops Caught by Frost.

Farm work has been at a standstill throughout this district during the week excepting here and there where a few farmers defied rural custom and plowed in the snow. So long has the tie-up continued that many of the farmers are beginning to worry about the completion of their fall program. In some sections there has already been actual loss to late crops that have been left in the fields and orchards, and the early advent of winter has created a situation that may prove serious unless that season poetically called Indian summer intervenes before the frost and snow finally seize the land until Spring. The tradition referred to is a bit of ancient advice in farm lore against plowing in the snow but even those farmers who adhered to the rule were rather vague about the hazards which they were warding off next year's crops.

Along the lake front around Cobourg and Port Hope great quantities of apples are still unpicked, other quantities piled on ground unpacked, and still others have been barrelled but have been left in the orchards during several cold nights this week. Reports from that district express the belief that some of the fruit growers in that section have suffered considerable financial loss.

Some of the farm produce still outdoors includes apples, buckwheat, corn, potatoes, clover, mangolds and turnips. The land has been so wet in many places that farmers simply could not drive waggons loaded with turnips from the fields ot the root houses. There are quite a few patches of buckwheat not yet cut, and potatoes are temporarily frozen in by the frosts of this week which dropped to eight degrees above zero. These are late potatoes which for one reason or other have been left unharvested, although the market has been soaring of late and may go higher if the effect of the blight further reduces the season's yield. At present the potato market is fluxing until the trade is able to determine what the eventual crop will be. Farmers are meanwhile asking all they can get. Orders to farmers who specialize in potatoes have been ignored, and some of them have been shipping freely to New York, Buffalo and other American cities. However, this market is expected to settle down to a normal basis before long, but for the present there is considerable speculation as to whether the remnant of the crop which has been caught by the first spell of winter has been damaged.

A Monaghan farmer told The Examiner that plowing is far behind its schedule, and in many instances little or no work has been done. Everyone is hoping that the weather will turn for a few weeks, but it is realized that with the passing of Hallowe'en the probabilities tend definitely to winter, although there have been many fine Novembers.

Formerly criminals in Iceland were put in the lunatic asylums. The Icelanders could not understand anyone being so foolish as to commit a crime, and being an exceedingly kind-hearted folk, thought all criminals must be insane.

WINTRY WEATHER HINDERS FARMERS

Much Plowing Has Yet To Be Done on Farms Around Bethany.

BETHANY, Oct. 31.—King Winter reigned supreme on election morning, with bright sunshine but cold, frosty air. Seven inches of snow covered the ground, pumps were frozen and two feet of icicles hung from the roofs.

A number of the farmers have not as yet got all their roots in, and prospects look very unfavorable for their doing so. Several reported 1½ inches of ice on their rain barrels. One place it was reported to be only 15 above zero. Very little plowing has as yet been done in this locality.

The regular monthly meeting of the Ladies' Aid of the United Church was held at the home of the president, Mrs. P. C. Brown, on Wednesday afternoon. The day was unusually stormy, so only six ladies managed to be present. After the devotional exercises the secretary, Mrs. Jones, read the minutes of the previous meeting and also gave a financial report of the fowl dinner which was held several weeks ago. All were quite satisfactory and were signed by the president. After discussion it was decided to give $100 to the financial secretary of the church, Mr. W. A. Jakeman, to be used for church support. It was also decided to have no further activities in connection with the society until after Christmas. The meeting closed by using the Mizpah benediction.

Town and Country Debate.

Between fifty and seventy-five young people gathered on Wednesday evening in the basement of the United Church for their regular weekly meeting. It being literary and social evening, the programme was in charge of Mrs. P. C. Brown and Ed. Bray, 4th vice-presidents. The opening exercises were as usual in charge of the president, P. C. Brown. Rev. Poulter led in the opening prayer, then Ed. Bray took the chair, and the following program given:

Reading by Leslie Challice; solo by Miss Violet Jackson; reading by Elsie Jakeman.

The event of the evening followed in a debate on: "Resolve that the country has more opportunity of benefit to humanity than the city." Those on the affirmative side were P. C. Brown, Mrs. Walter Rowland and Mrs. Leslie Challice; on the negative were Mrs. W. L. Rowan, Mrs. F. C. Dawe and Frank Bigelow. The time-keeper was Milton Challice, and ten minutes were allowed for each speaker, with a three minute reply from the affirmative. The judges were Mrs. T. J. Jackson, Miss O. Nelson and Miss Munroe. The sides were very evenly divided, and the speakers were for the most part very interesting. The judges had a very hard time to decide and the affirmative won by only one point. After singing a hymn, lunch was served, consisting of sandwiches, cake and coffee. The benediction was pronounced by Rev. A. Poulter. A silver collection was taken to defray expenses.

RUM RUNNER RELICS AT SHERIFF'S SALE

Two Bullet Riddled Cars and Distilling Apparatus Form Nucleus.

REGINA, Sask., Oct. 31.—(Canadian Press).—Riddled with bullets, two powerful touring cars, relics of the rum-running days of Regina, under the pronibition regime, were the focus of interest at a sheriff's sale here.

The sale was made under a judgment given Alfred Rubin, of Montreal, against the Prairie Drug Company, Regina, in the court of King's bench recently. The sale realized $16,000.

Besides the two old cars, there were 1,200 cases of empty bottles, a still, 220 oak barrels, 19 hogsheads, 185 steel drums, 28 small kegs and 14 crates of pint flasks, the full paraphernalia for the liquor manufacturing firm of several years ago.

Listed for sale were 199 drums of pure alcohol, containing a total of 22,000 gallons, but these were not sold. The Liquor Board refused the sheriff permission to dispose of the spirits, which was under bond.

Practically all of the material was bought by Mr. Rubin, who originally started the action in connection with some liquor deals made several years ago. If some means of selling the alcohol can be found, it is expected that the balance of the judgment will be realized.

A TONIC TO RESTORE BLOOD AND NERVES

Thousands of Work-worn, Weary Women Have Gained New Health and New Vitality Through the Use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills.

There are many women who pass their days in a constant state of weariness. They have barely sufficient energy to enable them to perform their manifold duties. Often they have an aching head, a miserable pain in the back, and limbs that feel as heavy as lead. The whole trouble is due to bloodlessness. This anaemia, or lack of good blood, causes not only pale faces and white lips; it is the root of many of the pains and miseries from which women suffer. It is said that anaemia causes nine-tenths of women's ailments. Lack of blood robs a woman of all her energy; she loses her breath when going upstairs, becomes despondent and irritable; and seems to lose interest in life.

A woman with plenty of healthy red blood in her veins finds work in the home easy. She asks for no pity; her vitality is at par. This points the way to health for others. Make new blood. You can do it with Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. These pills have the marvellous property of renewing the blood and toning up the nerves. Your improved appetite and digestion will show the effect of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. Your fatigue and your backache, your headaches and depression will vanish. You will find new joy in living.

Hardly Able to Walk.

If you are weak and run down, if your nerves are frayed, if you lack ambition, have no appetite, and are short of breath after slight exertion, the trouble is almost always due to poor blood. In cases of this kind you should take Dr. Williams' Pink Pills to build up the blood. They help to enrich and purify the blood from first to last dose, and in this way bring new health and strength to weak, run-down people. Mrs. John Timmins, Elmvale, Ont., tells of the benefit Dr. Williams' Pink Pills were to her, as follows:—"I became very weak and was hardly able to walk and had to be helped upstairs. I had no appetite and slept poorly at night. I finally went to a doctor who told me the trouble was lack of blood and that my condition was serious. He gave me medicine, which I took faithfully, but did not improve. I was advised to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and did so, and after I had taken two or three boxes, felt that they were helping me. I could eat better, and I slept better. I continued using the pills for some time longer and quite recovered my old-time strength and feel that I have to thank Dr. Williams' Pink Pills that I am not an invalid to-day."

Headaches and Indigestion.

Almost every woman at the head of a home meets daily with little worries in her household affairs. They may be too small to notice an hour afterwards, but it is the same little worries that break down the health of so many women. Their effect may be noticed in nervous headaches, fickle appetite, indigestion, pains in the side and back, and a sallow complexion. To those afflicted in this way, Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, by improving and purifying the blood, bring speedy relief. Among thousands of weak women who have tested and proved the merits of this medicine is Mrs. Gustave Hutt, Bruxelles, Man., who says:—"It is with profound thanks that I write to tell you what Dr. Williams' Pink Pills have done for me. Before I began taking these pills I was weak, and my blood thin and watery. I was so thin that I looked like a skeleton. I was troubled with headaches and indigestion, did not sleep well, and was terribly constipated. I decided to try Dr Williams' Pink Pills and I soon found that they were just what I needed. Under their use my appetite returned, my food digested properly, and I slept better at night, and gained in flesh as well as strength. The result is that now I am a perfecty healthy woman, and there is no doubt that it is due to the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, a supply of which I now always keep in the house, and I would advise other women to do the same."

Weary and Run-Down.

To get new health and strength the blood must be enriched. What Dr. Williams' Pink Pills do in cases of this kind is told by Mrs. Augusta Emery, Woolford Station, Alta., who says:—"Living on the prairie, and knowing that there are thousands of women like myself miles away from a doctor, I want to tell them what Dr. Williams' Pink Pills have done for me. After my first baby was born I seemed to have little energy. I felt weary and run-down and unable to do even the ordinary household duties. I felt I needed a tonic and as I had long seen Dr. Williams' Pink Pills advertised I decided to try them. I got a supply and carefully followed the directions and before very long the result was wonderful. Day by day I regained my former strength and energy. The pills seemed to give me a keen appetite and I gained in weight and soon was able not only to do my work about the house but to help with many chores on the farm. For this reason I would advise women, particularly those on the prairie or the farm, to keep a supply of these pills always on hand. One trial will convince you of their worth. I have recommended them to many of my friends and never have they failed to produce good results."

Nerves Sound as Ever.

There is no torture more intolerable than nervousness. The sufferer starts at every noise, is shaky and depressed. The least thing produces a feeling of irritation, and nights are often sleepless. Often although in a completely exhausted condition, the patient is unable to sit or lie still. The nerves are in this jaded condition because they are being starved by poor, watery blood, and to restore them to a normal condition the blood must be made rich, red and pure. For this purpose no other medicine can equal Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. They act directly upon the blood; they bring to it the elements necessary to enrich and purify it, thus bringing new health and strength to run-down, nerve-worn people. There is no doubt about this; thousands have testified to the blood-improving, nerve-restoring qualities of these pills. Among these is Mrs. Aubrey Coldwell, Melanson, N.S., who says:—"I was badly run-down and my nerves were in a terrible condition. I would start at the least sound and often faint away. I could not sleep at night, and only those who have been in a similar condition can tell what I suffered. At my mother's request I began taking Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and after taking them for several months I am surprised at my present condition of good health. My nerves are as sound as ever; I can sleep well and eat well, and have no more fainting spells. I can only say that I cannot praise Dr. Williams' Pink Pills too much for what they have done for me."

Brought Back to Health.

A woman with plenty of healthy red blood in her veins finds work in the home easy; her vitality is at par. This points the way to health in women who feel run-down and depressed. Make new rich blood. You can do it with Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. These pills have the marvellous property of building up the blood and toning up the nerves. That is proved by the case of Mrs. H. Eppinger, Scott street, Vancouver B.C., who says:—"Dr. Williams' Pink Pills brought back my health and strength and restored my nerves to normal condition after other medicines had failed. It was after the birth of my second child that I became so anaemic and nervous that I thought I would lose my mind as well as my strength. I tried several medcines, but got no relief until I was advised to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. After using a few boxes of these I could se a change. I felt stronger; my appetite was better, I slept better, and my nerves were stronger. I continued the use of the pills for some time, and again found myself a well woman, and I can sincerely say that my health has since been the best. I can cheerfully recommend the pills to all weak, run-down women."

An Operation Avoided.

At special periods a woman needs a medicine to regulate her blood supply, or her life will be a round of pain and suffering. It is at such times that Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are worth their weight in gold, for they make the new rich blood that banishes the symptoms of distress that only women know. The better blood that comes with the use of these pills strengthens every vital organ and brings womanly health and happiness. This is fully proved by the case of Mrs. G. Witthuhn, Arcola, Sask., who says:—"I am one of the many for whom Dr. Williams' Pink Pills have done wonders. About three years ago I was so weak that I coud not do my housework, or even go about without feeling utterly worn out. The doctor suggested that an operation was the only thing that would help me, but this I refused to undergo, and I returned home almost in despair. My trouble was all due to the lingering change of life. At this stage I read an advertisement of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and decided to try them. By the time I had used six boxes there was no doubt they were just what I needed, and under their continued use for some time my health was fully restored, and since that time I have been in the best of health. I am writing this letter in the hope that it may induce some other suffering women to use Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and regain her health."

A little book, "Building Up the Blood," containing many valuable health suggestions, will be sent free to any address upon request.

These pills are sold by medicine dealers or will be sent by mail at 50c. a box by writing the Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont

FERGUSON IN OTTAWA.

Ontario Premier Called To Discuss Situation With Meighen.

TORONTO, Oct. 31 Canadian Press—Hon. G. Howard Ferguson, premier of Ontario, left last night for Ottawa, whither he was called by Right Hon. Arthur Meighen, the Conservative leader.

In Ottawa Mr. Ferguson will today discuss with Mr. Meighen the political situation which has developed as a result of the election on Thursday.

CLEAR MAJORITY NOT YET GIVEN

Mr. Meighen Is Outnumbered By Combination of Parties.

SEVERAL DOUBTFUL.

OTTAWA, Oct. 31 (Canadian Press)—Early this morning, with seven seats still in the doubtful column, Right Hon. Arthur Meighen, Conservative leader, continued shy by six members of a clear majority in the next house. The election of S. G. Tobin, Liberal, in Westaskiwin, Alberta one of the seats lately classed as doubtful is conceded and it now appears very unlikely that the Conservative leader will get an absolute majority. Neither Premier King nor Mr. Meighen have as yet any statement of their intentions or views to make for publication. The combined strength of the low tariff parties, Liberals and Progressives shown by returns early this morning as 98 and 20 seats respectively, is one more than the total number of Conservative representatives reported so far elected, namely 117. Others electd are two Laborites and one Independent, the latter being Henri Bourassa. A tie vote exists in the dual constituency of Queen's, P.E.I., while in the remaining doubtful seats, in Alberta and Saskatchewan, five Progressives and one Conservative are leading. In the event of Mr. Meighen not obtaining a clear majority, Premier King is likely to meet parliament in place of resigning. The Prime Minister will confer with the Governor-General before making any announcement.

Mr. Gilbert Reid, senior, also contributed a song.

STATEMENT REFUTED.

French Losses Considerably Less Than Represented By Despatch.

PARIS, Oct. 31 (Canadian Press)—French losses in Syria since the beginning of the Druse tribesmen insurrection are placed at 585 killed or missing; of these a little less than half were French soldiers, the Premier's office announced today, in refuting press statements saying 6,000 had been killed.

The Government points out that 6,000 represents totalled killed or missing since 1920, when the French took over the mandate for Syria.

May Be Meighen Cabinet---If Called.

Higher Liverpool Quotations Raised Chicago Wheat Price

CHICAGO, Oct. 31 (Canadian Press).— Unexpected sharp upturns in the wheat quotations at Liverpool today led to higher prices here as soon as business began. According to some authorities, the Liverpool advance was due to spreading operations between Chicago and Liverpool, advantage being taken of an usual opportunity to buy wheat in Liverpool at a discount, under Chicago, and that buying abroad was on orders from here. However this might be, an immediate effect of this in Chicago was to induce active purchasing on the part of previous sellers and to bring about an advance here. Chicago opening prices, 3-8 to 1 3-8c higher, new style, December $1.48 to $1.48 1-2, and May $1.44 to $1.44 1-2, were followed by a reaction that in some cases went below yesterday's finish.

Increased offerings weakened corn and oats after an initial advance. Unofficial crop reports to be given out Monday were expected to show a larger yield of corn than was indicated a month ago. Corn opened 3-8 to 1c higher, December 75 to 75 3-8, but then underwent a decided setback, December touching 74c.

Oats started at 1-8c to 1-4c gain, December 39c. Later all deliveries showed a moderate loss.

Higher quotations on hogs gave a lift to the provision market.

Wall Street Stocks Boil To Record Setting Marks

NEW YORK, October 31. — Stock Prices boiled in to-day's brief but active session of the stock market. Motors were again a feature, several new highs being recorded in that group.

Studebaker fluctuated feverishly until the announcement that the regular dividend had been raised from $4 to $5 annually and an extra of $1 declared, when stock bounded upward to a new 1925 high at 68 on enormous dealings.

Log priced issues such as Dodge A and Willis Overland, were taken in enormous volume, and buoyancy again developed in Chrysler and Mack trucks. Another bullish demonstration in the southern carriers featured the rail group. AtlanticCoast Line jumped nearly six points to 220, Louisville and Nashville moving up to 133, and Seaboard Airline to 52½—all new high prices for the year.

Pennsylvania touched 50 3-4, the highest price since 1917. St. Paul issues were heavily bought in reflection of the announcement that over 50 per cent of the bondholders had deposited their securities under the Kuhn-Loeb-National City organization plan. The closing was strong. Sales aproximated 1700 shares.

TORONTO, Oct. 31 (Canadian Press).—The market on the Toronto Stock Exchange this morning further weakened with practically every stock dealt in suffering to some extent.

A feature of the session were the large recessions in Dome and McIntyre, following their recent rise. Dome sold down 49 cents at 15.66, and McIntyre 45 at 21. Trading was very light.

SARRAIL WON'T RETAIN OFFICE

Cabinet Decides That Syria Shall Be Ruled By Civilian.

REPORT ATROCITIES.

PARIS, Oct. 31. Canadian Press.—General Sarrail, France's High Commissioner in Syria, whose reticence with regard to the recent fighting in Syria, and especially in Damascus, which underwent a severe bombardment, has been ordered by the government to furnish a full explanation of the situation. He will not return to his post, for a decision has been reached by Premier Painleve and his cabinet that instead of a military commissioner, a civilian henceforth will take up the task of supervising the mandated territory.

The French cabinet for several days has been much perturbed over representations reaching it from British and United States official sources regarding the bombardment of Damascus by French artillery from Oct. 1 to 20.

Lengthy descriptions were given in this report of extraordinary and amazing incidents accompanying the shelling.

The British agent in Damascus in his report to the British foreign office, which forwarded its contents to the French government, described "atrocities" by General Sarrail's regime.

SEES CHURCHES UNITED.

All Christian Organizations May Be Fused Into One Body.

NEW YORK, Oct. 31. United Press. — All the Christian churches might be fused into a single denomination before the century was ended, Bishop Robert Castle Rudolph, of Philadelphia, dean of the Reformed Episcopal Theological Seminary, prophesied in an address here last night before fellow churchmen.

"The sixteenth century sow the formation of Protestantism, the nineteenth century saw the beginning of tolerance, this, the twentieth century, may well see the attainment of the union of churches," Bishop Rudolph declared.

His Dearest Wish

(By Jeannette).

Ephriam Smithers sighed. Then he went back to his task of re-heeling the Widow Anderson's shoe. It was the shoe that made him sigh, for the sight of the widow's plump little form and trim little ankles passing the window daily as he bent to his awl and last had caused a disturbance in Cobbler Smithers' heart. Jennie Lang, she that was now the Widow Anderson, was an old love. Perhaps she didn't suspect it, but Ephraim Smithers had been her constant adorer ever since the days when they went to school together, when he was a shy little freckle-faced boy, coming out of a dark corner at the noon hour to proffer her the half of a rosy red apple.

Ephraim Smithers had long ago outgrown the days of boydom and he had lost most of his freckles, but the shyness persisted. He was a tall, stoop-shouldered man, with a hazy cast to his kindly, short-sighted eyes and a habit of waylaying the school children who passed his small shop, to give them bright little pictures and a few candies from the bag that always rested on the shelf behind them. Like most cobblers, he was a deep thinker, and his views on politics and religion were often aired to the group of men who came to his place at night to sit around the little stove and discuss the affairs of heaven and earth.

Ephraim was fond of children and he had a deep respect for women. Although his friends never had guessed it, and the village gossips passed over Ephraim's case of unwedded comfort with the remark that "Eph" was always a backward one with the women", still he had always thought that some day he would be married. For years he had cherished the hope that he might have the courage to pop the question to some woman and make her the mistress of his little domain. He had even hazarded, on one occasion, while Tom Anderson was still alive, the difficult task of answering a "Heart to Heart" letter in the column of a big city daily, with a view to opening a correspondence with a lady who seemed to crave affection, but the lady had been too eager. She had proposed paying him a visit at once, had sent him her photograph, the picture of a red-faced, buxom creature with staring eyes, and had asked the size of his village and whether it possessed any picture shows or dance halls. Ephraim's courage oozed and the correspondence languished.

So he sighed as he bent over the little shoe. And then he smiled as he reflected that the Widow Anderson was kind and there was plenty of time yet. Who could tell? Perhaps some day he could muster up enough courage to call upon her and ask her to change her name to Smithers. He whistled softly through the tacks that he held in his mouth. He had always wanted to be a married man, and he cherished a secret envy for those fortunate males who rose slowly from his fireside after evening visits and remarked casually that "the missus" would be wondering what kept them out so late. His favorite reading matter was the "Wedding Bell" column in the newspapers, and his idea of earthly bliss was to see his own name figuring prominently under that heading.

The little village was shocked. Its inhabitants gathered in hushed groups on the street corners and talked about the sudden death of Ephraim Smithers. His little white dog had run whining down the main street that morning to the home of Ephraim's best friend, who went back to find the cobbler, head bent over a newspaper, sitting beside his cold stove. The excited shakings of his friend had failed to rouse him, and now he rested quietly in his little house, a placid look on his kindly face, his suit of Sunday black clothing the long, lank form, in his hands a little bunch of late bloom from the garden of the Widow Anderson. The village discussed the funeral. It would be a large one. Ephraim Smithers had been a well-liked man.

The compositor in the little village printing office yawned. He was tired and the hour was late. The editor, who was also manager and owner formed the reportial staff of the tiny two-man sheet that circulated once a fortnight through the surrounding community, had outdone himself in his decription of two events which had enlivened the life of the village that week, the wedding of Squire Thomas' daughter and the funeral of Ephraim Smithers. Each of them ran well over a column and the printer had spent much time in admiring the adjectives with which his chief had besprinkled both items. He had set up a wonderful heading for the wedding. It was a large, black-lettered affair, with the "Wedding Bells" announcement topping the whole of the front sheet. The heading for the account of Ephraim Smithers' funeral was slightly smaller, but still very imposing and would grace the second page of the fortnightly With two such imposing chronicles, the little sheet could preen itself on its round of the country and village houses. Jock, the printer, smiled as he hand-set the interesting-looking headings. Poor Ephraim, lying quietly on the hillside, wouldn't know much about it, but he would get a good send-off in his own paper if Jock White could manage it.

Jock yawned again. He was more sleepy than usual tonight. It seemed as if he couldn't get finished up to go home. He sat down for a minute beside the fire and fell asleep. An hour later, he woke with a start and jumped to finish his task. He yawned widely as he set the headings carefully over the long accounts. It was only proper that Emphraim Smithers' funeral should have its proper place on the front page. That's where it should be. So he finished quickly and cast the final copies of the miniature fortnightly. The dawn was breaking when he locked up the office, leaving the orderly little piles ready for delivery to the villagers in the morning He yawned again as he put out the light.

The little papers rested in placid piles. On the front page, under the flaring headlines of "Wedding Bells" came the name of Ephraim Smithers and the account of his last appearance in the village of his birth.

NO STATEMENT FROM MR. FORKE

Progressive Leader Requires Time to Consider Party Attitude.

WON'T GIVE OPINION.

BRANDON, October 31. — Canadian Press. — "It is a serious matter, and I would not care to make a statement without giving it careful consideration. I would want to know the personnel of the new government, which would be a very important matter, before I gave any expression of opinion as to the probable attitude of the Progressive party toward it."

Thus said Robert Forke, leader of the Progressive party, when queried at his farm home at Pipestone, Man., last night.

Mr. Forke was asked what were his views as to the proper course for the government to take in the present situation and to state how far he would go to assist the government.

Easy Lessons in AUCTION BRIDGE

New Series by WYNNE FERGUSON
Author of "Ferguson on Auction Bridge"

Copyright 1925 by Hoyle, Jr.

ARTICLE No. 5

There are still a number of auction players who do dealer do not understand what to do with certain types of hands. Most players know when to bid no-trump or one of a suit but every now and then they hold hands that puzzle them. For example, suppose you dealt and held the following hand:

Hearts — A, K, J
Clubs — 9, 7, 4, 3
Diamonds — A, K, Q
Spades — 8, 5, 4

What would you bid? The only proper bid with this hand is one no-trump and yet the holder of this hand passed. It is too strong to justify a pass for if you do, there is a very good chance of the hand being passed out. It will also mislead partner as to strength held. Here's another hand:

Hearts — A, K, 4
Clubs — A, 9
Diamonds — K, J, 3
Spades — Q, J, 10, 9, 8

Should you bid one no-trump or one spade? This is a very close hand. Personally the writer prefers a spade bid but would not criticize a no-trump. These two hands are indicative of the difficulty that still confronts auction players who have not yet mastered the proper bids of the dealer. The dealer is in a peculiar position for he can always give exact information. For that reason he should strive to bid correctly. To pass under certain circumstances is just as bad as to bid incorrectly. Don't pass sound bids for to do so is just as misleading as an unsound bid. Your partner depends on you as dealer to give exact information both by your bids and your passes, so strive to do so at all times.

Hearts — K, J		Hearts — 10, 8, 2
Clubs — J, 6, 3, 2	Y	Clubs — none
Diamonds — 9, 3, 2	A B	Diamonds — A, K, J, 8, 7,
Spades — A, K, 10, 4	Z	Spades — 9, 7, 3, 2

No score, rubber game. Z dealt and passed, A bid one spade, Y one no-trump, B passed and Z bid two hearts. A and Y passed and B bid two spades, Z bid three clubs, A and Y passed and B bid three spades, Z bid four clubs, A doubled, Y redoubled and B bid four spades. Z and A passed, Y doubled, B redoubled and all passed. Y opened the ace of hearts and then led the trey. How should A play the combined hands? After winning the second trick with the king of hearts, A should lead the king of spades. He should then lead a low diamond and win the trick in B's hand with the king. He should then lead a low spade and win the trick with the ace in his own hand. In this particular hand, Z failed to follow suit on the second round of spades. A was now in a position where he could count Z's hand very accurately. Y's lead of the ace and trey of hearts and the fact that B led the deuce indicated that Y originally held only two hearts. Therefore Z must have held six hearts. Z's bid and re-bid of clubs indicated that he must have held at least five clubs so that his original holding must have been six hearts, five clubs, one spade and one diamond. Therefore, A at the sixth trick should lead a diamond and finesse the jack. Played in this way, AB should make their contract for YZ can only make the ace of hearts and two spade tricks. Play out the hand for practice.

Problem No. 3

	Hearts — 8 Clubs — none Diamonds — none Spades — K, 9, 5, 3
Hearts — Q, 7 Clubs — none Diamonds — none Spades — A, Q, 8	Y A B Z	Hearts — 10, 7, Clubs — none Diamonds — no Spades — 10
	Hearts — K, 9 Clubs — none Diamonds — none Spades — J, 6, 2

There are no trumps and Z is in the lead. How can YZ win three of the five tricks against any defense?

Answer to Problem No. 3

Z should lead the jack of spades and A's best play is the queen. If A should play the ace, YZ will win the balance of the tricks. If A allows the jack to hold the trick, AB can only win one trick. When A, therefore, plays the queen of spades, Y should win the trick with the king and lead the eight of hearts. If B p the ten, Z should play the king then lead the nine. If B plays l should play the nine, forcing A lead. A can now lead a heart or a If the former, Z wins the tric leads a spade. If A leads the a small spade, Y will win the rem tricks. In either case therefore, A only win one spade and one heart so that YZ win three of the five t against any defense.

Tomorrow's HOROSCOPE

By Genevieve Kemble

SUNDAY AND MONDAY, NOVEMBER 1-2.

Sunday's horoscope holds promise for all that relates to churchly and benevolent activities, assists the finances and forecasts some change. It is urged, however, that precaution be taken against deception and that care be exercised with all writings.

Those whose birthday it is may have some financial encouragement during the year, but should be on guard against deception and sign all papers cautiously. A child born on this day should be ambitious and clever, but subject to reversals in business and false friends. It should have veracity inculcated in youth.

Monday's astrological forecast enjoins particular attention to the health. There are signs of some singular or erratic conditions, both in business and personal affairs. Fraud and loss by speculation are shown.

Those whose birthday it is are under the prospect of erratic conditions in business and domestic affairs. They should guard against fraud, deception and loss by speculation, and should protect the health. A child born on this day is likely to have some peculiar talents or faculties and find success difficult.

A BEWITCHING MOMENT

By Juanita Hamel

On Hallowe'en night, when the witches fly and the owls cry "Whoo-o-o" through the stillness of the black night, then it is that Dan Cupid enlists their aid in his cause and brings the bewitching moment of life within his subject's grasp. When the owls scream their saucy question, he looks into her eyes and asks, "Who else could it be but you, my adored one?" Then the witches mount their brooms and fly across the moon to keep him from peeking. For this is the night of nights, whenall the magic of this old world is working to bring happiness to lovers. So be on the watch! Don't let Love slip past you, for the masquerade emboldens the timid to ask the momentous question and declare love that has been buried deep in the heart.

The Secrets Of Charm

By Lucrezia Bori

To say that a woman has poise is, in my mind, a very real compliment. she does not have to be beautiful, but if she has poise, she is so often the type of person that others like to be around, simply because she makes them feel at home.

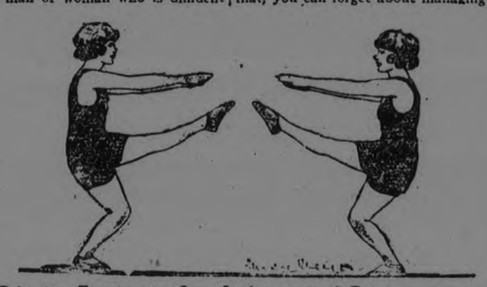
The man or woman who is diffident can be made to forget their diffidence and really blossom forth simply by being in the company of another person who possesses poise and self-assurance.

Now, poise of manner and an assured mind come only after their owner has learned poise of body.

To illustrate this, have you not often noticed a half-grown boy or girl who was so awkward that he or she simply did not know what to do with the hands and feet? Trying to solve this problem and find some way to dispose of the hands and feet occupied their thoughts so that they could not possibly have an easy manner.

Now, many people outgrow the so-called "awkward age," but the sad fact is that others do not. Some women remain awkward enough long after they have passed their teens. They remain awkward in body and this keeps them awkward in mind.

The first way, then, to overcome a feeling of diffidence and the drawback of being ill at ease is to learn to handle your body easily and gracefully. After that, you can forget about managing it and put your mind on other things.



This Balancing Exercise to Give Limberness and Poise.

The following exercise is an excellent one to teach you limberness and poise:

Raise your left leg out straight before you, bending your right knee as deeply as you can. At the same time extend your arms straight out in front of you, with the palms facing each other.

This position will require a keen sense of balance. If it is difficult for you at first, you can develop your sense of poise and balance with practice.

Next, with a slight hop, change the position of your legs. Now your right leg will be extended out in front of you, and your left knee will be bent. Your arms remain as they were in the first position.

Keep up this animated jumping-jack movement until you become tired.

It will help to develop your muscles and to give you ease of movement and poise of manner. The latter qualities are very necessary in a woman who wants to be a charming hostess; as well as a charming companion to her friends.

Gloves

(Written for the United Press.)

NEW YORK, Oct. 31 (United Press).—Although we have passed through an almost "gloveless" Summer we must follow Dame Fashion's decree for gloves during Fall and Winter months. To see a woman ungloved upon the streets on cold days is to see a woman who does not realize that smart gloves are essential to the well groomed.

Suede is the leading glove for Fall. Cuffed effects and slip-on models are those most popular and the leading color is tan in its various light shades. There are very few washable slip-ons being sold lately since these are being discarded for soft suedes, and kids with elaborate embroidery work on the cuffs.

At present smart women are either matching the glove to their costume or matching the glove to the shoes and handbag. In most cases it is the cuff which harmonizes with the color scheme of the frock, the glove itself being of another color. But when shoes and handbag are matched the glove is of the shade of the article being matched.

In accordance with the vogue for elaborate costumes the glove has become elaborate in its coloring and cuff trimming. It is not unusual to see a white glove with cuffs matching the color scheme of the costume.

Several smartly dressed women returning on the Olympic from Paris recently chose white gloves with colored cuffs. One wore a violet ensemble with white gloves whose cuffs were embroidered in violets of natural coloring. Another wore a navy blue suit with white gloves stitched in navy and cuffed in navy silk. Some wore gloves of the shade of the costume with wide cuffs of metal brocade, and several instances of the perforated cuff over gold kid were noticed. One of the most unusual models was made of Indian tan suede and cuffed in matching snakeskin.

Appliques of silk and velvet are frequently used on cuffs. Slip-ons of white doeskin with perforated edges are the only washable types one sees much of.

GREATLY PRAISED

TORONTO, Ont., Oct. 31.—(Canadian Press).—The diamond jubilee banquet of the Toronto district W.C.T.U. drew nearly a thousand guests to its feasting and speech-making. A birthday cake sparkled with 50 candles. Mayor Foster gave his official welcome and then Mrs. William Pugsley, in proposing the toast to the mother union of Toronto, told how the W.C.T.U. had pioneered in many reforms. Out of its kitchen garden department had developed the widespread teaching of domestic science. In the early days work among prisoners had been the deep concern of the W.C.T.U., and today the juvenile court and the domestic relations court were some of the rich fruitage of seed sown then. In Sabbath observance, women's suffrage and better working conditions for girls, the union had had its share. The motherhood of the W.C.T.U. was a motherhood of activity.

OTTAWA SHOWS KEEN INTEREST IN TODAY'S GAME

Senators Minus Two of the Regular Players, But Good Substitutes Available.

PRITCHARD HURT.

Two Local Boys Will Be Included in McGill Side.

OTTAWA, Ont., Oct. 31 (Canadian Press) — Tapering off with a light workout which consisted of a signal drill and formation trials, Ottawa Senators yesterday concluded their preparatory work for the exhibition game here today against McGill. The team is in good shape generally, and Coach McCann eased them up on account of the bad footing on tre big park.

Indications were that the two twelves would battle over a snow-covered and muddy gridiron, weather conditions of the past few days having played havoc with the field. With two exceptions, Ottawas will field their regular team for this fixture. Eddie Emerson is out of town for a week, but the team will not be much weakened by his absence as Harold Starr will be moved to flying wing to replace him. Tommy [illegible]hart, whose work in the Mont[illegible]ill-edged, will be [illegible]utside as a regu[illegible]ard is the other [illegible]rained a pianist [illegible]in Montreal and [illegible]n practice all [illegible]start tomorrow. [illegible]nterest is being created [illegible]t marks Ottawas' last appearance in a game here until Nov. 14th, when they finish the season against the Tigers, in what is generally thought will be the deciding game of the Big Four season. The city is rugby-mad and the whole sporting fraternity will be on hand in large numbers.

Tre appearance of two Ottawa boys on the McGill team is another item of interest. Ralph St. Germaine former star kicking and running half of the Rideaus who last year played off for the Dominion Junior title is doing the kicking for McGill, while on the back-field he is partnered with Joe Cameron, another Capital product. Both boys are well known locally and will have plenty of supporters in the crowd. Great speculation is being manifested in the puning duel between St. Germaine and Tubman. The former can boot with the next one for distance, his one fault as a junior being that he hoofed too far for his wings. He will be opposed by the Ottawa captain, who this season is enjoying one of the greatest years of his career.

The appointment of officials for the game is being left to the mutual agreement of the two teams. Walter Gilhooley has been named by Ottawas as their representative and will officiate in the role of umpire, McGill will bring the referee with them, or appoint him here.

The Ottawa team to take the field today was announced last evening as follows: flying wing, Starr; halves Tubman, Connell and Miller; quarter, Lynch; snap, Bruce; insides, Humphrey and Curry; middles, Timmis and Monohan; Outsides, Herbert and Young; subs, Ketchum, Cote, James, Chevrier, Ault, Ruels, Mulroney, Pritchard, Wright, Kirby, Tighe and Anderson.

Prior to the Senior game, Rideau and New Edinburgh Juniors will meet in a game which may settle the local O.R.F.U. Junior title. Should Rideaus win they will be champions for the third successive year, while a victory for the 'Burghs will put the triple-striped paddlers back in the title hunt.

One Hour's Drill Last Night After Arrival at Montreal.

TWO REGULARS OFF.

But Scullers Are Richer Than Montreal in Good Substitutes.

MONTREAL, Oct. 31 (Canadian Press).—Mike Rodden led a determined lot of Argonaut rugby footballers in from Toronto last night, and as soon as he had his Double Blue squad off the train, wisked them directly off to the McGill Stadium, where they put in over an hour's work under flood lights in preparation for their meeting with the Montreal Big "our combination here this afternoon.

With the exception of three or four players who were unable to get away from business, the entire Argo squad made the day trip from Toronto, so as to be rested for their important tilt at the M.A.A.A. grounds. The remainder of the squad arrived this morning. Argos have an outside chance of getting into a play-off for the interprovincial championship, depending on their ability to take their two remaining games from Montreal and on the outcome of the two-game series yet to be played between Hamilton Tigers and the league-leading Ottawa Senators. Conceded strong title contenders before the opening of the season, Argos are out to make up for the ground lost in the early games. They are travelling at a better clip now than in their first two encounters and are favored to score a double win over the local squad.

However, the team today is minus two stars, Douglas, diving middle wing player, and Thom, one of the outstanding outside wings in Canadian rugby, both of whom are on the injured list. Coach Rodden, too, has shifted his back division for the game, moving Hambly and Reaves to the bench in favor of McCormick and Paul.

This pair will work with Joe Breen on the half line. On the line the Toronto team is strong and is it on the front rank, backed up by the re-arranged half line, that Rodden is staking his chances of victory.

Montreal has a weakened team, Argonauts being much stronger in substitutes. Lack of good relief men has handicapped Coach Nicholson all season. Injuries had reduced his back division to a skeleton formation. Whittall was the only spare half man for today's game, but Jack Gardner, former punter of the Montreal squad, has returned to the game. Gardner has had a couple of days at training and is ready to enter play. McCaig will probably get the punting duty at the start of the encounter, but should he show any signs of being off color, Gardner will be sent in to do the kicking.

The stage is set for the usual series of Hallowe'en parties for all ages ranging from the tiny ones to the older people who mark the occasion by some festivity. Pumpkins, treasured with the care, are now in process of being made into grotesque Jack o' Lanterns. Several children's parties have been arranged.

LEGENDS OF HALLOWE'EN

NEW YORK, Oct. 31.—Today is All Hallow's Eve, otherwise Hallowe'en, a festival that was once eagerly looked forward to. Here and there, no doubt, the old Hallowe'en customs will still be kept up. The chidren will bob for apples, and the young men and maidens will roast chestnuts by the fire in order to tell by the way they crack and jump, if their sweethearts are true or false. But, speaking generally, these simple amusements no longer amuse.

However, they have lasted long. Two thousand years, at least. For this bobbing for apples and divination by nuts is a survival from the worship of Pomona, the Roman goddess of fruit trees. Moreover, this same pagan goddess is responsible for many other quaint rites peculiar to All Hallow's Eve.

For example, there is one which will, even in these modern, matter-of-fact days, call many a simple maiden from her bed at midnight to eat an apple before her mirror. If she does this, combing her tresses meanwhile, the face of her future husband may be expected to look over her shoulder into the glass. So, at least, runs the old belief, though how the charm will work in the case of the bobbed or shingled haired girl remains to be seen.

Apples and women have always held close association with Hallowe'en celebrations. A hazy mist of ethical mystery seems to hang about them which is ever brought to mind at the approach of the eve of All Saints'. But for women, the old custom of making merry at Hallowe'en would long ago have lapsed into desuetude.

As for the apple, it found its way into the observance long ago from the day called "La Mas Ubhall." Its pronunciation became corrupted into lamb's wool, which later was applied to the Hallowe'en beverage in Ireland, which was made of crushed roasted apples in which milk had been mixed.

Hallowe'en in the Colonial days in America was little celebrated save by some of the English and Irish, who still kept the customs of the Old World, such as apple ducking and snapping and girls who tried the apple-paring charm to reveal their lovers' initial and the comb-and-mirror test to see their faces. Ballads were sung and ghost stories told.

But America no longer gives way to the superstitious observances of Hallowe'en; witches, goblins, apparitions and bonfires are no longer a part of the day. The small boy and girl long since became its chief actors. For the grown-ups the celebration is confined chiefly to dances and special entertainments in theatre or cabaret. It is altogether a different Hallowe'en from that in the days of yore.

Yet is has lost none of its mirth and fun, even though it does not hold upon the calendar the place it once held. Whether goblins, witches or apparitions really do appear on Hallowe'en or not, the night is marked with much revelry and merrymaking. It is a night set apart for "spirits", though the latter are not likely to be so much in evidence as in the pre-Volstead days.

But mischievous "spirits" still choose the night for carrying off gates and other objects and hiding them or putting them out of reach. Bags filled with flour will sprinkle the passerby. Door bells will ring and mysterious knockings will be heard. Lights will shine from the eyes of pumpkins and special games wil be played by the young folk. These and numerous other reminders serve to keep alive the traditions of the ancient festival.

ATHLETIC BOARD SUSPENDS BOXERS

The Ban Eliminates Milligan From American Ring in the Meantime.

NEW YORK, Oct. 31.—(Canadian Press).—The State Athletic Commission yesterday handed down a decision indefinitely suspending William Ames of Clifton, Mass., and his entire stable of British boxers, including Tommy Milligan, Frank Moody and Wee Willie Woods, following similar action taken by the Massachusetts Boxing Commission.

The Massachusetts Board, acting because of Ames' residence in that State, suspended him and his stable under a ban for violating an agreement with the commission that Frank Moody would fulfill a contract to meet Lew Chester, in Brooklyn, before meeting any other boxer, following his cancellation of the fight owing to illness. Moody fought Homer Robinson in one of the preliminary matches to the Wills-Johnson fight at Newark, N.J., Monday night, and the Massachusetts Board immediately suspended him and notified the New York State Commission of its action. The suspension here followed.

The ban hits the forthcoming American invasion of Tommy Milligan, European welterweight and middleweight champion, who recently signed with Tex Rickard for three matches at Madison Square Garden, terminating with a title match with Mickey Walker.

PROHIBITION WILL STILL BE ENFORCED

President Coolidge Says There Will Be No Staff Cutting.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 31 (United News) — The Federal government does not intend to relinquish any of its prohibition enforcement activities to the States.

This was made plain at the White House Friday when President Coolidge was representd as believing that it would not be feasible for the government to leave the field of enforcement.

The President also feels, it was stated, that the present force of about 1,500 Federal agents should not be reduced.

A STUDENT IN PARIS.

Dr. Charles Saunders Tells Experiences to College Club.

EDMONTON, Alta., Oct. 31.—(By Canadian Press).—Dr. Charles Saunders, addressing the French Club of the University of Alberta spoke on "A student in Paris." One of the first things that a stranger notices about the French people, he said, is their love of speech. The women are the worst offenders, but women in all countries have always a lot to say! The French women speak much more clearly and distinctly than we, for laziness in speech is one of the Anglo Saxon's weaknesses. The student has great difficulty in choosing lodgings. Roms are kept at a low temperature.

MEN TO REVOLT.

Insurrection is Spreading in Syria Following the Bombardment.

LONDON, Oct. 31. — (United Press.)—Arab tribes of Deirezzor, Aleppo nad Palmyra are sending their women and children toward the Syrian desert, indicating the me nare preparing to revolt against the French masters of Syria, according to reports reaching here.

Cairo messages to the Daily Mail and Daily News say that insurrection is spreading in Syria following the outburst of anger at the alleged French bombardment and killing of many in Damascus between the 18th and 20th of this month.

One report claims that Deirezzor is already in the hands of rebels, who attacked four villages north of Damascus, compelling the French to evacuate.

HOT CAMPAIGN IN NEW ZEALAND

General Election Will Be Held on Wednesday of Next Week.

WELLINGTON, New Zealand, Oct. 31.—(Canadian Press). — New Zealand's general election will be held on November 4, and the campaign will be sharp as well as short. It has warmed up considerably since it opened, although there seems not to be any outstanding issue before the people calculated to inspire more than the ordinary enthusiasm of an election contest.

The Reform (Ministerial) Party's programme emphasizes the importance of prudent finance, business administration, taxation reform and the promotion of increased production by closer land settlement and the extension of scientific agricultural education.

So far as Imperial policy is concerned, Premier J. G. Coates follows previous declarations in which he has emphasized the country's loyal attachment to Great Britain and her readiness to contribute toward naval defence.

A new proposal put forward by Premier Coates is the classification of unoccupied lands for methodical development and the experimental use of unproductive areas with a view to submitting schemes of overseas settlement.

The programme of the Labor Party embodies numerous extensions of State enterprise, and particularly the control of land settlement under a new "use and hold" policy.

Sir Francis Dillon Bell, who has been Attorney-General and a member of the Reform Government since its inception, is resigning his office and intends to visit England in March next, but he may remain a member of the Executive. Sir Francis was Premier of New Zealand for a short time after the death of the veteran Premier, W. F. Massey. He is 75 years of age.

DIVORCE GRANTED.

Pole's Wife Went Back Home and Refused to Return to Canada.

EDMONTON, Alta., Oct. 31.—(Canadian Press).—A divorce decree nisi was granted Geo Kolyk of Edmonton, whose wife, Magda, living in Poland, gave him his freedom by written admissions, refusing to return. The parties were married in Poland, but after living in Canada for three years the wife departed, alleging that she was afraid to undergo an operation.

GERMANY WILL RATIFY LOCARNO PACT SHORTLY

If Not This Reichstag, the Next One, Says German Official.

PEOPLE IN FAVOR.

Official Says He is Convinced of the Allies' Good Will.

BERLIN, Oct. 31. Canadian Press —"We are filled with boundless optimism. The pact will be ratified. Internal politics cannot hamper it. There is a will and a way to peace. Both have been demonstrated."

One of the highest German officials who has played a leading role in the Locarno pact negotiations made these statements last night, to newspaper correspondents.

Asked point blank if he thought the Reichstag would ratify the pact he replied: "Either the present one, or the next one. That doesn't matter so much. The majority of the German people are for the pact. There is no question of that. Therefore it cannot fail. I am convinced of the Allies' good will."

MONTREAL, Oct. 31—(Canadian Press).—A blood-stained axe, presumably that with which Charles Bernard and his wife, Sarah, were murdered last week-end in their home at Rougemont, Que., and for which detectives have been looking all week, was found in a pile of brush about thirty feet from the cellar door of the murdered couple's house, according to a report received by Dan Lorrain, Chief of Provincial Detectives, from Detective Germain, who has been on duty at Rougemont since the discovery of the crime last Monday.

THEATRES

AT THE CAPITOL

"THE GOLD RUSH" IS CHAPLIN'S GREATEST.

Super-Comedy Booked as Feature Attraction by the Capitol Theatre Manager.

At last, the world's foremost comedian, Charlie Chaplin, has launched his greatest comedy, "The Gold Rush," on the sea of popular fancy. Announcement is made by Manager Crowe of the Capital Theatre, that he has paid the record price for any photoplay ever shown in Peterboro and that the celebrated star's new United Artists' Corporation release comes here next Wednesday.

For sixteen months, Charlie Chaplin worked on this production. During that time he was practically a hermit—recluse to all, save his studio associates. Only the vaguest announcements of progress on "The Gold Rush" came from his studio.

When Chaplin works, he burrows into solitude. He broods, agonizes, sweats comedy and its dramatic counterbalance from his soul. He creates by inspiration. When the mood is upon him, he toils feverishly. Then he may rest and brood again for weeks—and always when the productive throes are upon him he is sensitive to the thumpings of the outside world.

Chaplin senses and expresses more than any other entertainer, the close affinity between the ludicrous and the pathetic; his comedy springs from within—more as a matter of mood than of circumstance.

In the role of a hardluck sourdough, dressed in the baggy pants, the floppy shoes, the old derby and funny cane of early association, Charlie twists the sufferings of the Alaskan pioneers into a strange commingling of humor and tragedy. He thaws fun from a frosty, forbidding background. The treatment is wholly unlike anything hitherto done, and strikes a new note in photo dramatics.

This great picture will be shown in Peterboro at the Capital Theatre for the first time next Wednesday evening, and Manager Crowe has made special arrangements for the handling of the crowds. Also first aid treatment will be rendered to those overcome by laughter.

TWO ENGLISH PLAYERS IN AMERICAN FILM.

London Stars Portray Typical Yankee Roles in Carey Picture.

Two of the typically American roles in "Silent Sanderson," Hunt Stromberg's latest Harry Carey production, which comes to the Capitol Theatre for a two-day run next Monday, are, strangely enough, very aptly portrayed by two distinctly English players.

They are Edith Yorke, long recognized as one of the most gifted character actresses in the industry, and Gardner James, a sympathetic juvenile.

Miss Yorke was born in England and received her stage training there, beginning when a young girl. When she came to America, her experience stood her in good stead From various successful appearances on the stage, she drifted into pictures, receiving her initiation into the new medium at the Thomas H. Ince Studio.

Gardner James, though born in London, received his education in New York, where he later made an enviable renutation on the stage. For seven years, he played with such artists as George Arliss, and then D. W. Griffith gave him his chance on the screen. These are only two examples of the care with which the cast for "Silent Sanderson" was chosen.

"CHEAP KISSES"

Smashing Story of Gay Youth at Royal on Monday

What's the matter with the youth of today?

Why all these petting parties, hip flasks, roadhouse scandals, divorces, and all the evils that go with the 'jazz" age?

These questions are answered in a smashing indictment of the elders of today in "Cheap Kisses," the sensational photoplay which is coming to the Royal Theatre on Monday.

C. Gardner Sullivan, veteran scenario writer and editor, has formed his own production company and "Cheap Kisses" is the first of a series of powerful dramas of the screen to be offered by this company. Gardner's own stories will be filmed, assuring worth-while stories in every instance. F.B.O. will release the photoplays.

"Cheap Kisses" is a comedy drama of today laid in New York City and nearby, and deals with the mad whirl of the jazz age and its victims, old and young. It tells a story with a punch and with a lesson and tells it with intense dramatic episodes.

A show girl, but a "different" show girl, who loves a home and the things that go with it, is thrown into the hectic atmosphere of a millionaire's jazz parties. How she emerged unscathed, and saves her husband as well, is told in a gripping manner that holds interest to the very finish.

"THUNDER"—DOG STAR, AND CLARA BOW, HEAD "BLACK LIGHTNING" CAST

When 'Black Lightning" comes to the Royal Theatre, local devotees of the biggest and best pictures will find it an exceptionally interesting and thrilling story of love and adventure, and a dog's devotion to his master. The theme of "Block Lightning" is told amid colorful surroundings and staged in a most natural and picturesque manner down in the hills of Kentucky.

The cast, truly an all-star one, has "Thunder"—The Marvel Dog as its star, and Clara Bow, well known to screen lovers, playing the leading feminine role. Miss Bow for the first time in her career will be seen in a role far from the usual flapper, jazzy type to which she is known to thousands of admirers.

The balance of the cast consists of Harold Austin, who will be remembered as the leading juvenile with "Strongheart" in "The Love Master," Eddie Phillips, one of the leading character actors on the screen, Joe Butterworth, James Mason, Mark Fenton and John Prince.

AT THE REGENT

NEW STANDARD IN PICTURES.

"The Sea Hawk" is a big Production and Stirring in its Appeal.

Once in a long time there comes to the screen a photoplay of such magnitude, such general excellence, and such stirring appeal, as to lift it high above all others and establish it as a new high standard for attainment. Such a photoplay is "The Sea Hawk," a First National Picture, produced and directed by Frank Lloyd, and the current attraction at the Regent Theatre.

"The Sea Hawk" is that rare combination of an exceptionally fine story —a theme which grip one at the outset and tightens it with each succeeding scene, a superb piece of direction and a remarkable histrionic demonstration by every member of the unusually large and well known cast.

The picture comes closer to being real big entertainment than anything we have seen in a long time.

MISS McKANE PRAISED.

Erinsville Clergyman Succeeds to the Charge of Late Rev. A. M. Traynor.

LONDON, Eng., Oct. 31 (Canadian Press).—An interesting commentary by Miss Kathleen McKane, one of England's outstanding women tennis players, on the successful tour of the British ladies' tennis team in Canada and the United States, is noted by The Field, which says: "If it contains too little about her own achievements, which included two victories over Mrs. Mallory and one over Miss Ryan, it deals faithfully and judiciously with a memorable and exacting campaign.

Mrs. Lambert Chambers, declares Miss McKane, "had the happy knack of creating just the right spirit of enthusiasm during our somewhat strenuous and nerve-shaking ordeal, and though at times we felt perhaps overweighted by our responsibilities, never allowed us to forget that we were playing for the fun of the game, which added immensely to our enjoyment of the various contests. . . The American ball is more highly inflated than we play with in England, but after a time we found that we could hit it harder and still keep it in court, and so our play became much faster."

SMUGGLERS FOILED BY CUSTOMS FORCE

Manitoba Border Strung With Twelve Stations and 36 Officers.

WINNIPEG, Man., Oct. 31. — (Canadian Press). — Smuggling dutiable goods from the United States into Manitoba is no longer a profitable nor attractive occupation, states A. Code, Customs Inspector for the district of Manitoba, who recently returned from a visit to the customs stations along the international border.

Within the past two months the customs force at the boundary has been materially strengthened. Approximately 200 secret service men have been recruited by the Federal authorities to assist in combatting smuggling. A number of them have been assigned to the Prairie Province patrols.

All told, about 36 customs officers are now on duty along the Manitoba border, along which are strung 12 customs stations. The men stationed at these points constitute the first line of deferce, which aims to check the activities of the smugglers from the United States.

"The fact that smuggling has been greatly reduced is proved by the tremendous increase in customs revenue at border points, since preventative efforts were intensified," said Mr. Code. "The work of the force," he added, "has been tremendously facilitated by the co-operation of Canadian and United States customs officials, following the ratification of the Treaty of Washington for the suppression of smuggling, and made still easier by the severe penalties provided for smuggling at the last session of the Federal Parliament.

"Anyone who now smuggles into Canada goods to the value of $200 or more is liable to imprisonment for a term not exceeding seven years and not less than one year, on conviction for a first offence. The court has no option in the matter," Mr. Code explained.

The loss to the Government and merchants, through the operations of smugglers, has been variously estimated between $25,000,000 and $50,000,000. Any worth-while estimate, however, would have to be based on a knowledge of the goods actually smuggled, and estimates of losses are merely a guess," Mr. Code declared.

CROP CRITICAL.

CORN MORE POPULAR.

Western Farmers Use it For Diversifying Crop—Sell More Implements.

WINNIPEG, Man., Oct. 30—Corn is steadily gaining in popularity throughout Western Canada as an aid to diversified farming and it is estimated that 100,000 acres were under cultivation in Saskatchewan alone last year. Despite the scarcity of seed and high cost of production, it is anticipated that the acreage will be materially increased this year. Minnesota number thirteen and North Dakota White Flint are the brands most favored in Saskatchewan.

The increasing favor with which corn in regarded by the Western farmer, is reflected in the increased sale of corn growing implements. In 1920 the implements sold did not exceed a total of ten. This year approximately 50 corn binders were sold in addition to cultivating machinery.

Probably the only actress advertised all over the world by postage stamps is Anna Fuhring, who appeared in armor on all the German pfennig stamps from 1900 to 1921.

THUG PAL OF GERALD CHAPMAN SLAIN BY A DYING DETECTIVE HE SHOT IN DASH TO LIBERTY

Dutch Anderson Tried to Pass Counterfeit Bill at Restaurant.

SOUGHT FOR MURDER.

Detective Hammond Grappled in Dark Alley and Turned Weapon

MUSKEGON, Mich., Nov. 2 (Canadian Press).—The bandit slain here on Saturday night after he had shot and fatally wounded Charles Hammond, city detective, was positively identified today as Dutch Anderson, noted thug and pal of Gerald Chapman, super bandit. The identification was made today by finger-prints of the slain bandit and those of Anderson. Secret service operatives who arrived here this morning also aided in the identification.

Anderson went to his death fighting. So did Detective Hammond who, although fatally wounded, wrested the revolver from the bandit's hand in an alley in the shadow of the police station and then killed Anderson with the latters own weapon.

Had Bad Money.

The arrest was made after Anderson who had $2,200 in counterfeit $20 on his person had passed one for a box of candy at the Colonial Cafe Suspicious of the bill, the cashier sent it to a bank across the street. The bill was declared counterfeit.

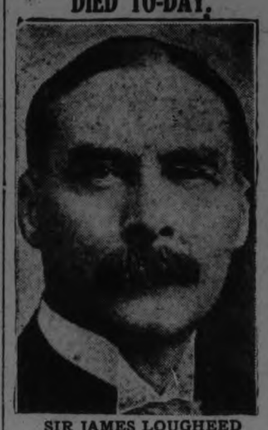
Hammond was detailed to pick the man up. Finding him in the town's main business street, the detective told him to accompany him to the police station. Anderson walked beside him for several blocks and then whipped a revolver from his pocket, shot twice, both of which went wild. He then ran into an alley back of the police station. Hammond followed, and Anderson fired at close range, the bullet going through the detective's lung. Hammond wrested the revolved from Anderson and fired a shot into his body. The bandit dropped and the detective, exhausted by his wound, sagged against the wall as Patrolman George Thompson, attracted by the shots, ran to him.

"Get him, he got me," said Hammond. Hammond assisted by two firemen walked to the police station. He died two hours later. It was five minutes after the shooting that Anderson died in the office of Chief Hanson.

Murder Charge.

MUNCIE, Ind., Nov. 2 (Canadian Press).—The bandit who is believed to have met death at Muskegon, Mich., was wanted here in connection with the murders of Mr. and Mrs. Ben Hance, who were slain last August. They were killed presumably because of Hance's testimony given at the trial of Gerald Chapman, pal of Anderson on a charge of killing a New Britain, Conn., policeman.

DIED TO-DAY.



SIR JAMES LOUGHEED
Minister of the Interior in the last Meighen Cabinet; Senator.

MAX LINDER AND WIFE END LIVES

French Movie Actor Takes Narcotic and Slash Veins in Arms.

WAS WAR HERO

PARIS, Nov. 2.—Max Linder, one of the earliest film comedians in the world, committed suicide Saturday in a death compact with his lovely wife, formerly Miss Peters, a wealthy Paris heiress.

Drinking large draughts of veronal and taking several injections of morphine, the couple finally cut the veins of their wrists with a razor and lay down on their bed in a hotel room to await death.

The alarm was given by Mrs. Peters, who called on her daughter and son-in-law to wish them a pleasant journey, as they intended to spend some weeks at a friend's house in the country with their daughter, 18 months old.

Learning from the porter that Linder had forbidden calls, Mrs. Peters went upstairs and, after knocking, ordered the doors opened.

The couple were found in a dying condition and were removed to a hospital, where the wife passed away seven hours later. The actor died later.

The reason for the double suicide is not known. Linder had been a neurasthenic for some months in spite of his personal fortune and that brought him by his wife.

The noted funmaker resigned as president of the French Society of Film Authors three days ago and apparently was even then planning for a dramatic exit from the world.

He appeared in American movies for a while. He originated comedy reels in this country soon after graduating from a French high school. He was 41, while his wife was 21 years old.

Max Linder, French screen star and war hero, was born in Bordeaux and educated there and in Paris. He began his motion picture career with Pathe in the early days of the industry and was to screen comedy in France what Charlie Chaplin is here. He wrote, directed and starred in the "Max Comedies" produced by Pathe and Essanay, among these being "Max Comes Across," "Max in a Taxi," "Max the Heartbreaker," "Max Plays Detective" and "Max Wants a Divorce."

In February of 1924 Linder and his wife were found unconscious in a hotel room in Vienna from what was said to be an overdose of sleeping powder. Later, when he and his wife were recovering in a sanitarium, Linder told a doctor that he and his wife had taken a customary sleeping draught, but had apparently mixed an overdose.

TWO DROWNED.

THREE RIVERS, Que., Nov. 2 (Canadian Press).—Charles Thiffault and Justin Mongrain, aged 13 and 12 respectively, were drowned yesterday in the Riviere des Envies at St. Stanislas, when they went through a thin sheet of ice on which they were skating.

Some of the islands off the coast of New Zealand are the home of curious creatures known as tuaterias, which as supposed to be the oldest living type of animal. They are distinguished by a quaint organ on the top of the head, known as the pineal gland, which is in reality a third eye.

Witches, Spooks and Goblins Flit Hours Away At Annual Revels Saturday Night In Peterboro

Spooks and hobgoblins paid their annual visit to Peterboro on Hallowe'en and flitted for a brief time before departing again to the misty realms of the unknown. This year some, thinking of Sunday and the enforced shortening of the time, took Friday night also and attended dances and parties in various parts of the city. But Saturday night was the legal and licensed period of revelry and accordingly weird little figures scuttled up and down all the street seeking what they could devour. Goblins appear to be traditionally starved and the quantity of apples, candy and popped corn consumed in the city Saturday night should keep the little folk contented for a whole year. In view of the occasion, it is fortunate that the apple crop this year was particularly heavy. They had a very efficient commissariat, as statistics show that not one house in Peterboro was missed, all were forced to contribute to the spoilers' loot. Those whose candy was just being made or had reached the cooling stage were visited frequently until the succulent morsels were ready, after that the candy disappeared with a magic rapidity.

There were some however who, by their sinister moves, could not be identified with anything so trivial. These were the real estate movers, the fence busters, the flower box bandits or th sign shifters, and it was with an effort to curb their varied activities that vigilantes watched carefully. Many complaints were sent to the police station, but the culprits were invariably flown when the guardians of order arrived. On one occasion, it is true, a group of goblins was haled before the chief who viewed them and shrivelled them with ridicule; very brave, these spooks, when in their cogenital gloom, but in the light they shrink with wholesome fear.

A record of the chief deeds is at the police station. At 220 London Street a number of youths destroyed flower boxes and threw rugs over the street. At Cross Street, others took a number of wagons from a lot; the caretaker of All Saints' Church caught a busy group engaged in moving a big drum of paint from the church building, and speedily halted the operation. On the corner of Hunter and Rogers a fence was

32 NORWEGIANS RESCUED AT SEA

Crew Taken Off Steamer by American Freighter in Heavy Storm.

REACH NEW YORK

NEW YORK, Nov. 2.—(Canadian Press).—The freighter American Trader, of the American Merchant Lines, reached port Saturday with 32 members of the crew of the Norwegian steamer Elven who were rescued in mid-ocean from the disabled freighter on October 26.

In a terse report of the rescue, Captain Hubbard C. Fish, of the American Trader, told how his ship raced 175 miles through hurricane weather to reach the distressed vessel.

The American Trader ran alongside at 10 p.m., October 26, but because of high seas and a strong gale, no attempt at rescue could be made until six o'clock the next morning.

The Elven then was rolling in the trough of the sea, with her steering gear totally disabled, all doors smashed, her after-bulwarks carried away and with five feet of water in the after-holds. All her life-boats had been smashed. The crew was rescued in life-boats.

Swept By Huge Waves.

Captain, Fish, who was staff commander of the Leviathan during the war, said he circled his ship around the drifting wreck of the Elven in a 75-mile gale, which soared to 100 miles in the squalls. For four days and nights, he said, not a man dared to go on the forward deck because of the mighty, foam-crested waves which rolled over and through the rails in tons every minute.

"I have always read in the marine records that the highest sea ever measured in the North Atlantic was thirty-seven feet six inches," the captain said. "When I stood on the bridge with the chief officer last Sunday, when the American Trader made two miles and one-eighth in two hours, she was on an even keel on the bottom of the trough of the sea, and the crest of the wave as our ship started to rise was fully five feet above the top of the gantry mast forward, which is fifty-five feet above the water line.

WEATHER

Yesterday was a pleasant day, the most pleasant Sunday for several months. The temperature was up to 46 degrees; the lowest last night, 25 degrees. October was marked by its cold weather, its many showers, and general unpleasantness. It was the coldest October since 1841, and its average daily temperature was about 5 degrees lower than usual. It had less hours of sunshine than any October since 1888. Its snowfall was 3½ inches; its rainfall 2.52. There was snow or rain on 17 days, and sometimes both on one day. The highest temperature was 66 degrees; the lowest, 8 degrees. A considerable quantity of the root crop is still in the ground I have been told. There is still a possibility that we may yet have our "Indian summer." An old Indian said: "The white man's summer is gone, but that of the Indian begins when the leaves fall. This hazy, smokey, dreamy period is not always an annual occurrence, but when it does come it is one of the most delightful periods of the whole year. It has not come yet. There is still hope. It may come in October, November, or even as late as the middle of December, and if it is the real thing it should last for about ten days.—W. P.

Mute Seeking Air Cure Killed When Plane Fell

INDEPENDENCE, Kas., Nov. 2 (United News).—Deaf and dumb since birth, Paul Gibson, 25, saw an article in a newspaper telling how a man received his hearing after taking a ride in an airplane.

Clutching at this faint hope, Gibson engaged R. R. Caulkins, 29, of Parsons, Kansas, as a pilot for the experiment yesterday.

When the plane reached an altitude of approximately 5,000 feet, spectators saw one wing collapse and the ship crashed to earth. Both men were instantly killed.

MYSTIC ORDER IS INSTITUTED

Murray Street Choir Take Oath on Skull and Scarlet Fever Card.

EERIE EVENING.

The annual Halloween party of the Murray street Baptist Church choir, was held on Friday evening at the home of Dr and Mrs. J. A. Morgan. Upon arriving each in turn was conducted to a mysterious chamber and made a life member of the Mystic B.C. D's.

Doctors in operating gown and mask examined each applicant and in every case an operation was found necessary before qualifying for membership. When this was done the new member was sworn not to divulge any secrets of the order, the oath being administered by placing one hand on a skull, holding the cross bones in the other, and kissing a scarlet fever card. Dr. Morgan and Dr. S. J. Graham were the surgeons, H. H. Graham an attendant, and Mrs. H. H. Graham, the nurse. Rev. Dr. Rose dropped in for a short time and was initiated into the new order.

After unmasking the members were divided into three companies and competed in several interesting contests. Many of the costumes were worthy of mention, that of C. Westbrooke being particularly amusing and interesting. Many complimentary remarks were made of the Hallowe'en decorations put up by Miss Webber, Mrs Ingham and Miss Maybee.

After refreshments a short time was spent in singing and story telling, a ghost story by Dr. Graham told in a dimly lighted room, ended by the appearance of a skeleton's head framed in a beam of life. Mr. Sutton also related some boyhood experiences with ghosts.

A vote of thanks moved by Mr. Westbrooke and Mrs. Sage was tendered Dr. and Mrs. Morgan for opening their home to the choir and in this was coupled the names of Mr. and Mrs. H. H. Graham for arranging the programme and Mrs. Kidd for refreshment arrangements. The singing of for "They are Jolly Good Fellows, and Auld Lang Syne, ended an evening of real enjoyment and pleasure.

The choir officers for the current year are: President, Walter H. Kidd; Vice-President, Mrs. H. H. Graham, Treasurer; Mrs. B. Miller, Secretary, Miss Trucie Pearson; Choir Representative on the Choir Committee, Mr. H. H. Graham; Convenor of Social Committee, Mrs. E. Sage.

Thirty Year Old Man Had No Apparent Reason For Matricide.

MIND UNHINGED.

SHERBROOKE, Que., Nov. 2 (Canadian Press).—For no apparent reason, Ira Houle, 30, shot and instantly killed his mother, aged 60, and then shot himself, dying an hour later. The tragedy occurred in Compton County near Moe's River. It is reported that Houle had shown evidence of an unbalanced mind for several weeks.

Love-Making Survives Feminism Unchanged

LONDON, Nov. 2 (United News).—Love-making has survived the new feminism unchanged, according to Arnold Bennett, the novelist.

In an article on the subject, Bennett says that the looks and habits of the modern girl have changed, but that the business of love making goes on as usual.

"Nothing has changed except the words," opines Bennett, and convincingness."

BELATED ELECTION RETURNS ON SUNDAY GIVE PROGRESSIVES AND LIBERALS EACH ONE MORE SEAT

Only Three Ridings Remain in the Doubtful List—Two in the West.

FINALS IN SIGHT

E. J. Garland, Progressive, Elected From Bow River Alberta.

WINNIPEG, Nov. 2.—With reports from outlying polls tabulated over the week end, two more Prairie constituencies were removed from the doubtful list, the election of E. J. Garland, Progressive, being indicated in Bow River, Alberta, and the election of G. Spence, Liberal, indicated in Maple Creek, Saskatchewan.

The standing of the parties is:

Alberta— Liberals, 4; Conservatives, 3; Progressives, 8; in doubt 1.

Saskatchewan — Liberals, 15; Progressives, 5; in doubt, 1.

The standing in Manitoba was unaltered over the week end. The constituencies remaining in the doubtful list last night were Kindersley, Saskatchewan, Peace River, Alberta and Queens, P.E.I. In the former the Progressive candidate is leading on the basis of very incomplete returns, and in the latter the Conservative is leading with a small portion of the polls reported.

The victory of Garland in Bow River which late returns assured, was the result of majorities received from polls in the rural districts. Jesse Couge, Liberal, who led the poll at one time, ran second with a Conservative, J. Douglas trailing. Mr. Garland represented the constituency in the last House.

With the success of Spence in Maple Creek, Sask., the Liberals registered another gain from the Progressives in that province. The fight was a tense one with the Conservative candidate a close second. The Progressive candidate who represented the ridnig in the last House was last in the three-cornered fight.

Uncle Sam Balances Trade With Canada By Shipping $22,000,000 In Last Month

NEW YORK, Nov. 2.—(Canadian Press.) — Gold to the amount of $22,000,000 has been sent to Canada from the United States during the past month, according to the Federal Reserve Bank. This shipment of bullion to the Dominion laid to the account of the extreme steadiness of Canadian exchange, which has been at a premium for months, offsets shipment of gold to the United States banks from Great Britain and Japan.

During the first twenty-seven days of October, shipments of gold from Great Britain totalled $32,000,000 and Japan had shipped via San Francisco $4,000,000. The inflow of gold to the United States is the heaviest recorded since May, 1924.

CHIEF NEWHALL HOLDS PARENTS ARE TO BLAME

Regrets Drift of Children Seen in Late At Night Parties.

ROD IS SPARED.

Believes Crime Wave Might Be Traced to Lack of Home Training.

That the irresponsibility of the youth of the present age is directly due to a of interest on the part of the parents, is the opinion of Police Chief Newhall. In this age of amusement he says, that parents are quite willing that their children should frequent dance halls and boot-legging joints while they, with the responsibility lifted from their shoulders, go to a movie show. Mothers allow their daughters to go on the street inadequately clad and as a consequence risk impaired health. Girls have a peculiar trait of wrapping the upper half of their bodies in heavy fur while the thinnest of silk is deemed sufficient to ward off the chill blast of wintry winds which assail the limbs.

The Chief, in reminiscence, pointed the drastic consequences which would surely follow if a child of a few years of age was to disobey his parents. He recalled several incidents in which he himself had been a principal actor much to his regret. In these days, it was nothing to hear a child flatly refuse to obey a mandate issued in a manner of simulated sternness by one of the fond parents. Indirectly or otherwise the chief believes that this same disregard of authority is the prime cause of the crime wave which is sweeping the world today.

The Chief says that the dance places are more blameworthy than was the liquor menace of a few years ago, in that it gives the young people a legitimate excuse to remain out until a late hour. Motor cars were also responsible to a great degree in aggravating this offence. Many of those who remain out to a late hour are children under the age of sixteen, but if accosted by the police they tell glibly that they are that age or even older. As there is no law to enforce carrying birth certificates they cannot be checked up on their statements.

Until the parents regain a sense of their responsiblity, the chief concluded, there could be no improvement expected in the youth of the present day. The attitude of the older people was in a manner of speaking selfish, as their carelessness was due to a desire to gratify their own desires of pleasure.

TURKISH TROOPS CROSSED SYRIA GOING TO MOSUL

London Reports Say French Granted Permission For Move.

TURMOIL EXISTS.

Area Around Damascus is Overrun By Bands of Brigands.

LONDON, Nov. 2 (Canadian Press)—A dispatch to the Daily Mail from Beirut, Syria, says large bodies of Turkish troops are moving toward Mosul from Turkey.

The Daily Express has a similar report. It puts the number of Turks at 5,000 and alleges that the French have given them permission to cross Syria. The report says Great Britain has protested to the French Government. Special dispatches dated Damascus, Nov. 1, confirm the previous reports of a dangerous situation. The Morning Post's correspondent says public security in Syria is non-existent. A large area around Damascus is in perpetual turmoil and brigand bands are creating havoc on lives and property. The situation seems quite out of hand notwithstanding the fact that General Gamelin, French commander, has taken control at Damascus and reinforcements have arrived.

In connection with the reported movement of the Turks toward the Mosul frontier it was reported in mid September that 70,000 Turks already had been massed on the Irak frontier of Mesopotamia as a means of forcing a favorable decision of the dispute over Mosul between Turkey and Great Britain.

PROSPECTS BRIGHT FOR FAMILY QUOTA

Those Who Spent Past Season in West, Approve Treatment.

WINNIPEG, Man., Oct. 31—Prospects of the 3,000 family scheme for next year are exceedingly bright and Canada should have no difficulty in securing the proposed quota of 1,200 families in 1926, according to Major R. W. Gyles, liason officer of the department of immigration and colonization, who has charge of the scheme as far as Western Canada is concerned.

"If the number per family averages the same as during the past season and we obtain 1,200, it will mean the settlement throughout Canada in 1926 of 6,000 to 7,000 Britishers on farm lands," Major Gyles said.

Up to the present time, he declared that between 200 and 300 families had been approved for next season. This was particularly gratifying considering that the 1926 quota will not sail for Canada for another six months.

Major Gyles stated that 365 families had been located during 1925 in the West out of the 600 families which had come to Canada under the scheme. Manitoba had taken 75, Saskatchewan 90, Alberta 135 and British Columbia 65, he said.

"I think," Major Gyles, continued, that as a whole the scheme has proved most satisfactory. The majority of the families have during the past summer, written letters home to their near relatives and friends expressing high appreciation of the manner in which they had been treated. In most cases the letters state they have received more than they anticipated. A large number of letters too have been received by the department direct. These letters to my mind are the best boost the 3000 family scheme could receive. It speaks for itself and will have a material effect in securing families for next year"

HUNTER'S PREPARE FOR SEASON CHASE

Many Licenses Issued and Gunmen Start Trek Northward.

Windows of hardware and sporting goods shops are featuring equipment for the chase, and in the early dawn of the last few days hunting parties have been seen heading for the northern lakes.

The duck season was summarily halted when the recent cold snap placed a scum of ice over the water, but the hunters of bigger game are hopeful of a good season's sport.

Chris. Graham says that a number have obtained licenses from him, among them the Jopling boys. They have gone to await the fifth of the month, when the season officially opens.

At White's store licenses have been issued to C. W. Young, William Thompson, J. E. A. Fitzgerald and J. A. Bertram.

A Cavan farmer has complained about the proclivities of certain hunters in digging up foxes indiscriminately over his estate. He declares that it prevents the dogs from getting their legitimate exercise, and also that the fun is not as good as when the fox is killed on the run.

RUSH CEREAL RUST RESEARCH BUILDING

Last Session of Commons Voted $50,000 For Development—Study Rust.

WINNIPEG, Man., Oct. 31. — (Canadian Press.) — Construction work on the new federal laboratory to be established in Winnipeg for cereal rust research, will be rushed with a view to completing the undertaking before Christmas. It is understood that the federal department of agriculture, has urged acceleration of construction operations in order that rust specimens from the 1925 crop may be analysed.

During the last session of the house of Commons an appropriation of $50,000 voted toward the establishment of the laboratory. Of this sum, it is estimated that $30,000 will be devoted to the erection of the laboratory and greenhouses, and $20,000 toward staffing and equipment. Provision will be made for further necessary appropriations until the objective—authentic information of the many species of wheat rust—has been attained.

In the interval, research work is being carried out in a modified degree, in the universities of Manitoba, Alberta and Saskatchewan, and at the central experimental station, Ottawa.

Two factors entered into the decision to establish the laboratory at Winnipeg, rather than at some more central point in the wheat producing area of the west. It was desired to enlist the assistance of scientists in Manitoba and other Northwestern states in the work. These men have been devoting their attention for some years, to the problem of cereal rust. The secondary factor has been that Manitoba, up to the present time, has been confronted with the rust problem in a greater degree than the other Prairie provinces. This condition is attributed to the invasion of rust from the south.

CHARLES PEAKER HEADS TEACHERS

Conservatory of Music Association Holds Annual Meeting and Luncheon.

The Teachers' Association of the Conservatory of Music held their first luncheon of the season on Thursday at the Conservatory. About 16 of the teachers sat down to tables prettily decorated in Hallowe'en style. The annual meeting was held afterward and reports were read from last year. The retiring president, Miss Palmer, gave a very nice talk on music and what is expected of the music teacher. Officers for the year were appointed as follows: President, Charles Peaker; Secretary, Miss O. Fowler; Treasurer, Miss M. Harstone; Social Convenors — Misses C. Edwards, E. Webber and F. Saunders. Before the meeting closed it was unanimously decided to continue as last year in having the luncheon and meeting the last Thursday of every month.

SUDDEN DEATH OF COLLEGE PROFESSOR

Prof. James Maver, of Toronto, Died Suddenly in Glasgow.

TORONTO, Nov. 2 (Canadian Press)—Word was received in Toronto yesterday of the death of Professor James Maver, Ph.D., of Toronto, for many years head of the Department of Political Economy, University of Toronto, which occurred in Glasgow, Scotland, on Saturday. The deceased, who was then apparently in good health, left Toronto on October 10th to visit his sisters and brother in Glasgow. Earlier in the year he had complained of heart trouble but had apparently recovered, but it is presumed he had a recurrence of that malady as his death came suddenly.

Prof. Maver is survived by his wife, two sons, Prof. J. W. Maver, of Toronto University; Wilfred, of Cleveland, Ohio, and one daughter, Mrs. Rev. F. J. Moore of this city.

WITCHES, SPOOKS AND GOBLINS

broken and a tub hurled at the front door of the dwelling. Some one in passing 929 Water Street threw an apple which hit a young lady in the mouth, causing it to swell painfully. The shutters were removed from a house on Gilmour Street.

There is no doubt but that through the day citizens will discover various little knick-knacks which never belonged to them while others will spend the next few days in idle conjecture as to where a favorite flower pot, choice bit of fence, or favorite cat could have gone.

Steeped in Tradition.

of A.D. 1925 devastated her marcelle day dates back to the dark centuries and steeped in their traditions the mystic revelries still hold and fascinate. When the shingled Miss of A.. 1925 devastated her marcelle and ruined her make-up over a tub full of apples, she joined the company of brave and charming ladies who have ducked their stately heads ever since the days of Mary Stuart and before. When at the shivering strokes of midnight, she muttered some ancient abracadabra and hurled a wriggling strip of apple peeling over her head she became a sister in faith with that first eager eyed maiden who stood before the Druid fathers, under a venerable oak, and breathed a prayer that the gods might be good and send to her the brawniest of the tribe.

Although the feast of All Hallows on Nove.. ber 1 is a strictly religious ceremony, the practices of Hallowe'en long antedate Christianity. The Druids, according to legend, held their autumn festival and ceremony of thanksgiving to the Sun god at this time of year; bon-fires burned on every hilltop, and it was believed that on the eve of the festival, Saman, lord of death, summoned the souls of the wicked for an early conference. Later the Romans left their mark on the usual celebration by adding some customs from their own harvest home, in which nuts and apples representing the winter's food supply played a significant part.

There is no thought of historical reference in the minds of today's youth as they perform the role of modern ghosts, fluttering about the lanes and street corners ringing doorbells and hanging personal property in places which the average human could see, but never hope to attain.

NEWS OF WARSAW.

WARSAW, Nov. 2.—Before ten o'clock Thursday morning, Roland Hamblin had shot a bear and a fox.

Men are bringing cattle home. Many of them are in good condition. The rains kept the pastures good.

Quite a lot of potatoes are still in the ground and most of the turnips and mangolds. Most of these latter are topped. People hope that the deep snow will keep them from being injured, and that there may stil be weather to get them up.

Wednesday's snow has made the work of moving threshers very difficult and slow, and there is still quite a lot of threshing to do.

Very few people have their Fall plowing finished.

If winter sets in now it will mean a lot of feeding. It is over twenty years, anyway, since all stock had to be housed and fed so early. There is generally plenty of straw and majority seem to have lots of good hay, but many corn crops were poor, and if the roots cannot be harvested the feeding problem will be difficult.

David Miller has brought home the thoroughbred Oxford sheep which he bought from J. M. Fisher of Woodville. He had taken the first class prizes at all fairs where shown, and was the champion at Peterboro.

OBITUARY.

GEORGE RUTHERFORD

(Contributed)

CAMPBELLFORD, Nov. 2—The funeral of the late George Rutherford was held on Monday of last week from his late residence on the 11th concession of Rawdon to the Rylstone cemetery where services were conducted by Rev. Hugh Shaw of Menie, assisted by Rev. D. A. McKenzie of Burnbrae, fromer pastor of the Rylstone Church.

The late Mr. Rutherford, shortly before his death had requested that the hymn, "The Lord Is My Shepherd," which had been his lifelong favorite, be sung at his funeral as well as other old hymns that had been in his daily thoughts through life.

The pallbearers were Henry and Alfred Hay of Campbellford, Isaac Lain of Bonar Law, Chester Meiklejohn of Rawdon, Alex Green and Frank Anderson of Bonar Law, all old friends and neighbors of the deceased, who had been requested by him to act in that capacity at his funeral on account of a dream he had had some time ago.

The late Mr. Rutherford was one of the pioneers of Rawdon Township having cleared the land and built the fine home where he resided and which is a monument to his active and energetic life as a very progressive farmer.

Besides his wife he is survived by three children, Garnet of Havelock, and the twins, Mrs (Dr.) H. T. Scott and Fred M. Rutherford of Bonar Law, the well known Ayrshire breeder There are also six grandchildren.

The deceased was noted for his cheerful and humorous disposition, always meeting his friends with a joke even during his illness which lasted over three years. He was a devoted father and never wearied of praising the efforts and achievements of his family. He will be sadly missed, not only by the members of his own home circle but by the people in the community in which he spent his entire life.

The large attendance at his funeral testified to the high esteem in which the deceased had been held.

MRS. JEFFREY WIDDIS.

MILLBROOK, Nov. 2.—The funeral of the late Mrs. Jeffrey Widdis, who passed away following some months of ill-health on Wednesday, October 28, took place from the family residence, King Street, on Friday, at 2.30 p.m., a large number of friends and neighbors gathering for the service, which was in charge of her pastor, Rev. F. H. Howard.

Deceased, whose maiden name was Helen Wilcox, was born in Millbrook sixty-five years ago. After her marriage to the late Jeffrey Widdis, their home was on a farm in Monaghan, and they later lived in various parts of Durham County, residing on the William Pendrie farm east of the village for some years, previous to removing to Millbrook, where they were living when Mr. Widdis' death took place, nine years ago.

Of their family of ten children, five boys and five girls, three sons predeceased their mother, the surviving members of the family being two sons, James, of Lewvan, Sask., Walter of Cavan, and three daughters: Edith (Mrs. George Johnston) of Lancer, Sask.; Bertha (Mrs. Jeffrey Powell) of Glamorgan, Jennie (Mrs. Ernest Powell) of Elizabethville, Margaret (Mrs. H. Trew) of Cavanville, and Miss Mary of Cavan. One brother, Mr. Charles Wilcox, and one sister, Mrs. Maitland, reside at Long Branch, Cal.; two other sisters, Mrs. Brindle and Mrs. R. Bonner, live in Manitoba, and the remaining sister, who was Miss Minnie Wilcox, lives in British Columbia. There are twenty-one grandchildren.

Among the beautiful floral tributes which covered the casket was a wreath from the Boneka Bible Class of the United Church, to which Miss Mary Widdis belongs.

Six of the immediate neighbors of the deceased acted as pall-bearers: Messrs. W. Pendrie, A. Payne, W. Mullen, E. Thorndyke, I. E. Needham and G. Howson.

Interment was in Gardiner's Cemetery.

J. C. CLEUGH.

BURNBRAE, Nov. 2.—There was laid to rest at Burnbrae cemetery on Sunday afternoon one of the pioneers of East Seymour, the late J. C. Cleugh. The deceased was in his ninety-sixth year and had continued in good health until a few months ago, when illness set in, finally resulting in his death on Thursday last.

For the major part of his life Mr. Cleugh resided on the farm on the town line now owned by Mr. Geo. Dunk. He settled there when coming to this country from Scotland with his parents and here his large family was raised and Mr. Cleugh himself carried on as one of the leading farmers of the district until age forced him to give over active work and he moved to Campbellford. Some years ago Mr. Cleugh went to Hamilton to live with his daughter, Mrs. Brown, and has resided there since.

The funeral on Sunday was held from Watson's undertaking parlors, Campbellford, and service was held in Burnbrae church, Rev. D. A. McKenzie conducting the service. His text was Romans, 6:23, "The wages of sin is death, but the gift of God is eternal life." Mrs. Chas. Milne and Mrs. G. W. Taylor contributed a splendid duet.

Three sons and three daughters remain to mourn the loss of a loving father. They are Henry and Edward in the west, Robert C., Seymour East, Mrs. Brown, Hamilton, Mrs. Collins, Toronto and Mrs. Fair, Kingston.

Here is the Proof

That Dr. Chase's Ointment does positively relieve the most severe cases of piles.

While Dr. Chase's Ointment is recognized everywhere as the standard treatment for piles you may be interested in this letter which describes one particular case. There are thousands of similar cases.

Mrs. Wm. Hughes, Appin, Ont. writes:—"Dr. Chase's Ointment cannot be equalled. I used it for protruding piles of the worst kind. When the Doctor said an operation was the only hope, I began to prepare for one, when I remembered reading about Dr. Chase's Ointment. I resolved to try it, and after using two boxes I had no trace of the piles. It was the greatest relief I ever got, and I only hope other sufferers who read this letter will lose no time in purchasing a box, and see for themselves the miracles it works. It will be the best investment they ever put their money into."

MISSIONARY VISITS MILLBROOK CHURCH

Speaks in Interest of $4,000,000 Maintenance and Extension Fund.

MILLBROOK, Nov. 2.—Rev. Dr. Noyes of Toronto addressed a gathering in the United Church recently, fowl suppers and other attractions in the neighborhood, combined with muddy roads, lessening the attendance, but not the interest in the occasion.

Dr. Noyes, for the past five years, has been in charge of the Chinese work in the Dominion, and was for seventeen years a missionary in China, being taken to that country when only one year old, and remaining there until in his twenty-seventh year. Later he returned as a mission worker.

But it was not of his experiences either as an overseas or a home missionary that Dr. Noyes spoke when here, but in the interests of the $4,000,000 maintenance and extension fund which is being launched this month by the United Church.

Allotments of this fund have been made to each conference, the largest amount, $93,000, being given the Bay of Quinte Conference to raise. For convenience of handling the sixty circuits have been divided into groups, and the Rev. F. H. Howard has been appointed chairman for the six circuits: Millbrook, Fraserville, Cavanville, Bethany, Pontypool and Janetville, which comprise the local group.

It was hoped that every circuit would have been represented to hear Dr. Noyes' address, and gain information during the round table conference, led by Rev. H. W. Foley, of Fraserville, at its close, but not all were able to accept the invitation to be present.

"Task, burden, duty, are words I do not like," Dr. Noyes said. "I prefer to use instead, opportunity, privilege, service, with the thought that we are fellow-workers with our Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ."

"There is still something to do to make Canada entirely Christian, and we may share in maintaining religious services in many communities in the West which are either not served at all at present, or kept open only during the summer months. Over $2,000,000 of the amount proposed to be raised will be used for mission work at home and abroad."

"What will it mean to have the whole United Church praying intelligently in detail for the advancement of the Kingdom, their money gifts consecrated because looked upon as a real part of worship and service?"

"The United Church must come across: if she falls down this first years it will have a disastrous effect upon the future years. Our leaders are not dictatorial, but they wish to present the matter in such a way that our people will be glad to give, 'not from the top of their purses, but from the bottom of their hearts.' No man wishes to be conscious for another, but let each ask himself the question, What is my share of this great undertaking?"

In this general budget fund, Dr. Noyes explained, it is proposed to cover everything the United Church is going to ask for during the year. it will practically be only a maintenance fund as it admits of but a very small margin for extension purposes.

Educational leaflets will be given out each Sunday in the various churches, explaining the need, and the every person canvass will take place in the week November 22 to 29. Each congregation will arrange its own way of raising the amount allotted to it, the year closing in April, 1926, and any amounts already paid in, such as the Rally Day offering, counting in the total for which the church is responsible.

"FLAPPER" COMMENT.

Camp Fire Girl's Protest Won Editorial Approval From Gazette.

MONTREAL, Que., Nov. 3. — (By Canadian Press). The Gazette has a editorial on the Camp-Fire Girls who have protested against the word "flapper." It agrees that they are right in objecting: "It is not good English, it might very well suit a crazy door, a groaning shutter, a motor car hood off the hooks, or a wet flag smacking hard up against a rain-soaked pole. But the fair sex? Never. The thing is unthinkable. It is an outrage upon our native tongue, of which the damosals have usually the larger share. The up-to-date girl is modern. That sounds better. She has ambition, independence, a way of her own, and is gifted with robust common-sense. She can go one better than Grandma and not hurt anybody. And then again nobody has the least cause to cavil about the way in which she can and will doff all the streamers and roll the delicious crust of some home made apple pie. At fashions she is dapper. At household affairs she comes pretty night being a perfect capper. And there you are."

RAILWAY MAN HAS RETIRED FROM WORK

James Coleman Honored By Fellow Executives of National Lines.

"As a mark of their tribute and esteem to a railroad man of long standing and to a business associate, more than 50 officials of the Canadian National Railways tendered a luncheon Tuesday to James Coleman, General Superintendent of Car Equipment for the Central Region, upon his retirement from active railroad work after 52 years of service. A pleasing feature of the event was the presentation to Mr. Coleman of a purse of gold and a fully equipped travelling bag.

'J. C. Garden, General Superintendent of Motive Power, presided over the meeting. The presentation to Mr. Coleman was made by C. R. Moore, General Superintendent of Transportation, while, on behalf of the Operating Department, A. E. Warren, General Manager of the Central Region, said farewell to Mr. Coleman. Some idea of the popularity of Mr. Coleman was given by L. L. Grabill, General Baggage Agent.

"Mr. Coleman is probably one of the best-known officials in railway service in Canada and the United States. He started work with the Grand Trunk as a Car Department apprentice in 1873, and in January, 1908, became Superintendent, Car Department, Grand Trunk, Montreal. On March 1, 1923, he was appointed General Superintendent, Car Equipment, of the Central Region, with headquarters at Toronto. —Toronto Globe.

Mr. Coleman is the father of Mrs. M. E. Shaver, 780 Water Street, Peterboro.

BOTTLE MESSAGE TELLS TRAGEDY

Ship Reported Lost in Atlantic Gales of a Week Ago.

QUEBEC, Nov. 2—"Lost in storm, written by one of the ship wrecked crew of the S. S. Alphrad, Holland. Please be kind enough to forward this to safe keeping. Happened, Oct. 25, 1925. Written by Ye Teolsan. Adieu."

The above message, countersigned by "Captain Banderweeveen" was found in a bottle in the St. Lawrence River near the lighthouse on Ste. Felicite, Matan County, on Oct. 27th. The message was written in Dutch and following its transaltion by Abde Desmet, of Laval University, it was sent to the department of marine and fisheries at Ottawa.

The Dutch steamer Alphard, 2,170 tons sailed from Montreal bound for Rotterdam on Saturday, Oct. 24. Her master was A. Van Waarden.

It was last Sunday (Oct. 25) that great gales swept the entire Atlantic coast, reaching into the St. Lawrence. Considerable damage was done to shipping and several trans-Atlantic liners were held up for several hours in the gulf. October 25 is the date given in the message.

The Quebec desaptch states that the communication was countersigned by "Captain BanderWeeveen" but marie records give the name of the master of the Alphard as Van Waarden.

THE EXAMINER'S THANKS.

The thanks of the Examiner are extended to all those who co-operated in making possible such a complete election service on Thursday night.

In no previous election have the returns from the local riding been received so speedily, and for that most satisfactory result the Examiner acknowledges gratefully its obligation to the deputy-returning officers and other officials in all parts of the riding who lost no time after the votes were counted in informing the Examiner of the results of their respective polls.

The same splendid service was furnished in other parts of the district by election officials, enabling the Examiner to give the results in Hastings-Peterboro and Northumberland promptly and accurately.

In addition, the Examiner thanks the members of the two local political organizations for their co-operation in securing the returns, the Bell Telephone Company for the fine service provided, and the Canadian National and Canadian Pacific Telegraph Companies for the speed and accuracy of their reports from all parts of the Dominion.

All this assistance made it possible for the Examiner by means of bulletins, megaphone announcements and three extras to give Peterboro perhaps the most complete, detailed and accurate election night service that this paper has provided.

A SPLENDID VOTE.

Peterboro is to be congratulated upon the size of the vote polled here on Thursday when almost 75 per cent. of the vote on the lists was registered at the polls.

When allowance is made for the number of absentees and for those who were too ill to use their franchise, it is probably not too high an estimate to say that eight out of every ten people who could have voted Thursday did so—a showing much more creditable than usual.

Some of the credit for this showing, of course, must go to the two political organizations who used huge fleets of motor cars in bringing out the vote, and who did not desist from their efforts until every possible ballot had been marked.

But outside of that factor altogether it is evident that the people as a whole took a much deeper interest in Thursday's election than in many of the campaigns of the past, possibly because both parties used a record amount of advertising space during the contest.

Whatever the reasons may be, the large vote is a healthy sign.

When half of the electors refuse to take any part in choosing parliamentary representatives or in deciding policies, as has been the case in some elections, there is always room to question the reliability of the verdict as an accurate barometer of public opinion.

Thursday's showing indicates that the electors are being alive to their responsibility as citizens, and that they propose to have a voice in the affairs of this country—instead of allowing somebody else to do the voting for them, as too many have done in the past.

LOCARNO'S AUGURY.

There are times when skepticism may properly be tinged with optimism, says Barron's. The world's inclination to say amen to the felicitations at Locarno appears to be of that sort. If millennial peace is not assured, at least much menace or obstruction, as affecting Europe's immediate future, is cleared away.

The world has become weary as well as skeptical after so many abortive conferences in Europe. Its first bit of reassurance had come with the change in basis of handling inaugurated by the Dawes Commission. Now the Locarno augury of success is similarly based on a change in both spirit and method from the first vengeful, punitive, feudist days.

As Washington has more than once reminded Europe, the right mood, the true will for peace, is an absolutely essential premise. That was the first big asset gain at Locarno, greatly emphasized by the new plane of equality in negotiation. With that, the slowly attained appreciation in Europe of the worthwhileness of being neighborly and the futility of feuds. Linked with all such considerations the practical element of the present tangible value, in terms of budgets and credits, of assuring an immediate future of tranquility in the old cockpit of human warfare.

All along America has felt with accurate instinct in its own detachment that it was Europe's own business and concern to compose these old feuds. The source was local and ancient; so must the treatment be localized. The five-fold pact at Locarno is the logical outcome. Its respective provisions, beginning with the central thought of Franco-German concord, translate these general considerations. A little nook in neutral Switzerland is a fitting tomb for the old, long-rusted, often repolished, sword.

And there are probably future fruits of advantage. Here may well be, as intimated from Washington, the germ of new effort to attain world dimensions in disarmament.

ANOTHER ELECTION.

The one certainty amid all the conjecture as to what the next developments in the political situation will be is that within a few months, certainly within a year, the people of Canada will be called upon to face another general election.

Whether Mr. King resigns and throws the responsibility of attempting to form a Government upon Mr. Meighen, or whether he decides to remain in office and face Parliament at the next session, it is obvious that another appeal to the country cannot long be avoided.

In his speech at Richmond Hill in September when he announced the decision of the Government to seek a fresh mandate from the people, the Premier declared that the situation in the House prevented the Government from putting into effect its complete legislative programme, and remarked that under such conditions it would be a waste of time and of public money to attempt to hold another session.

At that time the Government had a majority of one over all parties in the House, and was able to count upon the support of 62 Progressive members, while the official Opposition numbered but 51 members.

If the Premier felt that with such support available it was not advisable to carry on for another session, it is surely apparent that he cannot hope to have his Government function long now when it numbers nearly a score less than the official Opposition and when it requires the united backing of all other groups in the House to secure a majority over the party lead by Mr. Meighen.

On the other hand, it is equally evident that Mr. Meighen, although he leads the biggest group in the House and came close to getting a clear majority, cannot expect to hold office should he be called upon to form a Government, inasmuch as the elements opposing him, with the exception of two or three individual members, would undoubtedly oppose any upward revision of the tariff.

The situation is the nearest approach to a deadlock that Canada has seen, and the only way out is through the medium of another election, which would probably give one or other of the two old parties that majority over all that is absolutely necessary if firm, decisive action is obtained in the government of this country.

None of Canada's problems can be solved by the only sort of administration that could be furnished by either Mr. King or Mr. Meighen under the present conditions, and whatever temporary course of action may be decided upon there is not the slightest doubt that an appeal to the electors will follow within a few months.

FINDING THE WEAK SPOT.

It is not often that a paper such as the Wall Street Journal, which of necessity is immersed in the affairs of business, stops to devote front-page space to the question of religion, says the London Advertiser. New York has been stirred in recent weeks by the enormity of crime in that city; the Journal was considering one case where $650,000 was involved in a burglary record. At the same time President Coolidge was making an address on the remedy for lawlessness, which, he said, is "altogether too prevalent."

Not the police power of the Government, he said, could provide the remedy. All the efforts of the police power will be wasted if there is not a determination on the part of the people to observe the law. But laws cannot furnish that determination, and President Coolidge stated frankly that respect for law can come only from religion, upon which the government rests.

The Wall Street Journal recounts the words of Clarence Darrow, himself an atheist, when pleading the case of Loeb and Leopold in Chicago: "They had no religious training at home." That lawyer, adds the Journal, unconsciously put his finger on the sore spot.

It is significant that as leaders of thought and men of high estate look over the social fabric of a great nation to see what is wrong they come to the same conclusion. They agree that they have laws, plenty of them; they are convinced they have sufficient police, and yet the crime record mounts. So they are looking farther upstream, going back to the place in national life before police and laws were the potent factors in determining action. This has brought them back to the fireside of the nation, and there they stand pointing the accusing finger at those who have neglected and are neglecting the teaching of religion to the young lives entrusted to their care.

ADVERTISING AGAINST CRIME.

Crime has become so prevalent in the United States that several hundred citizens of Brooklyn, mostly business men, have raised a fund with which to fight it, their main reliance being a newspaper advertising campaign.

The advertisements already put out declare that the number of murders in the U. S. has increased from 5 per 100,0000 of population to 10 per 100,000 during the last 25 years, and that in 1923 no less than 100,000 persons were foully done to death. Responsibility for the growth of crime and the escape of criminals without punishment is largely placed on the elective system of appointing magistrates, prosecuting attorneys and sheriffs.

Jewish rabbis, Roman Catholic ministers and Protestant ministers are co-operating with the business men in their advertising campaign. One striking advertisement, headed "The Clutch of Crime," shows a criminal hand grasping the top of a church spire. It asks the question, "Will it tear down the Church? And—if it does, what will happen?" It goes on to answer its own question by saying:

"Chaos would reign in all parts of the civilized world. Your property would be valueless. Your business would be wrecked. Your home would vanish. Your family would be unsafe. You and your neighbors would revert to the social condition of the cavemen, when the strongest arm, swinging the biggest club, took whatever its owner desired.

"It is the Church that has sustained whatever progress we have today. Religion rules mankind. It is the backbone of our laws. It is the corner-stone of our faith in one another, without which there could be no business, no social stability.

"It is the plain duty of every citizen to support the Church, without which Brooklyn could not support us. Are YOU doing your part? The Church wants YOU. Not just your money, but your presence at Church services, your active interest in Church enterprises, your work in Church extension, your personal effort in evangelization.

"Non-churchgoers are exerting a most malicious influence. Smug indifference is responsible for all that is wrong with our city. Do you sit idly by and criticize? Are YOU a shirker?

"Prove yourself a good citizen, show your gratitude for the good things you have in life by going regularly to Church—any Church. There are 583 of them in Brooklyn—one within walking distance of every home."

This full-page advertisement does not mince matters. It puts very forcibly truths that occur vaguely to most minds and raises the question whether the churches themselves may not acquire the habit of resorting to newspaper advertising columns to get across messages to the non-churchgoing public. Social workers in all parts of the world will want to know the effects of the campaign against crime started by the citizens of Brooklyn.—Star Weekly.

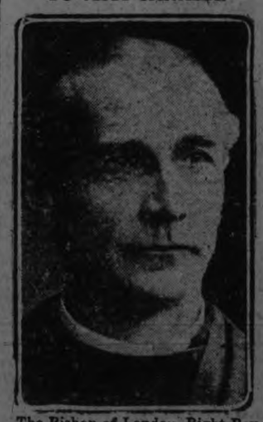
TO VISIT CANADA.



The Bishop of London, Right Rev. Arthur W. Ingram, will spend his summer vacation in 1926 in Canada, according to an announcement made this week.

Wise and Otherwise.

It is curious to find a woman who isn't.

Most women look ahead into the sweet buy-and-buy.

A monologue is a dialogue between a man and his wife.

A man is as old as he looks, a woman is never over thirty.

A woman gets depressed when she can't get everything else.

Few men are broad enough to understand both golf and a wife.

Many a man loses his balance when he settles his wife's bills.

It is funny how easy the job is that someone else managed to do.

Even the cleverest diplomat may find it difficult to alk over his wife.

For compelling attention, there's no book that can beat the pocketbook.

Boredom is the complaint of those who have nothing else to complain about.

Some men are so busy trying to make a living that they don't have time to live.

When a man's wife defeats him in argument it soothes his nerves to call her illogical.

If it be true that a pretty girl attracts only silly men, sensible men must be as scarce as hen's teeth.

A woman is as old as she looks in the early morning, and that is generally older than she is painted.

The silk stocking was invented in the sixteenth century, but not all of it was discovered until quite recently.

It is very unlucky to have thirteen dollars on thirteen horses in thirteen races when none of them is a winner.

A THOUGHT.

THANKS FOR THE ENEMY.

Self-confidence is so necessary in the activties of life, but self conceit is simply overrating ourselves and underrating others.

To have a strong, abiding, persistent faith in your own ability to do things is an important essential, but the biggest fool is the man who fools himself.

The man who suffers from self-conceit and calls it self-confidence, fancies himself superior because he sees the deficiencies of others and has failed to discover his own.

It is important that you elevate your self-confidence to a right pitch in order to raise your income, increase your responsibilities and get more rewards. But be sure that your self-confidence has a firm foundation.

1. I have seen a new suit of cloth inflame a mans opinion of himself, or a new car make him chesty and compel him to go down the side street to avoid the groceryman.

The man who observes himself as his greatest enemy is inclined to, will discover the difference between self-confidence and self satisfaction, and this is self-examination.

Self-examination is one of the most important things a man can do.

Personally, I am inclined to place great value on the service of an enemy. The malicious enemy is sure to advertise your faults while many of your well-meaning, but clum friends, flatter and fawn. Our bitterest enemies scatter the truth.

An enemy may be persistent, prejudiced and determined to see only in one direction, but in this direction he may have a clearer vision than that of a friend.

2. By the reproaches of our enemies we often see our own weakness and discover the difference between actual ability and assumed capacity.

An enemy dwells upon your imperfections; a friend emphasizes your excellence.

Our virtues help, our faults hinder, so fix the faults and you will more firmly fix your self-confidence.

Then thank your enemies for their splendid service. —The Silent Partner.

CHICAGO GRAIN

CHICAGO, Oct. 31 (Canadian Press).—Offers from millers to resell wheat did a good deal today to turn the wheat market down grade after an early advance. In some cases, the price for future deliveries of wheat fell nearly three cents a bushel from the day's top level, and the market as a whole finished unsettled, 5-8 to 1 1-4 cent net lower, new style, December 146 1-4 to 146 3-8 and May 142 3-8 to 142 5-8 with corn 3-4 to 1 1-4 cent off, oats 3-8 to 1-2 cent down, and provisions varying from 17 cents decline to a rise of 10 cents.

Action of mills looking to re-sale of wheat was accompanied by news that a cargo of Canadian wheat had been bought for import to Minneapolis, and that another cargo of Canadian wheat had arrived at Duluth. Under such circumstances there was an easing down of premiums for cash wheat here, and the weakness of future deliveries quickly followed. Another bearish influence was word that the weather in Canada was moderating and that threshing was being resumed. A good deal of notice was also taken of assertions that the crop in Argentina was likely to be out of danger soon, with a big yield there is prospect.

Preceding today's setback in wheat values, however, unexpected sharp upturns in wheat quotations at Liverpool had temporarily led to higher prices here. It was contended, though, that the Liverpool advance was due to buying orders from here in connection with spreading operations between Chicago and Liverpool, advantage being taken of an unusual opportunity to purchase wheat in Liverpool at a discount under Chicago. The immediate result was active buying here on the part of previous sellers, but when demand from this source had been filled, the Chicago market flattened out.

MONTREAL GRAIN AND PRODUCE.

MONTREAL, Nov. 2 (Canadian Press).—The export trade in Canadian grain here Saturday was very dull, there being few bids in the market from foreign buyers. The trade with local and outside buyers was also of a very limited character. The undertone to the market for oats was steady and prices were unchanged.

The receipts of eggs in Montreal on Saturday were 1,439 cases, as against 861 cases for the same day last week, and 1,244 cases for the corresponding day a year ago, while the arrivals for the week ending October 31, 1925, were 9,483 cases, as compared with 10,621 cases for the previous week, and 14,191 cases for the same week last year. The total receipts from May 1 to date have been 305,081 cases, as against 344,860 for the same period of 1924. The receipts last week showed a decrease of 4,753 cases with the same week last year, while the total for the season to date have been 39,779 cases smaller than a year ago.

EGG MARKET FIRM

Since this day week there has been no important change in the condition of the fresh egg situation, the undetone to the market being very firm an account of the steady falling off in supplies which is usual at this period of the year, and in consequence the prospects are that prices will rule still higher in the near future, as it is claimed that the demand is now in excess of the offerings, a fair trade was done for the week.

With reference to the storage egg situation, it has developed a rather easier undertone, this is apparently the result of the nervous, unsettled state of the United States markets and the fear of importations from that source, and in addition a report that some British importers who contracted earlier in the season for fall shipment are trying to resell in Canada. The trade in car lots here continues to be of a very limited character and the market in this respect was quiet, but a fair business was done in a jobbing way for immediate consumption with supplies more than ample to meet all requirement.

Butter Market.

The receipts of butter in Montreal for the week ending October 31, 1925, were 3,864 packages, which shows a decrease of 5,208 packages, as compared with the previous year, while the total arrivals from May 1 to date have been 34,773 packages smaller than the same period for 1924.

A weak feeling prevailed in the market in the early part of the week and sales of several cars of September made Eastern Townships No. 1 pasteurized creamery were made at 41 1-2c, 41 3-4c and 42c per lb., but owing to the improved demand from local buyers for supplies the market later firmed up.

The volume of business was fair and the market was moderately active at periods, and as supplies coming here showed a falling off as compared with a year ago, smaller stocks on spot, the feeling in some quarters of the trade is that prices will reach a higher level in the near future.

The offerings at the Quebec Federated Co-operative Society last week were 1,000 packages butter, as against 1,150 packages for the previous week, and 1,625 packages for the same week last year. The price paid was 41 1-8c per lb. for pasteurized creamery which was 7-8c per lb below the figure bid at the last sale, and 5 5-8c per lb. higher than a year ago.

Cheese Exports Quiet.

The receipts of cheese in Montreal for the week ending October 31, 1925, were 42,460 boxes, which show an increase of 1,916 boxes, as compared with the previous week, and an increase of 6,966 boxes with the same week last year. The total receipts for the season to date have been 78,927 boxes in excess of the same period for 1924.

The export trade in cheese throughout the week was quiet and in consequence the movement forward was much smaller than the pervious one, which indicates that the English importers were not disposed to operate very freely at the level of the market. This coupled with the Liberal supplies coming forward for the season of the year created an easier feeling in the situation towards the close of the week and prices both on spot and in the country ruled lower.

Beans were steady at $2.40 per bushel.

MT. PLEASANT W. I. HAD GOOD MEETING

Will Hold Concert in December—Will Buy Community Piano.

MOUNT PLEASANT, Oct. 31.—The Mount Pleasant Women's Institute met at the home of Mrs. Hannah Rutherford's on Wednesday, October 28th. Owing to the heavy snow storm the attendance was small. Th meeting opened with singing the Maple Leaf Forever," after which the Lord's Prayer was repeated in unison. The president was in the chair. Owing to the secretary, Mrs. Garnet Shield being absent, the treasurer was appointed to act as secretary also. Regarding the fruit to be sent to the Sick Children's Hospital, Toronto, a committee of two ladies, Mrs. Rutherford and Mrs. Geo. Jamieson, was appointed to tell all the members who have been absent at the recent meetings.

It was also decided to hold a concert on the fourth day of December. The committee in charge of this are Mrs. Ina Lowes, Mrs. Garnet Shield and Mrs. Joshua Eggleston. A humorous dialogue entitled "Mrs. Jones Entertains the Women's Institute," will be given by the Institute members, along with some other programme. The Institute have had in mind for some time the purchase of a piano for the use of the community. It was discussed and decided to purchase one. A committee of Mrs. Garnet Shield, Mrs. Chester Bell and Mrs. Thomas Graham and Mrs. Gertrude McLean was appointed to look after same. The ladies in charge of the programme, Mrs. W. H. Lowes and Mrs. S. Paraqueen, unable to be present, Mrs. Albert Guest gave a paper on the "Three Kinds of Institute Members," after which a collection was taken and the meeting brought to a close with God Save the King. The hostesses for the day were Mrs. Rutherford and Mrs. Handley. The next meeting will be held on December 3 at the home of Mrs. McLean.

The annual fowl supper under the auspices of the United Church was held on Tuesday evening, and though the roads and weather were unfavorable, proved a decided success in every particular. The supper was served in the Temperance Hall. A host of willing workers assisted in waiting on the two long tables, keeping supplies in readiness, carving fowl, pouring tea and seating the people as places were vacated and more could be accommodated. From about 6 until after 8 o'clock there was a steady stream of arrivals and the tables were filled again and again. Several car loads came from Peterborough, Millbrook, Omemee and Bethany and Springville. Apparently every one was well satisfied with the menu provided, and also with the programme which was given in the church, for which the pastor, Rev. Mr. Totten, made a very capable chairman. The programme was given by the saxaphone band from Peterborough. Rev. E. W. Rowland also assisted, giving a very appropriate address.

The total receipts were over one hundred and twenty-five dollars.

TREAT OTHERS JUSTLY.

Advice of Canon Shafter in Address on Peacemakers.

MONTREAL, Que. Nov. . —(By Canadian Press)—Canon Shafter in an address on "Peacemakers" and the general Protocol given before the Women's Club said:—"We can best help the cause of peace by treating squarely and justly members of other nations who are living in our own country."

GREAT THINGS FROM WOMEN'S INSTITUTE

Is a Tool Suitable For Many Needs in Rural Community.

TORONTO, Ont., Oct. 31.—(By Canadian Press)—Nina Moore Jamieson in one of her letters from the farm in the Mail and Empire, writes of the opening of a Women's Institute. Every day is so busy, but she hopes the first meeting won't be held on a Tuesday, "for Tuesday is 'bespoke'". Eighteen years ago, when she was teaching in Saskatchewan a young minister told her he liked the country very well except for the fact that all the girls were 'bespoke.' She goes on: "I am hoping great things from the Institute. It is a tool suitable for many needs—to build or to tear down, to shape or to alter existing conditions. If the community is poverty-stricken socially, the Institute should be able to change that. When I see letters from people lamenting that the dances in their district are low class, and not what they want the young folks to patronize, I have to wonder if there is a branch of the society nearby to mend that. At least it should provide a pleasant afternoon once a month for the women, but women never stop at that. They must always be doing something for somebody else, and that is the secret of Institute success.

"I have often seen mention of Rotary Clubs, or Kiwanis but never have I seen a history of the origin and aims of these societies. I wonder if the men sometimes have the same curiosity concerning our Institutes, and say, 'What is it for? What do the women do anyway? Would they be interested if we told them? Or would they prefer to have it a mystery, like Masonic affairs? We are not like them. They carry on their societies with a stately aloofness. When John has a Masonic spread he invites me to make a cake or a pie for him, and away he goes—and the men have their little feast to themselves. I do well if I get my empty pie plate home again, for he does not recognize it after the pie is off it!"

VOICE OF THE PEOPLE.

FROM W. Y. SCOLLARD.

The Editor,
The Peterborough Examiner, Ltd.,
City.

Dear Sir:—

It has come to my attention that some members of the Conservative party are maliciously and untruthfully circulating a statement that at the last Dominion Election I voted more than once. This is absolutely untrue and without the slightest foundation. As agent for the Hon. G. N. Gordon, I voted at the Poll held at The Peter Hamilton Company's office on a transfer from my own polling booth. This transfer was regularly and legally signed by His Honour Judge Huycke, and as such entitled me to vote at the polling booth where I did. I have instructed my solicitors to issues writs for damages for slander against any who may hereafter continue to circulate this rumour. My reputation in the City and County of Peterborough stands as high as any of the supporters of the sitting member and without question a good deal higher than the reputation of a good number of his supporters.

Thanking you Mr. Editor for your valuable space, I remain,

Yours faithfully,
W. Y. SCOLLARD.

HIGH SCHOOL LIT HAS FIRST MEET

Fifth Form Debate on Comparative Resources Features Programme.

SAXAPHONE SOLO

CAMPBELLFORD, Nov. 2. — The first meeting of the year of the Campbellford High School Literary Society was held in the auditorium Friday and was opened with a few remarks by the president, Douglas McComb. Rosina Clarke was then selected as the critic for the session.

The feature of the performance, furnished by the Fifty Form, was a debate on the question, "Resolved, that Canada's natural resources are greater than those of the United States," the speakers for the affirmative being Jack McAvoy and Nettie Forde and for the negative Staunton Archer and Janet Wilson.

The judges were W. Saunders, E. Hall and A. Gurry and their report, given by the latter, stated that the negative side had won by one point. The remainder of the programme was as follows:

Saxaphone solo — Leslie Clegg, accompanied by Gerald Bailey.

Current events—Alec Little.

Vocal solo—Helen MacDonald.

"Selling Canada to the Canadians"—A paper by Stuart Carr.

The critic, Rosina Clarke, stated that the meeting had been well conducted and that much credit was due the Fifth Form students for the excellent programme which they had provided.

CREW RESCUED.

Nine Persons Saved From Sinking Steamer.

NORFOLK, Va., Nov. 2.—(Canadian Press).—Radio messages from the steamer Achilles Saturday night told of the rescue by that steamer of the crew of six persons and the captain, his wife and child, from the sinking schooner Isabella Parmenter, 40 miles off Hatteras.

The schooner was damaged badly in storms along the coast, and despite the efforts of the crew at the pumps, was filling rapidly with water. She was bound for Philadelphit from Turk's Island with a cargo of salt. The coastguard tug Mascoutin has been sent to the schooner with instructions to take her in tow if she still is afloat.

GOVERNMENT LIKELY TO DECIDE THIS AFTERNOON TO REMAIN IN OFFICE AND MEET PARLIAMENT

Premier King Holding Conference With Cabinet at Ottawa Today—Conservatives Silent Until Liberal Course is Determined.

MEIGHEN CONSULTS FERGUSON

Ontario's Premier Says King's Campaign Declarations are Not Consistent With Government's Continuance in the Administration of Dominion.

OTTAWA, Nov. 2 (Canadian Press).—Premier King meets his cabinet this afternoon to discuss his course of action. Expectations are that a decision will be reached to remain in office and meet Parliament. Conservatives, who hold the strongest group, are meanwhile adopting an attitude of watchful waiting. Until Premier King announces his Intentions, they decline to make any official pronouncement.

At the same time, the feeling among Conservatives is that Premier King would have no justification for such a course. They take the ground that the defeat of so many Liberal members of the Cabinet, coupled with the majorities recorded against Government supporters, is evidence that the Government has lost the support of the country and should resign.

With three constituencies still doubtful, Conservatives now hold 116 seats in the next house: Liberals, 100; Progressives, 23; Labor, 2; and Independent, 1.

Ferguson's Opinion.

OTTAWA, Nov. 2 (Canadian Press).—"I cannot believe that the Prime Minister will insist in carrying on in office, particularly in view of the reason he gave the public for dissolution," stated Premier G. Howard Ferguson, of Ontario, to the Canadian Press last night, following a further brief conference late Saturday with Rt. Hon. Arthur Meighen, Conservative leader, on the present political situation. Premier Ferguson explained that business other than political was largely responsible for his visit to the capital, but that he had taken the opportunity to confer with Mr. Meighen.

"Mr. King has said many times on the platform," continued Premier Ferguson, "that he realized that important public questions could not be satisfactorily dealt with, except he had a working majority of his own party behind him, and his appeal to the country was to secure such a majority. Not only has he failed to secure a majority, but he has lost a substantial portion of his following. His allies, the Progressives, have suffered serious losses, and the Opposition has more than doubled its members.

'An Adverse Vote."

"In four provinces, there was an overwhelming pronouncement against the policy of the King Government; and, in every province, even where candidates were not elected, the heavy vote shows the strength of public sentiment against th Government. The Province of Quebec is known to everybody to be just as strongly Protectionist as the Province of Ontario; but in the heat of the campaign the public issues were entirely forgotten there. The result in Quebec cannot in any sense be called a pronouncement upon the Government's policy.

"Considering all these factors, it is inconceivable that the Prime Minister would, in defiance of such a strong adverse vote, persist in clinging to office."

Premier Ferguson returned to Toronto Saturday night.

No statement of the views of attitude of Rt. Hon. Arthur Meighen or the existing political situation was available last night.

PRESS OPINION ON THE ELECTION.

Sentence of Dismissal to Mr. King, Says the "Winnipeg Tribune"—Meighen Hampered By Lack of Clear Majority "The Ottawa Citizen's" Comment.

Ottawa Citizen—"In any case, Mr. King is in control of the situation until Parliament meets, or can be quite constitutionally, if he considers it most advisable to consult Parliament before allowing another general election to be brought on. Mr. Meighen can do no better, without a clear majority."

Ottawa Journal — "The Ontario following of Mr. King in such a case would consist: 1, of Liberal low-tariff men; 2, of Liberal protectionists (Mr Euler of Kitchener, for instance); 3, of Progressives like Miss MacPhail.

"The Quebec following would consist: 1, of Liberal protectionasists; 2 of Liberal low-tariff men; 3, of Independents who sneered at Mr. King (like Mr. Bourassa).

"The Western following would consist: 1 of moderate tariff Liberals (like Hon. Mr. King and Hon. Mr. Stewart); 2, of free trade Liberals; 3, of Progressives, lots of them, and finally of Labor men, like the two elected in Winnipeg.

"What a menagerie. The country would get magnificent government out of that, wouldn't it?"

Winnipeg (Manitoba) Tribune—"There are three essentials of the political situation.

Number one: Mr. King should resign forthwith.

Number two: Mr Meighen should form a government and get his by-elections over by Christmas if possible.

"Number three: Parliament should be in session by middle of January and should be dissolved before the end of February.

"The election gives Mr. King a sentence of dismisal and Mr. Meighen instructions not to carry on without a working majority.

Kitchener (Ont.) Daily Record—"Another election. It does not seem possible that either Mr. King or Mr. Meighen will be able to carry on a government for the regular term under conditions as they exist. A bare majority for Meighen, or the same condition for King, provided he is able to unite all Liberals and Progressive, cannot produce a workable government."

Brockville (Ont.) Recorder and Times—"As possessor of the largest group, Mr. Meighen undoubtedly will be called upon to form a government, but whether it will be enabled to carry on satisfactorily remains to be seen."

Sarnia (Ont.) Canadian Observer—"There can be little doubt that Mr. King's government has been shattered, but the process has not resulted in placing Mr. Meighen's party in a position where it can successfully carry on the functions of government . . Stable government is most desirable. The peculiar alignment of political parties at the moment forbids that. Therefore there seems no other course than to leave it to the people themselves."

Stratford (Ont.) Beacon-Herald—"Mr. King announced that if the the decision was inconclusive he would seek another election. The country would strongly resent another election foisted upon it so soon . . . and it seems more probable that he will stand aside and hand over the reins of government to Mr. Meighen. The nation as a whole has indicated its approval of the policy of protection."

EXCITES SYMPATHY.

Girl Faces Jail Sentence For Being Communist Member.

NEW YORK, N.Y., Nov. 2 — (By Canadian Press).—Miss Charlotte Anita Whitney, facing a jail sentence of from one to fourteen years for being a member of the Communist Labor Party, is vigorously appealed for by R. W. Riis in a letter to the press, who says:—"A national-wide appeal to Governor Richardson of California is being organized by the American Civil Liberties Union, a body which is intent only upon conserving freedom of speech, of assemblage and of the press. Miss Whitney is a niece of a Supreme Court Judge. She is very much of the type of Jane Adams, holding many offices in charitable women's Suffrage and University circles. Through her social work in 1919 she joined the Communist Labor party. In 1920 she was convicted by the California courts of membership in this party. There was no charge that she advocated violence in governmental reform. As a matter of fact, she repeatedly urged in her party counsels only peaceful methods. Her conviction, therefore, was based entirely on her membership in that party. It is a fundamental principal of law that guilt must be personal. The doctrine of guilt by association was characteristic of the Middle Ages. It has no place in our modern democracy."

GERMAN GROUPS ARE UNDECIDED ON PEACE PACT

Government Leaders Hope to Obtain Majority in the Reichstag.

AVOID ELECTION

Communists Regard Locarno Agreement as Alliance Against Soviet Russia.

BERLIN, Nov. 2. — (Canadian Press.)—While the peace and arbitration treaties initiated by Chancellor Luther and Dr. Stresemann at Locarno continue to be the plaything of sordid party politics, both Government leaders are still confident of their ability to effect an internal political truce in the course of the next ten days, giving the Government a safe ratifying majority in the Reichstag.

Both believe that Germany's political prestige in the present situation demands parliamentary approval of her committments at Locarno before the various treaties are formally signed at London, instead of hazarding their rejection through subsequent action. The suggestion that the issue be submitted to a popular referendum is viewed as impracticable.

Opposed To Referendum.

Chancellor Luther is opposed to the proposition of sounding popular sentiment on the pacts through the medium of a special referendum; he believes that their nature and character are too intricate and as yet not sufficiently understood, and that the spirit of Locarno and what thus far has been accomplished must be allowed to sink in, and while he is convinced that the great majority of the German people are in complete accord with the Government's peace policies, he feels that they should not be made a specific campaign slogan.

With the exception of the Socialists, none of the leading Reichstag parties appear to court new elections. Germania, the Centrists' organ, says that frequent post-war voting tends to discredit the parliamentary system, and views elections as wholly superfluous, as there is a tangible majority available in the present Reichstag for the Government's foreign policies.

Socialists Undecided.

The Socialists' parliamentary group will hold a deciding caucus on Friday, when it will be determined whether the party's 131 votes will be given to the Government unconditionally.

The Communists oppose the security pact on the ground that it "represents a war pact against Soviet Russia." Ludendorff's small influential Fascist group in the Reichstag will also vote against it.

The organs of the Nationalist party, although they continue to voice their opposition to the Government, incidentally give evidence that the party is hedging, which suggests that it will instruct its members to refrain from voting or permit them to exercise their personal option, a procedure followed when the Dawes plan was submitted for their ratification of the Reichstag.

Dr. Stresemann will broadcast a talk on the significance of the Locarno achievements Tuesday.

BUFFALO POLICE HIDE PRISONER

Arrested as Witness in Bandit Raid on Bank—Two Murdered.

BUFFALO, N.Y., Nov. 2.—(Canadian Press). — The first arrest in connection with the Bank of Buffalo holdup and double murder on Thursday has been made by the police. The man held is not suspected of being one of the six bandits who escaped with $83,000 in cash after killing two guards, but is believed by the police to have information that may lead to other arrests. They are endeavoring to extract this information from him.

The place of confinement of the prisoner, who is being held under the technical charge of being a material witness, is being concealed by the police.

ELECTION SERVICE.

Warsaw Quiet on Election Night—Phone Placed in Town Hall.

WARSAW, Nov. 2.—To conveniently give the public the returns as they came in on the 29th, Dr. Munro had a telephone placed in the Town Hall.

About seventy of those entitled to vote in Warsaw did not. As there were over three hundred names on the voters' list, there were two sets of officers, deputy returning officers: E. Sneider and Wm. Selkirk, poll clerks, Harold Darling and Wm. Davis.

The village was very quiet for election night.

FRENCH BOXING RESULTS.

PARIS, Nov. 2 — (Canadian Press).—Two French boxing championships changed hands Saturday night. Francois Charles knocked out Andre Bonnel, the light-heavyweight champion, in the sixth round of a fifteen-round bout. Paul Fritsch, the lightweight champion, was defeated on points in ten rounds by Fred Alvarez.

RUSSIAN WAR CHIEF IS DEAD

General Frunse Succumbed to Operation—Was Leader in Revolution.

MOSCOW, Nov. 2. — (Canadian Press).—An imposing funeral will be held on Tuesday for General Frunze, the Commissar for War, who died Saturday after an operation for intestinal ulcer. The day has been declared one of mourning throughout the Soviet Federation, and Government institutions, shops, theatres and factories will be closed.

At midnight Saturday the body was transferred to the Trade Union Hall, formerly a palatial club of Moscow's nobility, where the body of Lenin lay in state. As at the time of Lenin's death, sixty hours will be allowed the population to pay homage to General Frunze. Members of the Government, Communist party officials and military commanders will act as guards of honor.

Theatrical performances were forbidden Saturday night. The stores already are displaying draperies of crepe and the flags over the foreign missions are at half-mast.

The Communist party organ, in an official communique, deplores the loss of one of its leading members, referring to General Frunze as the greatest organizer of the revolutionary Red army.

In 1918 Frunze repressed the Yaroslav uprising and was then appointed to command the army against Admiral Kolchak. He administered a decisive blow to Kolchak at Buzuluk. In 1920, after defeating Kolchak in Siberia, he went to Turkestan, "liquidated" the White front and expelled the Emir of Bokhara. The same fall he commanded the Soviet forces against Baron Wrangel, whom he crushed at Perekop.

In 1921, he was nominated War Minister in the Ukraine and "liquidated" the partisan risings there. He was twice wounded during the campaign, and once almost captured.

ITALIAN DEBT PARLEYS OPEN

Negotiations Begin Today at Washington—Rome Anxious Over Outcome.

ROME, Nov. 2—Italy's economic and financial future is at stake in the negotiations beginning at Washington today for the settlement of Italy's war debt to the United Sates. The success of the Fascist Government program for the restoration of national economic and financial strength and stability depends in great measure upon the ability of Count Volpi, head of the Italian delegation, to carry out his plan successfully.

This is the consensus of opinion in the Italian press, both for and against the Government on the eve of the initial meeting of the Italian and United States negotiators. The newspapers agree that a satisfactory settlement of the United States debt question would be the forerunner of a similar result in the later negotiations with Britain.

PROFESSOR OBTAINS MUSEUM SPECIMENS

Says Story That Plains Buffalo Trek South is Incorrect.

EDMONTON, Alta., Nov. 2 (Canadian Press).—Professor W. H. Rowan of the University of Alberta, with his assistant, W. McDonald, has returned from the Wood buffalo reserve at Fort Smith, following a successful expedition into the Northland, for museum specimens of wood buffalo.

He brought out with him the skulls, hides and requisite remains of two buffalo bulls, and also a number of old skins found on the reserve.

The Alberta professor stamps as incorrect the stories to the effect that the plains buffalo were treking south. Rangers who have made careful observations of the plains buffalo, according to Professor Rowan, found that the animals were settling down well and were mixing amicably with the larger woods buffalo. Most of the plain animals, the rangers declared, were drifting to the southern end of the preserve, bordering on the Slave and Peace rivers.

The party left by wagon for the preserve, accompanied by rangers and guides, but most of the actual hunting was done on foot, with occasional trips on horseback.

The expedition left Edmonton on September 1. Permission had been secured to take three bulls and a cow, but animals were found to be scarce and difficult to catch. The parks' superintendent, Mr. McDougall, has undertaken to secure for specimen purposes, the largest bull on the range, during the coming winter, as the ranger knows the particular haunts of this animal and can get him when favorable opportunity presents itself.

Photographs of the woods buffalo were difficult to get, and light conditions were unsatisfactory when photographing the specimens shot by the expedition.

Rangers estimate that of the large herd of plains buffalo moved to the woods buffalo reserve this summer, about 37 have crossed the Peace River to the wooded lands to the south. These animals are being watched as carefully as possible and every effort will be made to protect them even though they wander outside of the preserve.

AT APSLEY

APSLEY, November 2. — The annual Halloween masquerade dance was held in St. George's Instituteon Friday evening, and was as usual a decided success, attracting a large crowd. This social function is always looked forward to, and its omission would be considered quite a disaster. The fancy costumes this year were not as numerous as usual, the men being the delinquents in this respect. The ladies, however, made up for their short comings and their costumes presented a charming appearance in the dim mysterious light of the appropriately decorated hall. The judges (Mrs. R. Scott and Mrs. John Tucker) awarded the prizes for the best costumes to Miss Hazel Wilson (witch) and George Kilborn (Chinese.) Other characters noticed in the crowd were Japanese Lady, Marjorie Wilson; Gipsy, Miss Hunter; Scotch Lassie, Miss Howlett; Indian Maiden, Miss Burns; Night, Miss Windrem, Chinese Ladies, Phyllis and Cicely Spence, Amy Lean Cowboys, Mrs. D. Coones and Miss Little; Peter Slick of Pumpkin Creek Herb Tucker; Nigger, Phil Willis.

Refreshments were served at midnight. John Coones, Mrs. Kylie and Mrs. S. Windsor provided the music, and a very pleasant time was spent in round and square dances.

With nine inches of snow on the ground, a good percentage of the electors recorded their vote in this polling division, 104 out of 120 marking their ballots in favor of their respective candidates.

AT WELCOME.

WELCOME, Nov. 2.—A very successful Hallowe'en masquerade social was held in the church basement on Friday night.

The basement was prettily decorated with yellow and black streamers, black cats, and pumpkin faces. In one corner was a curtain, encircling a fish pond, presided over by Miss Staples and Mrs. Staples. In the opposite corner was a very prettily decorated booth, the abode of the witch and her fortune tellers. There was the fire, with tripod and black pot, where the destinies of the fortune seekers simmered.

Dainty baskets of candy were for sale, each containing a fortune. Miss Woodger, Miss Runnals and Miss F. Flare presided here.

The Wesleyville orchestra provided music for the evening. This orchestra is exceedingly fine and is much appreciated where their services are secured.

The evening's program commenced by a grand promenade of those in costume to the accompaniment of orchestral music.

Prizes were awarded to the best lady's and gentleman's costumes. These were won by Miss Mary White, dressed as a nun, and Mrs. Arthur Lewis, dressed as Farmer John. The prizes were Eversharp pencils.

A Hallowe'en chorus by a number of school girls was the next item on the programme.

A quartette composed of Mr. and Mrs. Clare Symons, Miss Hazel Bamsay and Mr. Ed. Martyn sang sevral appropriate songs and responded to the encores by rounds.

Miss Ida Clare gave a monologue, "Peter's Parley," and responded with a "Smack at School."

Orchestra music interspersed the various items of the programme.

A Hallowe'en lunch of sandwiches, pumpkin pie and apples followed. The proceeds of the evening were about $27.00.

CAPITOL THEATRE.

Something new in entertainment was the jolly Hallowe'en Frolic presented at the Capitol Theatre on Saturday evening at the conclusion of the regular programme. A filled house enjoyed the fine entertainment presented by professional and amateur actors, and there was plenty of applause for every number, with special enthusiasm for the efforts of the juniors.

The programme opened with a witches' dance, done in appropritae black costume around a lighted cauldron in the centre of the stage, to the accompaniment of orchestral thunder and stage lightning. Miss May Perry had charge of the several dances on the programme and her pupils took part in them. Those representing witches were the Misses Mary Dunlop, Dorothy Graham, Alma Stinchcombe and Kathleen Cooney. The same young ladies, their numbers augmented by the Misses Matilda Dunlop and Virginia French, did a very pretty dance later on, in paper dresses of orange and black, their accompaniment the merry strains of "My Swiss Miss." The children's dance, which concluded the programme, was a dainty little duet in Pierrot and Pierrette costume, to the tune of "Ukulele Lady." The tiny tots who took part, little Moira Coutts and Sophia Yeoates, were charming small performers, and received souvenirs of their skilful work at the end of their dance.

Sammy Harris obliged with a song and story without words, in his usual catchy style; eight little boys with false faces sang the "Boo-la Boo-la" number; Al Wilson, one of the professional entertainers, in black face, gave a comic song and humorous monologue; and Westin and Company presented some very clever impersonations, including living pictures of Napoleon the First, King Edward, Buffalo Bill and a very striking presentation of Queen Victoria. The third vaudevillian, Miss Marvele, a dainty little entertainer, sang any played much to the entertainment of her hearers.

The pie-eating contest, followed by a struggle with a soda cracker, engineered by Sammy Harris, by a group of small boys, caused much merriment, and Messrs. Wilson and Lawrence, with the assistance of Miss Davis, presented the skit, "A Ghost in a Pawnshop."

The programme finished with the circulation of balloons through the lower floor, and the drawing for the "real live baby," a tiny piglet that went finally, after numerous refusals of the honor, to Bruce Murphy.

ALL SAINTS' JUNIOR W.A.

The Junior W.A. of All Saints' Church held a merry little Hallowe'en party in the Junior room on Friday evening, attended by about fifty of the members. Arrangements were in charge of the superintendent, Mrs. H. E. Connolly. Mesdames Lucas and Hopwood assisted with service of refreshments. The majority of the juniors were in costume. Readings were given by Irene Parsons and Mary McDougall, a Chinese song by Evelyn Reynolds, a violin selection by Gwen. Lucas, and a piano duett by Betty and Nancy Hopwood. Rev. J. D. Paterson, who was present, gave a little talk on the old Mohawk Church near Brantford, where the A.Y.P.A. convention was held last week. The juniors also contributed two vocal choruses.

O. Y. B. MASQUERADE.

The Orange Young Britons' Association held a jolly masquerade Hallowe'en dance in Victoria Hall on Friday evening, attended by over three hundred people. Excellent music was provided by Ken Blood's orchestra. Prizes for the best costumes were won by Miss May Jewell and Mr. James Crowe.

CIVILIZED MEN OLD AT FORTY

The highest authority in America, Prof. McCollum, says: "Old age disease deaths have doubled within thirty years, every year younger persons being attacked, due mostly to faulty foods." In these thirty years patent white flour and refined cereals were invented and diseases of the heart, arteries, kidneys, brain, nerves and digestive organs have kept even pace with their ever-increasing use, until now 165,000 young people die each year in the States alone under 40, from diseases which belong to 70 or beyond.

A return to a natural, unrefined, non-acid dietary of whole grains, milk, eggs, leafy vegetables, and fruits will go far to protect civilized man from the ravages of these diseases, unknown to simple races who do not use refined products.

Roman Meal is the only non-acid grain or cereal food, 400 parts "Excess Alkali" in each 1,000 parts, alkaline enough to correct the "Excess Acids" of white flour, other cereals, meats, fats and sweets, all known to modern food science as "Excess Acid" foods, because they turn the blood from its natural alkalinity to acid. Acid blood lowers vitality, irritates vital organs, prevents body repair, prematurely bringing on old age and disease. Roman Meal keeps the blood alkaline or non-acid, relieves the organs of irritation and strain and rebuilds them, restoring youthfulness and vigor of body and mind. Being non-acid it cools the blood and keeps you upstanding and fit.

Use Roman Meal every day. It makes delicious porridge, muffins, pancakes, johnnycake, etc. Add it to your white flour baking to improve its flavor and to restore valuable properties lost in making flour white. All grocers sell Roman Meal.

ELECTED PRESIDENT.

CHARLES PEAKER

Organist of Knox Church, who has been elected president of the Teachers' Association at the Conservatory of Music.

In Peterborough Churches

KNOX UNITED.

At the evening service the Rev. M. C. Mackinnon took as his subject, The Church of Jesus Christ, and used as his text, first Corinthians, chapter 1, verse 12, "Now ye are the body of Christ and members in particular." We hear men speaking in glowing terms of Jesus Christ and in the same breath denounce his church, in spite of the fact that it was always the custom of our Lord to go regularly to the church of his day. Our Lord gave us that institution of the Lord's Supper, and the only place where this command is taken seriously is in the church. It is foolish of men to think that organized Christianity is unnecessary. Everybody has to organize. Where would labor and manufacturers find themselves to-day if they did not organize. A Christian without a church is like a soldier who would act independently of a regiment or army during a war. It is just as great a folly for a man to say he believes in Jesus Christ and His work but that he has no use for the church. We all know that a man of this type who talks in this manner is not a help but a decided hindrance to the work. If all men were to remain aloof from the organized Christian church, what would happen. There is not a place on this planet where a decent man can live, except where our religion has made its home. A man who slights the church and yet professes sympathy with its work is a parasite, he is a disgrace to civilization. When you ignore or stay away from the church of Christ your position is absurd. By one spirit are we all baptized into one body and that body is the church of Christ. We are a denomination, we have caught the vision of our Lord, through which we are united. Our Lord, not having a body of flesh and blood, finds it necessary to have some other body that will serve his purpose and will save through us as we are organized and live together in our devotion to our Lord Jesus Christ. If Jesus would speak to men and women to-day he can only do it through the members of the church. I believe that the church, with all its glorious history, has not begun to realize its position in regard to its function as the body of Christ. The Lord is working for the bringing together of all men irrespective of color or creed, but he is partially paralyzed if the church on earth does not co-operate, and we as members of the church are directly responsible for it.

MARK STREET UNITED.

That modernism was an effort to translate old world ideas into the understandable language of the present age was the opinion expressed by Rev. R. T. Richards in the course of his sermon at Mark Street Church last night. His contention was that people were justified in seeking some newer and more effective medium by which the truths of former days might be conveyed.

Some people, he said, attempted to live their lives on the strength of their parent's accomplishments, thinking that their existence would be justified and their future assured.

Property, name and tendencies might be a heritage but religious faith was something which each individual must found and develop within himself. When the faith of ancestors is accepted as a matter of course an atmosphere of unreality begins to envelop the individual and he is, in a religious sense, stagnant.

The tendency of all ages has been to emphasize the external and judging values without consideration of true worth; character is all that is really worth while as it is not what a man has but what he is which counts. Many try to live on a reputation rather than a character, Rev. Richards asserted.

Christian faith is never attained without a sacrifice. Periods of reformation followed an age of stress. One can not hope for the best things of life without paying the price. Awards are given for value received.

Comparisons were drawn from the condition in which the City of Sandis was as recorded by Revelations. It had been a religious centre at one time but had deteriorated until it complacently basked in an atmosphere of self-sufficiency. It was an unreal condition and the people were deluded into believing that all was well because of the righteousness of their forebears. It was impossible to reach heaven on the wings of those who had already passed.

The morning service was featured by an observation of the Sacrament and the ordination of stewards, to which position the following were appointed: Messrs. Finnie, Oke, Boorman, K. Throop, A. Throop, Mowrie, Scott and Nigh.

Special music was provided under the leadership of Victor Boorman, organist.

AT ALL SAINTS'

Yesterday was All Saints' Day, the patronal festival of All Saints' Church, and the special preacher was the Rev. C. A. G. Spence of Apsley. He chose his text at the evening service from the Epistle of the Hebrews, chapter 12, verse 1: 'Wherefore, seeing we also are compassed about with so great a cloud of witnesses, let us run with patience the race that is set before us."

The speaker first referred to the article in the creed, "I believe—in the communion of saints." He said that in the Old Testament the word 'Saints' was used to refer to the angels. In early Christian days it referrd to all those baptized persons living on earth. In modern usage it refers specially to those great members of the church who have gone, but includes all who have departed this life In God's faith and fear. These are all very close to the church of the present day.

St. Paul compared the task of the Christian to one of the great races held in Greece, where the athletes ran to glorify themselves and their friends, and Mr. Spence said that each Christian had the task of glorifying God on earth, by teaching of Him and by making His name better known. Each was unique in that his work could be done by nobody else. While it might sometimes seem that a life had been unsuccessful, God would finish the task which had been started.

The speaker urged his hearers to carry on the work of All Saints' Church which had been started by those who had gone on.

Large congregations were present at both morning and evening services.

ST. PAUL'S.

"That was good, wasn't it?" was the comment of a young man to some of his chums last evening as they formed part of the large congregation that poured out of St. Paul's Presbyterian Church at the close of the first of a series of monthly sermons especially for young people that are to be delivered by the pastor, Rev. Wm. Allan. If the increasing number of young people who are attending St. Paul's can be used as a criterion and Sunday evening's address is typical of those which are to follow, then this series should prove remarkably popular.

The subject last evening was, "What we have lost in our Amusements, Literature and Religion," and the text was found in Psalm 119, 59: "I thought on my ways and turned my feet unto Thy testimonies." Rev. Mr. Allan's opening remark was a challenging one. It was that there is one thing we seem to have lost these days, namely, the ability to think. In spite of all the popular talk of the progress of the age, this age so far has not been conspicuous for deep thinking. In support of this statement attention was called to the characteristics of the modern stage.

There are three forms of theatrical presentations that dominate the stage. The first is the musical comedy. It is often bright and catchy but conspicuous for the fact that the audiences are not called upon to think. The object of the management is simply to amuse. There is the burlesque show. This often is clever but more often is depraved, appealing to many of the worst instincts in human nature. No one who knows whereof he speaks would claim that such shows calls for any deep thinking. Then there is vaudeville. It too often is clever and generally entertaining, but designed for the express purpose of amusing the public, not educating them or causing them to use their mental faculties in any real sense. When we think of the millions all over the continent who are attending such performances night after night, it is evident that the management of these houses know what the public wants and are seeking to give it.

There is another class of production known as the Shakespearean. It is well-known that in New York, even with the greatest actors of the day performing in these plays, it is not possible to draw crowded houses for more than about a week at a time, whereas musical comedies will often continue the same performance month after month for several years. It is evident, therefore, that we have lost something distinctive from this form of popular amusement.

Current Literature.

Speaking on literature, Rev. Mr. Allan showed the wide popularity of the short story and of illustrated and comic supplements. This class of literature is the most popular of the day, but no one would claim that it requires deep thinking. The luxury tax shows that in the United States $650,000,000 a year is spent in stage productions, motion picture shows and for athletic sports. An investigation a few years ago showed that $750,000,000 a year was spent by women and men on face powder and $50,000,000 for chewing gum. There are 110,000,000 people in the United States, yet there are not 2,000 stores deveted exclusively to the sale of books and literature. It is a universal custom to choose the line of least resistance, and to-day people appear to be choosing that form of literature that calls for the least possible mental effort.

Religious Beliefs.

In religious matters also people are drifting. There never was a time when there were so many freak religious beliefs being popularly taught and widely accepted. Mention was made of Christian Science, Russelism and other widely-taught doctrines which, the speaker said, are full of error, but which many people lack the discernment to detect. Christian Science starts off," said the speaker, "with the lie, that there is no pain. But people who have sat up all night with pain know there is." The speaker said he had had occasion to notice frequently in the United States and elsewhere the many fine automobiles drawn up in front of Christian Science temples, but he had never noticed a Ford car among them. Many people to-day show so little insight in spiritual matters as to assert that it does not matter much what a man believes if he only sincere. Scripture points out the fallacy of this contention when it says, "There is a way that seemeth light unto a man, but the end of his ways is death."

The speaker closed by making a telling application of his text. When a man commences to think upon his ways there is hope for him. Get a man started to think and something will happen. Such a man realizes his inability to live aright in his own strength. He is convicted of sin, and he is led to realize that there is an impending judgment. When once such a man accepts Christ a new joy and trust comes into his life because he recognizes that his past has been atoned for by Christ. This knowledge fills him with peace and joy. Peace is joy arrested and joy is peace dancing. This is the condition of the Christian, who looks forward to the future with glad anticipation of promised and assured blessings.

ST. PETER'S CATHEDRAL

"I saw a great multitude, which no man could number, of all nations and tribes and peoples and tongues, standing before the Throne," was the text taken by Rev. P. Costello at the morning Masses at St. Peter's Cathedral yesterday.

Father Costello spoke of the saints of God who are now enjoying the beatific vision of God as being at one time earth dwellers of the same type as the men and women of to-day. They were not at all different to the people now living on earth and had the same trials and difficulties and temptations. But they regarded the world and its pleasures as merely a stepping stone to heaven, "merely the fluttering of the winged bird through the air," or the foam on the ocean wave. They persevered in the right path and relied on God in all things. They were the young and the old who sanctified their lives at God's altar day after day, and the men and women of to-day who follow their example will also gain, like them, a heavenly crown in the life to come.

To pray to these saints of God was an admirable practice said the reverend speaker. Just as a petitioner to an earthly king would not go directly to the monarch for a favor, but rather to his nearest friend, so the man or woman desiring favors from the Almighty would do well to approach those who stood high in His regard.

FOWL SUPPER AT WESTWOOD CHURCH

Large Number of People Enjoyed Meal and Good Programme.

WESTWOOD, Nov. 1.—The first Fowl Supper of the Westwood United Church was held in the Town Hall here on Friday evening. The weather conditions were most favorable, the moonlight and temperature being ideal. The road which had been so slippy all day were dried up by the light frost in the evening in time to please all who wished to attend.

The hall was filled, people being present from Norwood, Keene, Hastings, Indian River, Peterboro' and Campbellford. The village and surrounding district were well represented.

The hall and tables were decorated with orange tissue paper, black cats and witches, with candles and white and orange flowers in abundance.

The waitresses were easily distinguished by orange bands, Hallowe'en being the theme of decoration.

The tables were laden with an abundance of fowl and all good things to tempt the most fastidious appetite.

The programme which followed was very entertaining as well as instructive, the pastor, Rev. J. Archibald presiding. An opening chorus sung by the choir was followed by a reading by Miss Phyllis Moore, of Peterboro', who delighted the audience with her sweet childish manner.

The local talent was well represented. Miss Gladys Tucker gave a violin solo, accompanied by Miss M. Brackenridge.

Several vocal selections by the Keene quartette were much appreciated and included a pleasing solo by Miss M. Byce, accompanied by Mrs. H. Macfarlane.

An address by Rev. Stillman of Norwood, compared the present day stride in Church Union with the Union movements in Vancouver years ago, and in closing he wished the Westwood United Church every success in the future.

An historical Indian reading by Mr. Wendt of Norwood and a Scotch joke were delivered in his usual good style and were well received.

Immediately following the programme an auction sale of fowl, pies and cakes was held, and a fifteen cent social was announced for Saturday evening.

Imagine how surprised Alice and Ruth and Mary were, when they told their school teacher all the things which Alma Appleby had told them about the Autumn, and their teacher said that she, too, had heard about those very village school children.

"Yes, indeed," said the teacher, "the story about those complaining little children of the village school and how they only liked July and August because they did not know the other months well, has gone around the world, I guess. The birds, they say, have told it all over, in every woods and to every Pan and little elf. It made the woodland folks glad when they saw how much the children fell in love with the Fairies of Autumn."

'Have you heard much about what the children said on the way home from the woods?" asked Ruth.

"Oh, yes," replied the teacher, "Indeed I have. It is said that one little girl claimed she heard a fairy scolding a lot of earth worms. It was November, and she warned the worms to hurry and get away deep down in the earth. "Because," said she, "you know very well that Jack Frost has work to do, freezing the ground and he can't be held up by you; you had better hurry below the frost line."

Then again, it is said that one little boy heard a chipmunk asking old Fairy December if he would have time to gether many nuts, and the white-haired old lady said, "You have enough nuts already. Make a warm bed, for, when I come, you will feel sleepy."

Oh, yes, and I almost forgot the little girl who, they say, told this story: "November was dressed in richest colors of orange and browns, with trimmings of deep purple and grey and she gave a party in the woodland glade. She got the woods to sweep the leaves, making a bare spot, on which were many nuts. Then she waited for guests. Many came for nuts, and it was at this November party, that the good fairy introduced Mr. and Mrs. Downy Woodpecker to the Nuthatches and The Chickadee family. And when each found out that the others were also winter birds, they were friends all winter, going about together.'

"I'll tell you more tomorrow," said the teacher, "Please hand me the chalk."

PUBLICITY ISN'T ALL—BRAINS NEEDED, TOO

Recently there appeared in one of the best known American weekly newspapers an article which discussed the meteoric career of a half-dozen or so unusual women. They were obscure women catapulted into fame by public sympathy. They reaped great financial rewards on the stage or in the movies following bursts of publicity when they had been robbed, shot their husbands or their husbands had shot someone else.

The article intimated that these ladies owed everything to the miracle-working powers of newspaper headlines.

This seems hardly correct. It would be nearer right to say that they succeeded in making themselves well-known and rich because they had the brains and ability to take advantage of the publicity they received.

Mar Louise Spas, the ex-Cinderelle girl of millionaire Browning, is the most recent one mentioned in the article. Mary Louise, whose beauty seemingly is not the type which the camera can easily catch, has been offered numerous theatrical contracts. This the newspaper publicity has done for her. But the odds are high that Mary Louise won't last unless she has much ability as well.

For every woman who has crashed into fame following a burst of space in the daily news and has stayed famous there are a dozen who had the same start and never got anywhere.

Years ago two young ladies took part in an affair which resulted in the shooting of the American millionaire, W. E. Stokes. They promptly signed a vaudeville contract to appear at Hammerstein's. They appeared and did their stuff without as much as a ripple of applause.

"If they want to play next week, they have to shoot a couple more men," said a veteran theatrical magnate.

Peggy Hopkins Joyce, the much-married, no doubt owes much to the publicity she has consistently received, but she is nevertheless as clever a woman as ever had tea at the Ritz.

Edith Bobe, dressmaker, who was the victim of a spectacular jewel robbery, had the sense to turn the notoriety she received into business and is now the modiste supreme.

Mrs. Edith Kelly Gould, who achieved fame by marrying into the Gould millions and added notoriety by testifing that her husband drank a quart of whiskey before breakfast every morning and took a bath once a month, had no lack of talent. Maybelle Gilman Corey, who married the multi-millionaire steel magnate, was a stage success when she met her husband and only used the additional notice to boost herself a few more rungs up the ladder.

The same is true of Evelyn Nesbitt, formerly the wife of Harry Thaw, and Imogene Wilson, whose battle with Frank Tinney, the comedian, provided a great deal of semi-sensational reading, may have been silly in matters pertaining to the black-face laugh-maker, but she still had enough native cunning to make use of it, and the last the public heard of her was that she was about to wed the richest sausage-maker Germany.

YOUR HEALTH

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M.D.,
Former Commissioner of Health, New York City.

VALUE OF A BALANCED RATION IS SHOWN.

I have always been pleased over Judge Gary's interest in health matters. He has been an enthusiastic and consistent supporter of every matter having to do with the promotion of public and private health.

Recently the public has been interested in hearing about the Judge's personal experience in what has been called a "health vacation." He spent two or three weeks in a hospital and, as a result of his dieting, lost six pounds in weight. More than that, he feels so well and vigorous that a European trip has been abandoned as unnecessary.

When asked by newspaper reporters what he did in the way of dieting, he said food had been limited to certain articles. This is the list.

Fresh fruit, especially orange juice.

Fresh vegetables, plainly cooked, potatoes with the jackets on and spinach boiled in its own juice. The juice is consumed as well as the greens.

Not much meat, but what is eaten must be of simple wholesomeness with very little seasoning.

Sweets—practically none.

Here is a very wise comment made by Judge Gary:

"Nine-tenths of the people in America eat too much and not one person out of a hundred has any idea of what constitutes a balanced ration. Dieting does not mean starving oneself; it means choosing one's food with a proper regard for the elements contained therein.

"Most persons lose the mineral salts under the skin of a potato by paring that vegetable too deeply. For the same reason spinach should be cooked in its own juice and the juice eaten too."

It is difficult to get everybody to appreciate the importance of selecting foods with the object of giving the body what it must have to be strong and vigorous. As Judge Gary intimates, the popular idea is that "dieting" means going without food. This is absurd. You need not be hungry a minute, and yet eat in such a well-directed manner that your surplus flesh will melt away. At the same time your muscles will be growing firmer and more elastic.

It is particularly important that teeth and bones shall get the necessary minerals to build these structures. It is a crime against childhood to throw away the water in which vegetables and meat are cooked. The proper thing is to let this surplus fluid escape as steam, so that the contained minerals will remain to be eaten with the food.

I hope the publicity given Judge Gary's experience will help the great cause of right eating and right living.

GOOD NIGHT STORIES

By Blanche Silver

BETTY CHANGES HER MIND ABOUT MOVING DAY.

"Oh dear," Betty grumbled, when her mama called her to get up earlier than usual, "I just hate old moving day. I wish we could find some place and never, never move any more. I wish——"

'Whop-whop," laughed a merry voice and Gocomeback, the wee travel elfin hopped upon the foot of Betty's bed and doffed his little painted hat. Be careful, honey, what you wish."

'I don't care, Gocomeback," grumbled the cross Betty, "I just hate moving day; I just wish we never——"

"Gracious-me," laughed the elfin, "what a face you make over such a small thing. Why, you should see the way a little friend of mine has to do when moving day comes. But, come along and see for yourself and if you like her way better, then you may stay there. I'll bet anything you'll be glad to get back to America once more," and before Betty could ask any questions at all, she found herself standing before a village of queer houses.

Gocomeback rapped at the opening in one of the queer houses and out popped a laughing face.

"Come right in, Gocomeback, and bring your little friend in," said the owner of the laughing eyes. "It's moving day, and we all have to work, but you won't mind."

"Just in time," laughed Gocomeback, and he told the little brown girl why they had come to visit her.

"Well, here on the eastern shores of the Caspian Sea, when we move we have to carry our village with us," laughed the little brown girl. "And if you'll notice, they are not tents, either."

"I was just wondering how you built your houses," asked Betty, "And how do you carry them around with you? On moving vans?"

"On camels, you mean?" laughed the wee little brown girl. "Our houses are built of strong, light wood laths fastened together with rawhide, so we can move them when we wish. This framework encloses a circle about fifteen feet across and over it is thrown a covering of black felt, with a large hole in the very center. This hole answers for both window and chimney. Large pieces of this black felt are wrapped around the side walls, then another framework of reeds is fastened to it. That's how we have to move. Tear down, fold up, carry on the camel's back to the new location, then build it all up again." And we don't stay very long in one place either, like you American folks do."

Betty and Gocomeback peeked in to the queer little house that was divided into two rooms. There was no furniture. A piece of black felt lay on the floor. A few trappings, saddles, and bridles were hanging on the walls. Swords, gums bows, arrows were hung on the ends of the wooden rods that separated the two rooms.

"Yes, we Turcomans have a tough time when it is time to move," laughed the little brown girl, "and I'm sure if I had it as nice as you girls do in America, I'd never complain."

Just then Betty sneezed, and quick as wink she found herself standing in her own front yard. Thanking Gocomeback, she ran into the house to help her mama.

"The Brandywine Powder Works."

That same Brandywine mill furnished the American army and navy with powder in 1802 and every American war since. The powder manufactured by the company was a factor in the Crimean War, the Civil War, the Spanish War and a deciding factor in the World War.

The little mill has grown to be a giant industry, the most extensive of its kind in the world. Under the firm name of E. I. du Pont de Nemours & Co. it has agencies and magazines all over the world and a distributing depot for the Pacific States at San Francisco.

He Started as a Miner in Kentucky Coal Mines.

The founder, Elenthere Irenee du Pont, landed at Newport, R. I., in 1800, and located on Brandywine Creek. Lafayette knew the family in France, where they bore an illustrious name. In this country they have distinguished themselves not only in supplying the American navy with powder, but with admirals.

The little State of Delaware became too crowded with the numerous members of the du Pont family and Antoine Biderman du Pont removed to Kentucky in search of new opportunities. There a son, T. Coleman du Pont, was born, who, in 1900, was offered the presidency of the Du Pont Powder Company.

Though splendidly educated, he had started life at the bottom rung of the ladder, and at thirty-eight years of age, entirely by his own efforts, had produces that wonderful anaesthetic, ether, in larger quantities than anywhere else in America. There are, in all, about 250 commodities marketed by the du Ponts.

When T. Coleman du Pont took charge of the office force consisted of seven clerks. To-day there are something like 1,700, and altogether the plant employs about 5,000. He resigned the management after fifteen years to interest himself in other big enterprises, chiefly the erection of the Equitable Building in New York City, the largest and most splendid office building in the world.

Among his varied interests is a chain of fine hotels—about $4,000,000—is a magnificent highway the length of the State of Delaware, which he presented to the State. In order to rid his State of corrupt politicians, who had been in the saddle for twelve years, in 1921 he became United States Senator.

Tomorrow's HOROSCOPE

TUESADY, NOVEMBER 3.

A rather dull and interesting day is the augury read from the minor astral activities. It is warned, however, that ill-temper, unguarded speech and tempestuous conduct may stir up strife and possible litigation. Be careful to keep a firm grip on the tongue and temper.

Those whose birthday it is are likely to encounter a fairly dull and routine year, but one under the menace of strife and litigation, should the tendency to ill-guarded speech and tumulttuous deeds be indulged. A child born on this day may be inclined to be quarrelsome and impetuous unless given early training and discipline in self government. It may have a rather dull career.

CANADIANS WILL SPEND MILLIONS ON RADIO DURING COMING WINTER

Leading Authority States That Average Family Will Spend $35.

GOOD RECEPTION.

Canada Will Use More Sets in Proportion to Population.

Five years ago business did not consider the Radio industry of enough importance to classify it. It was grouped as a subsidiary of electrical manufacturing and selling. Today it is being classed as the fifth biggest industry in the United States. To those who still consider Radio a fad, it will come as a distinct shock to learn that Canadians will spend, this season, over sixty million dollars on Radio. This huge sum represents twice as much as the production of the furniture trades—three times as much as the nation's bill for automobile repairs—more than all the farmers spend on agricultural implements—more than all the men's and women's clothing factories produce in a year. It is nearly as much as the value of our huge imports of coal, and about as much as the Income Tax paid by all individuals and all corporations throughout the whole Dominion!

In attempting a review of the Radio outlook for the coming season, the Examiner interviewed D. H. Pollitt, Sales Manager of the De Forest & Crosley organization, who sponsors this estimate, in order to seek from him how this impressive total had been arrived at.

"We can regard the business done in the United States" declared Mr. Pollitt "as a fairly reliable barometer to be used in making our calculations here. Roger Babson, the American statistician whose pronouncements are regarded with respect in Canada as well as across the border, estimated that $300,000,000 would be spent on radio in the United States last season. That estimate was marvelled at, but events proved that he was away low. The amount actually spent has been variously estimated at from $350,000,000 to $480,000,000, and estimates of this season's expenditure on radio made by other competent experts, indicate a turnover of between $750,000,000 and $800,000,000.

Better Conditions Here.

"Who knows but what this estimate may be again low?" continued Mr. Pollitt, as he drew a rough chart on a pad to demonstrate that in the Southern States radio only sold to the extent of 25 per cent of the quota per population on estimate, owing to poor reception and other causes, while in the Central States, the sales were about 50 per cent, that is, set per set in relation to population.

"In the Northern States where reception and other conditions are most favorable, 100 per cent of sales potentiality was reached," he declared. "The Dominion of Canada, still to the North has even better reception and the utility value of Radio is higher, there being more need for it in most of its many uses. In Canada, the population is approximately 9,000,000, compared with 120,000,000 in the United States. To be more than fair, let us estimate on the basis of one-twelfth. If our good friends across the border can contemplate an expenditure of $750,000,000 on radio we can, by the same token, anticipate an expenditure of upwards of $60,000,000 in this country.

Six Good Reasons.

"I figure it out that there are at least six good reasons why the Canadian radio business should involve the expenditure of that sum, or thereabout," Mr. Pollitt explained. "In the first place, we must recognise the important fact that more than a million dollars is being expended in radio advertising in Canada, by Canadian and American firms in various branches of the industry. As far as I am aware this is a heavier advertising campaign than was ever expended before in this country, even counting those on which the Victory Loans were floated.

Wonderful Publicity.

"The second reason is based on the fact that newspapers, farm publications, magazines, etc., are running an enormous amount of publicity of a newsy nature which is selling the idea of radio. Every newspaper of any account has a radio section occupying considerable space in each issue. Magazines and other periodicals have their regular radio departments. This has been going on for some time stamping the radio idea into the public mind and what has been sinking in during the past couple of seasons, under constantly increasing pressure, is bound to bear fruit on the business side of radio this season.

Development of Broadcasting.

"The third big reason is that broadcasting has now reached a place never even dreamed of a year or two ago, with programs infinitely better than anything the most sanguine amongst us had hoped for and in a variety that is truly remarkable. Only the other day a New York despatch stated that twenty-five of the world's leading opera and other musical stars had just signed contracts to sing to Radio audiences in the fall and winter, and that sixteen additional artists were waiting to sign similar contracts. Consequently, radio value has increased enormously, and in many spheres it has reached the status of a necessity, as well as an unequalled source of entertainment.

"The fourth reason is found in logical demand created by consumer recommendation. Radio is a product that does a vast amount of valuable missionary work for itself. One installation often goes a long way in the direction of selling others. A satisfied radio owner tells his acquaintances about it and invites friends in for demonstrations. That is undoubtedly a great factor in making business. Refinements of radio have now brought it to the point when it can be regarded as an investment. An estimate that there are 300,000,000 radio sets at present being operated in the Dominion is in circulation, originating, I believe, with a farm paper. Personally, I regard that as excessive, but the number actually in use is undoubtedly very large, a fact that is being constantly reflected in the demand created through consumer recommendation.

Co-operation in Selling.

"Factory co-operation with the dealer is the sixth reason. This has undergone a great improvement. This year the manufacturers of any standing are giving the dealers systematic and intelligent sales help on a generous scale, expounding the best possible advice in regard to service and salesmanship, and setting but proved good methods of operation in a thorough manner. Creative salesmanship is being strongly emphasized, with detailed instructions pertaining to it based upon scientific surveying of the great retail field in all its aspects. An immense amount of literature is being sent out by the manufacturers calculated to assist the dealer from every angle and undoubtedly helping to establish the trade on a solid foundation. And the service facilities being built up by the dealers are bound to give increased satisfaction and indirectly produce more sales.

Finally, there is the self-evident fact that radio manufacturers have got on to a volume production basis, developing better sets. Thus the initial cost of a radio installation, value considered, is appreciably lower today than ever before.

Convincing Comparisons.

"Those six reasons are to my mind sufficient to go a long way towards making that $60,000,000 estimate a reality," observed Mr. Pollitt, "and they can be augmented in a hundred ways. While radio shows an increase of 150 times the volume of its first year, when broadcasting began, the automobile in the same period of its history increased only 12 times! Radio has touched in four years twice the figure which the talking machine business reached in twenty-five years."

Where the Market Is.

"Mr. Pollitt pointed out that official figures showed there were at the last count 1,901,227 families in Canada and 1,416,311 occupied dwellings. Last year 78,957 radio licenses were issued. Assuming that there was one owner who did not secure a license for every one who did, it would mean that there were over 150,000 radio sets in Canada. He believes it is a safe assertion that not more than one home in sixteen in Canada contains a good radio set. Therefore, fifteen out of every sixteen homes can be regarded as housing live prospects. In further illustration, he remarked that the 1924 registration of automobiles was 638,746, more than four times the number of radio sets at a low estimate. In fact, the Canadian market has absorbed 900,000 telephones, 500,000 phonographs and 700,000 passenger cars. Yet there are thousands of Canadians who can afford to buy a radio set, but cannot afford to buy an automobile.

Radio Has Arrived.

Clearly, the surface of the radio market in Canada has only been scratched," concluded Mr. Pollitt. "Without question, there is a bigger potential market for radio than for any other specialty here today. Radio may be said to have arrived in real earnest, and nowhere else are the conditions for its operation better than in Canada."

A recent survey shows that professional women chemists are rapidly increasing in numbers in the United States, particularly in industrial and college research fields. Of the 15,000 members of the American Chemical Society, 481 are women, nearly 300 of whom have been admitted to the society during the past five years.

ADVICE TO GIRLS

By Annie Laurie

DEAR ANNIE LAURIE:

As you have given so many young girls good advice, why not give the older girls the same, ones who have no mother to converse with and tell there many troubles. Now, Dear Annie Laurie, I am not a single girl, but married and mother of two nice children, proud to say. But my life is and has been a very hard one, at least I think so. For years I have been seeking happiness, but can't find it. My husband, who is the same age as myself, is a man who is all-self in some ways. For instance, he is very strict with the children and will beat them most unmercifully for almost nothing. He won't take them any place and won't let them go any place. He won't take me any place and don't want me to go out. I can't have anyone in to spend the afternoon, and when my father comes to see me I never hear the end of it, and his visit is about once a month now. He knows every crust of bread which is left for puddings, every bit of sour milk I have for salad dressing. He is in the pantry and in every drawer and clothes-press in the house looking and finding fault. I have nothing to say about the children's dress. He tells them what they should eat and what not. I am not supposed to use any more than a pint of milk for four of us each day, and when he is working I get ten dollars a week to run the house on, and I am supposed to pay $2.00 of that on a small account and 50c for insurance, which leaves me $7.50, and expects to live on the best. He pays the rent, buys fuel and clothes for the children, and I am out of luck if I can't save out of that $7.50 to buy myself clothes and run the house for a week. If I ever want to go out he wants to know where I am going and what for, and then he will pick a quarrel and abuse the children just because he knows it hurts me. He has also undertook to tell me what clothes I should wear and whatnot, and when I needed him most of all he had left me to seek refuge where I could until all was over, and then he would return to me. He has said every mean thing he can say to me and has even ordered me out now.

Dear Annie Laurie, I have been a hard worker all my life and I am still working and am the main support of my home, because he can't get work as it is scarce. He is not lazy and is a good worker and very tidy and clean. As for myself, I keep the home and my children clean, and to do so I am obliged to work unt 11 o'clock every night. I am away every day but two, which I keep for myself, and one of those day I do a private washing in with my own, which has to be home at the end of the week, ironed and all. So you see I don't get much time, and I keep my end of the work at home done up just the same. I have never heard him speak well of anyone, always something the matter with them. Now, I have done everything I can think of for happiness, and why I stay with him I can't say. But when he is good you wouldn't wish for anyone better—but that is so seldom now. What I want to know is, do I take him in the right way by being silent and being insulted, or have you a better way you could direct me?

Trusting and waiting to hear from you soon, I remain,

YOUR SILENT THINKER.

SILENT THINKER: If all you say about your husband is true, and it probably is, although you must have a few faults of your own, you are a very foolish woman and need to wake up. Did you ever think about the underlying meaning in the story of Job, the patient man of Uz. The popular conception of this Biblical tale is the idea that patience is a very estimable virtue, but you must remember that it was only when Job finally lifted up his voice and wept, or, in other words, got a hustle on, verbally and physically both, that his troubles left him and his happiness returned. "The Lord helps those who help themselves." Possibly, as long as you are willing to take this husband of yours in a silent, uncomplaining manner, you will have to stand these trials and worse ones, and you can face the very probable prospect of having your children learn to treat you with disrespect when they grow up. They will naturally be influenced by their father's attitude toward you. So you have a long and hard road ahead of you, unless you are willing to help yourself.

As long as your present system of treating your husband has turned out to be such a miserable failure, why not try something else? Results can hardly be worse than those you have already experienced. It is well said that every bully is a coward at heart. Your husband seems to be a bully. Do not nag him with your tongue. Perhaps you have been doing this, or perhaps you have just adopted the patient martyr attitude that is the most aggravating procedure in the world to a bad-tempered person. Don't hale him to the police station. The law is mighty, but it shouldn't be invoked unless he absolutely refuses to support you, and can get work. Why not give him a taste of his own medicine? When he beats the children, break the stove or the table or anything else that is handy. Fly into a royal rage and turn the house upside down. Make a practise of asking him the price of everything he brings in and trying to find out just where he is going. Criticize his friends and his own dress and the way he eats. Buy food that you know he doesn't like to eat and tell him you can't get anything else with the money he gives you.

As you say, he is not lazy and is tidy and clean, and you like him when he has his sensible moments, you had better try to do all you can to stay with him, for your own sake and that of the children. That is, as long as you don't hurt your self respect in the process. You seem to be doing that now, and that's where your main trouble lies. You know you are acting far better than he is, you are perhaps showing him that very plainly, and he resents your superior attitude of aloof silence. Don't be silent. Don't be aloof. Don't be patient. And if everything else fails, put him out of the house (that is, if you can manage to do so) for a week, and see if he isn't glad to come back and be more amiable.

And remember, the day of Patient Griseldas is past. Men know this, and they expect women to be modern and to have a lively respect for their own position in present-day communities. And, as an afterthought, why not let the house get untidy and dirty and stay in bed in the mornings once in a while. If he objects, he can tidy it up. This all may seem very harsh treatment to you, and perhaps rather foolish, but why not try it and see? You can always go back to your present unsatisfactory condition.

A Fashion Model's Diary

By Grace Thorncliffe

SHE DESCRIBES A STUNNING NEW NIGHTGOWN

"I thought it was time someone grew industrious and started a sewing bee."

This remark came from Pam, when she entered the manikins' room this morning and found me industriously working away on some lovely material I had bought the day before.

"Give us time," I responded. "You know the season had been far too busy up to now to give any of us a chance to plan sewing at the shop."

"Seeing you with your new material makes me realize that the time is at hand when we can become interested in a few clothes for ourselves," Pam remarked.

"Goodness knows we've been showing enough interest in clothes for other people," I returned. "I felt the need of a change of policy, and that's why I bought the material for this nightgown."

"That and the fact that you found that lovely material on a bargain counter," chimed in Gaby.

"What if I did?" I answered. "I always do whe npossible."

"Do let me see it," Pam asked, and I was only too glad to oblige her.

I held up the gown which I had already cut out. Then I offered Pam a sketch I had made in a moment of inspiration.

"You see, the new gowns all favor a good bit of lace, so I am nsing plenty of this cream lace," I commented, following up the sketch with a bit of lace, so Pam could get the full effect at once.

"What a lovely nightgown!" she commented, evidently well pleased with the appearance of the garment.

"The new gowns are also low-cut under the arms, and many of them have trimming around the bottom," I added.

"I love your sketch," Pam assured me. "There's just enough trimming to be effective, and I do like the way you have used tiny tucks above your lace."

"I think the addition of a row of tucks on top of the insertion at the neck was rather an inspiration," I admitted.

"And the three little tailored bows are nice," Pam added.

"There's nothing for you to do but get out some pretty material yourself and go to work," I told her.

Pink Crepe de Chine and Cream Val Lace Fashion This Charming Gown

The last I saw of Pam she was planning an invasion of the shops at lunch time, to find crepe de Chine and lace for a gown, preferably a blue gown, she said.

Among the smart women of Paris it is becoming a fad to have the skin of a pet dog that dies made into boots for the disconsolate owner to wear.

HEDDA HOYT TALKS ABOUT THINGS THAT INTEREST THE BUSY WOMAN OF 1925

Perfumes

(Written for the United Press.)

NEW YORK, Nov. 2 (United Press).—Perfumes interest us more during Fall and Winter months than they do during the Summer. This is because woolen frocks usually cast off a slight odor when damp. Fur wraps are especially likely to have "fury" odor.

Perfume should be chosen to correspond with one's personality and under no circumstances should it be used too generously. An odor should be merely suggested and not too apparent. Expensive perfumes, sparingly used, are always cheapest in the long run. Most expensive perfumes last longer than cheap ones and one drop placed on the handkerchief, coat collar, under-arms or ear-lobes is quite sufficient.

Blonds wear milder odors than brunettes since the brunette suggests exotic mixtures rather than milder flower fragrances. Jasmine, violet, lily-of-the-valley and some of the faint Parisian odors are suitable for the blond or the light, drab-toned person.

Cashmere bouquet, Ideal, Black Narcissis and mixed odors are preferred by women of dark hair and vivid coloring. The pale brunette likes a faint fragrance such as White Narcissis or lily since she herself suggest some lovely lily. We all have flower personalities, for that matter. Some of us are of the narcissus type while others suggest the violet or the rose. A noted American actress always has on hand several flower perfumes and she chooses a flower odor to suit the color of each gown. That is, if her gown is violet or orchid in coloring she wears a violet perfume. A white gown calls for a mild perfume such as jasmine. Heavy mixtures go with the gown of Oriental type.

A New York perfume shop is now selling perfume in blond, brunette and Titian odors. There are several perfumes of each type to choose from. A Titian perfume is made of wall flowers and this is new, quaint and individual.

The most expensive perfume in the world is soon to be sold in America. It comes in two odors, namely, "Femmes de Paris" and "Desire de la Coeur." Each bottle will sell for $30. The bottle is shaped like a jewel, one being red to represent a ruby, and the other being green, as is the emerald. Lovely leather jewel cases lined in chamois a ccon pany each bottle.

WOULD SAVE APPLES.

Unemployed Men Could Pick Them and City Trucks Haul Them.

TORONTO, Ont., Nov. 2. — (By Canadian Press).—A letter from a woman on the wastage of apples, printed locally says:—"Could not a committee of women of the calibre and executive ability of some of those women at the head of different organizations who so successfully finance such societies as the W.M.S., the I.O.D.E., the Y.W.C.A., and the heads of different charitable homes get together and evolve some scheme by which this fruit could be placed where it would do most good? Are there not trucks belonging to the city or to generous business concerns that might be available to bring in the apples after they had been gathered and loaded by unemployed men sent out for the purpose? Could not these men be paid by the Federation for Community Service? Would it not be better to pay them for work than to give them the charity? Any surplus apples could be given to charitable institutions and to the Salvation Army. Of course it would have to be arranged so that the farmer's usual sale of apples would not be interfered with."

Blankets will not shrink if washed this way—

To keep your blankets soft, fluffy and unshrunken—wash them in Lux. Blankets of fine wool, wool nap, wool and cotton—you can trust them all to the gentle Lux suds.

Wash blankets this way:

A rich live suds is essential throughout the washing of blankets. To obtain this, use two tablespoonfuls of Lux to every gallon of water in the washing.

Dissolve the Lux thoroughly in very hot water, whisking it into a thick suds. Add cold water until lukewarm. Put the blanket into the rich suds, souse it up and down, and squeeze the suds through the entire blanket. If suds die down, add more Lux, taking care that it dissolves before you put the blanket in again. Press the suds through the soiled spots if any, but never rub the blanket.

Rinse in three or more lukewarm waters, of the same temperature as the suds. Fold evenly, run through a loose wringer and hang dripping. Never wring tightly. Pull gently into shape at intervals when drying. Do not expose wet blankets to extremes of heat or cold.

Ordinary common bar soap or chips shrink wool, and coarsen and yellow it. Lux is mild and pure, and entirely free from any ingredients that could harm or shrink wool fibres. Lux keeps your blankets like new.

ONCE UPON A TIME — THE THREE LITTLE ELVES—1.

by W. J. ENRIGHT.

THERE WAS A MAN WHOSE WIFE DIED AND LEFT HIM WITH A LITTLE DAUGHTER. AS TIME WENT ON HE MARRIED A WIDOW WHO ALSO HAD A LITTLE DAUGHTER. THE WOMAN PROMISED TO MAKE A HOME FOR HIM AND TREAT HIS LITTLE GIRL EVEN BETTER THAN HER OWN.

BUT IMMEDIATELY AFTER THEY WERE MARRIED SHE TREATED HER STEP-DAUGHTER WITH THE GREATEST CRUELTY, AND ONE COLD WINTER DAY WHEN THE GROUND WAS COVERED WITH SNOW SHE MADE A DRESS OF PAPER AND CALLED HER STEP-DAUGHTER TO HER.

"PUT ON THIS DRESS AND GO INTO THE WOODS," SHE SAID. "AND PICK ME A BASKET OF STRAWBERRIES." "BUT," PROTESTED THE LITTLE GIRL, "THERE ARE NO BERRIES IN THE WINTER TIME, AND WHY MUST I WEAR A PAPER DRESS IN THE BITTER COLD?"

"BE OFF AT ONCE!" SNAPPED THE WOMAN, "AND DO NOT COME BACK UNTIL YOU HAVE THE STRAWBERRIES." THEN SHE GAVE THE LITTE GIRL A PIECE OF BREAD AND PUSHED HER OUT INTO THE SNOW.

TOMORROW—SHE MEETS THREE STRANGE LITTLE MEN.

QUEEN'S WIN 4th CONSECUTIVE CHAMPIONSHIP--BEAT VARSITY 17-0--MONTREAL 6-ARGOS 3

BATSTONE AND LEADLEY STAR IN EASY VICTORY OVER VARSITY AT TORONTO STADIUM BEFORE 18,000

Queen's Led at Half-Time by 9-0 in College Classic.

CROSSED LINE TWICE

24th Straight Victory for Kingston Squad in Four Years.

VARSITY STADIUM, Nov. 2.—Queen's University won their fourth consecutive inter-collegiate championship and their twenty-fourth straight victory when they gave the University of Toronto an artistic acing here Saturday before a record crowd by a score of 17 to 0. The score by periods 1-0, 9-0, 16-0, and 17-0.

Queen's was much the superior team in every department and at all stages of the game. They were the aggressors throughout and forced the play into Varsity territory for almost the entire game. Varsity played a safe game in the first half and held Queen's to a 3 to 0 score until about a minute before half time when a fumble by Warren Synder, who had an off day, gave Queen's an easy touchdown and a commanding lead.

Varsity team proved a great disappointment. They lacked the snap and dash that chacterized their training and were unable to get going at any stage The slippery field slowed them up and they never threatened Queen's at any stage.

The Batstone-Leadley combination proved too much for Varsity. Batstone played one of his best games and Leadley was there when he was needed. Chantler and Voss the substitute backfield players, were also outstanding and gave a splendid exhibition Most of the Queen's gains were made in running back punts and in this department of play they completely overshadowed the Varsity Smothered Snyder and Company.

Queen's forwards were down under every punt and smothered the Varsity halves with their superb tackling. Fraser was the only Toronto man to hold his own with them.

Queen's led by 9 to 0 at half time. They assumed the aggressive right at the start with an aerial attack and had Varsity on the defensive for the entire half. The Toronto students contributed spasmodic efforts of good play, but their attack did not measure up to the standard set by the visitors. Neither were they as good defensively. Queen's goal line was never threatened at any stage in this half. On the other hand, the visitors kept pressing the Blue and White continually and had them backed into their own territory. They scored one point in the first period and eight in the second. Six of the points being a touch down by Thomas, when Snyder muffed on his own goal line.

When play was resumed after half-time Queen's took all the starch out of the Varsity supporters by scoring an easy touch down on a muff by Trimble behind his own goal line. They followed this up by scoring two single points and hemming Varsity in their own territory until the last few minutes of the period.

In the final quarter Leadley and Batstone both retired and Voss and Chantler played the backfield for Queen's. They were on the defensive most of the time, but showed resourcefulness and cleverness in evading tackles and running back punts They made the Varsity tacklers look foolish at times. Voss also kicked splendidly and Queen's wings were down under the ball all the time. Batstone replaced Voss with five minutes to go, and must have been a magnet, as the first Varsity kick was right into his hands. The visitors spruced up in their play, too, under Batstone's leadership and quickly forced Varsity back into their own territory, a forward pass by Varsity at centre helping Queen's to add another point to their total.

Half Million Persons At 15 U. S. Football Contests

NEW YORK, Nov. 2—More than half a million persons saw fifteen of the major football contests played Saturday.

The largest gathering, 78,000, saw Yale score three touchdowns in the last period and send the Army down to defeat at New Haven by a score of 28 to 7.

In Philadelphia, 65,000 saw the great Red Grange score three touchdowns, thus enabling Illinois to defeat Penn, 24 to 2.

At the Polo Grounds 50,000 were present when Cornell lowered the colors of Columbia, 17 to 14, and at the Yankee Stadium Fordham took the measure of New York University, 26 to 6, before 15,000.

The Navy bowed to the University of Michigan before a Western gathering of 50,000 by a score of 54 to 0.

In other major contests Harvard conquered William and Mary, 14 to 7, coming from behind by scoring both touchdowns in the last half; Princeton defeated Swarthmore, 19 to 7; Dartmouth scored over Brown at Providence, 14-0; Notre Dame forced Georgia Tech to bow at Atlanta, 18-0; Syracuse tallied 7 points to 0 for Penn State and Minnesota and Wisconsin played a 12-to-12 tie game.

SENATORS LOST TO M'GILL ON TUBMAN'S MUFF

Scrappy Exhibition Game at Ottawa Was Close All the Way.

SCORE WAS 7-6

McGill Bucked for Try After Tubman Dropped the Ball.

OTTAWA, Ont., Nov. 2.—(Canadian Press).—Frank Shaughnessy's red-shirted McGill team invaded the Capital Saturday and defeated Ottawa Senators in an exhibition rugby game by a score of 7 to 6. The game was just as close as the score indicates and breaks were responsible for the major scores secured by both teams.

The game was featured by the brilliant running of the half backs and the punting due staged by St. Germaine and Turman. On the day's performance, the former Ottawa junior star now kicking for McGill, had the better of the argument, consistently greeting more distance than the Ottawa captain. The players battled along on a field that was slippery with mud and as a result both the half backs and tacklers were hampered in their work.

Ottawas were first to score. From the kickoff Turman caught the ball on the Ottawa forty and ran it back for thirty yards to the McGill forty. On the next down Miller circled the right end on an extension play for twenty more yards, and on the next down Turman kicked to Hanna for a rouge and the first score. Ottawa, 1; McGill, 0.

With less than three minutes of the first period remaining, McGill secured the ball on a fumble and plunged for yards to Ottawa's twenty. Mickles tried a drop which went wide but rolled to the deadline for a point. Ottawa, 1; McGill, 1.

A Costly Fumble.

After a scoreless second period, they had only played five minutes of the third session when St. Germaine kicked from the Ottawa thirty-five to Turman on the goal line. Turman fumbled and Phillpot secured on the two-yard line On the second down Spears bucked over for a touch which was not converted. McGill, 5; Ottawa, 1.

Before the end of the period St. Germaine kicked to the dead line for another point, the period ending, McGill, 7; Ottawa, 1.

A great chance for the locals to score halfway through the final session went wrong on a fumbled end run, but on a running exchange of kicks between Turman and Hanna, McGill was forced back to their twenty. St. Germaine failed to get his kick away and it was Ottawa's ball. Two bucks failing, Lynch took a chance on an onside kick and Miller secured a touch. With the crowd in suspense, Lynch missed the convert and the game ended McGill, 7; Ottawa, 6.

The first half was played under Intercollegiate and the last half under Big Four rules. There was considerable wrangling and argument, but on the whole "Bones" Little and Walter Gilhooley did well in the referee rules. While there was no real rough work, no love was lost and many a lively tilt went by unnoticed on the line.

Hanna, Cameron and St Germaine did some flashy running while the McGill line is just about the strongest seen here this season. By mutual consent both teams used as many subs as they wished but, notwithstanding, yards were only gained on three occasions.

Workout For Senators.

Turman's bad fumble cost Ottawa the game, but he more than made up for this with some great broken field running. Miller blossomed out as a full fledged star and Young and Bruce were next in line for the loss meant nothing to Ottawa while it may do them a world of good for their crucial two-game series with Tigers on which the Big Four title may depend.

The teams:

McGill — Flying wing, Little; halves, Hanna, St. Germaine, Cameron; quarter, Nickles; snap, Wright; insides, Parsons and Woodruff; middles, Spears and Manson; outsides, Phillpot and Millen; subs., Walsh, Murphy, Arnold, Blair, Boucher, Gordon, Gorrie, Grassick, Hughes.

Ottawa — Flying wing, Starr; halves, Tubman, Miller, Connell; quarter, Lynch; snap, Bruce; insides, Curry and Humphrey; Middles, Timmis and Monoman; outsides, Anderson and Young; subs., Cote, James, Mulroney Ketchum, Wright, Ault, Short, Kirby, Tighe, Pritchard, Buells and Herbert.

Referee—"Bones" Little, Montreal; umpire, Walter Gilhooley, Ottawa.

INSIDE GOLF.

By CHESTER HORTON

When the body pushes forward with the forward swing, so that the left side of the body swings out in the direction line, the ball is likely to skid off to the left because of a rolling action of the hands. Without this rolling of the hands, or fore arms, the ball would slice, and often the player will find that his persistent slice is due to the body swinging ahead. When the body sways forward this way the hands naturally get considerably ahead of th clubhead. The very nature of the body action however exerts a tendency for the arms to push downward and as they do this the left forearm rolls forward. This toes in the club face and produces he ball off to the left.

AUTO RECORD BY PETER DE PAOLO

Average Speed of 128 Miles an Hour for 250 Miles.

ROCKINGHAM SPEEDWAY, Salem, N.H., Nov. 2—Peter De Paolo clinched the 1925 automobile racing championship Saturday and established a world's record for 250 miles when he won the inaugural race over that distance on the new board speedway here before 70,000 spectators in 1 hour, 59 minutes and 25 seconds, an average speed of 128 miles an hour. The old mark, held by Tommy Milton, was 126.85 miles an hour. De Paolo finished a lap ahead of Ralph Hepburn and two laps ahead of Earl Cooper.

The little Brooklyn racer drove the entire distance himself without a stop, taking the lead at the halfway mark and holding it to the end, except for half a lap when Earl Cooper passed him in a thrilling spurt. De Paolo regained the lead with a cool dash down from the rim of the track on the next turn.

Harry Hartz finished fourth, Earl Devore sixth, Norman Batten seventh, and Jerry Wonderlich last. De Paolo's victory brought him $9,000 in prizes. Hepburn collected $5,000; Cooper, $3,000.

RODE 3 WINNERS AND WAS SUSPENDED

One of the feature events at Thorncliffe Race Track during the last meet was the Scarboro Purse for Canadian-foaled horses, which was won easily by Beau of the West from the Seagram stable, shown above, with Jockey A. Claver in the saddle. Forecast II., owned by the Riverdale Stable, was second, and June Fly third. The last-named finished strong to beat Fairbank, the King's winner, out of the money. Jockey Claver, who rode the winner, also rode the winners of the next two races, Dick Whittington and Blue Tony, only to be suspended for the balance of the meeting for rough riding on Gallant Greek in the last race.

RED GRANGE'S CROWDED HOUR

Illinois' Brilliant Star Defeated Penn Almost Single-Handed.

What Grange Did

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 2—Here is what Red Grange did Saturday:

Scored three touchdowns and made the fourth possible.

Carried the ball 36 times.

Gained 363 of his team's 450 yards

Made two runs of 60 yards each.

Hit line, skirted ends and took passes with equal facility.

Helped Illinois score 17 first downs to Penn's 4.

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 2—The golden yellow headgear of Red Grange of Illinois flashed over Franklin Field Saturday afternoon, while 65,000 spectators, gathered from all over the East, looked on and saw him almost single handed defeat Pennsylvania's great football eleven by a score of 24 to 2. The speed, cleverness and uncanny tuition of any other football player have never made such an impression on the Eastern gridiron as Grange's meteoric flights over a slippery, muddy field Saturday.

The East has heard of the great achievements of this football player and has taken them with a grain of salt. They did not believe that he could be as great as the Middle West said he was. But he is. That is the strange part about it. Red Grange is human. He is not a myth. He dashes and dodges over the gridiron with a speed of foot and an alertness of mind which set him high up on a pedestal among this generation of football players.

Three times Grange raced majestically through the Pennsyvania elevens to touchdowns. Not only that, but he carried the ball against the Quakers thirty-six times in the battle and gained 363 yards in his made dashes. Twice did Grange gallop sixty yards against Penn. Once he left the Quakers trailing forty yards behind him and another time he raced twenty-four yards through a compact defense before he was dragged into the mud from behind.

Thinks Faster Than Tacklers

One of the assets of this irrepressible Grange is mental He thinks quicker than the players who try to stop him. He is a flash at picking openings and the real skill begins when the tacklers of the opposition begin to twine their arms about him. Saturday afternoon Pennsylvania tacklers dropped off Grange like the leaves fall from a tree in Autumn.

He shakes them off by a tricky twist of his hips. He twists about in their arms until he pries himself loose. An artful dodger he is, as artful as anything one will see on a football field in many, many moons.

His left arm is a rod of steel. When he shoots it out straight at the onrushing opposition they howl over like so many ten pins. And how that boy can keep his feet! Legs constitute something like 80 per cent. of Grange's physical makeup. In every scrimmage which marked Pennsylvania's downfall, Red Grange was the last player to go down. The other players, his interferers and his tacklers, piled about him, but there he stood, the last contestant on his feet ,and he did not topple over unil the last inch had been gained.

Everywhere in the melee of mud-smeared players the golden yellow top-piece of Grange stood out like the helmet of Navarre. Beneath that leather headgear was a shock of red hair, but no one saw it. All that they saw was that big open face with an expression of seriousness which almost bordered on sadness. It as not sadness, though, because Red Grange must enjoy and enthuse over everything he does on the gridiron. If he didn't, he never could do it so well.

Sad Blow to Red and Blue

Pennsylvania suffered terrific shock in the humiliation of the Red and Blue this afternoon. This eleven was triumphantly pointed toward an Eastern and even a national championship. It was proud of its strength and boastful of its achievements. It regarded Illinois as a one-man team and was so certain that the wet and muddy field Saturday would be Grange's undoing that it was prepared for nothing but the sweetness of victory. It tasted nothing but bitterness.

Langlois and McKinnon Signed With New York on Saturday.

FOR THREE YEARS.

OTTAWA, Nov. 2.—(Canadian Press).—Two more members of the former Hamilton Tiger Hockey team signed up on Saturday to play for New York in the National Hockey League. Charlie Langlois and Alex McKinnon both arrived from Sudbury yesterday and conferred with Manager Tommy Gorman, who subsequently admitted that both Langlois and McKinnon had signed contracts that were highly satisfactory to the club and to the players. It is understood they signed up for three years.

M.A.A.A. DEFEAT TORONTO ARGOS IN LAST PERIOD

Jeff Russel's Dash Through Argo Line Resulted in Touch.

GAME AT MONTREAL

Joe Breen Injured and Announced His Retirement From Rugby.

MONTREAL, Que., November 2—Canadian Press. — With Argos holding a 3 to 0 lead at the end of the third quarter, chiefly owing to Joe Breen's brilliant defensive work, the local "Big Four" Rugby squad came back strong in the last session to score a rouge and a try to take a 6 to 3 victory, in a scheduled fixture at the M.A.A.A. grounds on Saturday.

The break came about 5 minutes after the start of the last quarter with Montreal behind by two points and in possession on Argos' 40 yard line. Weir Wright had been injected into play at quarter for Montreal and the locals were fighting hard. On the first down, Wright sent Jeff Russel hrough just to the right of centre and the speedy back picked his opening to a nicety and before the Argo secondary defence could close in Russel was away with a clear field to the Argo catching backs who were on their five yard line, instead of trying for the open field, Russel made right for the two awaiting tacklers. As he neared them, they closed in, and both made a dive at the same time, but just as he was about to be stopped. The flying ball carrier made a neat pass to Earl Whittall, who had closely followed him down the field. Whittall dashed the remaining distance and crossed the line for a try and the deciding points in the game.

Russell a Factor.

This play culminated a day of brilliant play by both Russell and Whittall. The former starred the first three periods by his brilliant defensive work, Argos had slightly the best of the play, but Russell was here, there and everywhere breaking up plays with his deadly tackling on the secondary defence. Whittall started on the bench but came on in the second quarter and began displaying much of the daring and dashing form which characterized his play while an intermediate.

Two fumbles together with a snappy passing offensive indulged in by the Argo backs gave the visitors the edge in the play but they could not take full advantag owing to the strong defensive work shown by the locals in the pinches. To start the second quarter, Argos were in possession on the locals' nine yard line, owing to a fumble by Paterson just at the end of the first session. Two downs netted eight yards but on the third, Montreal crashed through to gain possession. This was Argos' only real touchdown threat during the contest.

Joe Breen, veteran captain of the double blue, was the mainspring of the Argo attack, his running and passing featuring the early play.The Argo star retired from the play late in the last quarter when he sustained a badly gashed leg. Following the contest Breen announced that Saturday's game was the last of his career and pointed to the damage which was on his leg, saying that he would keep it as a souvenir.

Breen was given splendid support by his team mates but they were not good enough to overcome the displays given by Montreal. The loss definitely puts Argos out of the running for the "Big Four."

Montreal: Flying wing, McCaig, halves, Russel, Booth, Paterson; quarter, Sheppard; snap, Parkes; insides, Starke, Work; middles, Ryan, Foran; outsides, Anderson, Mill; subs, Wright, Whittall, Robinson, McDonald, Consiglio, Carruthers, Lewis, Lane.

Argonauts: Flying wing, Barrett; halves, Paul, Breen, McCormick; quarter, Prino; snap, Smith; insides, Hyslop, Sinclair; middles, Wilson, Miles; outsides, Fear, Bradley; subs, Roadway, Shaw, Wright, Miller, Thomas, Smythe, Rapuly.

GERMAN HELPS KRIM'S DEFENCE

Former Prussian Guard Officer is Brain of Riff Resistance.

A BRUTAL LEADER.

TANGIER, Morocco, Nov. 2 (Canadian Press).—The brain behind Abd El Krim's resistance, a French intelligence officer declares, is a German named Von Klemis, formerly a captain in the Prussian Guards who, before the war owing to a scandal, joined the French Foreign Legion, and in 1921 deserted to the Riffians and is now serving Abd El Krim's army. Ten German deserters who entered Tangier were placed under arrest. They complained bitterly of Von Klem's harshness and brutality, declaring that he shot the faint-hearted without the slightest compunction.

Since the war Dartmouth has won three out of the four football games with Harvard. But for the whole series of games played by the Green and the Crimson since 1882 the score stands 25 victories for Harvard to 5 for Dartmouth, with two tie games.

CAMPBELLFORD CURLERS SELECT YEAR'S OFFICERS

Secretary's Report Shows Club Has Operating Surplus.

GET TANKARD SPIELS

Retiring President Compliments Members, But Suggests Change.

CAMPBELLFORD, Nov. 2 — The members of the Campbellford Curling Club, at their annual meeting Friday night, elected the following officers for the coming year:

Patrons—Mr. and Mrs. C. S. Gillespie.

President—Ed. Tait.

Vice-President—J. P. Archer.

Secretary-Treasurer — C. A. Wilson.,

Committee of Management — D. W. Douglas, R. H. Cole, A. L. Riendeau, Fred J. Smith, A. G. Thompson, the president, vice-president and secretary.

Club Has Surplus.

Secretary Wilson read the financial statement which showed that the club had had a successful season, financial and otherwise, and that there is a surplus in the treasury.

On motion of Fred J. Smith, S. J. Moore, the matter of setting the fees was left in the hands of the managing committee. The members to confer with the directors of the rink company, owners of the curling rink, to get an idea as to the amount of money required for the present year.

Retiring President's Address.

Walter S. Wiggins, the retiring president, in his address, complimented the member on the past successful season. One of his suggestions was that as the schedule of games arranged for last season had not all been played out, the system should be changed.

Mr. Wiggins gave a report of the annual meeting of the Ontario Curling Association in Toronto, which he had attended, and at which he had been successful in having the Tankard competition scheduled this season for Campbellford, the other members of the local group being Keene, Hastings and Norwood. This will be the first time that this competition was ever held here. T. S. Tait, one of the veteran members of the club, will officiate as referee at this event.

Mr. Wiggins also succeeded in having Campbellford changed from the Peterboro to the Belleville district, a re-arrangement that will save local curlers considerable in travelling expenses every year.

The retiring president said, it was evident from the enthusiasm shown at the Toronto meeting, that curling still holds its place as the King of winter sports. He cited as an example, the case of the 80-year-old president of the Georgetown club, who was one of the first curlers in Toronto, when blocks of wood were used in the games. The octogenarian is as enthusiastic as ever and none is looking forward more eagerly to the opening of the season.

On motion of C. S. Gillespie, Mr. Wiggins was given a vote of thanks for his services to the club, as delegate to Toronto and for his interesting report.

Selecting the Skips.

The selection of the skips was left to the committees of management and the skips will choose the rinks for the season.

Bi-Weekly Bonspiels.

Fred J. Smith, referring to one of the suggestions of the retiring president, with regard to changing the system of holding schedule games, said the idea was worthy of consideration. For these games, Mr. Smith would substitute weekly or bi-weekly bonspiels at which prizes would be awarded the winner. The members present were in favor of the proposed change and the matter was referred to the committee of management.

President Tait took the chair after the election of officers. S. J. Moore, vice-president last year, according to custom, should have been promoted to the presidency, but he declined the position on the plea of ill-health.

Mrs. Wallace Farrington, wife of the Governor of Hawaii, seems entitled to be called the champion woman football fan. A graduate of Stanford, Mrs. Farrington has journeyed from Honolulu to San Francisco to see the gridiron clash between Stanford and California.

TAMPERED WITH CARD.

Marksman Had Great Score on Poor Day—Considered a Joke.

LONDON, Eng., Nov. 2.—(Canadian Press Despatch).— A well known competitor upon the Bisley ranges has just been expelled from membership of the London and Middlesex Rifle Association for having tampered with his score-cards. On a wretchedly bad day for shooting he is alleged to have returned a score of 92 out of a possible 100 at the long range. At first the offender treated the matter as a joke, but later he admitted the offence, and his disqualification and expulsion followed.

The matter has been reported to the National Rifle Association, and if they find the fact true they will have no option but to "warn off" the offender from participation in any competitions at Bisley.

Rifle shooting is one of the cleanest of sports at the present time. It is stated that it is at least twenty years since the National Rifle Association had to deal with so disagreeable an incident.

Y.W. CAMPAIGN STARTS TO-DAY

Annual Drive For Budget Difference of $1,500 is Under Way.

CITIZENS' SHARE.

The Young Women's Christian Association financial campaign starts to-day. The board and committee members are appealing to the citizens of Peterboro for the annual budget difference of $1,500, and are also asking for an increase of $500 so that several extra projects may be undertaken. Mayor Turner in opening the swimming exhibition last week spoke of the wonderful work of the Y.W.C.A., stressing the point that the Association was undenominational and its activities open to every girl of the city.

The advantages of an organization which was promoting an all-round program, physical, intellectual, religious, social and service, was also emphasized. "A city's industries," said Mayor Turner, "may fail, but if the youth of the community are well trained they can build anew."

Mayor Turner asked, that in view of the good work of the Y.W.C.A. and the busy life of the board members and secretaries in promoting the work, that the Association should be relieved of any financial worry and that the citizens of Peterboro should do their share by assuming the financial burden.

The financial campaign continues all week and any subscription sent to the Y.W.C.A. will be gratefully acknowledged.

ELECTION DAY IN GREAT BRITAIN

Borough Councillors Are Being Chosen By Electors of Towns.

5,000 TO BE NAMED.

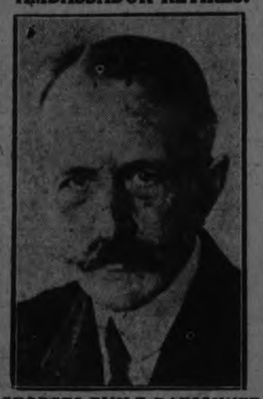
LONDON, Nov. 2. — (Canadian Press). — Electors in 460 English and Welsh boroughs went to the polls to-day to choose about 5,000 municipal councillors to represent them in local affairs, especially in the levying and administering of local taxes which here are called "rates." These taxes last year in England and Wales aggregated about 142,000,000 pounds.

There are about 15,000,000 electors, about half of them women.

The feminine sex figures largely among the candidates, there being 300 women on the ballot in London alone. The elections will determine the representation for London for three years. Provincial cities and boroughs have an election annually, one-third of the councillors retiring each year. Political views often largely influence the results of the elections. This year, especially in London, the issue is being fought on a question of Socialism. The cry of those opposing the Labor-Socialists' rule is that wherever Socialists control matters, there is an orgy of spending on all sorts of social services, such as unemployment and housing at a cost to the middle classes.

Many of the newspapers have been conducting an energetic campaign under such slogans as "Route the Reds and lower rates."

AMBASSADOR RETIRES.



GEORGES EMILE DAESCHNER who is soon to retire from the post of French ambassador to the United States.

JUMPED FROM TRAIN.

Man Handed Cash to Train Companion and Leaped Through Window—Badly Hurt.

MONTREAL, Nov. 2 (Canadian Press).—A man thought to be Siguard Johnson, 35, of Toronto, wrote his name on a piece of paper and handed $30 in cash to a seat companion in the smoking room of one of the cars on the Canadian National Railway, Chicago train, bound for Montreal on Saturday morning, and jumped through one of the windows as the train neared the city.

The train was stopped and the victim was picked up and removed to the Royal Victoria Hospital suffering from internal injuries and severe bruises. His condition is considered serious.

THEATRES

AT THE GRAND

Mr. Archibald Forbes' famous company of artists, direct from the Garrick Theatre, London, will present a laugable comedy, 'Courting,' at the Grand Opera House on Monday and Tuesday, Nov. 9 and 10.

This organization played last week at the Royal Alexandra Theatre, Toronto, where it was greeted with a succession of large audiences. The comment of the newspapers was most favorable. The Mail and Empire declared that it was the best play of the season, and that it would underwrite it as well worth witnessing. "Courting" enjoyed a long season at the Garrick Theatre, London, England, and the Forty-Ninth Street Theatre, New York City.

The cast includes: Jean Clyde, Denzil Mather, L. Nelson Ramsay, Jean Douglas Wilson, Betty Lely, Angus Adams, John Duncan and Vernon Sylvaine.

WILLIAM FAVERSHAM, IN "FOOT-LOOSE."

The celebrated star, William Faversham, now on the first lap of his trans-continental tour, in Zoe Akins' comedy drama of intrigue, "Foot-Loose" is announced as the attraction at the Grand Opera House Thursday, November 12th.

It is seldom that the present generation of playgoers has an opportunity to witness such an offering as William Faversham, and in such a delightful play as "Foot Loose," as entertainment of this calibre is confined to but a few of the larger cities of the country. Therefore Mr. Faversham's appearance here will assuredly be a cause of much rejoicing on the part of his many admirers, especially so since his Sir Horace Welby in "Foot-Loose" is reported to be an ideal Faversham role, adding new lustre to his many stellar deeds.

In the cast to appear here in support of Mr. Faversham will be found such notables as Sarah Truax, Edith Campbell, Ann Warrington, Antonio Salerno, Dennis Clough, Beatrice Vert, Milton C. Herman and others.

AT THE ROYAL.

Directed by John Ince, and boasting an all-star cast, "Cheap Kisses" is a picture you will enjoy and a picture you won't forget.

Don't wait too long, you may be unable to get seats at the last performances!

Who is your favorite picture player?

Cullen Landis or Lillian Rich or Vera Reynolds? Perhaps Louise Dresser, Phillips Smalley, Jean Hersholt, Bessie Eyton, Lincoln Stedman, Kathleen Myers, Sydney De Gray, Michael Dark or lovable old Tom Ricketts.

Well here is good news. You can see ALL OF THEM in one picture, right now. It's "Cheap Kisses," at the Royal Theatre, the first of the new C. Gardner Sullivan productions for F. B. O. Don't miss this all star cast in a picture with a wallop i nevery reel. Get seats before it is too late.

AT THE CAPITOL

WESTIN AND CO. VAUDEVILLE AT CAPITOL TO-DAY.

There has never appeared in this city a higher class or as artistic a specialty as that of the Westin. His costly wardrobe, beautiful stage settings, uniforms and wigs, all denote the artist who has played in the largest and best theatres and before the most critical audiences in the world. Westin's impersonations of great personages of all parts of the globe are strikingly true in every detail. Included in his generous list are the life-like impersonations. His act is something new in vaudeville and is seen but rarely in smaller cities.

"SILENT SANDERSON" IS CAREY'S GREATEST, SAYS FILM PRODUCER.

More sympathetic and true than anything he has ever done before.

That's the way Hunt Stromberg describes Harry Carey's characterization in "Silent Sanderson," his newest production, which comes to the Capitol Theatre to-day and to-morrow.

It is true that Carey, as the amiable, whimsical Joe Parsons, strikes that note of sympathetic realism which is all too infrequently registered in the screen.

The most vital thing in Joel's life is his love for his younger brother. Beyond all selfishness, it spreads its protection about the boy—striving to ward off the evil of the world. Joel fails in this, not because his love falters, but because the world's evil is stronger than the good in one man's heart. But before he fails, he makes a sacrifice—harder than death — to save his brother's happiness. He stifles his own love for Judith Benson, so that she will marry the boy who loves her.

This lovable character has been developed with deft touches by Kate Corbaley, the author, scenarist Harvey Gates, and Director Scott R. Dunlap.

The first sight of Joel, — a huge bulk of a he-man working among his famished little herd, fighting to get water for dying cattle, caring for the young ones with all the tenderness of a woman,—is enough to make whatever follows of kindliness and sacrifice seem logical as life.

PATHOS AND COMEDY IN CHAPLIN FILM.

Great Comedian Seen as Pathetic Tenderfoot in "The Gold Rush."

In "The Gold Rush," called Charlie Chaplin's greatest comedy, and coming next Wednesday to the Capitol under a United Artists Corporation release, the world's most famous comedian is seen as a pathetic tenderfoot struggling along with hundreds of others who are in search of gold in the Klondike.

Poetic pathos and whimsical comedy are cleverly blended in this film. There is one scene in which Charlie, a bedraggled bit of humanity, finds a sympathizer and sweetheart—a girl in a dance hall. She dances with the little tramp, who beams over his shoulder into the eyes of his rival, a wealthy miner.

There is Jim McKay, a giant as strong as an ox. McKay is enraged and Charlie trembles as the big man menaces him. The little man thinks after all that death is better than the loss of the queen of the dance-hall.

To have the right types in Truckee in Northern California, where many scenes of this picture were produced, Chaplin took out a special trainload of hoboes with well-seared countenances and tattered clothes.

In several sequences it seems an endless line of ragged humanity that is crossing the Chilkoot Pass. A blizzard rages and men are blown about helplessly. They fight on doggedly, as this winding path cut through the snows over a precipitous mountainside, is the gateway to their goal, the Klondike.

Then in another stretch there is Black Larsen, who lives in terror of the police. He builds a hut in the Alaska mountains and lives as a hermit amid snow and ice. To this hut comes the pathetic Chaplin. He knocks at the door for a rest before plodding along to the land of gold. Larsen does not care who starves, as he is not going to take any chances of the police apprehending him.

The scenes aboard a big steamship are full of human interest. The luxury and comfort of the first cabin are contrasted with the misery, want and sickness in the steerage. There is the little man, who a few years before went on the long hike to the Klondike, and who now aboard the great vessel, is seen wrapped in costly furs. He is unhappy because he has lost his girl. But in the steerage there is a girl returning home from Alaska wishing she could find her dear little tramp again.

AT THE REGENT

"SEA HAWK" IS SPECTACULAR and THRILLING

Frank Lloyd Production of Famous Sabatini Novel a Gigantic Undertaking—A Fast Moving Drama.

Frank Lloyd's First National picture, "The Sea Hawk" adapted from Rafael Sabatinis stirring novel of Barbary Corsairs, opened at the Regent Theatre to-day.

"The Sea Hawk" is the crowning achievement of a season of brilliant screen dramas, a play that registers its magnitude in every scen and with such force that it is not likely that local screen followers will cease to talk about it very soon.

Gigantic Undertaking.

To visualize Sabatini's vivid drama has ben a gigantic undertaking, yet Mr. Lloyd has delivered a photoplay which allows little room for criticism and which establishes its producer firmly in the front rank of screen masters. "The Sea Hawk" is a masterpiece of cinema art dramatically, pictorially and technically. Seldom have there been so many massive set tings in one picture before, especially so many big sea scenes, with a ship of such dimensions employed. To the picture fan who judges big pictures merely by big settings and the number of people employed in them, "The Sea Hawk" should be unusually attractive; to the student of the screen and the critic the massive sets, the gorgeous wardrobe and the more than a thousand people employed in it are merely incidental in comparison to the action of the story, for "The Sea Hawk' is the fastest moving big picture ever reflected on the silver sheet.

Milton Sill's plays the title role rather the dual principle character in a most appealing manner.

Work is Refreshing.

Enid Bennett as Rosamund is a charming heroine and her grace is refreshing. Lloyd Hughes does splendidly with the difficult character of Lionel Wallace Beery is as always a perfect rogue.

Judged as a whole it does not seem amiss to place "The Sea Hawk" among the six best pictures of the screen, for, for general entertainment quality, genuine bigness and deep rooted sincerity and achievement, it surpasses anything that it might be compared with in a considerable length of time.

ROTARIANS ARE WELL DEFENDED BY ALEX MOWAT

"Not a Band of Self-Appointed Uplifters," Declares Speaker.

THE SPIRIT OF FAIRNESS

Members Are Reminded of Individual Side of Movement.

The individual side of Rotary was strongly stressed by Rotarian Alex. Mowat at to-day's luncheon of the Peterboro Rotary Club, when he took advantage of the introduction of two new members, Roy Thompson and Tom Dutton, to deliver a most inspiring address on the principles of Rotary.

In beginning, Rotarian Mowat dealt with a number of criticisms that had been made against Rotary, among others the charge that a Rotary Club consisted of a band of "self-appointed up-lifters." The speaker pointed out that such criticisms would disappear when the real nature of the Rotary movement made itself felt.

In his charge to the new members Rotarian Mowat declared that there was a difference between being a member of a Rotary Club and of being a Rotarian. A true Rotarian was one who was guided by the principle of fairness in everything he said and did, and the speaker emphasized the individual side of the movement, urging the members to develop the spirit of helpfulness and unselfishness in all their dealings.

Rotarian Mowat also stressed the importance of regular attendance, and the opportunity it gave of cultivating genuine friendships, the value of which could not be overemphasized.

His address was an eloquent exposition of the spirit of Rotary that could not fail to be inspirational in its effect, not only upon new Rotarians, but on all members of the club.

President J. H. Seels was in the chair to-day, and complimented the membership committee upon the work it had been doing.

JUVENILE PARTY AT THE Y. W. C. A.

Three Hundred Children Join in Hallowe'en Frolic on Saturday.

One of the biggest Junior Hallowe'en parties in its experience was held in the gymnasium of the Young Women's Christian Association on Saturday morning, when children to the number of nearly three hundred attended in costume for a frolic that made the big hall ring with merriment. The youngsters had a wonderful time, playing games and dancing and congregating in the lower rooms where cocoa and cake were served. Coons and ferocious South Sea Islanders and witches and policemen hobnobbed gaily with prim nurses and Pierettes and demure farmerettes. The little frogs were a notable item in the gathering and some of the outfits were original in the extreme.

The prize for the prettiest costume went to little Berta Beileghem, attired as a Colonial Bride, in panniered white satin and poke bonnet. The funniest costume was that of Ruby Panter, as Topsy; the best Hallowe'en outfit, "The Spirit of Hallowe'en," was worn by Ruth McNeely and Kathleen and Margaret Foster were the most original couple, as Jack and Jill. Honorable mention was made of Phyllis Lawrence, as Rose, Jean Heron, as a ballet dancer, Noreen Rodey and Isabel Jackson, as a bride and groom, Nancy Hopwood as a Baby, Phyllis Webster as a Clown, Margaret Hurley in Spanish costume, Florence Trebilcock as a Squaw, Elizabeth McIntosh in Colonial dress, Jessie Scholey in Dutch costume, and Lorraine Bugg as a Hobo.

The prizes were presented by Mrs. T Cruickshank. Judges were Mrs. H. Wightman, Mrs. J. E. Middleton, Mrs. F. L. Roy, Mrs. H. Dicken, Mrs. H. Beal and Miss A. Wood. Music was provided by Miss Madeline Willis at the piano, with the Misses M. Jory and M. Lawrence suppying trap music.

BACH RECITAL.

Charles Peaker Tells Character and Works of Cantor.

Prefacing the Bach recital at Knox Church last night with a few remarks anent the character and works of the tremendous old Cantor, Mr. Peaker commenced the programme with the well-known Toccata and Fugue in D minor. The fiery brilliance of the rushing scale passages which open and close this work prove an ideal setting for the grandeur of the fugue, which loses nothing on the beautiful little organ in Knox. Following this were two chorale preludes in Bach's finest style—a sombre piece on the Magnificat, and the jovial allegro which immortalizes the hymn "Now Rejoice Good Christian Men." The programme came to an end with Concerto in A Minor for solo violin, the exceedingly difficult solo part being in the capable hands of Miss Edwina Palmer. One cannot over praise the sparkling counterpoint of the opening Allegro with its clean incisive rhythm or the rollicking humor of the last movement, but for sheer beauty the Andante which comes between these two is unapproachable. Miss Palmer played it "con amore" with a most ethereal tone, the string-stops of the organ making an almost ideal background. Altogether a most satisfying performance; we shall look forward to the next recital in this series.

TRIBESMEN MET ON FRIDAY NIGHT

Cyzicus Sanctorum Was Visited By District Deputy Moore.

DEGREE CONFERRED.

The regular monthly meeting of Cyzicus Sanctorum No. 24, Ancient Mystic Order of Samaritans, held on Friday evening last, was of unusual interest, there being present District Deputy Grand Monarchos F. J. Moore and twenty tribesmen of Kahari Sanctorum No. 235, Bowmanville, Ont.

Bobcaygeon was also represented by several Tribesmen.

The conferring of the 'Degree of Humility' on a class of Neophytes by the degree team of Cyzicus Sanctorum was first in order, after the regular order of business had been gone through, including reinstatement of Tribesmen.

District Deputy Moore then proceeded, with the able assistance of several Tribesmen, to make the presentation of a handsome Past Grand Hyastytee's Jewel to Sheik Walter T. Byers, who expressed his sincere appreciation of the receipt of the jewel, and the enthusiastic manner in which the presentation had been made.

The singing was in charge of Tribesman H. Niven, with Tribesman Martin Chenhall presiding at the piano.

All hands then joined in at the moon feast, which was in charge of Tribesman East and a willing staff of waiters, and all partaking voted it the best ever, after which all made trek for home.

What Is Not Wanted In Future Princess Of Wales

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa, November 2. (United News.) — The Prince of Wales has ruled against modern, cropped feminity in less mannish women.

He confided his judgment to a woman, and the secret has met the usual fate after circulating confidentially in South African society since the prince departed for Southampton.

A prominent lady asked the Prince what he thought of the modern girl.

"If you mean," Wales replied, "the close crop, cigarette smoking, mannishly dressed and noisy girl one frequently sees in all countries, then I must confess that the modern girl does not appeal to me in the slightest."

The foregoing probably is an inverse specification of what the future Princess of Wales must be. Figure it out yourself.

KNIGHTS TEMPLAR VISITED TORONTO

Fraters of Peterborough and Port Hope Preceptories Entertained.

TORONTO, Nov. 2.—There was a happy family spirit about a Knights Templar assembly in the Yonge Street Armory Saturday night, when Fraters of Moore Preceptory, Peterboro, and Palestine Preceptory, Port Hope, were guests of Geoffrey de St. Aldemar Preceptory of Toronto. It was an interesting occasion, and in the general scheme of entertainment and decoration there was a good deal of the Hallowe'en spirit. Sincere congratulations were showered upon J. F. Thompson, H. C. Rolls and L. E. Bowerman, Provincial Priory, who had been appointed to high offices in Great Priory.

It was announced that Great Priory will meet next year in Peterboro, and the Peterboro Fraters present extended a warm invitation to the Toronto Preceptories to send large delegations. A. S. Leitch presided over the banquet and entertainment.

There was a musical programme of special merit, the artists including Mr. and Mrs. John Mackay, Mrs. Norman Wells, James Reid, Miss Butt and Miss Graham. Beautiful floral bouquets were presented to the ladies, and, on their behalf, Mrs. Wells expressed appreciation.

Dr. G. B. Foster, who recently returned from a trip to Palestine, made some interesting observations of special interest to the members of the Military Order of the Temple. Others who spoke were: W. A. Peace, A. W. Asselstine, J. T. Thompson, H. L. Dobbin (Peterboro), J. M. Empey (Stratford), and H. J. C. Beatty and F. D. Greer (Port Hope). Charles Musgrave was in charge of the musical side of the assembly.

IN MEMORIAM.

WEART.—In memory of Margaret Weart, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. B. J. Weart, who died Nov. 2nd, 1921.

"Dead? No, don't speak of her that way!
Don't think of her as dead!
She's only just gone on a piece,
A little way ahead.

She's travelling still the same highway,
That she, with us, has trod;
Merely outdistanced us a bit
Upon the road to God.

Dead? Never with a thought like that
The smallest moment spend,
She's simply gone beyond our sight,
She's just around the bend."

A young French-Canadian left for his home today after spending a week in the Peterboro jail on a charge of begging. Money had been wired to him from his home and, wrapping his meagre store of travelling equipment in a piece of newspaper, he went down to the station. Among his treasured store was a large photograph of his mother, which he treats with particular solicitude. In the short while in which he was engaged soliciting alms, he had secured more the five dollars.

RADIO CARRIES RELIEF APPEAL FOR HUDSON BAY CO. POST IN FAR NORTH WHEN SUPPLY SHIP FAILS

Message to Other Depots to Forward Food to Isolated Trappers.

BROADCAST BY WBZ

Relief Ship Unable to Reach Trading Post at Southampton Island.

BOSTON, Nov. 3.—(Canadian Press).—A radio message that may mean life or death in an isolated trapping and hunting post in the Far North was injected into the broadcast of station WBZ of the Westinghouse Electric Company, Springfield, Mass., last night. Tonight the ether will again be set quivering with the appeal which, it is hoped, may penetrate the distant Hudson Bay region, and bring food to the post of the Hudson Bay Company on Southampton Island. Wednesday night the message will be repeated. The company's relief ship, laden with provisions, failed to reach the lonely post during the short Arctic summer.

A telegram requesting the following broadcast was received at WBZ Monday: "The following message is for Hudson Bay Company at Chesterfield Inlet, Repulse Bay, and Wagner Inlet:—

"The company's relief ship failed to reach Southampton Island this season. Consequently, that post is insufficiently supplied with provisions. If Chesterfield Inlet or Wagner Inlet receive this message, rush special courier to Repulse Bay and have forwarded from there to Southampton two sled-loads of staple food, advising Southampton to draw on Repulse Bay where stocks are plentiful for further requirements. Should Repulse Bay receive this message act on it at once without waiting to hear from Chesterfield or Wagner Inlets."

(Signed) Hudson Bay Company, Montreal, Canada.

More than a year ago the company equipped many of its posts scattered through the Arctic with radio receiving sets for the reception of messages which otherwise would take months to deliver and for the entertainment of trappers during the long winter nights.

Reception conditions in these barren lands, particularly from WBZ, have been excellent it is noted in the logs kept at these Northern stations. Already, on several occasions the sets have proved priceless to trappers otherwise cut off from the world.

Sheiks Wear Oxford Bag And Horn-Rimmed Glasses

LONDON, November 3. — Associated Press. — Sheiks are now wearing American horn-rimmed spectacles. Some of them ride in itinerant motors and some are arrayed in Oxford "bags" and many toned English socks.

This is the sad tory of American influence in Tunis, which Cecil Roberts, the novelist, brings back from a trip to Africa, in search of romance.

It was a bitter disappointment to Mr. Roberts, who went to Tunis to procure material for a new novel and found that the only sheik who was dressed as a sheik should be, had been equipped by an American moving picture outfit.

Womens' Hands and Feet Grow Bigger With Sport

LONDON, Nov. 3.—(United Press). — Sport, increasingly popular among women since the war, is giving them bigger feet and hands. Inquiries among the leading shoe and glove stores of England and the Continent to-day revealed that the "dainty hand" and the "dainty foot" are giving way to more masculine type. In England, the glove makers are hiding the truth from their customers by retaining the same sizes applied before the war but making the gloves larger.

Twelve Hundred Killed French Seek Vengeance

MAYOR TURNER HAS NO PLANS FOR YEAR 1926

Alderman Crowe's Request for Statement Goes Unanswered at Meeting.

UNEVENTFUL EVENING

Toboggan Slide May be Erected at Jackson Park This Winter.

The November meeting of the City Council was uneventful, although Joseph Crowe created some interest by an inquiry as to whether Mayor Turner intended to seek a third year in office. The reports of the various committees were assailed and portions altered or referred back.

Austin Allen was on hand to back up a letter in which he set forth his qualifications and asked that the action of the Board of Works in giving both section 7 and 8 for snow removal to R. W. Mitchell should be reconsidered and that one section be given to him. On motion, section 8, comprising the northern part of the East Ward, was assigned to Allen at a figure of $133.00.

Charles Brewer spoke asking consideration of his request for permission to build a galvanized iron structure between the two buildings at present in use by him as a garage at the corner of Hunter and Queen streets. The clause in the report of the Property Committee refusing this permission was upheld after considerable discussion.

The clause of the report of the Property Committee approving the recommendation of the Board of Health that the Queen Mary Hospital be made free was referred back to the committee. Several of the Aldermen disagreed with the plan, feeling that the thousand dollars collected each year from the patients who were able to pay should be retained.

Aldermen Phelan who had been requested by the Finance Committee to report on the ability of the city to make a grant to the Peterborough Hockey Club, reported that a grant could be made and on his motion $200 was granted.

Mayor Leaving City.

The Mayor was granted leave of absence from the city for some two weeks, and appointed Aldermen Phelan and Denne to take his place at the Armistic Day service to be held by the G.W.V.A. at the Opera House

Only One Seat Still in Doubt

TORONTO, Nov. 3 (Canadian Press)—With the junior seat in Queens, Prince Edward Island, assigned to the Conservative column by the latest check up of the vote and Peace River now practically conceded to the Conservatives, Rt. Hon. Arthur Meighen now has 118 seats and the Government 100. Provencher, Manitoba, is still in doubt. The Progressives have 23 seats, Labor two, and Independents one.

Province.	Liberal.	Con.	Prog.	Labor.	Ind.	Doubtful.	Total.
Prince Edward Island	2	2	0	0	0	0	4
New Brunswick	1	10	0	0	0	0	11
Nova Scotia	3	11	0	0	0	0	14
Quebec	60	4	0	0	1	0	65
Ontario	11	69	2	0	0	0	82
Manitoba	1	7	6	2	0	1	17
Saskatchewan	15	0	6	0	0	0	21
Alberta	4	4	8	0	0	0	16
British Columbia	3	10	1	0	0	0	14
Yukon	0	1	0	0	0	0	1
Totals	100	118	23	2	1	1	245

The above summary places Peace River in the Conservative column, as latest returns from that riding indicate the election of Collins, Conservative, over Rae, Liberal, and Kennedy, Progressive. It also as heretofore, places Nipissing in the Conservative column although some doubt was raised last night as to whether John Ferguson, Conservative, has a majorityq over Lapierre, Liberal. An official recount at North Bay today will decide the election.

AWAIT RETURNS OF ALL POLLS SAYS PREMIER

Cabinet in Session For Three Hours Discussing Outcome of Election.

LIKELY REMAIN.

Sentiment Still Favors King Holding Office Till Air is Cleared.

OTTAWA, Nov. 3 (Canadian Press)—Until Premier King formally announces the intentions of his government, further developments in the political situatio are not expected. But while there is no official announcement, the impression prevails that the Government has decided in favor of meeting Parliament and that parliament will be summoned as early as is practicable.

Premier King saw the Governor General last night and submitted to him his views on the situation but is unlikely to make public statement until the final election returns are in.

Rt. Hon. Arthur Meighen, Conservative leader, declines to make a statement until the intentions of the Government are made public.

A meeting of the Cabinet has been called for Wednesday afternoon. All the cabinet members are remaining in Ottawa for the Wednesday meeting.

No Conservative Lead

From the latest returns it is evident that the Conservatives cannot secure more than 118 seats and the Liberals cannot get fewer than 100 seats. Taking the final strength of the Progressives into account, the Conservatives would fall short of a majority over all by 7 or 8.

Under these circumstances the Liberals feel justified in carrying on, as they are persuaded that they have a much better chance, with the aid of the Progressives, of surviving crucial divisions in the House than would the Conservatives, who, the Liberals claim, would probably succumb on the first test.

With the exception of Hon. J. H. King of British Columbia, Hon. Charles Stewart of Alberta, Hon. Walter Foster of New Brunswick, and Hon. John E. Sinclair of Prince Edward Island there was a full attendance of Ministers at yesterday's meeting. A movie operator had his machine stationed outside the entrance to the East Block "filming" victorious and defeated Ministers

RESTORATION OF TREASURY AND IMPROVEMENT OF FINANCES IS PLATFORM OF FRENCH CABINET

Ministerial Declaration is Emphatic in Determination of Settlement.

NEED SACRIFICE.

Taxation on All Forms of Wealth Proposed For Debt Purposes Only.

PARIS, November 3. Canadian Press. — Restoration of the French treasury, and improvement of the French financial situation, of which the American debt settlement is one of the most important features, dominates the ministerial declaration with which the second Painleve Cabinet faced Parliament to-day.

While emphatic in expressing a determination to arrive at a definite settlement of the debts to America and England, the declaration does not mention the means by which such results may be reached. It says:

"However great might be the internal efforts of the country, it cannot definitely shelter the franc from all risk so long as we have not concluded an accord on the war debts with the great freindly nations.

"Therefore, we intend resolutely to pursue, with the determination necessary to complete it, an equitable solution of the negotiations begun in London and Washington by the preceding government.

"The effort that the nation itself will make to save itself will at the same time be the best guarantee for the success of the negotiations.

"The solution of the financial crisis ,the government holds, depends upon sacrifice, 'National, exceptional, and Immediate.'"

"To the end that debts be reduced ,the franc stabilized and budget balanced.

"For the reduction of debts, the government proposes taxation on all forms of wealth, proceeds to be applied outside of any budget requirements solely to debt reduction and to be independent of all state control.

"The Moroccan menace has disappeared, the declaration says, but it is less optimistic concerning Syria, where it admits that "grave events have occurred."

The government says in this connection that it will maintain a calm, absolute impartiality, and restore peace in Syria. Concerning the events themselves, the government is seeking precise information with which it will inform parliament, and take the necessary measures to prevent a recurrence of the troubl.

Youth Leaves Door Open; Companion Wants It Shut; Police! Ambulance! Doctor!

The routine of work was interrupted at the Canadian Canoe Co. Factory this morning when two youths disagreed about an open door. As a result of the ensuing altercation, one was removed to the Clinic for minor repairs and the other is repenting his act.

The row took place in the ski department, and was caused by the demands of one youth, who insisted that another had left the door open. Welch ordered Young to close the door, and when his request was refused he attempted to enforce it. The offender, in an effort to defend himself, grabbed a wooden clamp and hit his assailant with it. A nasty gash on the side of the head was the result of the blow.

NOT MUCH TALK IS HEARD YET OF THE ALDER MANIC ELECTION

Several Problems To Be Presented To Elector On January 1.

FIVE TO ELECT.

Daylight Saving and Sunday Bathing To Have Voters' Yea or Nay.

Usually it is about the first day of November that prospective slates are brought out in preparation for the municipal election that takes place on January 1, but the Dominion general election just past has for once driven city politics out of the electors' minds.

At last night's meeting of the City Council, Alderman Crowe (whose seat at the Aldermanic Board is safe for another year) suggested that Mayor Turner announce whether he will be a candidate for re-election for a third time. His Worship did not rise to the bait, having not made up his mind.

And to-day some of the Aldermen who must look to their laurels in two months' time, seemed surprised by the bare mention of the approaching election, and certainly would not make any pronouncement as to probable candidates.

Those whose terms expire this years are: Nagle Phelan, E. Mel. Turner, Malcolm McIntyre, Robert N. Jones and W. J. Hancock. Those whose election on January 1, 1925, carries them forward to the end of next year are: Joseph Crowe, J. W. Meyers, J. O. Fife, R. Denne and J. M. Greene.

Other Questions.

The municipal election at this year's end will be of more than usual interest because it involves not only the election or defeat of individual men but the settlement of several questions that have agitated the public mind during 1925. These include a referendum on daylight saving and on Sunday bathing at the civic beaches. In addition, it is said, the records of the Aldermen on such questions as Sunday band concerts, the East City gas tank scramble, the refusal to provide cages for a small menagerie and other things, will be taken into account in casting ballots.

In fact, from talk on the street, it would seem that when interest does awaken in the municipal election the situation will be very, very interesting.

Raiders Must Pay Penalty For Assault On Clergymen

TORONTO, Nov. 3.—(Canadian Press).—Eighty-one University of Toronto students have each been fined five dollars by the University authorities for their participation in a raid on a Trinity College residence, during which several clergymen visiting the College were driven from their beds by a stream of water from hose pipes in the hands of the students.

"DRUCILLA WITH A MILLION" COMING.

With all the wistful charm of a Barrie or Tarkington, all the human quality of a Dickens, and all the laughter of a Mark Twain, Elizabeth Cooper built her popular best seller. And holding the spirit of that delightful story with the utmost fidelity, the picture version proves one of the most pleasing offerings of recent years.

It will be presented in Peterboro soon, under the auspices of the Women's Council.

The Royal Theatre has been chosen for the presentation.

FELL SIX FLOORS TO DEATH.

In landing on the pavement, the body of the victim struck a passing boy, Alexandre Brais, 16, and the latter suffered a fractured leg.

SEVEN DROWNED VILLAGE RUINED BY BREAK IN DAM

Millions of Gallons of Water Rushed Down Valley in Wales.

WIPED OUT TOWN.

Seventeen People Are Missing—All North Wales Without Electricity.

LLANDUDNO, Wales, Nov. 3.—(Canadian Press).—Seven persons are reported to have been drowned and seventeen, including a woman and nine children, are missing, as a result of the bursting of a dam and the destruction of the village of Dolgarrog. Houses and buildings were swept away, and hundreds of cattle and sheep drowned; when 180 gallons of water from Eigiu Lake rushed down the Vale of Conway yesterday. Most of the occupants of the houses escaped. North Wales is without electricity as a result of the flood.

Later despatches this morning showed the disaster to much than was at first reported. When the dam burst the released waters formed two torrents, each from 20 to 30 feet in depth, raging down the valley and leaving ruin in their wake.

The furnaces in the electric power station exploded when the flood reached them, filling the little valley with steam. The furnace men, however, had made their escape, rushing down the valley toward the occupants of the dwellings there.

There were some close escapes, people running at top speed just managing in some cases to reach the high ground at the moment their homes were swept away.

RUSSIA CHANGES FOREIGN POLICY

Sees Desire For Peace Instead of Conspiracy at Locarno.

WOULD JOIN LEAGUE.

BERLIN, Nov. 3. — (Canadian Press.) — Russia has launched a new foreign policy which leads to Geneva. There has been complete "about face" in the Soviet attitude towards Locarno and the new begun movement for peace. Russia is willing to enter the League of Nations.

Russia has suddenly discovered, in the words of the Pravda, that "the days of blockades are over because blockades are double edged knives."

Only a week ago the Government saw Locarno as a British conspiracy to get Germany into the anti-Soviet bloc. Now the Pravda says the expression of Locarno is a desire for peace, especially in England, where the workers will no longer tolerate war.

WIRELESS MEN OUT ON STRIKE

Dismissal of Operators For Economy Cause of Walkout.

ENGLAND CUT OFF.

LONDON, Nov. 3. — (Canadian Press):—The strike of about 150 wireless operators and receiving clerks in London, Liverpool and Manchester has cut off Marconi wireless communication between Great Britain and the Continent and trans-Atlantic countries since yesterday. The trouble arose through the dismissal of nine operators for reasons of economy. The rest of the staff quit work and has thus far refused to negotiate with the Marconi Company or the Engineering and Allied Employers' Association, to which the men's union was referred. The Government wireless continues to function.

SOCIALISTS ARE NOT SUPPORTING LATEST CABINET

Council of Party Decided Early To-day Against Helping Painleve.

SURPRISE VOTE.

Measure of Guarded Support to Block Right Was Expected.

PARIS, Nov. 3 (Canadian Press)—The Socialists have decided not to support the new Government of Premier Painleve in parliament, thus making its survival more than doubtful before it even has appeared in the Chamber of Deputies.

This decision was reached early this morning at a council of the Socialist party following a conference previously between M. Painleve and a committee of the council at which the Premier outlined his plans.

The vote of the council on the question of supporting the Government was 1,431 to 1,228 against.

The vote came as a surprise, as was generally supposed the socialists would give M. Painleve at least such a measure of guarded support as would prevent the cabinet being defeated by the right. The principal stumbling block for the Socialists, after the ever-present difficulty over voting Syrian and Moroccan appropriations was the Premier's financial policy. It was felt by a majority of the council that M. Painleve had not gone far enough in the direction of a capital levy.

SHELLING HAD WRONG RESULT

Many Recruits Have Joined Druses Since Damascus Bombardment.

BRIGANDS INCREASED.

JERUSALEM, Nov. 3.— (Canadian Press.)—One of the results of the French bombardment of Damascus is the attraction of many recruits to the Druses. The bands of brigands in the country who normally are numbered in hundreds, may now be counted by thousands.

STEAMER LIFEBOATS ARE STILL MISSING

Crew of Algiers, Found Deserted, Has Not Been Discovered.

NORFOLK, Va., Nov. 3.—(Canadian Press).—The fate of the crew of the steamer Algiers, found Sunday night gutted by fire and abandoned, to-day remained obscure. Coastguard vessels from Norfolk and New York have set ut to search for them, and other vessels that have sought them failed to find a trace of the freighter's lifeboats. The vessel was out of Philadelphia.

Charlottetown Papers Give Him 24 Vote Lead Over Sinclair.

FIGURES RE-CHECKED.

CHARLOTTETOWN, P. E. I., Nov. 3.—(Canadian Press). — The election of John Messervey, Conservative, over Hon. John E. Sinclair, Minister without portfolio, is now generally conceded, as a result of the complete checking up of the figures furnished by the deputy returning officers, although the issue will not finally be decided before declaration to-day. The re-checked figures for the three candidates in line for the junior seat in Queens, as accepted by the Charlottetown Patriot, Liberal, give Messervey, Conservative, the victory by 24 votes.

Messervey, Conservative, 7,424; Sinclair, Liberal, 7,400; McKinnon, Conservative, 7,386.

The Charlottetown Guardian claims the election of Messervey by 29 votes.

Aviator Beat Off Mad Man and Landed Safely.

PRAGUE, Czechoslovakia, Nov. 3. —(Canadian Press).—A new thrill came to Pilot Hrazdil Monday when, while piloting a Government-owned passenger plane between Passau and Pressburg, he was attacked by a passenger who apparently had become insane. Although the passenger attempted to choke Hrazdil, he retained control of the machine with one hand and beat off the mad man with the other, meanwhile planing to the ground and making an emergency landing.

The raving passenger was turned over to the police at Pressburg.

SEVERAL ISSUES IN U. S. ELECTIONS

K.K.K. and Volstead Act Occupy Attention in Some Cities.

VOTE IN 13 STATES.

WASHINGTON, November 3. —Canadian Press. — Prohibition and the Ku Klux Klan furnish issues in some of the more spectacular of the election contests which are to be decided to-day in 13 States.

The wet and dry question is right at the front in New Jersey, with Harry Moore, the Democratic gubernatorial candidate, declaring for modification of the Volstead Act.

The Ku Klux Klan has been raised in the mayoralty fights in Detroit and Louisville, Kentucky. Prohibition also figures in the Detroit contest.

Two seats in the House of Representatives will be disposed of by the voters to-day, that from New Jersey district and that from the Third Kentucky District.

EXPECT VOTE TO FAVOR LICENSES

New Zealand Votes To-morrow on Prohibition—Keep Present System.

PREMIER STRONG.

WELLINGTON, N.Z., Nov. 3.—(Canadian Press).—It is anticipated that at the Parliamentary election and vote on the referendum regarding prohibition in New Zealand to-morrow, the result as to prohibition will be a majority vote in favor of the continuance of the present liquor license system.

Premier J. G. Coates, leader of the Reform Party, in his campaign, created an unexpectedly favorable impression in the country. The Labor party, led by H. E. Holland, is expected to make headway in the metropolitan centres. The Nationalist Party is headed by George W. Forbes.

CAR OVERTURNS KILLING ARTIST

Ernest Haskel Loses Life Within Sight of Home After Long Trip.

FAMED FOR COLORS.

BATH, Maine, November 3.—Canadian Press. — Ernest Haskell, aged 49, a noted artist, was killed almost within sight of his summer home, West Point, about 15 miles from here, early yesterday, when a small touring car in which he was returning from New York, left the highway and overturned, pinioning his body beneath it.

Haskell, who was a native of Woodstock, Conn., was educated in this country, and gained fame particularly for his etchings and brilliancy of colorings.

SHOOTING ENDED HALLOWE'EN FUN

Boy Went to Hospital and Shooter Was Arrested and Remanded.

YOUTH WILL RECOVER.

BARRIE, Ont., November 3, Canadian Press. — A Hallowe'en escapade near the village of Stroud last Saturday night, had a very serious ending, one of the youths engaged in it being now in the Royal Victoria Hospital here with a bullet in one lung.

A score of young fellows paid a visit to the home of James Booth, a farmer, and were raising a disturbance, it is alleged, when Booth came out of the house with a .22 calibre rifle and fired into the crowd, the bullet lodging in the back of Albert Woods, aged 18, son of Fred Woods, formerly of Wyevale.

Booth appeared before Police Magistrate Jeffs yesterday afternoon and was remanded on a charge of shooting with intent to do grievous bodily harm. The youth is expected to recover.

SEYMOUR CIRCUIT ACCEPTED SHARE

Must Raise $1,600 Toward Budget of United Church.

CAMPBELLFORD, Nov. 3.—A meeting of the official board of the Seymour Circuit of the United Church was held at the Parsonage on Rear Street Monday afternoon. The sum of $1,600 was allotted by Conference as Seymour's share of the $4,000,000 budget, which is required for the United Church of Canada for the first year of its existence. The members of the Board accepted this levy and a committee was appointed in each of the five charges to raise their share of the total.

Approve Proposed Division.

A resolution was adopted approving of the decision of Conference to divide the circuit, by taking in the churches at Rylstone and Springbrook, and placing these two and the church at Stanwood under one pastor, and the three charges at Hood's, the English Line and Petherick's Corners under another.

A special meeting of the Board will be held at Stanwood on Wednesday, November 4, to arrange the details for the proposed change.

CAMPBELLFORD COUNCIL HEARD DELEGATES OF BOWLING CLUB AND RECOMMENDED RATE CUT

Bowlers' Electric Line Had Been Extended to Serve Others.

TO FIX DRAINAGE.

Church Deputation Asked For Better Approach to the Edifice.

CAMPBELLFORD, Nov. 3.—Dr. O. C. Watson and J. P. Archer appeared before the Town Council last night on behalf of the Lawn Bowling Club to ask for a reduction in the rate charged that organization for electric light. Dr. Watson explained that when the light was installed it had been necessary to string a special wire to the green and the rate, based on the cost of installation, had been placed at $40 a year. Since that time the system had been extended and now the paper mill is supplied by a continuation of the same wire. In view of these facts, the club felt justified in asking for a reduction in the rate and in the amount now owing.

Mayor Meyers confirmed Dr. Watson's statement with regard to the installation of the lights on the green.

Councillor Wiggins moved that the Council recommend to the Water and Light Commission that the rate be reduced from $40 to $20 a year, and that a reduction of 50 per cent. be made in the amount in arrears. The councillor explained that the lights are used on an average not more than two and a half hours week nights for about three months in the year. The club, he said, is a good advertisement for the town, and may be regarded as a community institution. This season it was thrown open, free of charge, to beginners who cared to use it, and a large number of residents availed themselves of the opportunity.

Deputy Reeve Palliser moved, seconded by Councillor Kingston, an amendment, that the rate be $25 a year, and that a like reduction be made in the amount of average.

Councillor Stone offered an amendment to the amendment, that the request of the deputation be referred to the Commission without recommendation. He failed to get a seconder, and when Councillor Wiggins withdrew his motion, the amendment of Deputy Reeve Palliser was carried.

Presbyterians Heard From.

Dr. G. A. Hay, clerk of the Township of Seymour, appeared before the Council in a dual capacity—as a delegate from the board of managers of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church and as the representative of the Seymour Council.

In his role as a church official, the doctor asked that the drainage at the corner of Bridge and Ranney Streets be improved so as to prevent the flow of water into the church sheds. This request was granted.

The doctor stated that a number of members of St. Andrew's congregation reached that place of worship by way of River Street, which at times is almost impassable, owing to the lack of a sidewalk.

No more sidewalks can be put down this year but on motion of Councillor Abernethy, the way to worship will be made easier for the Presbyterians in that vicinity by the construction of a cinder walk.

Help for Township

Seymour Council has recently paid a bill for the care of a resident in Peterboro hospital amounting to $175. As he had moved from the town to the country only a short time before being sent to the hospital the Seymour Township council, through Dr. Hay, asked the town to stand half the bill. On motion of Reeve Davidson and Councillor Kingston a grant of $56 was voted as the town expended considerable for the maintenance of this patient and his family before he moved to the township. The patient has been recently sent to the House of Refuge at Cobourg and his children are being cared for at the Shelter in Port Hope.

Favor Grant for Memorial

Councillor Kingston reported that the Regent of the I.O.D.E. had asked him to bring before the council the matter of a civic grant for the proposed war memorial. The I.O.D.E. has raised a fund of about $2000 by private effort that has extended over a period of seven or eight years They have already received $1000 from the Council in two annual grants of $500 each, bringing the amount available up to $3000. The proposed monument, plans for which have been approved, will cost $5000.

The members of the I.O.D.E. expect a grant of $1000 from Seymour and asked a similar amount from the town.

Mr. Kingston explained to the Regent that as the money would not in any case be used until next year that there would be nothing gained by voting it now and creating a special fund. To the Council last night he suggested that the members go on record as in favor of an additional grant and on his motion, which was seconded by Councillor Stone, a resolution was adopted recommending that the Council of 1926 make a grant of at least $1000.

Sewer Bylaw Passed

A by-law to raise $7,500 by the issue of 10-year debentures, bearing interest at 5 1-2 per cent to pay for the sewer on Kent and Napier streets was passed.

Joshua Archer's request for an additional light on Garry street near the Hastings Road was referred to the Water and Light Commission.

The members present were: Mayor Meyers, Reeve Davidson, Councillors Kingston, Wiggins, Stone, Cole and Abernethy and Deputy Reeve Palliser who made his first appearance in public after a severe illness.

WHAT THE COUNCIL DID

Sent recommendation to the Water and Light Commission that the Lawn Bowling Club be given a reduction in charges for electric light.

Decided to improve drainage around the Presbyterian Church shed and to lay cinder path on River Street for the benefit of members of St. Andrew's Congregation.

Agreed to pay Seymour $56 on bill for care of a township indigent in Peterboro hospital.

Referred to Water and Light Commission request for another light on Garry Street.

Left to the Committee on Roads and bridges the matter of securing a building in which to house the road machinery for the winter.

Passed a by-law to raise by the issue of 10-year debentures at 5½ per cent, the sum of $7,500 to pay for the sewer on Napier and Kent Streets.

Adopted a resolution recommending the Council of 1926 to make a $1,000 (or greater) grant to the I.O.D.E. to pay for proposed war memorial.

TRAFFIC PROBLEM CRITICAL WITH NEXT YEAR'S ADDITION TO AUTOISTS IN PETERBORO

Bylaw is Now in State of Chaos and Must Be Unscrambled.

PARKING WORRY

Other Large Cities Have Same Trouble to Contend With.

Peterboro's traffic problem is no nearer solution now, apparently, than it was at the beginning of the year. Changes have been made in the parking by-law, so that it is now in a condition that prohibits anyone knowing what to do; traffic signals have been discussed and demonstrated; and visits have been paid by alredmen to other cities to examine methods in force there. But it still remains for the City Council or someone with authority to take the matter in hand and bring an orderly regulation out of the present chaos.

The city is not a whit behind many others in Canada, if that is any consolation. Nearly every large city has ordinances to regulate motor car parking in the busiest traffic centres, but the chief claim of uniformity is in the general tendency to non-enforcement

It is generally conceded that some action must be taken before next summer hatches out its new quota of automobiles to further clog traffic. Men are now driving automobiles who never thought a car within their reach until last year, and increasing prosperity will bring many more on the streets in 1926.

It is not a matter for sudden thought and sudden action, this traffic regulation problem. There are difficulties galore—merchants on streets designated as parking areas object because their doorways are cluttered up—merchants on streets where parking is forbidden declare they are losing business, and motorists in general seem to think the parking places should be just where they are not now

Even in United States this problem is only just coming to be recognized at its true value. A review of the parking regulations in a number of United States' cities, shows a great divergence of opinion on the matter, and furnishes interesting reading in view of the Peterborough problem. The following is taken from a report by Captain J L. Butler of Los Angeles

In his report on conditions in Philadelphia, he says:

"Streets are narow, one way with a single street-car track. No parking on left side of car track. One-hour parking at all other places, not enforced and becomes all day parking."

One-Hour Parking

"Omaha," according to the report, "has one-hour parking from 7 A.M. to 5 P.M. Ordinance is not properly enforced and results in all-day parking. Merchants complain and authorities threaten to prohibit parking entirely. All streets are sixty feet and angle parking is permitted to block moving traffic.

In Kansas City an ordinance prohibits parking on certain streets between 7 and 9 o'clock in the morning and between 4:30 and 6 o'clock in the evening

"The morning prohibition is not enforced," says Captain Butler "Merchants strongly oppose proposed measure to eliminate parking on downtown streets."

These parking ordinances, despite their more or less lax enforcement, have led many mercantile houses to provide parking space for their customers, and it may be that the local authorities hope by their parking ordinances to influence the providing of parking space by private interests. Captain Butler's report shows that this is being done to a very considerable extent Among the noteworthy instances mentioned in the report are the following:

Newark—One firm provides parking space for customers' cars and operates a bus from the store to parking station and has handled about 28,000 people in the four and one-half months it has been in operation.

St. Louis—Merchants complain little attempt is made to enforce ordinance and as a result, two firms are now maintaining expensive garages to house customers' cars at an expense of $20,000 to $30,000 a year One provides parking space for his customers cars. A municipal garage at the edge of the congested district with a capacity of 750 cars provides parking space at 15 cents for two hours.

Washington—Parking prohibited on one side of a few streets. One store is furnishing parking space for customers' cars.

Pittsburgh—Two large independent garages under construction for parking purposes. One firm supplies free garage service to customers.

Baltimore—Merchants dissatisfied with present conditions as police laxity permits all-day parking. One large store has bought a site for new store three blocks away from shopping centre on account of parking conditions Traffic survey now under way.

Salt Lake City—One firm has thrown open several thousand square feet at the edge of the congested district for free parking

Rochester—Two firms now supply free parking and another is contemplaying the erection of a garage to house customers' cars.

New York City is credited with one firm which provides parking facilities for customers' cars. In Boston a large store is building a garage to give such service, and one Kansas City firm parks customers' cars and one San Francisco firm provides free parking.

Regarding Detroit the report says: "Parking limited to twenty, thirty and sixty minutes, depending on the location. Parking prohibited on some of the narrow streets. Merchants oppose no parking, but have made no arrangements to house customers' cars. A referendum shows that 47 per cent. of Detroit's business comes to the shopping district in automobiles."

Chicago has no free-parking facilities Captain Butler sums up his report on Chicago condition by stating that as 25 per cent. of the delivery vehicles in the loop are horse-drawn, traffic is reduced to the slowest pace of any city visited.

Signals.

The single or one-motion signal of the hand is regarded by Secretary of State Kozer of Oregon as the best system thus far advanced to indicate change of direction or operation of motor vehicle movements. Mr. Kozer has consistently advocated the adoption of that method, instead of the system in use in many States of an elevated outstreched or downward position of the hand to indicate direction changes, ever since he presented it before a Western motor vehicle commission conference in 1922. It was endorsed by nine national organizations at the first national conference on streets and highway safety held in Washington in December, 1924.

"Any set of signals given by the operator of a motor vehicle must be few in number and obviously simple," says the Oregon Secretary of State, who has devoted considerable study to motor safety. "A signal system of one motion of the hand will work best to the interest and safety of the car operator and to other cars and to pedestrians in the vicinity

State Laws Vary.

"The driver has limited time in which to execute the change in his course In many instances an emergency occurs so swiftly that it is practically impossible to transmit a code signal, even a 'three-motion' code, to the man driving a car in the immediate rear.

"Any driver will admit that often he is not given time enough to employ the particular portion of code designed for his use.

"The laws of other states, particularly those in the East, vary so as to cause confusion. In many of these codes the arm is extended horizontally and the fingers convey the change of direction. Now fingers are small things and often the other driver is at loss to determine just what is meant.

"The single object does away with these objections. The motion in any manner, of the hand and arm, has the certain meaning that a change of course is contemplated. The driver in the rear has only to slow down and then proceed after the leading vehicle takes its change of operation, left turn, right turn or stop.. There is no guessing, often disastrous in loss of life and damage to property.

"One motion and the other operator is prepared. The change of operation is made and the cars in the rear continue on their way."

In practically all of the traffic and safety conferences this year, the single motion signal has been freely discussed and has met with considerable favor.

"Bright as a Dollar!"

"85 years of age, yet full of energy"—writes one of the hundreds of Wincarnis users who have told us of the wonderful benefits they have derived from Wincarnis. This sturdy old man attributes his present health to the regular daily use of Wincarnis for the last five years.

Before that time he found himself tiring quickly, having sleepless, restless nights, and frequent spells of mental depression—the results of a run-down condition.

Medical research has definitely proved that one of the causes of a run-down condition of the body is a shortage of certain mineral elements, including iron, potassium, calcium, sodium and phosphorus, and until a sufficient supply of these minerals is restored to the body, good health is impossible. Wincarnis contains every one of these elements in addition to other health giving ingredients, and in a form in which they are most rapidly absorbed into the blood and carried to every part of the body to be converted into vital force.

Wincarnis has been recommended by over ten thousand physicians in cases of nervousness, anaemia. sleeplessness and the general debility that accompanies a run-down body. For fifty years this strength giver and nerve restorative has brought new life and happiness to weakened men and women.

Buy a bottle of Wincarnis today from your druggist—try it and see the difference just a few days will bring.

COMPULSORY VOTING.

In view of the large vote polled here last week there will be especial interest in the announcement that Australia will try out a system of compulsory voting at the coming election, all electors who cannot show good reason for not exercising their franchise to be fined.

Such a method has often been urged by Canadian newspapers, following a municipal, Provincial or Federal election in which marked apathy had been displayed by the electors.

It is doubtful, however, whether the compulsory plan will help a great deal in securing an intelligent expression of public opinion.

The views of a man who takes so little interest in the issues at stake that he would not take the trouble to vote were it not for the penalty attached would hardly be worth the trouble of securing them.

And the really stubborn elector, although he used his ballot, could defeat the object of the legislation by spoiling his ballot.

CANON CODY'S ADDRESS.

The teachers are to be congratulated upon their success in securing for their annual convention this week the services as a speaker of Rev. Canon Cody, who is to address a public meeting on Tuesday evening on "The British Empire."

Canon Cody, former Minister of Education in the Government of Sir William Hearst, is recognized as one of Canada's finest orators, and with the British Empire as the theme of his local address something out of the ordinary is being eagerly looked forward to by those who have heard the speaker on previous occasions.

The public is cordially invited to this meeting for which there is no admission charge, and it is to be hoped that the distinguished orator and educationist will be greeted with an audience representative enough and large enough to measure up to the reputation he enjoys among Canadians as one of the outstanding figures of his day and generation.

Local teachers deserve general thanks for affording an opportunity to hear such an address.

ARMISTICE DAY.

Monday next, November 9th, will be Armistice Day as well as Thanksgiving Day, and it is hoped that Peterboro will, as usually loyal, observe the occasion.

Armistice Day should always be a memorable and significant event, marking as it does the anniversary of the end of the World War, and among many Canadians there is a strong feeling that the actual anniversary of the date of the signing of the Armistice, November 11, should be observed instead of combining the occasion with Thanksgiving Day.

For some reason or other the latter plan has been followed, and it is desirable for communities everywhere to fall in line and do their part in making the anniversary a notable one.

The beautiful and impressive tribute to the memory of the unreturning brave—the two-minute period of silence beginning at two minutes to 11 o'clock in the morning—will be paid as usual on November 11, the anniversary of the end of the war.

Details as to Peterboro's observance of Armistice Day are yet to be announced, but the Examiner is confident that the public will whole-heartedly co-operate when the ever plans are prepared for the occasion.

THE TOURIST CAMP.

The Ontario Hotelmen's Association, at its recent session, adopted a resolution protesting against the present methods of conducting tourist camps and tourist-houses without registration. While this action may have been prompted by self-consideration, there is little doubt that the point raised must sooner or later have the attention of the proper authorities, says the Globe. The boarding-house is an old institution, the peculiarities of which are fairly well known, and which plays an essential part in the life of the community. It is a business institution which can be reached.

The tourist camp is another proposition, and with its multiplication comes a responsibility for its welfare which no one has yet assumed. The majority of tourists using it are doubtless law-abiding people, but occasionally incidents come to the surface to show that a less desirable class of travellers make it the base of operations.

In the neighboring country to the south, where the touring season is longer than in Canada, and where the touring camp flourishes to a greater extent, and also where automobiles are cheaper, a real problem has arisen in connection with these stop-over places. It is found that they have been the means of developing a new tribe of tramps, different from those of the old-time foot species, inasmuch as the whole family is en tour. Thousands of carloads of people have taken to the road and stayed there. They have given up any notion, apparently, of having a fixed place of abode. They live during the night at tourist camps, take odd jobs on the way to provide means for gasoline and food, or beg the former and steal the latter. This kind of tourist has become so plentiful in some States that farmers depend upon them in relays to do the farm work, to the disadvantage of laborers in the community who depend upon such work to support their homes. But the chief source of anxiety is the thousands of children who are dragged about the country without proper discipline, losing the advantages of regular school training and home life. It has been thought advisable in some of the States to place the camps in charge of responsible caretakers, who will guard the morals and discipline of the places, and charge fees in order to discourage the tramp type of tourist.

Canada has not yet reached this stage, and may never do so, but with the increasing use made of tourist camps it is not too early to consider whether precautionary measures should not be taken.

No, gentle reader, they're not voting yet in some of those Western constituencies. It takes a long time to collect the returns, that's all.

SHOW BRITISH FILMS.

The election has thrust a lot of things into the background which would have been readable news had there not been so much preoccupation with tariffs and railways. Not the least significant thing that was relegated to comparative obscurity was the fact that the State of Victoria, Australia, passed a law requiring every cinema theatre to show at least one film of purely British origin.

American films form pretty nearly one hundred per cent. of the program in Canadian as well as American theatres. Elsewhere, excepting perhaps in Germany, they form eighty to one hundred per cent. of the whole. There is no doubt the world is dominated by the United States film. And what does it get? Occasionally there is a genuinely interesting film, a real artistic production which is worth the time spent at the theatre, but nine-tenths of the American films are sheer inanity and boredom. The stories are trashy, most of them dealing with crime and passion in some form or other. At bottom there is very little variation in the fundamentals of the plots, and the only thing that makes one different from another is the variation of "stunts" and sensations which are interpolated in order to give a purely artificial and irrelevant interest to the story, and without which the tale would be the emptiest drivel.

A writer prominent in the film world recently investigated the industry, and his conclusion was that as eighty per cent. of the population of the United States is composed of people who live in what are generally described as "hick" towns, and of a high proportion of people in the cities who do not appreciate high-class films, the film makers cater for these "hick" and uncultured masses who visit the theatres regularly, regardless of what kind of a picture they expect to see. They just go for the sake of going, and so make up the regular patronage of the cinemas. It pays to cater to their taste, and the standard of American films, with a few fine exceptions, is thus set for the entire universe. That is the considered judgment of a film expert.

Be that as it may, every film-goer realizes that an evening spent at the average cinema is forgotten the next. It is seldom that anything permanent is carried away; nothing of value has been learned. It is an unfortunate fact that Canadian owners are at the mercy of the big booking houses in New York, and so far as first-runs are concerned, at any rate, they have to book entire blocks of films or else go without. They must take a series, good, bad and indifferent. The number of British films shown in Canada during any year since the war could be counted on the fingers of one hand. The industry has flagged, but a number of superb British films have been completed recently, and a special feature is made of scientific and educational films and films of public interest.

This country is British enough to be interested in British achievements and British affairs, and the time is at hand when Canada, in common with the Old Land and Australia, must shake off the American yoke a little and get rid of the distorted and unreal views of life which American producers thrust upon the public. Ontario goes the length of prohibiting German films, which are technically ahead of any other films in the world today. If this is done for patriotic reasons, the powers that be might be patriotic enough to insist on each theatre showing one British film at each performance.—St. Thomas Times-Journal.

AGRICULTURAL CO-OPERATION.

A pamphlet that should be of considerable interest, especially to farmer readers of the Examiner, has just been issued by Professor C. R. Fay, M.A., D.Sc., Professor of Economic History at the University of Toronto, on the subject, "Agricultural Co-operation in the Canadian West," reprinted from Prof. Fay's "Co-operation at Home and Abroad."

This is a very interesting work upon a subject of much importance and gives evidence of considerable research upon the part of the author who subjects the whole range of co-operative activity in the West to a close examination with results that are full of interest.

Prof. Fay first deals with the foundations of the co-operative movement in the Prairie Provinces, which he likens to a confluence of two streams—the informal co-operation of farmer pioneers and the dissatisfaction of the wheat grower with the treatment received from the railway companies and the line elevators—and then passes on to discuss in some detail the pool era, beginning in 1923, and the reactions of the wheat pool on other forms of co-operation.

"Some agriculturists and many consumers fight shy of the word 'Pool' because it is associated historically with that stage of industrial monopoly at which the combine controlled price but not output," says Prof. Fay.

"Such pools were clearly anti-social, and therefore distasteful to consumers.

"They also generally failed, and therefore had no attraction for long-sighted producers.

"The co-operative pool has no such significance; for its raison d'etre is the organized marketing of the crops of many thousand independent producers.

"It is conceivable that a pool of farmers raising a rare fruit on the only soil capable of growing it might successfully restrict its production, after securing a majority membership of the growers, but if the Canadian farmers attempted to restrict the output of wheat, they would simply present to the Argentine or Russia what they denied to themselves.

"Even in a protected country supplying mainly its own market, it is doubtful if it would ever be in the interest of co-operative bodies to endeavour to restrict output on a national scale. For they would instantly invite the organized opposition of consumers and the penalties of the law.

"Moreover, they would put a premium on disloyalty; and by losing members, lose the volume of business which is the essence of co-operative strength.

"Other critics, while welcoming the purpose of the co-operative pool, depreciate its compulsory element.

"They would support it if it were the old-fashioned voluntary co-operation—if there were no contracts and no drives. But there is here a confusion of thought.

"The new pools are voluntary. They would be compulsory if they were state-operated; and there is cause for thankfulness that the proposals for re-establishing the Government Wheat Board fell through.

"Nobody need join a pool unless he desires. But having joined it, he must sell through it under penalty. For the period of his contract he has not the option of dealing elsewhere: in that sense only is the pool nonvoluntary."

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

Women candidates fared badly on Thursday, Miss Agnes MacPhail being the only member of her sex to carry a riding. That means an afternoon wasted while Miss MacPhail condemns cadet training in the schools.

A THOUGHT.

BEFORE SPOUTING.

Writing is a greater aid to accuracy than talking, for once you have written a thing down you can always make corrections. In speaking it may be too late for corrections, or you may have too poor a memory. Sometimes it may pay to write an important decision down and analyze it from all angles before spouting it before the world.

WELCOME PERSONALS

WELCOME, Nov. 2.—Mrs. Alford has purchased the house lately occupied by Mr. Pearce, Sr. The house is being renovated and repapered and painted. Mrs. Alford will then reside there.

Mr. Pearce is at present staying with his son, Mr. Gerald Pearce.

Messrs. W. Lewis, C. Lewis, W. Bamsay, W. Symons and Rev. D. R. Clare represented Welcome circuit at the meeting of the maintenance committee in Cobourg on Friday afternoon.

Miss Tighe is visiting her aunt, Mrs. James Walker.

Miss Mary White spent the week-end with her friend, Miss Gertrude Lewis.

Misses Edna and Elva Pearce, H. Bamsay and B. Chestnut, Messrs. Doyle and C. Williams attended a party at Mr. E. Mills's on Friday night.

The heavy frosts this week have done great damage to the apple crops. It is estimated that little more than half the crop has been harvested. Some of the farmers still have their potatoes in the ground.

Mr. Carman Payne, of Lakefield, who has been picking apples in the neighborhood, returned home this week to join a hunting party going to New Ontario.

ANCIENT TABLETS FOUND.

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 3.—(Canadian Press).—One thousand clay tablets revealing public and private life in Iraq 3,400 years ago, and with which it is hoped to reveal the life history of an ancient people of whom historians know virtually nothing, have arrived at the University of Pennsylvania. They were delivered by Dr. Edward Chiera, who discovered them near Kirkuk, Iraq.

TORONTO LIVESTOCK

TORONTO, Nov. 2—There was a better feeling around the cattle market today, showing a decided improvement over last week, with a tendency towards higher prices for anything of choice quality. The fact remains, however, that there was too little choice stuff offering, while there is an altogether too large a proportion of common. Outside of one choice load of heavy export steers, which stood at $8.35 bid, there was an absence of anything of outstanding quality, such as is usually to be seen the week before Thanksgiving Day. But with what there was of decent quality the market was doing very well.

There was a good export demand, prices averaging 10c to 15c higher than last week's export average. Rogers and Maybee are shipping out this week about 1,500 cattle for export, at from $7 to $8.10, and one load at $8.25. The H. P. Kennedy Company is shipping through 700 Ontario cattle for export.

Butcher cattle trade was slow, but prices firm for anything choice. Plain and common butcher stuff draggy.

The demand for good stockers and feeders continues active at steady prices.

Calves a little slow at $10 to $11 tops.

Lambs firmer at $13 tops. Sheep steady.

Hogs firmer at $11.75, off cars, for today's deliveries, but packers are taking 25c lower for tomorrow.

CHICAGO GRAIN

CHICAGO, Nov. 2 (Canadian Press).—Widespread frost in Argentina and prospective return of unfavorable weather in Canada led to a lively advance today in the value of wheat. Closing quotations on wheat were firm, 2 1-4 to 31-8 cents net higher, new style, December $1.49 1-4 to $1.49 3-8 and May $1.44 5-8 to $1.44 34, with corn 1-2 to 1 1-4c up, oats at 1-8 to 1-4c gain, and provision varying from 2 cents decline to a rise of 7 cents.

Argentine advices told of frost at many points both in Southern Argentina and on the Pampas. The crop outlook below the equator was also darkened by word that recent rains in Australia were inadequate, and that the wheat acreage of Indiana will fall below last year's total. With Canadian forecasts pointing to snow or rain, and to further cold, likely to interfere anew with threshing and to delay the movement of wheat, active buying soon set in here on an ascending market. A decrease of 2,114,000 bushels in the United States visible supply total gave additional impetus to the upward swing of values.

Despite extensive profit-taking sales, the wheat market closed at but little below the day's top prices. A contributing factor in the strength of values was gossip that mills had been ordering such quantities of wheat to be taken out of public elevators here as to deplete stocks to a serious extent. It was asserted that if depletion continued at the same rate the Chicago public stock of wheat would be nearly exhausted in a week. Meanwhile, world shipments of wheat were smaller than had been expected, and domestic winter wheat seeding as a whole was reported as turning out to be also less than had been looked for, although in the west and southwest there will be a substantial gain.

Reports that stocks of old corn are about the scantiest ever known tended to uphold an advance that was scored by corn and oats, notwithstanding that the average of unofficial estimates today of the 1925 yield of corn put the total at 2,961,000,000 bushels, as against the Government estimate of 2,918,000 bushels a month ago.

MONTREAL PRODUCE

MONTREAL, Nov. 2 (Canadian Press).—There was a moderate enquiry from foreign buyers for Canadian grain on the Montreal market today, but owing to the sharp advances in prices recorded in the Winnipeg market, the bids received were generally thrown out of line and no sales were made.

The domestic cash grain market was again very quiet, there being little demand from any source, but the undertone was firm in sympathy with the strength in other markets and prices were well maintained. Carlots of Ontario and Quebec No. 2 white oats were quoted at 52 1-2 cents, No. 3 white at 51 cents, and No. 4 white at 49 1-2 cents per bushel, ex-store, and Ontario malting barley was quoted at 85 cents per bushel, ex-track.

There was no important change in the condition of the market for fresh eggs, prices being firmly maintained with the demand in excess of the supply and all offerings met with a ready sale. The receipts today

WHAT difference does it make? Light is the least expensive of all modern comforts. It costs less now than it did before the war.

A 75 watt Edison Mazda Lamp averages less than half a cent an hour for current. If you read your daily newspaper from end to end under the proper light, the paper will have cost you more than the light you read it by.

The price of a cigar given to a guest will more than cover the cost of illuminating your house all evening. In comparison with any other service to the same end, light is an infinitesimal item in the cost of comfort and convenience.

Near you is an Edison Mazda Lamp Agent. There you can obtain real information about good lighting.

FINANCIAL PROBLEM AND SYRIAN TROUBLE CONFRONT NEW FRENCH CABINET WITH GRAVE SITUATION

Decide to Reopen Negotiations With United States on War Debt.

LOAN IS NEEDED

Tax on All Forms of Wealth Proposed to Placate Socialists.

PARIS, Nov. 3 (Canadian Press)—The Painleve Cabinet, with Mr. Caillaux alone absent from the leading roles, will confront Parliament today in an atmosphere which friends and foes alike agree is laden with electricity. Not since the Viviani ministry met to discuss the war, in August, 1914, has the French Government been faced by a more momentous situation.

Syria looms like a heavy cloud, destined to obscure the bright sun of Locarno and France's internal financial problem was never more acute.

The finishing touches were put on the Ministerial declaration by the cabinet, which met this evening. It would appear that the Ministry realizes that the most effective remedy for the present financial crisis would be to come to terms with the United States on the matter of war debts. M. Painleve and his colleagues hope in this way to halt the downward trend of the franc, and they feel that a loan would put France's financial house in order.

The great authority and prestige M. Briand enjoys in the new cabinet is seen in the decision to reopen the negotiations with the United States. Only a few days ago Premier Painleve was reconciled to "letting the American debt situation drift."

Tax All Wealth

On broad outlines the Ministerial declaration first deals with the financial situation of the Treasury. It contains an unequivocal phrase declaring the intention of the Government "to propose a tax bearing on all forms of wealth." This avoids mention of a capital levy, and no details will be given concerning the methods of such tax collections. It is expected that the financial statement will pacify the Socialists.

No Compromise In Morroco

The declaration will announce sterner repression of agitators, whether from the parties of the Right or the Left, and closer control of foreigners.

In questions pertaining to foreign policy, the declaration mentions Syria in the mildest and most conciliatory terms, expressing the intention to restore peace and maintain the prestige of France. But there will be no compromise with Abd-El-Krim in Morocco. The Moorish chieftain must bow before France and accept the "very generous terms offered to him by Spain and France."

The declaration will conclude with a determination to resume at the earliest possible moment the negotiations for the funding of the French debt to the United States.

MAYOR TURNER

on Sunday, November 8.. The members of the Council were also asked to take part.

A petition was read asking that no pavement be laid on Stewart street between Charlotte and Hunter streets. Alderman Fife suggested that the contract for the paving on Reid and Rubidge streets should be let and the matter cleaned up. Alderman Turner felt that it should be left to next year's Council as conditions might be different then. The matter was left to the Board of Works.

A committee was appointed to see about putting parking signs on the curbs.

Alderman Turner asked about the presence of watchmen at certain railway crossings referring to a letter from the Railway Board which had resulted in permission being granted for these men to be absent at times when there were no trains and he said that there should be a check made on this. He referred to a recent Sunday evening accident and Alderman Hancock also mentioned having had a narrow escape from a train when there was no gateman present.

The question of fixing up the toboggan slide at Jackson Park in place of that on Hunter street bridge was introduced by Alderman Turner. He said that the H.E.P.C. would possibly make a grant toward the cost of doing the work and that permission had been obtained from the Commission and other property owners.. He recommended that the skating rinks be at the same place as last year and that the Parks Committee be given authority to hire caretakers and do other work in connection with the rinks. His recommendation was passed.

There were present Mayor J. J. Turner, Aldermen N. E. Phelan, R. N. Jones, E. M. Turner J. O. Fife, Meyers, W. J. Hancock, M. M. McIntyre, J. Crowe and R. Denne.

Ottawa Police Informed of Hallowe'en Shooting.

OTTAWA, Ont., Nov. 3.—(Canadian Press).—When Oliver Forget, farmer, near Blackburn, Ont., six miles from here, stepped out of his farm door on Hallowe'en night to investigate the tooting of the horn of a car, three shots were fired. He reported to the police yesterday that he distinctly felt the wind from one of the bullets as it went by his head. He distinctly saw two men make a getaway in a car which was idling on the road, opposite his home. Mr. Forget has been a resident here for approximately 23 years, and knows of no reason for anybody shooting at him.

SOCIALISTS IN ENGLISH TOWNS GAIN AT POLLS

Capture 66 Seats and Lose 40 in Borough Elections.

PREMIER'S EXAMPLE.

Vote Early in Westminster Yesterday For Municipal Councillors.

LONDON, Nov. 3.—(Canadian Press).—The Prime Minister and Mrs .Baldwin set an example for the electors Monday when they went early in the morning to record their votes in Westminister for municipal councillors. In London constituencies no less than 300 women candidates were standing for election. In all, 5000 municipal councillors will be chosen in 400 English and Welsh boroughs to represent the people in local affairs.

Miss Betty Baldwin was busy throughout the day driving her own motor in a North London constituency to bring voters to the booths.

Up to midnight the returns were not sufficient to indicate how the elections are going. The most important issue is on the question of Socialism. More voters cast their ballots than last year, when, however, only 36 per cent of the electors voted. The women voters were particularly prominent.

Results from eighty of the provincial elections shows substantial gains for the Labor-Socialists. They captured 66 seats from their opponents and lost 20, while all other parties gained 44 and lost 90.

The Reds have recently set themselves deliberately to attack the present order through the local administrative council. They know they have no chance of gaining power in Parliament, but they see they can throw the local Government into great disorder and sometimes make it absolutely impossible by obtaining control of the local government in certain places where they are strong.

Examples of this are Poplar and Westham, two borough in the East end of London. By paying borough employees very high wages, by granting large relief to paupers and unemployed they have actually broken the down local administrations. The Ministry of Health has engaged a weary fight with them to unravel the tangle and it is by no means certain who in the end will be the victor.

It would be considered disastrous by the Conservative and Liberal politicians if the extremists captured many seats in the borough councils, or actually gained control of any. These borough councils are something akin to New York's Borough Presidents. They have to attend to street paving and to keep up public health regulations, and take care of sanitation and street improvements.

In the London area 1,362 councillors must be elected in the twenty-eight boroughs and of the retiring Councillors only 263 were Socialists.

The great danger to the Liberals and Conservatives is the apathy of the voters who seem to take all these municipal services as being organized by nature for their advantage. The vote on the last election in many boroughs was less than 25 per cent. of the electors on the register and the Socialists are counting on this slackness to win them many seats.

JAW BROKEN IN CAR COLLISION

Elsie Smith, Campbellford Teacher, Painfully Injured Sunday Night

BOY HURT BY CAR.

CAMPBELLFORD, November 3.—Miss Elsie Smith, one of the teachers in the Primary Department of the Public School, was serious injured in an auto accident Sunday evening, when a car driven by Edward Owen of town, collided with one owned by James Cowan, a Lindsay hotelman, who had come to this district to attend a funeral. The accident occurred on the gravel road a short distance from town. The cars were going in opposite directions and Chief Brown is making an investigation with a view to fixing the responsibility for the collision.

Miss Smith's lower jaw was broken and her teeth knocked out. Five stitches were required to close a cut in her face. None of the other occupants of the car was seriously injured.

Mr. Cowan, driver of one of the cars, was formerly a resident of the Codrington district, and about a year ago was proprietor of the Clarendon Hotel at Hastings.

Boy was Injured.

Fred, the 15-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Matt. Sargeant, was knocked down by a car driven by G. West, formerly of town, but now residing in Oshawa, on Queen street, Saturday evening. Fred, with a number of companions, dressed in masquerade costume, were celebrating Hallowe'en, and ran out in the middle of the road when the car knocked him down, one wheel passing over him. He was taken home and is progressing favorably.

It was rumored that after running down the boy Mr. West switched off his lights and continued full speed ahead, but Chief Brown, who was soon on the scene says that Mr. West was there when he arrived.

Monday Morning Fire.

His loss will be heavy as little of the furniture was taken out and what was not burned was badly damaged by smoke and water.

He was well known in Campbellford, where he visited frequently. His death occurred in the hospital at Cobourg.

The late Mr. Poole, throughout his professional career, was noted for His penmanship and to the end of his life he prided himself upon his skill in the art which he regarded as all but lost in modern school teaching.

Simple Way to Get Rid of Blackheads

There is one simple, safe, and sure way that never fails to get rid of blackheads, that is to dissolve them. To do this, get two ounces of peroxine powder from any drug store—sprinkle a little on a hot, wet cloth—rub over the blackheads briskly—wash the parts and you will be surprised how the blackheads have disappeared. Big blackheads, little blackheads, no matter where they are, simply dissolve and disappear. Blackheads are simply a mixture of dust and dirt and secretions that form in the pores of the skin. The peroxine powder and the water dissolve the blackheads so they wash right out, leaving the pores free and clean and in their natural condition.

NEW PARTIES IN SOUTH AFRICAN POLITICS SEEN

General Smuts Finds Less Bitterness in he Orange Free State.

RE-UNION DESIRED.

Nationalists, Under Premier Hertzog, Dominant Power in the Country.

CAPETOWN, South Africa, Nov. 3.—(Canadian Press Cable via Reuters).—At the conclusion of his tour of the Orange Free State in which his party is without a single seat, General Jan Christian Smuts, leader of the South African party, declared himself highly pleased with the disappearance of that bitterness which existed in the past. On several occasions during his tour Gen. Smuts discussed the question of rapprochement with the nationalists, led by Premier Hertzog, and he declared his belief that eventually they would have new governing and opposition parties. He was repeatedly told that the people wanted a reunion of the parties and to this he replied that with the goodwill a solution would be found, but that the South African party could not desert the former unionist members of that party. Moreover, he added, the initiative must come from the people.

Questioned at one meeting whether he was willing to stand aside Gent. Smuts said that he certainly was prepared to do so or anything else that would help the people out of their present difficulty. The English press of South Africa, however, is unwilling to discuss such an eventuality and pays tribute to the refusal of General Smuts to abandon his British comrades.

The Cape Times says that Premier Hertzog's guarded allusions to the improbability of the parties continuing on the present basis seem to show that he has been thinking along the lines which political circles have been discussing throughout the country. "There is unquestionably a growing sense of unreality in the present lines of party division," says the Times, "but nobody would wish to see any short cuts attempted to a new system."

A Bloemfontein nationalist organ asks how the nationalists could be expected to unite with the unionist wing of the South African party.

THE MARKETS

were 136 cases, as compared with 186 for the same day last week, and 1,747 for the corresponding day a year ago.

Potatoes Advance.

The strength which developed in the market for potatoes at the latter end of last week was fully maintained today and prices scored a further advance of 10c to 15c per bag owing to the continued good demand, and the somewhat keen competition between buyers for supplies, with the result that a fairly active trade was done with sales of Quebec varieties at $2.10 to $2.25 per bag of 90 lbs., ex-track.

The exports of butter from the Port of Montreal last week were only 348 packages which showed an increase of 141 packages, as compared with the previous week, and a decrease of 9,447 packages with the same week last year, but the total shipments for the season to date have been 70,010 packages in excess of the same period for 1924.

The stock of creamery butter in store in Montreal on the 1st of the months was 145,539 packages, which show a decrease of 10,121 packages, as compared with October 1, and a decrease of 89,091 packages with a year ago, while the stock of dairy butter was 1,384 packages smaller than the previous month and 1,224 packages below a year ago.

The receipts of butter today were 347 packages, as compared with 575 for the same day last week, and 2,209 for the corresponding day a year ago. There was no important change in the condition of the market to note, the undertone being firm with a moderate amount of business passing for local account.

Cheese Market Steady.

The exports of cheese from the Port of Montreal last week were 31,754 boxes which showed a decrease of 32,046 boxes, as compared with the previous week, and a decrease of 2,195 boxes with the same week last year, while the total shipments for the season to date have been 108,991 boxes larger than 1924.

The stock of cheese in Montreal on the first of the month was 281,105 boxes showing an increase of 820 boxes with October 1st, and an increase of 82,976 boxes with a year ago. The stock in the three leading English ports showed an increase of 24,100 boxes, as compared with a month ago, and an increase of 17,700 boxes with a year ago, while the stock of New Zealand cheese was 6,600 boxes less than October 1st, and 43,400 boxes below November 1, 1924.

The receipts of cheese in Montreal today were 6,432 boxes, as against 8,498 for the same day last week, and 4,109 for the corresponding day a year ago. The tone of the market was steady, but the volume of business was somewhat limited owing to the fact that the demand from foreign buyers was only moderate.

Beans were unchanged at $2.40 per bushel.

COAL ENQUIRY BY PRESIDENT

Coolidge Consults With John Hays Hammond as to Substitutes.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 3.—(Canadian Press).—President Coolidge, according to present indications, is about to take a hand in the situation brought on by the strike of coal miners of the Pennsylvania anthracite fields. With growing complaint as to the shortage of hard coal due to the shutdown of anthracite operations, the President is expected this week to consult with John Hays Hammond, chairman of a committee named by the Governors of the New England States to promote use of substitutes for the anthracite product.

Mr. Hammond was formerly head of the Federal Coal Investigation Commission, and is in intimate touch with fuel conditions. He has come to Washington from Boston, and it is understood the President is seeking to obtain first-hand information as to the present situation from him.

EQUALITY FOR WOMEN SOUGHT

A Complete Economic and Legal Basis With Husbands.

A CANADIAN MOVE.

DETROIT, Nov. 3.—(Canadian Press)—Canadian delegates to the meeting of the National Council of Women in session here, Monday, reported a movement sponsored by the Canadian Councils for a law which would establish the "equality" of wife with husband regardless of husband's earning capacity. The delegates said that a movement to put such a law on the statute books was under way in several Canadian provinces.

A similar law is said to be in effect in Sweden, placing the housewife on an economic and legal basis with the breadwinner.

The National Council has forwarded a letter to the Daughters of the American Revolution censuring the action of the latter body in withdrawing permission to use the D.A.R. hall from the council The hall offered several months before convocation of the council meeting was suddenly made not available shortly before the arrival of foreign delegates to the convention.

A a banquet last night the council heard Major-General Hanson Ely, representing the War Department, speak on "Defense Day" as a test of the "nation's strength and means of defense in case of aggression."

SCHOOL ASSOCIATION.

Mrs. H. G. Walker Presided at Queen Alexandra Meeting.

The regular monthly meeting of the Queen Alexandra Home and School Association was held on Monday evening, the president, Mrs. H. G. Walker, in the chair. Routine business was attended to. Owing to the efforts of Mr. M. H. Park and the teachers, the paper collection for October was a great success, the plants being won by Miss Walker's and Miss E. Morrow's rooms. The banner this month was won by Senior Fourth, Mr. M. H. Park's room.

Miss Eva Outram, teacher at the King George School, who taught in Northampton, England, last year, gave a most interesting talk on her trip, describing in detail life on board ship and a trip to Melrose, Edinburgh and the Trossachs, giving many instances of London life and a garden party at Buckingham Palace, showing the wonderful hospitality of the English, who find that it pays to take more time to live. Miss Outram also visited Wales, Ireland, France, Holland and Belgium.

Miss Outram's talk was followed by an instrumental selection by Miss Marjorie Lang and a reading by Miss Margaret Walker. The members were reminded of the annual convention of the Teachers' Institute and the address to be given in the Collegiate Institute Hall on Thursday evening by Dr. Cody.

MADRID, Nov. 3. — (Canadian Press). — The Official Gazette announces changes in the personnel in Morocco. General Primo de Rivera resigns as Spanish High Commissioner and General Sanjurgo has been appointed to that post.

There has been a general shifting of the commanders at various military centres, such as Melilla and Ceuta.

Dear Friends:—

"If there is a best way to live, the Young Women's Christian Association covets that best way for every girl and woman. Its aim, therefore, is to develop the highest conception of Christian womanhood. It believes that the young woman who is a good citizen is one who is strong physically, who is intelligent, who enjoys good times and has friends, who is spiritually minded, and who gives expressions in service to the purposes of her life. Its program is built upon the principle that a girl is worth most to herself and to her community when all sides of her nature are being developed."

The Peterborough Young Women's Christian Association need financial help to the extent of $1500.00 per year. This year the committees have planned many extensions to the work and trust that the subscriptions will be as large as possible so that a total of $2000.00 may be reached. The annual budget for the Association is $8500.00 and last year the Association was 94% self-supporting. Considering the large overhead expenses compared with the large amount of work the Y.W.C.A. does, for which there is no charge, and the very reasonable prices charged for classes where a charge is made, Peterbprough can well be proud of the splendid record financially, as well as the splendid all round activities which are provided for all the girls.

The annual Y.W.C.A. financial campaign will be held November 2 to November 9. Every subscription will be appreciated. May we ask your most hearty co-operation and generous subscription on behalf of the Young Women's Christian Association?

Yours sincerely,
Clara Cressman,
Convenor of Finance Com.
Leta Brownscombe,
General Secretary.

The Assembly is expected to meet within a month and it is virtually certain that Premier Reza Khan will be elected Shah. Finance Minister Faroughi has been appointed acting Premier.

S.P.C.A. INSPECTOR TO BE APPOINTED

Provincial Officer Spent Several Days in the City Recently.

Provincial Inspector Ballingal of the Ontario Society for Prevention of Cruelty to Animals, Headquarters, Toronto, has been spending several days in the City in the interests of humane work. His work involved the inspection of various stables and the investigation of complaints. Inspector Ballingal highly commended the general class of working horses in the City and conditions in general were found to be very fair, although a few cases will be kept under supervision. It is Inspector Ballingal's plan to make periodical visits to the City and thus aid in any way the work of the local Inspector, who is about to be appointed. This will greatly eliminate the difficulties of the local Society, which has been unfortunate in not having a local Inspector for some time past.

Plans are also under way for the organizing of a Band of Mercy, among the children of which more will be said at a future date.

TORONTO, Nov. 3.—(Canadian Press).—The receipt of $8,151,078 in payment of interest and carrying charges and advancing of $8,844,092 on capital account, constitute the story in brief of the Ontario Government's financial relations with the Provincial Hydro Commission during the fiscal year just ended. The Hydro's indebtedness to the public treasury as the result of further advances made during the year now stands at the sum of $146,529,307. The whole of this debt, however, is interest-bearing.

7,000 BAKERS STRIKE

Scarcity of Vienna Rolls in Austrian Capital.

VIENNA, Nov. 3. — (Canadian Press).—Seven thousand bakers went or strike last evening; they demand a twenty per cent. increase in wages, which their employers refuse. The strikers decline to await the outcome of the negotiations between the state authorities and state employees, who also have made a demand for higher wages.

Distress threatens the city unless the dispute is settled soon.

There was hardly a pound of bread left in Vienna last evening.

Blizzard Last Week Broke Wires and Uprooted Poles.

QUEBEC, Que., Nov. 3.—(Canadian Press.)—Information reaching Quebc from isolated villages and towns north of this city tells of destruction wrought by the blizzard of Oct. 25 last. Telephone and telegraph wires are still down, poles uprooted and communication with the whole northern part of the province along the coast from Quebec cut off.

A Boon to Mothers

Mothers everywhere who realize the danger to delicate little stomachs of too much dosing appreciate the value of Vicks in treating croup and children's colds.

With Vicks there is nothing to swallow—you just rub it on. The body heat releases the ingredients—Menthol, Camphor, Eucalyptus, Thyme, Turpentine—in the form of vapors which carry the medication directly to the nose, throat, bronchial tubes and lungs.

At the same time Vicks is absorbed through and stimulates the skin like a poultice or plaster.

Colds go overnight, croup is generally relieved within 15 minutes.

PETERBORO Y. W. C. A. IS A HOME FOR MANY GIRLS WHILE HUNDREDS OF OTHERS USE THE GYMNASIUM OR MASTER ACQUATIC ART IN THE CAPACIOUS POOL

Mrs. Morrison Mothers Seventy Young Ladies and Prepares Their Food—Her Home is One Big Happy Family.

CLASSES THRONG ATHLETIC DEPARTMENT

"Y" is Link in Great Chain Which Circles the Globe — Miss Littlefield, Miss Brownscombe and Miss Storey Have Great Work.

There is a building in Peterborough which is home to seventy people, a play ground for more than five hundred, a bathing beach for nearly 1,000 and a welcoming place of refuge for out of town visitants. The Y.W.C.A. is all that and several more. Situated strategically on the corner of Simcoe and Aylmer it is convenient to school, railways, business and residential sections alike and because of that enjoys the patronage of school girls and business girls as well as numbers from the various factories in the city.

Clubs hold their meetings within its walls, classes learn various arts and sciences such as cooking and basketry; should one wish to master the gentle art of twanging a ukelele it is but necessary to make application and immediately an instructress shows and tells how it is done in several lessons. Elocution, first aid and home nursing are other useful and ornamental studies.

Various Departments

Under the influence of Miss Littlefield's wiles the athletic propensities of the young ladies are developed until they far outclass the mythical Dianas of the lyric age. The gymnasium is fully equipped for all manner of athletic pursuits and the pool is another home to which many of the city's youth and beauty retire to develop their acquatic natures.

Miss Storey may be seen almost any day reading to a number of children or escorting them on a long hike to some distant portion of the city.

Miss Brownscombe is general secretary and handles the administrative side of the business. Registrations for classes and for membership pass through her capable hands and she controls the destinies of innumerable committees.

Mrs. Morrison is mother to all residents and she has control of the household—seeing that food is supplied and attending to the general wants of seventy girls would seem no light task but under Mrs. Morrison's direction the difficulties are not apparent. Possibly the explanation is best given in her own words. She said, "I love my girls."

Building Description

A building which has such wide and varied activities must be large and well equipped and it must be sufficiently well-equipped to attract patrons. The Y.W.C.A. is attractive as the mural decorations are tasteful with the basic tones harmonizing in values.

The front door faces Simcoe street and gives entrance to a large hall which, contains the office of the assistant Secretary, Miss Margaret Storey. Adjoining this office is that of Miss L. Brownscombe The arrangement is particularly convenient. Immediately before the door is a fireplace flanked on one side with a bench. It is here that many lively entertainments are held and on the walls are many artistic posters proclaiming the value of gym-training or certain classes.

A door between the fire place and the office of the assistant secretary admits the visitor to the residential department and automaticaliy enters Mrs. Morrison's domain.

To the left is the library and connected with it by large swing doors is the Green room. The library is spacious, and the walls are hung with beautiful pictures. A large table is plentifully supplied with current literature, ten magazines and four daily papers being found sufficient to satiate the average girl's craving for news. The library proper consists of 720 volumes covering a wide range of fiction and general information.

The Green room is retained for social meetings and for the use of outside organizations. The Council of Women, the Otonabee and Peter Robinson Chapters, the Business Girls and the Nurses organizations as well as the W.C.T.U. and many others use this room for their conclaves. It is equipped with an upright piano and "get together" meetings are held there in the winter.

Farther down the hall and on the right is Miss Littlefield's office equipped with weigh scales and other paraphernalia essential to an instructress of athletics. On the left, and near the gymnasium is a sewing room which also does duty as a club room for the house girls. It is very tastefully decorated with chintz as curtains and drapes on inviting chairs.

The Gymnasium

The gym is large enough for a regulation basket ball court and is equipped with all the regulation materials with which the athletic female would desire to play. The walls are decked with wands, dumbbells and clubs while leather backed horses and parallel bars line the walls. Should milady wish for the wings of a dove she would be refused but in all likelihood she would be commanded to travel the length of the gym on the flying rings instead.

In the basement is a domestic science room equipped with 12 jets and corresponding tables where culinary marvels may be evolved to the edification of the prospective cooks. The room is kalsomined in yellow and brown. Besides its experimental purpose it also serves as a tea room accommodation being provided for forty people. Clubs use the room, supplying the food and preparing it in a great pantry which adjoins.

At the southern end of the basement are two smaller club rooms which are used by 125 children under the supervision of Miss Storey.

Toward the east and through a dark passage the laundry is to be found where the residents may indulge in ablutionary orgies to their heart's content. The furnaces for hot water heating and for heating the buildings are located there. In another cavern is the heating equipment for the pool. The dark passages underneath the building may serve a useful purpose on Hallowe'en and for initiating ceremonies when spooks, ghosts and hobgoblins peer out from every nook and cranuie.

The Residential Section

The girls who live at the "Y" enter from a side porch which in the summer is decked with hanging baskets, wicker chairs and porch swings.

To the east is a lawn on which the young ladies wage many a hard fought game of croquet. The Rose room to the south of the entrance is the sanctum in which the bashful swain awaits the tap of his sweetheart's heels on the staircase. The Rose room as the name implies is hung and draped with tints and shades of a rosy hue. Leather covered window seats, capacious chairs and a large grand piano are portions of the scenery which become graven on the minds of visitors.

The dining room is a feature which is worthy of considerable comment. A homey atmosphere prevails, engendered by the profusion of curtains and hangings. Instead of rows of tables which would characterize the place as a home of the usual order, a number of small tables are to be found well equipped with linen and silver. The dining hall is capable of accommodating 75 persons.

On the clang of the gong the young ladies rush from their rooms and make a concerted dash down the stairs. Five waitresses attempt to stave off the tidal waves of appetite.

Three stoves, two of which are equipped with gas, are necessary to cook a sufficient quantity of food and the mistress of this domain is called by Mrs. Morrison "the best cook in the city."

The Girls Are Fed

To satisfy the wants of her girls Mrs. Morrison cans 1700 quarts of fruit every season. She has just completed the pickling now. This supply of home-canned fruit does more perhaps than anything else to impress the residents with the home like atmosphere of the building. In one day 28 pounds of meat, 20 loaves of bread and half a bag of potatoes are used.

The food is purchased in such a manner as to distribute the patronage among all the leading grocers. The budget shows that meat valuing $1,500 was purchased for one year. The milk bill was over $500 while fuel cost $1,000. The girls ate butter worth $525.00 in one year and groceries valuing $1,493.60 were disposed of with ease; 80,000 meals were consumed in one year.

As a sample of the day's menu, it is found that for breakfast there is a choice of four cereals supplemented by toast, marmalade, honey and bacon. Dinner consists of meat and two vegetables with dessert while the supper is practically a second dinner.

Mrs. Morrison makes the proud assertion that no girl was ever turned away as there are always special cots which may be requisitioned if the available quarters are crowded. The rooms are always comfortable and warm while the one big family note is dominant.

Girls get acquainted quickly, first with the circle at the dining table, then with those on the dormitory floor and finally with all other residents. On each landing is a comfortable sitting room with a fire place and a table where the girls may congregate for study or gossip.

The furniture of the rooms consists of a dressing table, a stand and a commodious iron bed with freshly laundered sheets. Decorations are subject to the taste of the occupant, some of them showing considerable care and attention. The rooms are all exceptionally large and give the girls plenty of scope should they desire to engage in nocturnal pillow fights or raids.

Have Good Times Often

All parties are celebrated; Hallowe'en, Christmas, New Year's day, St. Valentine's and St. Patrick's as well as numerous others are occasions for decorations and festivities. Before the students leave in June a tea is always given.

Due attention is accorded the religious side of the girls' education. There are always prayers after supper and on Wednesday evening one of the residents take the service, leading in prayer. These prayers are well attended; all go to church and many are regular members of Sunday schools. Mothers need have no fear of their daughter's welfare if she is sent to a Y.W.C.A.

The girls are either all self-supporting or preparing to support themselves. Twenty-five are students, five are teachers and the remainder are business girls.

Three rooms are kept for transients, Mrs. Morrison says that the record of students who had lived at the Y.W.C.A. was an enviable one. D. Walker, principal of the Normal School, approved of the girls staying there, as two years ago none of the girls had failed, and last year there were only two who were not successful; one of those had suffered considerable illness.

The house was absolutely quiet so that study could be carried on without interruption, although after supper there is a period which the

Crown Attorney Lays Charges of Cruelty Against Armenians

AT ST. CATHARINES.

One in Court Charged With Beating Wife With a Broomstick.

ST. CATHARINES, Nov. 3.—(Canadian Press).—That they buy their wives and then use them like slaves, treating them as if they were their goats or dogs, was the charge made against some of the Armenian residents of St. Catharines yesterday by Crown Attorney E. H. Lancaster.

Arekel Maloian, a middle-aged Armenian, was charged in Police Court with threshing his wife with a broomstick until she was black and blue. It was stated that he had bought her five months ago for $500 and married her. The woman seemed hardened and bent by work.

Magistrate Campbell said the police records here showed that undoubtedly Armenian girls and women were brought here by relatives from the Old Country and sold as wives to men they had never seen before.

Italy and United States Discussed Finances at First Session.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 3.—(Canadian Press).—The Italian and United States Debt Commissions met yesterday for renewal of the effort to find a satisfactory formula for funding Italy's war debt to the United States, but the first session did not carry the discussion beyond exchanges of felicitations and the beginning of the consideration of Italy's economic and financial situation.

LAKEFIELD NEWS.

LAKEFIELD, Nov. 3.—The Hallowe'en dance given under the auspieces of the Lakefield Fire Brigade on Friday evening was very successful and a large number, mainly of the younger set, tripped the light fantastic until the wee sma- hours. This is the first dance of the season and being held just prior to the hunting season, drew a good crowd of the yo- g men who early in the week answer the call of the wild and shoulder gun and hunting bag in the endeavor to secure some game.

AWAIT RETURNS OF ALL POLLS

as they arrived for the conference.

Early Parliament Expected

A matter of interest next to that as to whether or not Mr King will retain office is the time at which Parliament will be summoned. Those who want to see the situation cleared up are agreed that the sooner the legislators are called together the better for all concerned; so that it is probable that Parliament will be opened very shortly after the new year. The intervening two months are regarded as ample time to dispose of the necessary by-elections and prepare a program with which to set in motion the wheels of Parliament.

Already five seats have been offered the Prime Minister They are as follows: Quebec South, by C. G. Power; Rimouski by Sir Eugene Fiset; Bagot by J. E. Marcile; Vaudreuil-Soulanges, by L. A. Wilson, and Sherbrooke, by C. B. Howard. The Prime Minister, however, would prefer a seat in Ontario, in which he might seek election in Prescott or Russell, the latter of which was represented by Hon. Charles Murphy, Postmaster-General.

Ontario Cabinet Possibilities

Hon. Charles Murphy and Hon. Dr. H. S. Beland, now Senators, are likely to retain their previous portfolios of Postoffice and Soldiers' Civil Re-establishment, respectively In the latter case, should Dr. Beland accept, it would largely be in response to the appeals of the returned men themselves that the first Canadian to have actually served in Europe in the war continue to head their department. W. D. Euler (North Waterloo) and James Malcolm (North Bruce) are still associated in gossip with Railways and Canals and Trade and Commerce, respectively The problem of a Minister of Labor is still to be solved.

Expecting or hoping that Mr. King will resign, rather than retain office, the Conservative campaign machinery has been ordered to be maintained at full strength in case there might be an unexpectedly early apply to the people again. The Conservative press, as well as those prominent in the councils of the party here, clamors for Mr. King's resignation. An important reason for the Conservative demand is that should they get into office now, they would enjoy the large advantage of being in control of the election machinery when the next contest comes even though it were long deferred.

Little Possibility of Fusion

There is little possibility of a fusion between the Liberals and Progressives in order to present a more united front when Parliament opens. The attitude of Mr. Forke's following is learned here to be that of opposition to fusion, but in favor of an understanding similar to that in the last Parliament. In this connection it was suggested today that the Prime Minister might, in view of the large accession of Liberal strength in the Prairie Provinces, seek election to a Saskatchewan seat. Such a move, however, is likely to be opposed by the Premier himself in view of the necessity of improving in some manner the Ontario situation.

COLDS THAT DEVELOP INTO PNEUMONIA

Chronic coughs and persistent colds lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a new medical discovery with two-fold action, it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and kills the germ.

Of all known drugs, creosote is recognized by medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for persistent coughs and colds and other forms of throat troubles. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the inflamed membranes and stop the irritation and inflammation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach,, attacks the seat of the trouble and destroys the germs that lead to consumption.

Cremulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of chronic coughs and colds, bronchial asthma, catarrhal bronchitis and other forms of throat and respiratory diseases, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if any cough or cold is not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. Creomulsion Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

FEMINISMS

WHEN DRESSING TO TYPE BECOMES A SPECIALITY.

The vogue for emphasizing one's type brings out such contrasts as these. The lacy rose georgette gown is worn by one—and cowboy pajamas with organdie ruffles instead of chaps by another.

Love Nots.

By KAY KEAN.

He said: "Don't bother about me, darling!"

And so——

She left the lather on his razor blades.

And his towels on the floor.

And his slippers under the bath tub.

And the alarm clock under the bed clothes.

And his golf sticks in the back yard.

And his pet pipe on the radiator.

And the top off his tobacco jar.

And she did not peel his orange for him at breakfast.

Or put the sugar in his coffee.

Or find his rubbers for him.

Or remember to give his tailor the deuce.

And so one day he said to a friend, "Gosh, somehow you just can't be literal with a woman!"

Today's Fashion

By Vera Winston

Brown and Fawn Duvetyne Combine to Fashion This Smart Frock.

The shades of brown remain at the height of fashion, and among the most effective costumes are those that combine two or more shades of this color.

The soft duvetyne dress above is a smart example. This is the type of street frock which strikes a distinct note of difference.

Dignity may be said to be the keynote of such a dress which has a graceful V neck, slightly flaring sleeves, and discreet touches of the lighter shade.

Tomorrow's HOROSCOPE

By Genevieve Kemble

WEDNESDAY, NOVEMBER 4.

According to the long train of lunar transits this may be a very active day but not one that may be considered satisfactory. There is augury of a sudden removal or journey which may not be of benefit. Delays and obstacles may result from the Saturn figure and those in the employment of others are warned to be careful of their positions. There is also a figure read as likely to bring anxiety or sorrow to domestic, social or affectional affiliations.

Those whose birthday it is may look for an active and stirring year but one not wholly fortunate. There may be an unexpected journey or removal but these must be well managed in order to bring benefit. Those in employment should be cautious and personal affairs and domestic connections should be safeguarded from illness or sorrow. A child born on this day should be enterprising and resourceful but may be restless and unsettled, thereby encountering business difficulties. Its personal affairs may not be satisfying.

ADVICE TO GIRLS

By Annie Laurie

DEAR ANNIE LAURIE:

I am an orphan girl in my late teen and am deeply in love with a young man of my own age. I've been going out with him for almost a year.

About a month ago he asked me to marry him.

Since we're engaged he has been going around with other girls. Should I break the engagement?

BROKEN-HEARTED.

BROKEN-HEARTED: I suggest that you have a very frank talk with your fiance and ask him to explain his conduct, my dear. Since you have become engaged you have, naturally, taken it for granted that you must give up your other friends. Consequently, it is only fair that your fiance do the same, and if you explain the situation frankly and tactfully I am sure he will understand.

Annie Laurie will welcome letters of inquiry on subjects of feminine interest from young women readers of this paper and will reply to them in these columns. Letter to Miss Laurie should be addressed to her in care of this office.

PETERBORO' LADY HAS HERO BROTHER

Captain Grening Effected Rescue of All of Ship's Crew.

Mrs. George W. Gilman, 377 Park street, is receiving many congratulations just now on the prowess of her brother, Captain Paul Grening, skipper of the United States liner President Harding, who made such a heroic rescue of the crew of a foundered Italian freighter, the Ignazo Florio, out of Montreal, when it came to grief and lost its rudder in a mountainous sea, a week ago Wednesday. Capt. Grening fought a hurricane-torn sea for twenty-one hours before he could effect the transfer to his vessel of the Florio's crew of twenty-eight. Even the ship's cat, the white pussy Mirone, was saved, along with the black dog, Mirus, but the dog leaped from the lifeboat and swam back to the foundering vessel that had been his home. Captain Grening had three hundred and fourteen passengers on board the President Harding when he made the plucky fight to rescue the men from the doomed freighter, and the rescue ship limped into port leaning on her side and devoid of both fresh water and fuel. It was over sixteen hundred miles off Ambrose Light that the President Harding effected the rescue.

"No ship since the transports brought the A.E.F. home has received a welcome like that given the President Harding and its crew," says one of the many reports with which the New York papers were filled. A noisy welcome was tendered by scores of ship and factory sirens and hundreds of people as the tired vessel came into port.

Mrs. Gilman has received word from New York that her brother has been feted continuously since his arrival. He has been guest of honor at many different affairs given by members of the Italian nobility in New York; he was tendered a reception at the City Hall by Mayor Hylan, when two bands and one hundred and fifty cadets from St. Mary's School ship, of which Capt. Grening was a graduate, preceded his arrival; he was presented with a silver loving cup and each of his crew with medals at an affair arranged by the Italian Consulate; he has been informed that he will receive a Congressional medal, a letter from President Coolidge and a resolution from the Shipping Board, and that he will receive the highest honor of knighthood in the gift of the Italian Government.

This is not the first time that Capt. Grening has figured in despatches that had to do with rescue work at sea. He has a commendation from the Navy Department for saving the crew of a torpedoed transport, and often during war-time he picked up U-boat victims and brought them to safety. Of his latest rescue, he made the comment, "I merely did my duty."

Thousands Have Banished Gray Hair with this Clean, Colorless Liquid

Make a Test of Kolor-Bak Today

People everywhere praise Kolor-Bak for its remarkable power to banish grayness. The results are really astonishing, for no matter what the original shade was, it quickly reappears when this clean, colorless liquid is used.

According to scientists, grayness comes when age, illness, shock or disease causes a lack in the normal supply of coloring matter furnished to the hair—but whatever the cause, Kolor-Bak soon brings back the former shade, and the shade is uniform throughout—no "dyed" or streaked appearance. Results appear quickly—often in a week. Kolor-Bak is the most satisfactory substitute for the natural pigmentation. It also removes dandruff, stops itching of the scalp and keeps the hair from falling out.

"My Hair Was Quite Gray"

"Only a short time ago my hair was quite gray. It was falling out. My scalp itched and dandruff appeared. Kolor-Bak stopped the itching, dandruff and falling. Most wonderful of all, however, is that my hair is its original shade. I look 10 years younger." (A typical letter)

If your hair has turned or is turning, do what thousands of others have done—let Kolor-Bak make your grayness a thing of the past. No need to supply samples of your hair as this one clean, colorless liquid is effective on any gray hair. Just ask for a bottle of Kolor-Bak. Money returned instantly if desired results do not appear.

QUEEN'S AFTER RUGBY RECORD OF FOURTH DOMINION CHAMPIONSHIP

Has Won Three in Row and Decides to Enter Finals Again.

THREE WEEKS' REST

KINGSTON, Ont., Nov. 3.—(Canadian Press).—Now that Queen's University has won the Intercollegiate championship and thus equalled the Varsity record of four consecutive championships, it is definitely after a brand new record in the form of four consecutive Dominion championships for it is now absolutely decided that the team will go on into the Dominion finals.

So far as Queen's team are concerned they came through the struggle on Saturday in good shape and are being given a rest this week because they have no game to play for three weeks to come. Strenuous training will begin again next week and in the meantime only light practices and running will be indulged in.

RUGBY INJURY PROVES FATAL

Charles Prior, Lehigh Quarter, Hurt in a Tackle.

BETHLEHEM, Pa., November 3.—Charles Prior, the Lehigh University football player, who was injured two weeks ago in the West Virginia-Wesleyan game, died here on Sunday. A post mortem examination showed that the fifth, sixth and seventh vertebrae were fractured and the spinal cord not severed but badly mangled. At the bedside of Prior at St. Luke's Hospital when death came were his father and mother, Mr. and Mrs. L. M. Prior of Ridgewood, N. J., Prof. H. R. Reiter and Dr. W. L. Estes, Jr.

Prior was a senior and 22 years old. His hobby was baseball, catcher being his position. He would have been captain of the team next spring. Because he was a veritable flash on the gridiron he was induced to come out for football when the necessity for more backfield men became apparent.

He was hurt while running back a punt with less than five minutes to play. Oddly enough it was the only attempt he had made to run back a punt during the contest, having signaled for fair catches on all other occasions.

The longest stretch of tie games in the Yale-Princeton football series was in 1879, 1880 and 1881, when the two teams played the three successive years without a single point being scored on either side.

M'GILL PRACTICES FOR VARSITY GAME

Montreal Team Hopes To Finish in Second Place.

MONTREAL, Nov. 3 (Canadian Press).—With Queen's holding their intercollegiate rugby title for the fourth straight year, interest in the series now centres in the two games remaining in the schedule between McGill and University of Toronto for second place, the first of which will be played at the Percival Molson Memorial Stadium here Saturday.

Prior to their drubbing at the hands of Queen's Saturday, the University of Toronto were rather favored by rugby fans generally to put out ahead of McGill, the team being conceded the advantage on the strength of their showing in the first game against the tri-color when they all but won at Kingston. Subsequent games have proved that Varsity's good showing in the first game was largely due to the miserable display put up by Queen's in their initial contest of the season, and now the tide has swung around in favor of the McGill team.

McGill started workouts yesterday afternoon to prepare for the meeting with Varsity Saturday.

FORWARD PASS MAY BE TRIED

In McGill-M.A.A.A. Game in Montreal on Thanksgiving Day.

MONTREAL, Que., Nov. 3.—(Canadian Press).—There has been a suggstion made by the management of the Montreal Big Four rugby squad that the forward pass be tried out as an experiment in the annual Montreal-McGill intra-city rugbyu fixture at the McGill Stadium on the afternoon of Thanksgiving Day.. The idea comes from Coach Nicholson, of the Montreal squad, who is keen to see just how th play would work under the Canadian code and just how popular it might prove to the spectators and players. McGill have been approached on the matter, but so far have not taken any action.

Footballers discussing the suggestion while not committing themselves against the forward pass, were prone to believe that without the proper rules in the Canadian code to cover the play, officials and players alike would be somewhat at sea, particularly as there is less than one week to prepare both offensive movements and a defensive system against its use, and that, as a result the play would not be seen under favorable circumstances. Besides, the annual fixture has assumed an important role in the yearly rugby contests and is drawing a bigger following each year, the event now having assumed the proportions of a city championship tilt and many are opposed to the tussle being used as an experiment in new plays. Those against the move also point out that both teams, though out of the championship running in their respective unions, yet have important tilts ahead of them Saturday and will not have much time to spend in practising innovations for Monday's game, all the available time being necessary for their games at the week-end.

BIG MONEY FOR HOCKEY STARS

Conacher Tops List With $7,500 Contract For Three Years.

OTTAWA, Ont., Nov. 3.—(Canadian Press).—The sporting editor of The Citizen, in an article today, commenting on the salaries paid hockey players, states that "in the National Hockey League the salaries appear much higher than those in any other circuits. In proportion to the time employed and the time required, hockey stars of the present day, draw down much more than big league ball players."

After stating that only a few years ago, the average hockey star was satisfied with a contract calling for a few hundred dollars, the article points out that in 1918, Eddie Gerard was considered the highest paid hockey star with a contract for $1,100. Last season, the Montreal Club paid Dunc Munroe $7,000 and purchased Reg. Noble from the Toronto St. Pats for $7,000.

"This year," the article says, "with New York and Pittsburgh added, the contracts call for higher figures than ever. Lionel Conacher, former Argonaut football star, now with Pittsburgh, is said to be the best paid player in professional hockey. 'Conny' is understood to have a three year contract at $7,500 per season. Billy Burch recently signed up with New York at $6,500 for three years and Joe Simpson had to be guaranteed $6,000 before he would attach his name to a New York contract."

The article further states that "the Montreal Maroons are said to have recently offered to pay $20,000 for Howie Morenz of the Canadiens and $15,000 for Babe Dye, of St. Patricks. New York were offered $25,000 for Billy Burch and $15,000 for Charlie Langlois. It will thus be seen that hockey, with Happy Day getting $6,000; Lione Conacher $7,000; Billy Burch $6,500; Joe Simpson $6,000 and Sprague Cleghorn $5,000, is certainly getting into the big money class."

SLEW TAXI DRIVER

Confession of Winnipeg Man Used in Evidence.

WINNIPEG, Man., Nov. 3.—(Canadian Press).—What was stated to be a complete confession by Steve Nazar, held for the murder of Louis Landy in his taxicab on a suburban road here October 15, was introduced as evidence before a coroner's jury here Monday. The jury found Nazar responsible for the death. No date has been set for his trial.

The confession, alleged to be signed by Nazar, stated that he had been walking the streets the day before the murder with nothing to eat, and that in the evening he hired Landy to drive him to East Kildonan, where he hoped to get a job on a truck farm. After driving ten miles he stopped Landy and informed him that he had no money. In the altercation which followed, Nazar hit the taxi driver over the head four or five times with an iron bar, the confession states, afterward going through his victim's pockets and taking what loose cash and other valuables he found.

TOWNSHIP TO VOTE ON MEMORIAL GRANT

Seymour Council Declined to Assume Responsibility Themselves.

CAMPBELLFORD, Nov. 3. — At the November meeting of the Seymour Township Council Monday afternoon it was decided, on motion of Councillor Innis to submit to the voters at the next municipal election the question of the township making a grant to help defray the cost of the monument which it is proposed to erect in memory of the men from the district who lost their lives in the Great War. The Council did not care to assume the responsibility of making a grant without a warrant from the people. A public meeting was called last summer to discuss this problem, but not one attended beside the members of the Council.

Road Work Completed.

Work on the township roads for this year has been all but completed. The total expenditure for this purpose was over $10,000, so that the township will receive from the province a grant in excess of $3,000. There are, however, two or three portions of highway that will be given attention before the end of the year.

Wilfrid Todd and Robert Little asked the Council that some work be done in the vicinity of the Todd hill in the Menie district and action was promised.

After adjournment the Council went in a body to examine the highway from the river out the eighth concession to the township of Rawdon. This road was taken over by the county some years ago, but as nothing has been done on it since that time it is in bad shape. It has now been thrown back on the township.

George Anderson, school attendance officer, submitted his report which showed that with one or two exceptions, the attendance at the schools throughout the township is satisfactory.

The next meeting of the Council will be held on Monday, November 30.

Maybee's Majority.

The latest unofficial figures give M. E. Maybee, Conservative, a majority of 1,251 over Fred J. Slade, Liberal candidate in the late election. The official result will be announced Thursday.

BIG HARVEST OF APPLES FROZEN

Fruit Growers in Bailieboro District Could Not Get Help.

CAUGHT BY FROST.

BAILIEBORO, Nov. 2—During the past week there was very little ploughing done in this township. There is still considerable ploughing to be done, and the farmers are confident that there will still be sufficient god weather during November to get their fall work concluded.

There are scores of acres of turips that have not been put into the root houses as yet, and they are yet to harvest.

Thousands of barrels of apples in this district still remain frozen on the trees. When driving along the highways, a motorist can observe orchard after orchard with trees bearing barrels of beautiful apples that the fruit growers could not get help to get them picked. Hired help is very scarce throughout the rural localities.

The members of the Centerville Presbyterian Church observed their anniversary services on Sunday morning and evening. Good crowds were present at both services, and the weather was ideal for their anniversary occasion.

The annual fowl supper and entertainment will be held on Tuesday evening in the Sunday School hall.

United Church Bazaar

The annual bazaar was held in Bateson's hall on Friday evening last by the ladies of the United Church.

The upstairs was beautifully decorated, and there, the different booths were prettily arranged for the sale of the numerous articles provided as generously by the ladies. Although mostly every item at the booths was quickly sold, possibly the two booths which found the most ready purchasers were those of the farmers' table and a daintily arranged candy stand. At the farmers' table everything could be procured from a basket of fresh eggs to a barrel of apples.

Downstairs the fish pond, operated by Mrs. N. Jewison, found a group of eager boys and girls anxiously awaiting their turn to draw a prize from the scores at the bottom of the pond.

Three tables were set in the basement, extending the entire length of the hall, and a bountiful supper was served to a moderately large crowd considering the cold weather which prevailed outside.

At the conclusion of the supper a local programme was rendered in the church, consisting of dialogues, quarettes, readings, also a gypsy chorus. Mr. Douglas Westington and Miss Olive Morton of Plainville also assisted wonderfully with the programme. The pastor, Rev. Mr. Foley, acted as chairman.

The proceeds of the evening, with the Sunday offering amounted to in the neighborhood of two hundred and fifty dollars.

PETERBOROUGH Y.W.C.A.

girls use in dispelling surplus energy.

The fact that each year sees a number of girls leave because of marriage would indicate that cupid was active and that it was especially advisable for girls to go there.

Mail is stuck in criss-cross straps on a big board which is especially convenient in that everybody has the joy of seeing a letter and wondering who sent it, even if it is not addressed to her. The fact that girls stay for a number of years is proof of the popular light in which the Y is regarded. Some have tried boarding at private homes but have returned again to take up residence among the happy crowd.

Mrs. Morrison finds that the girls are exceedingly orderly and keep splendid hours. The doors close at 11, although it is possible for residents to get late leave which will enable them to remain out until 12.30. The students are not permitted the comparative freedom of the business girls, as too much liberty might interfere with their progress. The girls, however, are seldom out later than 11.00, as there are few counter attractions which will successfully weigh against those presented by the Y.W.C.A. The department is self-sustaining.

"Gym" Activities.

Miss Littlefield, as physical directress, suffers no lack of employment. She has schedules to arrange classes to teach and various other activities to oversee. Some of her accomplishments for the past six months have been the teaching of 240 girls to swim; 1324 lessons were given and 32 passed life-saving contests. During last year 345 gymnasium classes were conducted with an enrollment of 500. Six factories were represented in a basketball league, while 240 enrolled for badminton, croquet, basketball or baseball.

Every month a gym. party is held for juniors and seniors, and at the end of each year there is a huge pageant staged in the Opera House, in which 500 children, girls and women take part. The programme consists of athletic work and dances by members in all stages of advancement.

Foreign Work.

Ontario Y. W. C. A. departments have the care of Japan work and support a worker there in that field. Other parts of Canada have sections of the Orient as fields of labor.

The Dominion Council has charge of all immigrant work, and it notifies the Y.W.C.A. of the place where the party is going, and arrangements are made either to meet the train or to make a call soon afterward. In this way many domestics from England and Scotland are welcomed. The officials at the railway stations are very considerate in assisting with this work.

The president, Mrs. T. Cruikshank, paid an excellent tribute to the board, which she declared to be splendidly co-operative, and always ready for any important work. She said that Miss Brownscombe was too self-effacing and did not take due credit for keeping the machinery oiled and running in the good order which was so apparent.

Last year a mortgage was lifted which had been placed on by the swimming pool construction. A number of past officials were present to see the buildings freed of debt. A number of improvements have yet to be made, such as a balcony for the gym. and a proposed elevator for the residential section.

It is only by the harmonious blending of effort that the advance so evident in the past few years has been made possible. Heads of departments, although responsible to no one, go on with their work, and the result is one of which Peterboro is justly proud.

FOUNTAIN PENS FOR THE OFFICERS

Central League Ball Players Show Appreciation of Executive Service.

The harmony that has existed all season between the players of the Peterboro Central Ontario League Club and the executive officers of the club was strikingly illustrated at a meeting held in the Chamber of Commerce last night, when fountain pens were presented by the players to the members of the executive as a mark of appreciation of their services during the season.

The presentation was made by Manager Shiner Johnston on behalf of the players, and pens, suitably engraved, were ready for President Gordon Matthews, Vice-President H. T. McFadden, Secretary Doug. McDonald, Treasurer F. J. A. Hall and Bob Abbott, R. M. Glover, D. DeGraw, J. E. Sullivan and L. H. Bond, members of the executive, most of whom were present and expressed their appreciation of the gift, their enjoyment of the past season and their willingness to assist in any way possible next season.

Arrangements for next year were discussed, and it was decided to hold the annual meeting early in December. All of this season's players, it is expected, will be available again in 1926, with the exception of Frank Whitehouse, who reports to the Baltimore Orioles in March.

INSIDE GOLF.

Maker of 51 Golf Champions. "Golf's most successful teacher," says "Chick" Evans

By CHESTER HORTON

The tendency of the clubhead is to cut across the ball from right to left when the body sways forward into the direction line with the forward swing. Often you may notice that a divot with an iron is cut across the sod instead of straight through it, and the fact the ball skids to the left instead of being a slice may puzzle you when the divot indicates the ball should have sliced. The forward sway of the body releases a resistance which should be in the left leg at the instant the ball is hit, and this lets the left side drop down toward the ball. The right side obviously comes up, in this action, and that rolls the forearms forward, toeing the clubface in. You then finish the stroke standing fairly erect. Done correctly the body would be stooped, with the right shoulder under and the left leg, stiffened, bearing all the weight.

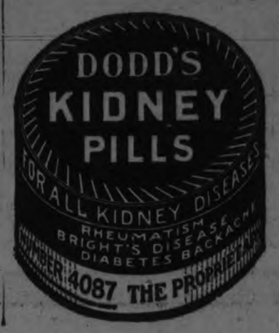
Poor Weather Conditions Cause Chicago Wheat Jump

CHICAGO, Nov. 3.— (Canadian Press.)—A fresh upturn in wheat values to-day accompanied word of the increasing demand from millers at Liverpool, together with unfavorable weather conditions both in Canada and in Argentine and Australia and whole serious new threshing delays by snow and rain in Canada were reported, frost damage affecting more than 2,000,000 acres in Argentina and dry weather in Australia, such that only a miracle can give the Australians anything like the harvest of last season. Under such circumstances, offerings here were quickly absorbed and the market went upgrade from the start. Opening prices, 1-2 to 1 1-2c. higher, new style, December $1.49 7-8 to $1.50 1-2 and May $1.45 3-4 to $1.46 1-8, were followed by an ascent to $1.51 3-4 for December and $1.47 1-4 for May.

Corn and oats sympathized with wheat strength. Besides, corn receipts were scant and wintery weather for the corn belt was indicated. After opening at 1-4c. to 5-8c. higher, December 74 3-4c. to 75c., corn scored a moderate further advance.

Oats started at 1-8 to 1-4c. up, December 38 5-8. Later additional firmness developed.

Provisions were responsive to the upward trend of grain.



Trading Was Moderate With General Tone Firm

TORONTO, Nov. 3. Canadian Press —Trading continued on a moderate scale on the Toronto Stock Exchange this morning, with Smelters the active leader, and Brazilian, B. C. Fishing and Davies A also prominent. The general tone of the market was firm and outstanding in the list was a 2½ point advance by the Bank of Montreal. Consolidated Smelters climbed up 3 and 3-8 at 163¼. Brazilian three-quarters at 78½ and British Columbia Fishing a ½ point at 55½. Davies A closed the morning unchanged. Bank of Commerce was another strong spot selling 7-8 higher at 224. Maple Leaf Milling eased 7-8 at 95 1-8.

General Weakness Shown And Mine Trade Lessens

TORONTO, Nov. 3.—(Canadian Press.)— A further contraction of trading was shown on the standard mining exchange this morning with the general tone remaining weak. Tough Oakes, one of the active leaders, was marked down four points at 53, a point above the season's low, and Kirkland Lake eased one and a half at 67 1-2. Mining Corporation sold six points lower at 308, and Canadian Lorrain, also prominent, was a point lower at 75, touching 72 during the morning.

MARKET GOSSIP SHOWS PRICES GOING UPWARD

Potatoes, Sugar and Eggs Are Near the Peak For Season.

APPLES PLENTIFUL

Peterboro Stores Report a Shortage of Dairy Butter at 50 Cents.

The costly potato is an object of much concern in local marketing centres just now. The price per bag is quoted anywhere from $1.75 to $2.40 in the stores, and some wholesale concerns in Toronto have jacked the price up to $2.50 a bag, for the best quality. The blight on the potato this year that runs through the entire vegetable and gives it a disagreeable odor, was caused, it is said, by the late rains that forced the growth and also ruined the crop to a great extent. The extent to which the humble potato, one of the most valuable adjuncts of the dinner table, and welcomed by all but the very fat, can make or mar the diet of the ordinary individual may be guessed by the fact that forty and one-half million dollars' worth of "pommes de terre," as our French neighbors call them, were consumed in the Dominion of Canada last year.

Apples Plentiful.

Apples are noticeable in the stores, and come in many varieties, from the aristocratic table apples from British Columbia that retail at 50 cents a dozen, to the humble cooking apple at 20 sents a peck measure. Spies in good quality sell at $4.50 a barrel, with a rebate of fifty cents on the return of the barrel.

The apple is threatened with dislodgement from its ancient and honorable position as the cause of all the trouble which has befallen the world since Eve first cast her eye on a particularly choice specimen. A lady closely associated with the retail fruit business of the city makes the assertion that the pomegranate was the fruit referred to in the old story, and that it was Eve's natural curiosity about this odd-looking round object with its multitudinous inner seeds that led to the eviction from the Garden of Eden. The ancient scribe's inability to give the proper translation of the word "pomegranate" and the substitution therefor of the easily-spelled "apple," is said to have led to a mistake which has been harbored in the minds of millions of people for countless ages.

New nuts are in the stores. The California budded walnuts are selling at 50 cents a pound, and one establishment is handling the pecan at the lofty price of $1.50 a pound. Filberts are 60 cents a pound.

Fish, that is popularly credited with brain-inspiring qualities, although the finny denizen of the waters of the earth has never been endowed with any too much sense and will allow itself to be caught by the flimsiest of bait, are holding their own again, after a hot weather banishment. Oysters may be purchased at 75 cents a pint, or $1.50 a quart. Eating raw oysters in Chicago is punishable by a fine of $25, but no such rule hampers the eating of the succulent bivalves in this city.

Sugar is described as being "firm." This commodity is temperamental. It goes along for a certain length of time, apparently, in a state of flux, tacking from "weak" to "strong" points of the compass with great vigor. Then it suddenly rights itself and assumes a "firm" attitude, and the buying public takes the consequence. Reliable authorities made the assertion that fifty-five million dollars was spent in Canada last year for sugar, allowing approximately eighty-one pounds per person. The advent of Prohibition is supposed to raise the sugar-consuming figures of any nation.

Dairy butter is very scarce, and has already reached the half-dollar mark in the stores, as on the farmers' market. Creamery butter is priced a cent or two lower. Eggs, in the "extras" section, have gone up to a nickel apiece. Fifty-one and three quarter million dollars, it is estimated, was expended on fresh eggs for the Dominion of Canada last year, with forty and one-half millions on storage eggs, a total of "hen fruit" consumption for the Canadian public of over ninety-two millions of dollars.

Prices in local grain markets fluctuate slightly from time to time. Fall wheat has advanced ten cents on the bushel over a week ago, with spring wheat recording a similar advance, and small increases on other grains, with the exception of rye. No red clover has yet been offered in local circles.

That the irresponsibility of the youth of the present age is directly due to of interest on the part of the parents, is the opinion of Police Chief Newhall. In this age of amusement he says, that parents are quite willing that their children should frequent dance halls and boot-legging joints while they.

Here's Proof that the ever present Booze "Parties" —the flask on the hip—the seeming lack of decorum and decency in some of the younger generation is due to lack of home training! Written by the Famous Author and Student, G. GARDNER SULLIVAN

"CHEAP KISSES."

Blames the Parents for the Indiscretions of Modern Youth — Clever Story by Famous Author.

"C. Gardner Sullivan."

What a name to conjure with! For years it has been the label on scores and scores of the best screen stories presented to the audiences of the world.

And now after years as a successful writer and editor of scenarios, C. Gardner Sullivan has become a producer, to present his own stories to the public, in his own way.

The first of these is "Cheap Kisses" —a virile story of the flaming youth of to-day, which is now playing at the Royal Theatre.

"Cheap Kisses" is a comedy drama, laid in New York City and on Long Island Sound. It deals with the fate of young people thrown into a hectic life of cocktail drinking, jazz dancing and petting. It reveals their problems and the solution of these problems.

The thousands of screen fans who have seen and admired Mr. Sullivan's brain children on the silver screen for these many years will have waited with interest his first production.

"Cheap Kisses" will not disappoint them in the least.

"BLACK LIGHTNING" HAS DOG STAR, "THUNDER."

"Black Lightning" with "Thunder" —the Marvel dog in the star role and presented by Samuel Sax, comes to the Royal Theatre for three days commencing Thursday. "Black Lightning" is from an original story by Harry Davis and was adapted for the screen by Dorothy Howell. It was produced and directed by James P. Hogan.

In the support of "Thunder"—the Marvel Dog" who has the principal role in "Black Lightning," Mr. Sax has engaged a cast far and away above the usual. Clara Bow who is considered one of the brightest stars on the screen to-day, plays the leading feminine role.

"Black Lightning" is a heart interest story that is replete with swift, clean action and holds the spectator spellbound.

AT THE GRAND

WILLIAM FAVERSHAM AND SARAH TRUAX, LEADING FEMININE SUPPORT, REALLY A GREAT PLAYER COMBINATION

Undoubtedly the high water mark of the dramatic season in this city will be reached with the appearance of William Faversham, and Sarah Truax, (in support of Mr. Faversham) at the Grand Opera House on Thursday, November 12th, in Zoe Akins' drama, "Foot-Loose." The appearance of two such artists of dramatic importance in a play by a brilliant author, is a combination so rare as to intrigue every theatre-goer who appreciates the best in the theatre.

While Mr Faversham won his first distinction in this country with Charles Froham's famous Empire Theatre Company, Miss Truax also won her first spurs in "Mrs. Dane's Defense."

Mr Faversham played his first roles in "The Younger Son," "Sowing The Wind," "The Masqueraders," "The Importance of Being Earnest," "Under The Red Robe," "Phroso," "Brother Officers" and "Diplomacy." He was at the time regarded as one of the finest romantic actors on the American stage, and after eleven years with the Empire Company, Mr. Froham elevated him to stardom in "A Royal Rival," a play of the Don Caesar de Bazan type.

Meanwhile Miss Truax was winning high honors with Otis Skinner, appearing as Lady Castleman in Mr. Skinner's production of "His Grace de Grammont" at the Grand Opera House, Chicago. Then followed various stock engagements upon the adivce of Mr. Skinner. These engagements were in Baltimore, Buffalo, Detroit, Pittsburgh Chicago, St. Paul and Minneapolis. Then Miss Truax appeared with several of the Klaw and Erlanger productions including "The Prince of India," in which she played the role of Princess Irene. Miss Truax retired to private life for five years. Her return to the field was in the position of actress-manager on the Pacific Coast, where she produced a number of original scripts. Not only did she make an artistic success of her productions, but she proved that the productions could be made on a financially sound and practical basis.

After Mr. Faversham had achieved a fine popular success in "The Squaw Man," he also became an actor-manager, making such ambitious and notable productions as "Othello," "Herod," "The Fawn," "The World and His Wife," "The Hawk" and "Julius Caesar."

With such brilliant achievements behind them, it is little wonder that both Mr. Faversham and Miss Truax are acclaimed two of the great players in the present day theatre.

The name of William Faversham alone should be able to pack any playhouse to the doors but with the support of such a valuable dramatic acquisition as Miss Truax and appearing as they do in the stellar roles in Zoe Akins' "Foot-Loose", they can be depended upon to provide a really memorable evening in the theatre.

AT THE REGENT

FRANK LLOYD'S "THE SEA HAWK" MAKES BIG HIT.

Ships of Sixteenth Century Type Shown in Battle on the Screen.

THE CAST IS EXCEPTIONAL.

Picture is Thrilling, Appealing and Entertaining; Scenes Are Spectacular.

"The Sea Hawk" sailed out upon the screen at the Regent Theatre last night and trained his big guns on the audience and fired a broadside which is echoing to-day in every corner of the city. The broadside was one of the most brilliant dramatic photoplays which have graced the silver sheet in months.

"The Sea Hawk" is Frank Lloyd's picture version of Sabatini's colorful epic which is released by First National. It is a great story, has an exceptional cast and possesses every element of really great entertainment.

Never have there been ships of such size, nor so many of them actually engaged in combat on the screen; in fact never have there been such ships seen on the screen; never so many big settings, so many important, surprising incidents in one picture and so many famous people, so active in these incidents.

Milton Sills plays the part of Sir Oliver Tressilian, an English knight, who later becomes Sakrel-Bahr, the idol of Algerian corsairs, in a capable manner. Sir Oliver is a more dominant character than even "Robin Hood" and it has required an unusual amount of versatility and study to make him the real, lovable, gentleman he is on the screen.

Enid Bennett has little difficulty in making Rosamund a sweet, demure, faithful English maid, Miss Bennett's grace and refinement are refreshing.

To transfer the Sabatini story to the silver sheet has been a Herculean task and Mr. Lloyd has handled every detail with such sincerity, such tact and such thorough understanding that he has won for himself a place among the masters of the cinema.

AT THE CAPITOL

TEARS AND TRAGEDY TURNED TO COMEDY.

Charlie Chaplin at Peak of His Career in "The Gold Rush," New Film.

Charlie Chaplin's new picture, "The Gold Rush," coming to the Capitol Theatre to-morrow, is announced as a comedy drama with a story of laughter and tears and of hope deferred.

"The Gold Rush," a United Artists Corporation release, brings Charlie Chaplin to the topmost peak of his dazzling career. His work in this picture will place him secure as the greatest pantomimist of all recorded time.

This story of the Alaskan gold rush; interwoven with all the jabbings of fate that well can come to one who is typical of life—almost reaching the goal, and watching its shadow disappear with the pained expression that only a Chaplin can wear—is a story crowned with the majesty of enterprise and the futility of it.

And through all the picture Charlie has not forgotten the children. There is a tenderness in the little comedian for the children of the nations.

And yet, in his role of the hard-luck sourdough, Chaplin presents the biography of a life with complete understanding and sympathy. And while the pathos and sufferings of the characters are converted into laughter, there is linked to the picture a chain of circumstantial tragedy that is relieved by the great comedian's ribald mastery of pantomime and comedy.

HARRY CAREY IN "SILENT SANDERSON."

Westin's Impersonations were a feature of the programme at the Capitol Theatre last evening. These are extremely good and are produced with lightning-like rapidity. They met with much applause from a pleased and interested audience, and included in their number impersonations of King Edward, Theodore Roosevelt, with his famous "toothy" smile, Admiral Dewey, President Wilson, Napoleon Bonaparte, Buffalo Bill, complete with bushy whiskers and fringed coat, and an exceptionally odd picture of Queen Victoria, resplendent in Black satin gown and white lace, waving a small fan.

There is a Walter Hiers comedy which depicts the fat, harassed gentleman in the role of a forgetful bridegroom, with a vengeful uncle, and a very clever dog companion as supporting players.

Harry Carey is the hero of one of those forceful pictures that rivet the attention of an audience. As "Silent Sanderson," he pursues, with vengeance in his heart, the girl who has marred his brother's life, and the man she married. Forsaken by her worthless husband, the girl finds a refuge, after tempestuous scenes in an Alaskan dance hall, in "Silent's" cabin, and here her husband follows, snow-blinded. The forceful scenes of this picture are in the delineation of Alaskan storms and the fierce fight between the two men in the cabin.—Jeannette.

Has No Hands, But Paints. Rides Wheel And Drives Car

PITTSBURGH, Nov. 3. — (Canadian Press).—Life goes on pretty much the same for George Shires, a sign painter of this city, since he lost both hands and his left arm in an explosion in 1907. Not only does he still continue to paint signs, but he also shaves himself, writes, rides a bicycle and hunts and fishes. He is an enthusiastic sportsman.

"I haven't missed a hunting or fishing season since I lost my hands," he said. "I tie a string to the trigger of my gun and when I want to shoot I pull it with my tooth. Fishing is still easier. I work my reel by sticking the rode in a handkerchief tied about my arm."

Shire paints and writes with his brush or pen held between his teeth. Among his other accomplishments since the loss of his hands, he has learned to drive an automobile, for which he had to pass an examination.
